First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water until dissolved. Anyone can do it. No cooking needed. (Or use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.)

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for its quick action on throat irritations.

Put the Pinex into a 16 ounce bottle, and fill up with your syrup. Thus you make 16 ounces of very efficient medicine, and you get four times as much for your money. It tastes fine and never spoils.

And for quick, satisfying relief, it is splendid. You can feel it penetrating the air passages and taking hold of the cough. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

FOR EXTRA CONVENIENCE GET NEW, READY-TO-USE, PREPARED PINEX.

Suggest Reasons Liberals Lost

TORONTO, Feb. 13 — (CP) — Norman L. Mathews, president of the Ontario Liberal Asesociation, said Tuesday that factors most frequently mentioned as contributing to the outcome of the November 22 provincial election included the personal popularity of Premier Frost and the quality of Liberal leadership.

Mr. Mathews told the Liberal Business Men's Club of Toronto, however, that the outcome may not have been due to any of the suggested factors, which included:

The personal popularity of Mr. Frost and the voters' belief that he had given good government;

The Liberal leadership of Walter Thomson and allegedly extravagant promises made by him;

The federal Liberal government's alleged excessive taxation and failure to control prices.

Revision Of Divorce Laws Urged By By British Society

LONDON, Feb. 13. (CP)—The newly-constituted Royal Commission on divorce has been asked by the Marriage Law Reform Society to recognize mutual consent and breach of faith as the principal grounds in future on which divorces would be granted in Britain.

Adultery, desertion and cruelty are the chief grounds under existing law.

The proposal was submitted by the society in a lengthy brief embracing a series of far-reaching recommendations. It also suggested abolition of the three-year period before divorce proceedings are admissible, intervention of the King's proctor and the decree nisi —an order for divorce if not challenged within six months.

Divorce by consent, the brief contended, should be permissible as being the most rational and decent way of determining a marriage that has failed. But it also urged that imprisonment be added as an extra ground for divorce and that adultery and cruelty be re-defined.

It was argued that injury to health should cease to be an essential condition to a charge of cruelty. But by amending the law it should expressly include habitual drunkenness, communication of venereal disease and cruelty to children.

More Recommendations

Other recommendations called for the abolition of damage claims for adultery, granting authority to the courts to impose maintenance payments for co-respondents and a law making women equally responsible for the maintenance of illegitimate children.

Reform society spokesmen said that if their recommendations were adopted more than 3,000 husbands will cease to go to prison every year and abandoned wives will get their maintenance regularly.

"We propose that these laws shall be based primarily on human needs," they said.

The Royal Commission was set up recently after Mrs. Eirene White, Socialist member of parliament for East Flint, had introduced a private bill calling for a drastic overhaul of the country's divorce law.

At the time, Mrs. White estimated that about 250,000 couples in the United Kingdom were living apart but were unable to remarry because of divorce law technicalities.

"To continue a legal marriage after all reasonable hope has passed of restoring to it the spirit which makes marriage a reality, is socially and morally undesirable," she said.

Queen Sends Forces Message

LONDON, Feb. 13 — (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II, describing herself as the wife of a serving officer, sent special messages Tuesday night to her armed forces over the world. She promised to look out for the "welfare and efficiency" of the forces.

The young Queen said she had a "specially intimate link with the Royal Navy," in which her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, is a lieutenant-commander.

She told the armies her own wartime service in the Auxiliary Territorial Service and personal association with individual regiments have "given me some experience of the varied and onerous tasks they are called upon to discharge."

The Queen praised the heroic exploits of the Royal Air Force during the war and expressed confidence its men "will continue to display that pride of service and unswerving allegiance to the Crown which they have ever shown."

Tide Of British Migration Seeks To Move To Canada

Written for The Canadian Press By GLENN McDOUGALL
Kemsley Journalist Scholar

LONDON, Feb. 13—(CP)—A new tide of British migration will sweep over the shores of Canada this year, spurred by the darkening austerity picture in the United Kingdom.

Thousands of young Britons who hesitated to emigrate to the Commonwealth immediately after the war are ready to take the plunge in 1952—and many of them have elected to go to Canada.

Canadian government offices in London are processing an estimated 5,000 applicants a month. Some 30,000 Britons, already processed, are waiting for shipping space or an opportune time to travel.

If the present trend continues, Canada may welcome from 50,000 to 90,000 British imigrants this year compared with about 65,000 last year. (Canada's total immigration from all countries in 1951 was 195,000).

Most of the immigrants are seeking refuge from austerity and the economic confinement of lite in present-day Britain. The exodus was stimulated when the Conservative government announced its program of further ration cuts and more belt-tightening and held out no hope for an early sunrise in the nation's gloomy food picture.

Speed Up Flow

To speed up the migration, British Overseas Airways Corporation and Trans-Canada Airlines will operate special plane services to Canada in 1952. The Canadian government has arranged 38 additional ship sailings.

The big question is: Will the increased flow of emigrants from Britain produce more unemployment in Canada? Canadian officials say "No." And they say Canada welcomes all the settlers it can get from this economically beleaguered island.

"Every immigrant is a consumer before he is a producer," explained one official. "He creates work for some one else before he seeks a job himself."

Mass migration to other parts of the Commonwealth is being widely urged in Britain today. Many people feel the United Kingdom must reduce its population by at least 15 millions (present population 50 millions) if the country is to survive its economic difficulties.

The Migration Council says Britain cannot afford to go on spending more than three billion dollars a year to import food for its meat-starved population. Its solution: Send the people where the food is—to the Commonwealth

Urge Commonwealth Talks

The council wants a Commonwealth conference called to discuss a mass shift in population. It points out the United States achieved much of its present greatness by admitting millions of immigrants in a 50-year period following the civil war. The council envisages a similar type of program for the British Commonwealth.

Since the war, Canada has welcomed approximately 625,000 immigrants, about one-third of them British. Australia, which has followed a more aggressive immigration policy, has taken about the same total but 52 per cent are British.

Canada's recent immigration figures fall far short of the records set before and after the First World War. But the present jump in British migration may mark the start of an increasing flow of new settlers across the Atlantic. And if the flow reaches the proportions urged by the Migration Council, experts say Canada can look for a population of at least 35,000,000 by the end of the century.

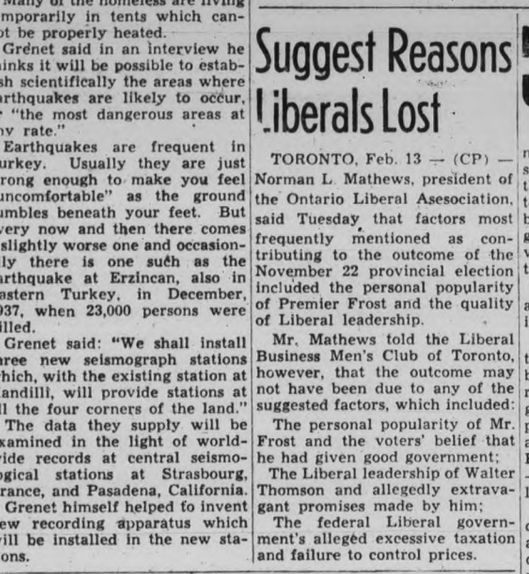
Begin Inquiry Into Hatchery

TORONTO, Feb. 13 — (CP) — Investigations are under way into reported irregularities in the building of a provincial fish hatchery near Englehart, 25 miles south of Kirkland Lake.

Officials here said that Provincial Police Inspector W. H. Kennedy has been investigating the situation at the Hill's Lake Hatchery for several days on a request from the Public Works Department.

The matter was raised five months ago in the Ontario Legislature by E. B. Joliffe, the leader of the C.C.F. opposition, who mentioned evidence "indicating improper expenditure of public funds."

William Dennison, former C.C.F. member for Toronto St. David riding, said Tuesday that he visited the hatchery. He was told that men, machines and materials intended for the hatchery were used for private purposes—cutting fuel, digging the foundation for a house and building an addition to a store.



IDENTICAL TWINS, shown in the above photo, this week became Canada's first twin stewardesses when they graduated from a class of 27 at a stewardesses school at Montreal Airport. Born in London, Ont., 22 years ago the only distinguishing feature that can help to tell them apart is a tiny scar on the forehead of Marion which was the result of a sisterly brawl some 17 years ago. Blonde, slim and blue-eyed, the girls were bitten with the urge to fly when brother John returned from duty with the R.C.A.F. and talked about making a living high above the ground. After graduating from Coldstream High School outside London and as nurses from St. Joseph's Hospital in London then entered the stewardesses school. Now they are on their way to Vancouver where they will set up housekeeping together and prepare to fly TCA western routes from that point.

Fans Nearly Mob Referee After Main Mat Bout As Villains Gang Whipper

Justice had the boots put to her in the Brock Arena late last evening, as the villainous duo of Athol Layton and Fred Atkins won the main team mat match over popular Whip Watson and Pat Flanagan. They took the deciding fall in seven minutes, Atkins over Watson, when a groggy referee Bunny Dunlop missed the boat after being dazed when Atkins was thrown into him. Dunlop was down and Whip had his unconscious "Commando" hold on Atkins when Layton stepped in and lashed Watson, then stepping out again. Atkins rolled over on the startled Whipper as Dunlop rallied in time to see it and give Fred the fall.

Bedlam reigned then as the "good guys" had had it over the "villains" like a tent in the final round. Whipper almost clipped Dunlop, some angry fans tore the ref's shirt half off, and police had to first escort the rough ones from the ring and return to lead Bunny to safety through a sullen crowd of mat followers.

Covered It Up

Whipper pinned Atkins in 20 minutes for the second fall of the tag bout with his "Commando" after he and Pat had worked in relays on him. Earlier rugged Fred had the champ in trouble, aided by Athol as they roughed him in a corner while the referee was missing more than a 12 o'clock fellow in a nine o'clock town. It was sizzling wide-open ring action all through with everything going. Flan even circled the ring outside once to yank Layton half-way through it, and then slip his nibs' trainer, Lou, a punch in the bread-basket. They threw fists, knees and slashes in hot tempo to the roar of the crowd.

Layton downed Flanagan in 10 minutes for the first fall with a slash as he came off the ropes and a body slam. They started off rough and had a field day working singly and in pairs on poor Pat while the referee was busy arguing in the corner with a protesting Whipper. Later on, Whip and Flan jumped in the ring together to tear things apart, which they did as fans almost raised the roof. There were four down at one time in the debacle, Layton, Atkins, the refree and Lou, the luckless lackey. It was fast work in and out of the ring and always rough, but the fans ate it up. Whip was the best of the bunch, Atkins a bear for punishment, Layton the sly one and Pat a speedy and colorful performer who lifted folks.

A Sudden Finish

The semi-final came to an untimely end in 27 minutes when Warren Bockwinkle caught Zorra with his shoulder to the groin in a flying tackle off the ropes. The Frenchman doubled up in pain and Dunlop stopped it, with Warren refusing to take the win in this way. He helped Zorra to a corner, spook his hand, refused to have his hand hoisted and walked away as the fans cheered. They had dished up some smart mat work, both being fast and experienced, with the odd bit of open stuff in flying tackles, the bout being pretty even up to the sudden and painful (for Zorra) finish.

Rough Jim Wright made his debut here in the prelim and took Chief Suni War Cloud in 29 minutes with a rolling headlock and a bit of a choke tossed into it. He played it mean from the gong and knew all the answers in rough grappling. The Chief was game and held his own at times but over the route wasn't a good match for the Bull, though the latter once left the ring to escape the Indian's ire. Wright yanked hair, choked, used fists, knees and elbows and in general gave War Cloud the well-known mat works, pulled a stepover toehold once and leaned on the ropes for leverage as the fans screamed angrily. Referee Bun Dunlop got in the middle a few times and once went after Wright and slugged with him. It was a lively tussle.

Mrs. T. Doughty Captures Gibson Trophy

By HERB. MARTIN.

When the lady curlers retired from the ice yesterday afternoon, that concluded their regular schedule for this season — and the honor of winning first place and the Gibson Trophy goes to Mrs. T. Doughty's rink with 13 wins and four losses. The runner-up who receives the Waddell Trophy, is Mrs. J. Watts' rink with 12 wins and 5 losses.

The ladies turned in some smart curling recently and it would appear that they can hold their own any time, any where. They have come a long way since the days of natural ice.

Second, and Waddell Trophy — Mrs. R. Pow, Mrs. D. Charlton, Mrs. A. Jones, Mrs. J. Watts, skip.

Vics Defeat Lindsay In Junior "B" Fray

LINDSAY, Feb. 13 (ENS). — Kingston's Junior "B" Vics hauled a surprise win 7-6 over the Lindsay Kin Juniors Tuesday night by beating the league leading locals in an overtime game.

Wilson Reid, speedy right winger for Vics, flashed the red light four times and assisted on two goals to pick up six points for the night. The Vics had to come from behind a two-goal deficit twice in the game before going on to win in overtime. Insult was added to injury when the Vics scored one of their goals while they were short-handed. Reid got two in the first period assisted by Vallie. Schinkle got the lone Lindsay tally in the first. Three quick Lindsay goals in the second period by Bowell, Hall and Deeth put the locals two up but Reid got two more to tie the score only to see Lindsay get another pair by Smith and Copeland. In the third period, little Maurice Chevrefils scored two goals, assisted by Reid, to tie the score up and force the game into overtime. He also scored the winning overtime goal. The win does not change the standings of the league as Lindsay are still in top spot with a three-point bulge over Belleville Hawks and only one more game for each of the two top teams. Playoffs begin next Tuesday here with Kingston.

Havelock Boys Win

Havelock threw three in without a return in the third, B. Laing scoring two of them and aiding Nowman on another, while J. Laing also had an assist. Henry and Laing drew majors for fighting in the first heat of an otherwise clean tilt.

Close Games Feature Bush Hockey League

MT. PLEASANT, Feb. 13 (ENS) —With three of the four teams concerned, (Mt. Pleasant is also in) hot on the trail of a playoff spot the Millbrook-Cavan Bush League served up a couple of nifty hockey dishes this week. In the opener Bailieboro poured in three early first period goals for a 3-1 triumph over the league-leading Mt. Pleasant team while in the nightcap Scott's Corners shaded Fourth Line 5-4.

Although penalties were not numerous the undercurrent that often erupts into fireworks was quite evident in the closing stages of both games. Dawson and Edmonds who handled the first game waded into the thick of things to cool out a brewing donnybrook and in the dying minutes of the second game a high-sticking incident had Agnew of Fourth Line and Crichton of Scott's Corners exchanging the verbal pleasantries that frequently precede more strenuous action.

Lewis, of Bailieboro, broke the ice with a neat solo effort in the first period and Carruthers and Sidey followed it up with one each before Mitchell notched Mt. Pleasant's only tally of the game. For the rest of the game two good goalies kept the score sheet clear with Wilson in particular turning aside a flock of dangerous thrusts.

The play of veteran Ed Hutchison highlighted the second encounter when he put Fourth Line into a two-goal lead on a couple of beautiful scoring efforts. However, Crichton who has also been chasing a puck for many years, racked up a duo to tie things up. Little put his team into a 4-2 lead and Galley added another. McDowell and Lord shaved the margin to one goal and Fourth Line poured it on in a valiant but fruitless attempt to snare the equalizer. Some late season import strengthening of a couple of the teams has elevated the calibre of hockey in the league and, while it doesn't aid in developing local talent, it has resulted in some classy hard-fought exhibitions.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Second place in the Central Ontario senior "B" hockey group race is at stake tonight as Belleville Hawks clash with the Eagles here. Hawks hold precariously to the second rung by a single point. They can lengthen their lead nicely by a win, or they will drop into third place back of the high-flying Eagles if the Vitarelli pack can fashion a victory at Civic this p.m. Fresh from triumphs recently over Petes and Kingston, the Eagles will shoot the works to hurdle the Hawks tonight, but they'll have to be in top form, we expect. Should be a swell senior scrap from start to finish, one rating a big crowd as it's the last O.H.A. tilt here this week.

Tickets are going like hot biscuits for the N.H.L. oldtimers' exhibition in Civic Arena at 8.30 Saturday night. Kawartha Shrine Club is staging the affair with proceeds going to the crippled children. Empress and Trojan bantams put on a short exhibition ateight bells. Doug Smylie and Joe Krohl will demonstrate football passing on skates as an interesting sidelight, and betwixt periods Joan Begley, Jack Martin, Jacqueline Hopkins and Arlene Ferguson will do some figure-skating. Gordon Sinclair expects to be on deck to introduce the former N.H.L. stars under a spotlight ere play commences. The visitors will be guests later at a "do" in the Empress.

Aces Of Yester Year

Dave Kerr advises that Nels Stewart, as captain of the Whites in this game will have Jake Forbes and Nit O'Hearn as goalies, along with such defencemen and forwards at Dit Clapper. Flash Hollett, Lorne Duguid, Larry Aurie, Bucko McDonald, Jack Draper, Bert Conacher, Hank Boyd, Whitey Farrant, Earl Robinson, Red Hamill, Windy O'Neill, Butch Keeling and Coach Hal (Baldy) Cotton. Maybe one or two others, also, as a number of invitations haven't been answered yet. Doug Brennan might be along. Irvin (Ace) Bailey said he'd be here in some capacity, though he won't likely play. Never has, since that serious head injury years ag oin Boston.

* * * * * * *

Bailey might coach the Reds (captained by Chuck Conacher), including such stalwarts as Roy Worters, Cy Wentworth, Lionel and Charlie Conacher, Billy Taylor, Jimmy Fowler, Rhys Thompson, Hank Goldup, Red Heron, Andy Bellemer, Doug Smylie, Art Jackson, Ed Convey, Eddie King, maybe Busher Jackson and some others. Three 20-minute periods if the old ice aces can stand the pace nowadays! These veteran stars, worth a million bucks on skates at one time, put on a good show and do it strictly for charity. This is their second exhibition since forming an Oldtimers Association — their preview occurring Feb. 1 at Bracebridge. A big evening and no doubt a sellout at Civic.

Dunlop Done Loco, Eh?

A rough evening for Ref Bun Dunlop at the mat show last eve in the Brock. He was in the middle all evening during the bouts, got knocked half goofy—or goofier—near the finish, awarded the wrong guy the deciding fall, had his shirt partly torn off, got pushed around by Whipper Watson, and was escorted finally to safety from angry fans by police. Whew! He missed more than a 1914 motor and that's how come Fred Atkins (with an assist from Athol Layton) took the final fall o'er Whip, despite protests from Pat Flanagan and a big crowd of customers. No justice at all. Warren Bockwinkle made some friends in the semi-final when he declined to claim a fall over Zorra, who was hurt and helpless. Jim Wright took Chief Suni War Cloud handily in the prelim. Quite a show, that team bout being a honey.

* * * * * * *

The men's cage playoff at the "Y" last eve couldn't have been much closer, winding up 51-50 for Queen's o'er Marines on two foul shots after the whistle. Two players had collided just at the finish. Return of the two-game Eastern Ontario intermediate finals is tomorrow at Kingston. They should have neutral refs for that game as the officiating was pretty peculiar in this first game, the arbiters being unable to see eye to eye in a rough affair. Basketball is usually a gentle sport but the boys were bumping each other last p.m. and tossing the odd fist, too. The yelling Queen's cagers upset Marines' decorum in the second session plenty. Joe and Ab Stewart stood out for the McIntyre men in the see-saw thriller. At Oshawa, Bev Goulding's junior "A" Collegians took a 41-36 loop win over O.C.V.I.

Australia Given Till May 15 To Decide

OSLO, Feb. 13 (AP)—The International Olympic Committee has given Australia until May 15 to decide whether the 1950 Olympic games can be held in Melbourne.

Announcement of the action was made by Dr. Otto Mayer, chancellor of the committee.

The question of holding the Olympic games in Melbourne was thrown open two days ago when the board of governors of the Melbourne Cricket Ground decided that the big arena could not be used for the games.

If Melbourne declines the 1956 games, strong bids for the honor probably will be entered by such U.S. cities as Detroit, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, Philadelphia and Chicago.

Queen's Edge the Marines By Single Hoop Point In Opener Of Cage Series

Queen's University thirds won the first game of the Eastern Ontario intermediate basketball finals Tuesday night at the Y.M.C.A.—after the final whistle had blown. Joe Stewart of the Marines and King of Queen's crashed together as the final whistle went and double fouls were awarded. Up to then the score was 50-49 for the college students. But Stewart momentarily tied the score 50-all when he made his shot good, only to have King sink the winning point seconds later on his free shot.

This was the climax to a game which saw the collegians wipe out a 14-point deficit and take the lead in the third quarter. But they had to fight Marines all the way as the score was tied and the lead changed into different hands no less than 14 times.

Poor refereeing, man-to-man defences and the small floor made the game fast and rough, causing tempers to fly several times.

Body Contact

Most important though was the poor officiating which allowed body contact, usually clamped on by better referees, to go unnoticed. They differed at least on five calls throughout the game, three in the last five minutes when the lead was changing with every rush.

The most important difference of opinion was in the final minute when they both called fouls against the opposite teams. This call emphasized the necessity for neutral referees at least in playoff games, an annual mistake of the Ontario Amateur Basketball Association.

The man-to-man defence used by the fastest quintets to appear this year at the "Y" gym combined with the small floor provided more body contact than in any hockey game. In fact in the first half more than one player was using his fists when in close.

These rough-house tactics reached a climax in the second quarter when Gord Burns, Marines' guard, and Queen's Garvie were thrown out of the game for roughing. In the final minutes the boys were rough again in the close going, resulting in Queen's pivot man, King, breaking his glasses as another player bounced off the wall.

The return game in Kingston Thursday in the points-to-count two-game series should be better on the larger floor where both teams will be able to open up. The experienced Marines with their contingent of youthful players should be able to win the series.

Led At Half

In a low-scoring first quarter, Marines managed a 7-all score but with foul shots and several long bloopers by Chum Gillespie took a 25-11 lead at the half.

Then the collegians started to roll; they came out yelling to confuse the Marines and didn't let up until after the game. They succeeded with this strategy for Marines began to pass into the college hands and were off the mark in their shooting.

The 14-point lead was whittled down with neat passing plays which ended close under the basket or with long shots from midcourt. The Queen's cagers took the lead 38-35 at three quarter time.

But within a minute in the fourth the score was tied 42-all and the game from there in was hectic. The lead switched back and forth, one team never leading by more than a point.

Queen's sharpshooters, Donnelly and Bell, were the thorns in Marines' defeat. Pointless in the first half, these players opened a barrage in the third quarter, usually from mid-court, Donnelly contributing 14 points and Bell eight. Gagnon, although scoring only three points, kept the Queen's quintet together with his steady play.

The Stewart brother story can be retold for the game. Ab and Joe Stewart were the mainstays for Marines, helped by the potting of Chum Gillespie, Ted Payne and Warren Smith. But defensively Joe and Ab were further standouts with poking checking, often resulting in scores.

Lineups:

Queen's (51)—King 5, Donnelly 14, Gagnon 3, Milliken 9, Bell 16, Clarke 2, Haydon, Nogas 2, Garvie.

Marines (50)—Dibben, J. Stewart 12, A. Stewart 10, Trimm 5, Dadson, Payne 4, Smith 10, Gillespie 4, Grafstein 2, McPherson 1, Burns 2.

K.E. And Central Tie

King Edward—Curtis, Simmons, Mills, Stevens, Rusaw, Beggs, Feeley, Rose, Floyd, Finney, Phillips, Meredith.

P.C.V.S. Juniors Take Win Against Oshawa

Jack Cullis' Garnet and Grey Junior "A" cagers moved another step closer to the C.O.S.S.A. junior "A" finals Tuesday night by edging out Oshawa C.V.I. 41-36 in the motor city.

This win was the second in two starts in league play with both victories over the Motor City five. The P.C.V.S. boys have yet to play Oshawa Central who are stronger than the other Oshawa quintet. In games between the Oshawa schools Central has won out twice, once at O.C.V.I. by five points and later at Central by 10 points.

Tuesday's win sets the stage for the double header Thursday night in Oshawa between P.C.V.S. "A" teams and Oshawa Central. Bev Goulding's charges, the senior "A" will be making their debut for 1952 in league play in a points-to-count two-game series while P.C.V.S. juniors still have two games in their league with Central.

Oshawa Collegiate repeated their performance in the first game at P.C.V.S. Tuesday when they grabbed a short-lived 10-5 score at the first quarter but gave way 20-16 to the Garnet and Grey at the half. The score was 30-26 at three-quarters for the Garnet and Grey who played on even terms with Oshawa in the last quarter.

A Slow Start

Car trouble, a flat tire, likely caused the slow start, several starters not receiving any warm-up time before the game. These boys became untracked in the second quarter when P.C.V.S. began to find the tarket, whipping in seven out of 17 field attempts while Oshawa had two for 16.

Oshawa's Sutherland, a shifty player who led their scoring in Peterborough, started out with a mitt full of points but cooled in the second. Bob Boorman put out Sutherland's fire with steady checking, keeping him well out for long-range shots.

P.C.V.S. were concentrating on Sutherland and McEachran, the top scorers in the first meeting. Although they had trouble with Sutherland, McEachran was held scoreless.

Terry Roberts with jump shots from the right side on the switch play netted 10 points for the Garnet and Grey to tie the leading scorer, Dan Griffin, for the team's scoring honors. Griffin, although tired, played a heads-up game.

Boorman, besides trying to hold Sutherland, managed to sink nine points, mostly with his reliable hook shot. Lineups:

P.C.V.S. Junior "A" (41)—Griffin 10, Burgess, Boorman 9, Roberts 10, Allen 2, Carleton 6, Armstrong 2, Marshall, Fowler, Corbett 2, Foote.

Oshawa C.V.I. (36).—Parry 2, Burrows, Gummon 4, Graham 7, Mallet 7, Pasco, Sutherland 16, McEachran, Gibbie.

NHL Players Eye Deadline As Crucial Games Loom

By CRAIG SWAYZE, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Even though two games that could have a great deal of bearing on positions for the impending Stanley Cup playoffs are scheduled tonight, many National Hockey League players have what they consider more serious worries. For this is the week generally known as "Dread Week" in the N.H.L. The boys know if they can stay in the senior circuit past this Friday—the deadline for farming players out to the American Hockey League—they are reasonably safe for another season in the big time.

However with the runner-up Toronto Maple Leafs entertaining the league-leading Detroit Red Wings tonight while the fourth-place Boston Bruins meet the fifth-place Rangers at New York, most of the teams in the league appear to have made their moves far in advance of the deadline.

Struck Early

Toronto, eyeing first place a full five games away and at the same time striving to pull away from the red-hot Montreal Canadiens—just three points behind—struck early to prepare for the stretch drive. They brought up George Armstrong from Pittsburgh Hornets of the A.H.L. in time for last weekend's games and then, in a surprise move, elevated Jim Morrison from Pittsburgh on Monday.

Armstrong lived up to advance notices during weekend play, notching Saturday night's winning goal against Montreal and turning in a strong game at New York. Morrrison, an ex-Barrie Flyer who can perform equally as well at centre, defence or left wing, is reported to be slated for the portside berth opposite Armstrong on a line centred by veteran Max Bentley.

If Morrison makes good with Conn Smythe's club—and the experts figure he will — Boston sports writers will be after Art Ross' scalp. They roared he had been robbed when Smythe lifted Fern Flaman for Vic Lynn and Bill Ezinicki last year (Both wound up in the minors) and they weren't too happy over the Morrison-Mackell deal.

With centre Sid Abel and defenceman Marcel Pronovost temporarily sidelined, Detroit have been forced to bring up Fred Glover and Johnny Wilson from their A.H.L. Indianapolis club.

New York Rangers, striving for that fourth and final playoff spot, look toward tonight's clash with the Bruins as one of their most important of the season. Reports from Gotham indicate coach Bill Cook may unveil some new talent for the game.

Cantor Likes Edmonton Home

By LORNE BRUCE.

EDMONTON, Feb. 13 (CP). — Solly Cantor, the second topflight boxer to decide in two years to settle in Edmonton, says "I love it here."

Just married two months, 23-year-old Solly and his wife, the former Rita Tressman of Paris, France, moved into an Edmonton bungalow to begin what they hope will be a long stay.

"You have a growing town here" said Cantor, a native of Toronto, and there is room for opportunity for everybody.

Cantor said he was misquoted several weeks ago in a story which had him saying: "Down east it's dog-eat-dog and the devil take the hindmost."

Solly said he wouldn't use such coarse language about his former home town and what he had in mind was this:

"The people here are easy to meet. In the east they are friendly but more reserved. It takes longer to get acquainted."

George Dunn, formerly of Hartford, Conn., ranked 10th among leading challengers for the world's lightweight crown, also fights out of Edmonton now. Dunn, a 25-year-old Negro, visited this booming oil city on a tour and decided to make his home here.

Nothing Sissy About Norway Skiing

By DON DOANE.

NOREFJELL, Norway, Feb. 13 (AP).—If you think modern skiing has gone sissy you should be in Norefjell for the winter Olympics. Man, it's rugged up here.

These hardy Norwegians are used to taking their winter sports the hard way. There are no elegant winter resorts with plush hotels and electric ski lifts for them.

The Norwegians carefully avoided the softening influence of the cities by locating the Olympic downhill and giant slalom ski races way up in the mountains, 75 miles north of Oslo.

The setting is lovely—steep wooded mountainside looking down upon a frozen lake with another range of green and white mountains rising sharply on the other side of the lake.

But if the Olympic skiers weren't here, there would be mighty few people around to enjoy the scenery. There is nothing resembling a village in the entire area—just a few farm homes, a country store or two, several ski cabins and a few resort hotels scattered around the mountains.

Quite a Problem

That made it quite a problem to house the nearly 300 skiers, 200 officials, and 50 newspapermen who'll be here for the Olympic races. And it left no room for the spectators. They'll have to drive up from Oslo in the morning and back at night.

The Norwegians built one new hotel and a few barracks for the skiers.

The competitors and newspapermen have been billeted in a hotel eight hilly miles from the race centre. The reporter who succeeds in getting a taxi to the mountain top first must walk down a hill, across a frozen lake and up another hill to meet his vehicles.

To get from the bottom of the race course to the top is another six-mile drive. Norwegian reporters seemed to know what to expect. Most of them brought their skis.

Brantford Drubs Mercurys 8-2 As Dutchmen Edge Tigers 3-2

By The Canadian Press.

Brantford Redmen advanced another step up the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A ladder Tuesday night when they delighted a home crowd by drubbing Owen Sound Mercurys 8-2.

The Redmen moved into third place in the six-team league, eight points behind the runner-up Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen who edged Hamilton Tigers 3-2 at Hamilton in the only other Senior A tussle.

In Junior A play Guelph Biltmores consolidated their runner-up position by handing St. Catharines Teepees an 8-2 setback, their worst home-ice beating in months. The other junior clash saw Galt Black Hawks swamp Waterloo Hurricanes 15-2.

Up north, the slow-starting North Bay Black Hawks gained second place in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A race by upsetting the league-leading Sault Ste. Marie 4-3.

Score For Hawks

Tommy Fyles, Pete Conacher, Eddie Switzer and Bill McIntosh banged in three goals each for the Galt Black Hawks. John Sleaver added two while Jim McBurney pushed in the other. Don McIntosh, Charlie Brooker and Gerry Horton scored the Waterloo goals.

Guelph's eight goals came when Ron Murphy, Harry Howell and Andy Bathgate notched a pair each. Dean Prentice and Bill McCreary added the singles. Brian Cullen and Joey Schnurr did the St. Catharine scoring.

Bill Simpell, Bob Hewson and Jack Ferguson pushed in two goals apiece for Brantford while Bill Shill and Joe Holota added singletons. Gino Antoniazzi and John McDonald scored Owen Sound's goals.

Eddie Stankiewicz scored one goal and set up the others for Ed Kulik and Bill Mitchell in the Kitchener - Waterloo victory. Clare Shillington and Ralph Toohy tallied for the Tigers.

Olympic Hockey Team Involved In Accident

OSLO, Feb. 13 (CP).—Canada's Olympic hockey team was involved in a highway accident in Sweden, coach Lou Holmes revealed today. Several players received slight cuts.

The accident occurred last Friday when members of the Edmonton Mercurys were travelling by bus for a game at Laksand.

"The wheels locked as we rounded a curve on the highway and the bus went over a ditch and toppled against a tree," Holmes said.

"It was a mess. The players were tossed around and we were lucky to get out with only slight injuries."

Engelbert Miller received a cut face, George Abel came out with a sore back and Tom Pollock had an arm cut. Another bus picked up the team an hour later and the Mercurys played that night. They won 7-2.

Wilf Lepine Leading Derby Final

OTTAWA, Feb. 13 (CP).—Wilf Lepine, 31-year-old Quebec City musher, all but has his second international sled-dog derby championship in the pocket of his big mackinaw.

Home first with the best time in the first two heats of the three-day event, Lepine, who won in 1950, goes into the final 29-mile lap today leading the field of 19 contestants by more than eight minutes.

In the first two heats, he built up a combined time of 4:19.07. In second place is Dr. Charles Belford of Deerfield, Mass., with 4:27.57, and big Bill Shearer, Boston, Mass., furniture dealer, third with 4:30.08.

The outspoken Lepine predicted from the start that his team of cross-bred hounds would romp home winners in the three days.

Lepine built up a great reputation in 1950 for his tireless efforts in running most of the course to give his team a better chance. He has a habit of letting go the sled 500 yards from the finish line and running beside his team urging them across it.

Emile Martel, 39-year-old Loretteville, Que., racer, who won the derby last year, moved up from fifth to fourth spot at the end of the second heat Tuesday. His combined time was 4:40.44, about four minutes better than Dr. Roland Lombard of Auburndale, Mass., who dropped to fifth with 4:44.03.

SAULT STE. MARIE —(CP)— Travellers crossing the international St. Mary's River here sometimes wish fondly for a return to the "good old days."

In former years after the international ferry stopped for the season in December, travellers crossed the three-quarter mile width of the river to and from the United States on foot.

Now the ferries attempt to operate throughout the winter. So far this winter ice packs, often 12 feet in thickness, have three times forced ferries to halt by jamming the harbor. The ferries do enough work to make foot travel impossible, but not enough to keep a cross-river channel open continuously.

Below-zero temperatures and opening of an extra compensating gate in the power dam across the river is causing most of the trouble.

Usually, only three gates are left open for the winter. This year, because of high water in Lake Superior, four gates are open. If one gate were to be closed, the west ends of both cities would be flooded.

With the gates open, tons of slush ice pour down from Lake Superior and jam behind solid ice below the city. Zero temperatures weld it into a solid mass.

Barrier To Traffic

Hardest hit by the ice blockade are private and commercial travellers. Passengers for Trans-Canada Air Lines must cross the river to board planes at Kinross airport, 14 miles from Sault Ste. Marie. Motorists travelling east save hundreds of miles by using American roads. Travellers to the west are stuck here, unless they return to Sudbury and chance the northern route through Hearst to Port Arthur, or ship their cars to the Michigan Sault by rail. All Canadian roads to the west end up in the wilderness north of here.

Some inconvenience is caused nurses and a few workers living in Canada and working in Michigan. Students attending high school or college in Michigan miss classes or else are forced to board in that city.

Hotels are busy, but not crowded, with travellers waiting for the ferries to run again. When they tire of waiting, they travel east by the Canadian route or take a train.

There has been little effect on business, at least on the Canadian side. Express and mail cross the border by the one daily train using the international railway bridge. Wholesalers, whose refrigerator trucks must cross the river for the journey to Detroit, suffer most.

Foot travel across the ice, following paths marked by evergreen trees, is a thing of the past here. Several years ago, hundreds of residents made the journey daily, crossing a narrow channel of open water in rented row boats. Since the end of the war, the ice has never been firm enough to allow this traffic.

Honeymoon Couple Sought By Police

LANARK, Ont., Feb. 13 (CP)—A 43-year-old Lanark man and his 15-year-old bride were sought by police Tuesday after the girl's mother took out a warrant charging the groom with abduction.

John M. Lalonde, 43, married Marjorie Mary McGonegal, last Thursday. They disappeared during the weekend.

Tuesday the girl's mother, Mrs. Elwood McGonegal, decided to take action to fight the match she said she has opposed for some time.

The mother said both signed false affidavits about their ages. Lalonde, who swore he was 37, was really 43. The daughter was 15, not 18 as she said.

U.K. Told Raise More Food Or Face Actual Privation

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON

LONDON, Feb. 13. (CP)—The British people have been told bluntly that unless their present output of home-grown food is increased sharply and soon, they not only face a long ordeal of austerity rationing, but the prospect of actual privation. The warning came from one of Britain's leading agricultural authorities, Sir George Stapledon, in a full-blown debate conducted through the columns of The Times. It followed a published query from Lord Hungarton, asking: "When will the people of Britain realize the true position regarding the world's food supplies?"

The situation is serious, replied Sir George. Britain's agriculture future can only be made secure by planning in terms of wise regionalization of crop rotations.

If Britons were to farm always with the possibility of privation at the back of their minds then, on the grounds of national safety, there was much to be said for small farms with their inherent capacity for intensified production.

Not Keeping Pace

Lord Hungarton had started the soul-searching by reminding his countrymen that world food production is far from keeping pace with increasing population. Countries such as Australia and Argentina, normal suppliers of a goodly share of Britain's food requirements, now were consuming more of their own products and shipping less overseas. There was also an alarming drift from the land which had brought about acute shortages and higher prices.

Lord Hungarton suggested Britain should deal with her own problem to the best of her ability by converting millions of acres to more useful production. But this, he said, can only be done if sufficient capital; manpower and equipment is made available or by making work in agriculture as financially attractive as in other industries.

Viscount Bledisloe, former governor-general of New Zealand and president of the Royal Agricultural Society of England, said it is an indisputale fact that Britain has some of the best farmers in the world.

"But unfortunately," he observed, "we have also some who through inefficiency, laziness, physical infirmity, or lack of adequate capital, are not producing from Britain's fertile acres one-half of the food these are capable of yielding."

Britain could not longer afford to keep farmers of that type on her limited and steadily-shrinking cultivable land.

Need Capital

J. O. Cherrington, a Hampshire tenant farmer, attributed the drop in production to the average farmer's lack of working capital.

This, he said, is caused by high taxation and a price system which pegs farm produce in an otherwise uncontrolled economy. Being sensible businessmen the farmers had simply gone over to operations known as low farming, which required less cash investment but also mean low production.

As a possible remedy, he suggested return to the pre-war custom of assessing farm profits on a rental basis. The thought of a tax-free profit after a certain level had been reached might, he said, provide the desired spur for farmers to take greater risks and bring about a greatly-increased output of home-grown food.

Meanwhile, the government stepped in with a short-term incentive of its own. It undertook to pay farmers £5 an acre towards the cost of plowing up land which has been under grass for four years, and sowing it to an approved crop for harvesting this year.

Chief Coroner Injured

TORONTO, Feb. 13—(CP)—Dr. Smirle Lawson, chief coroner for Toronto, suffered chest injuries when the car he purchased Monday collided with another automobile Tuesday. Dr. Lawson's car, which his wife is believed to have been driving, was extensively damaged. Mrs. Lawson was not injured. Andre Ethondo, of Sudbury, driver of the other car, was not hurt. Police said his car was severely damaged.

Official Assassinated

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 13 (AP)—Former Interior Minister Alejo Cossio Del Pino, 45, was assasinated Tuesday night by men in an automobile who fired eight bullets into his body while he was in a cafe. Two men with the slain politician were wounded.

Find Economy Balanced Precariously

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Observers find it hard to decide whether the rise in prices has been stopped, or whether we face another price-climb later in the year.

The current monthly letter of the National City bank of New York, speaking of conditions in the United States, describes the present situation as one of "precarious balance".

The current monthly review of the Bank of Nova Scotia, in a study of "commodity prices since Korea", states:

"It would be rash to assume that the threat of rising prices has been more than temporarily pushed into the background. It is true that surplus conditions exist in a good many of the consumer-goods industries and that keen competition has developed.

"It is true that many of the backlogs of demand, which have exercised an important stimulating influence during most of post-war period, have now been met or sharply reduced.

"But there still remain strong expansive elements in the business environment, some of which now are at work and others of which might later begin to operate".

Period Of Adjustment

E. G. Burton, president of the Robt. Simpson Co., Ltd., in an address Tuesday night to the Canadian Credit Institute in Toronto, stated:

"One of the danger points in the assumption of an ever-booming Canada is the idea that defence expenditures are going to support indefinitely a high level of business activities.

"In the next year or two there is little doubt that the defence program will have a real, is somewhat scattered, effect on business . . .

"Nevertheless, barring a further expansion of hostilities, when this peak period has passed, which presumably will be by 1953, we may be faced with a difficult period of adjustment—perhaps a more difficult period than we like to think about".

Charges Canada Overlooking Value Of Roads

TORONTO, Feb. 13 (CP).—C. W. Gilchrist, managing director of the Canadian Good Roads Association, said today that the Federal government has failed to recognize the importance of roads in its defence policy.

In an address prepared for delivery to 2,000 delegates at the Ontario Good Roads Association convention, he said that failure may " In the long term prove hazardous to defence and detrimental to the well-being of the nation."

"The Minister of Defence has admitted the inadequacy of the highway system. Mr. Claxton said in the House of Commons that many bridges cannot carry the weight of even a medium tank. High ranking army officers have said they are alarmed at the state of the nation's roads."

Mr. Gilchrist said that the C.G.R.A. conducted a survey in collaboration with one typical defence plant, A. V. Roe (Canada) Limited, 20 miles from the heart of Toronto.

More than 75 per cent of the 8,000 workers travel to work either by car or bus. Avro workers travelled 214,000 miles each day to and from work and spent $12,000 a day on transportation.

The roads of the 1920s were being broken up by bumper-to-bumper traffic and loads 10 times greater than those for which they were designed."

In construction of highways, traffic control, administration, finance, safety and public education there were "problems of the first magnitude to be analyzed and solved."

He said he hoped that a comprehensive national research program will be launched next year. A pilot committee last year recommended that a Canadian Highway Research Institute be set up and methods of financing now are being studied.

Golden Invasion

Peterborough is being treated to an invasion of evening grossbeaks, gold colored birds about the size of robins with black-edged wings, that usually live in Manitoba. They have been here in much larger numbers than usual, eating the seed buds of the soft maples, their principal food. A puzzled city editor was unable to identify them, and called on Alex Kay to have them named.

Cars Jump Tracks Trainmen Hurt Near Lindsay

LINDSAY, Feb. 13 (ENS) — Two men are in hospital here today as the result of a train wreck Tuesday night.

Harold Watkins of Toronto and Reginald Hodgson of Burnt River, conductor and brakeman respectively on a C.N.R. freight running between Peterborough and Mimico were injured in an unusual accident which took place three-and-a-half miles east of Manilla about 9:30 p.m.

Both are suffering from minor bruises, shock and Conductor Watkins from second degree burns.

According to reports a pair of wheels on one of the freight cars, the fourth from the rear, came off causing two cars to leave the track.

All wheels of the caboose left the tracks and it spilled over on its side. The men are believed to have been sitting near a coal stove in the caboose.

The stove turned over, starting a fire in the compartment. Fortunately the train came to a halt without trouble and both men were rescued from what might have been a serious accident.

Engineer Bert Madill went on to Toronto with the front end of the freight. Attended by Dr. M. F. White, Lindsay, the men were rushed to Ross Memorial hospital. The wreckage was cleared from the tracks in less than an hour.

PURCHASE OF 516 ACRES of farm properties in the southeast section of Smith township bordering on the city is contemplated in the options which have been obtained for the residential Land Assembly Plan of the federal and provincial governments. It is understood that the total area for new housing in a broad swath of country between the Chemong Road and the Lakefield Road may reach 1,000 acres. Governments jointly buy the land for resale at cost. In this policy the city would have to annex the Smith farms and provide services to the area. Ontario Department of Planning and Development regard this suburban part of Smith as potentially the best residential prospect that has come to their attention under the new Land Assembly Plan.

Federal Gov't, Province Hold Options On 516 Acres; City May Annex 1000 Acres

Peterborough Eligible For 80 Rental Houses Remaining Land To Be Sold For Private and Subdivision Building

Options taken jointly by the Federal and Provincial Governments on 516 acres of Smith township farm land point to a new northerly shift in the residential development of Peterborough. This area extends easterly from Chemong Road almost to the No. 28 Highway projection of Water St., located near the old Queen Mary isolation hospital and the waterworks park of the Utilities Commission. Eventually, the bounds of this northerly expansion of the city may comprise 1,000 acres sloping upward in easy gradients to high land with long vistas across the south and east to the farther country of Otonabee.

The block of rural property which is contemplated for annexation by the city comprises the following farms from west to east:

Farms Involved

On the Chemong Road: Isaac Hetherington, 100 acres; Roy Sanderson, 100 acres, reaching esterly to the extension of Hilliard St.

Mr. Sanderson also owns 30 acres fronting on Chemong Road, and immediately north of his main farm and home, which is included in the projected purchase.

East of that Sanderson parcel are 20 acres belonging to Melville Stewart, and again to the east are 50 acres of the John Stalker farm.

Crossing Hilliard St., and continuing to the east, the optioned area embraces:

The John Stalker farm of 116 acres; and the most easterly section, the Joseph Sydney Brown farm of 100 acres. Their southern boundary is Langton St., which is a stretch of the dividing line between Smith township and Peterborough.

On the south side of Langton St. is the Hilliard farm, owned by the city and the old isolation hospital with a comparatively narrow strip of propery remaining to the Lakefield Highway and the Otonabee River.

Between the southern edge of the Hetherington farm property on the west side and the northern limits of the city at Wolsley St. is a large area of privately-owned lots. This area, too, would come into the city.

Such is the latest planned encroachment by the city on the lands of its adjoining townships, as outlined to the Examiner by Mayor Hugh F. Waddell.

Confirms Rumors

"I think it will be the most important undertaking this year's council will have to deal with," Mayor Waddell said, confirming the rumors which have been increasing in detail of fact since the turn of the year. "I know the council appreciates the co-operation of the press in refraining from publication of those reports until the scheme had reached its present stage of planning."

Ask Department For $88,052 Road Subsidy

City council is reporting to the Ontario Department of Highways the expenditure of $264,157.68 on local roads in 1951. It is the basis of an application for payment of the Department's statutory grant of one-third of that amount.

The motion Monday night by Ald. J. E. Gillespie, chairman of the board of works, was seconded by Ald. H. S. Longhurst.

The statement was prepared by City Engineer Chalmers, covering last year's program of improvement, new paving, maintenance, curbs and so on.

"It has to be scrutinized by the Highways Department," Mr. Chalmers said. "There might be a few items not approved, but generally we get the grant of one-third of our total outlay."

On the new paving work done last year, Mr. Chalmers said, the Department's financial assistance is applicable only to the city's part of the cost. The grant does not extend to that other part that is charged against frontage property.

Settle Laneway Opening, May Now Build

Mayor Waddell's statement that interested property owners have reached a settlement on the use of a lane approach at the rear of the Robert Fair & Co. store on George St. closed a discussion of the finance committee of the council Monday night on a proposal of intervention by the city.

Adam B. Sands of Sands and Bateman told the Examiner today that this detail of property preliminaries should be wound up in Toronto next Monday.

Plans for the erection of a retail store building on the site of the Zacks property, scene of the fatal fire last May, have been stalled for weeks largely on a question of rear approach to Fair store building owned by Bradburn Securities Ltd.

Wanted Assurance

It is understood that the Bradburn company desired assurance of access to their building in negotiations for the closing of the lane extending south from Hunter St. and opposite Chamber St. An alternative approach is by way of the lane between Bell Telephone building and Percival Furniture Co. store. The proposed new store on George St. will extend westerly over the lane of Hunter St., thereby cutting off that entrance from Hunter St.

To the recent suggestion that council might expropriate the lane at the rear of the Percival building, city council gave tentative consideration.

City Solicitor Huycke said that lane was part of the Percival store property. Peterborough Lumber Company had right to cross it.

"The lane is private property, and at present the city has no right or authority to interfere" Mr. Huycke said.

At that stage of the discussion, Mayor Waddell referred to the reported settlement of the issue between the several property owners.

Claim of Bradburn Securities was only for retention of sufficient room for approach and turning area for vehicles at the rear of the Fair store.

Principal Investments Ltd., Toronto, are reported to have plans for the new building on George St., with Metropolitan Stores Ltd. as the occupant of the entire ground floor.

Calls For Moral Coalition To Save Spiritual Values

A moral coalition is the only way Christianity and Judaism can save the spiritual values that are their common heritage, Rabbi Abraham L. Feinberg, of Holy Blossom Temple, Toronto, declared here Tuesday night. Addressing a dinner at Club Aragon honoring Max J. Swanston as Citizen of the Year, Rabbi Feinberg said, "In the long run, Catholic, Protestant and Jew can preserve themselves only by proving through their mutual relations that they believe in love and goodwill."

Before the atomic bomb shattered Hiroshima and Nagasaki, "religious intollerance was a termite in the vitals of democracy. Today it is rank disloyalty."

All In Same Boat

Rabbi Feinberg said that the threat of materialism, totalitarianism and aggression which faces the Western World has placed all religions in the same boat.

"In this critical time, religious hatred is an expensive luxury. I do not mean that we must all believe the same doctrine, adhere to the same tradition, worship with the same ritual. If we all conform to a single pattern, why trouble ourselves about religious goodwill at all" he asked.

The answer said Rabbi Feinberg was to preserve and enrich differences but to respect the differences of those who subscribe to different faiths.

Rabbi Feinberg said he was not pleading for everyone to accept his theological doctrine but simply to realize that religious differences are natural and legitimate.

"I urge you to be loyal to your own traditions as I am permitted in this free land to be loyal to mine. A really good Christian and a really good Jew can never quarrel about religion. If church, cathedral and synagogue lose their battle against communism and other forms of irreligion, it will be because bridges have not been built between them."

Referring to the dinner meeting in honor of Mr. Swanston, Rabbi Feinberg said "Your 'man of the year' contest was open to everyone without restriction. This basic assumption that every person has possibilities of worth is the root of democracy."

Nation of Minorities

Pointing out that Canada is a nation of minorities, he said that lacking a written statement of principles such as the American Declaration of Independence to identify our nationality, we have created something else.

The common life together of many peoples from many lands, speaking many tongues, nurturing many cultures is the Canadian way,—the counterpart of the American Dream, he said.

"It is the gesture of Toronto high school students crowning a colored girl from Trinidad, the pen of a Jewish boy writing French letters to a Quebec lad; it is a hockey game in a school yard, where lanky tow-heads whose grandfathers trudged the frozen hills of Norway play with the swarthy black haired brood of an Italian vineyard laborer—That is what I mean."

Freedom, brotherhood and the supremacy of character, three ideals essential to the building of a nation like Canada were symbolized by the dinner honoring Mr. Swanston, the guest speaker said.

Recognized Character

"You made him man of the year, not in tribute to his status as mayor, but in recognition of his character. Beyond the mayor is the human being. There we touch the core of democracy. It is the combination of origin and achievement that makes a man. What we are born is the raw material of life. What we become depends on character. We have gathered here this evening to underscore the value of human character in the person of Max Swanston."

Rabbi Feinberg then referred to the death of King George VI. "Is not our sorrow at the passing of His Majesty a tribute to the worth of character?" he asked. "He was not only every inch a king, but in every fibre a great human being, the embodiment of steadfastness, humility, courage and a sacrificial sense of duty."

In celebrating the honor bestowed on Mr. Swanston, Rabbi Feinberg said, "We have laid a tribute upon the altar of freedom, brotherhood and character, as supremely embodied in our deceased royal sovereign in whose daughter the rule of character is renewed."

Rabbi Feinberg was introduced by Rabi J. Mayer and thanked by Joseph Rogow.

Transport, Car Hit $325 Damage Done

Damage estimated at $325 resulted when the rear wheel of a transport collided with the front end of a car driven by Roy Feeley, 624 McKellar St., at Park and Lansdowne Sts., early today.

Feeley was driving north on Park St., and was making a right-hand turn on to Lansdowne St., after having stopped for the stop light, when the accident occurred.

There was no damage to the transport driven by Thomas W. Boyle, 393 Brock St., Brantford, which was travelling east on Lansdowne St.

Constable William G. Scott investigated.

Appraisal Firm Reassess City Industry

For the reassessment of Peterborough's industrial properties, Charles Warnock & Co., Ltd., Toronto, appraisal engineers, are being invited by the Council to send a representative to Peterborough to discuss scope, terms, and so on.

J. E. Davis, assessment commissioner, reported to the Council Monday night that the industries of Hamilton, Niagara Falls, and other cities had been revalued for municipal reference by this company. He said they were now at Sarnia on similar work.

Reassessment of residential land and buildings has been completed by the city's own assessors, but will not be used for the 1952 taxation purposes. The city's department is now working on commercial land.

Mr. Davis said that experience of other cities recommended the engagement of the specialist appraisers for assessment of industrial properties. Equipment is not included in the figures prepared as a basis of tax levy. Machinery is regarded as unfixed and movable, much the same as furniture in a man's house. That exception does not include plumbing and wiring, however, essential parts of property that could not be moved without breaking into the walls.

Crossed Road Too Soon Driver Fined $15

George H. Chamberlain, Otonabee township, was convicted of careless driving and fined $15 and $2.50 costs in police court Tuesday.

By swinging to the south side of the road, "at an abnormal distance" east of where he intended to turn left onto a sideroad, Chamberlain gave the driver of an oncoming car "the impression of two cars coming abreast", said Magistrate W. R. Philp.

Alexander Murray, 563 Armour Rd., said he was driving east on Highway 7, just after dark January 13. He said an oncoming car pulled out of a line of traffic and appeared to be passing the car ahead.

Pulled Off Road

As it was on the wrong side of the road, and coming toward him, he pulled to the south shoulder, applied his brakes, and then when he believed a collision was imminent, swung his car to the left.

OPP Constable Thomas Armstrong said there were skid marks for 50 feet west of where Murray's car hit a snowbank in the intersection, then swung sharply across the highway skidding sideways and overturned in the ditch.

Chamberlain, his wife and 16-year-old son William, all testified there was no traffic ahead when Chamberlain began making his turn.

They said there was a car behind.

Both Chamberlain and his wife said they were some distance down the sideroad when Mrs. Chamberlain noticed the car had overturned. Chamberlain said he then stopped his car and backed up.

He said he saw no oncoming traffic when he started to make his turn about 75 yards east of where the side road meets Highway 7.

In finding Chamberlain guilty of driving carelessly, the Magistrate said that by making the turn in the manner he did, he gave Murray the impression of two cars passing and that this "was probably the cause of the accident".

Chamberlain was defended by Gordon H. T. Farquharson.

Adjudicator Enjoys Charlottetown Entry

CHARLOTTETOWN, Feb. 13 — (CP) — Adjudicator Pierre Lefevre congratulated the Charlottetown Little Theatre Guild for an evening of "thoroughly enjoyable entertainment" on Tuesday night as he watched their presentation of "Ladies in Retirement" by Edward Percy and Reginald Denham. It was the only entry in the Prince Edward Island regional drama festival.

Mr. Lefevre's criticism was that the line between pathos and comedy was not clear enough, a "difficult feat" in a play in which comedy and melodrama were so intricately interwoven.

He picked Florin Evans' performance as Ellen as best of the evening.

Soviet Says Forced To Sign Hitler Pact

LONDON, Feb. 13—(AP)—The Moscow radio said Tuesday night the Soviet union was "forced" to sign its non-aggression pact with Hitler in 1939 to stall for time in building up Russian defences.

(The Moscow broadcast, heard in London, showed a hitherto masked sensitivity of the Kremlin toward criticism of the Stalin-Hitler Pact. Western countries in recent U.N. sessions at Paris referred to it more than usual.)

The broadcast carried a Soviet commentator's remarks that Communist history students are being taught now that the Kremlin "did not doubt for a minute that sooner or later Hitler would attack the Soviet Union."

Name McGibbon Chairman In Wage Dispute

LINDSAY, Feb. 13 — (ENS) — A third man has been appointed to the arbitration board to discuss police salaries in Lindsay. He is Judge J. A. McGibbon.

At the first of the year, town council rejected a request from the local police force for a raise in pay for probationary policemen from $2,200 to $2,400 with a maximum of $3,000 for first class constable. Council gave the department an across the board increase of $200.

At that time, the local Police Association, headed by Constable Percy Mark, stated they were not satisfied with the raise because they were of the opinion that it was not high enough to induce capable men to join the force.

According to the Police Act, each of the parties involved appoint an arbitrar. These two men meet and appoint a third man as chairman whose decision is to be binding for both parties.

The Council appointed Finance Chairman Lloyd Burrows as their representative on the board and Constable Mark was appointed by the policemen. Both men met last week but were unable to come to a decision at that time. Late Tuesday afternoon, it was announced that Judge McGibbon was agreed upon by the two men. His Honor has accepted the position as Chairman and a meeting will be called for next week. Ald. Burrows stated that the Board would have to come to a decision before the end of this month when the estimates are struck for the year at a special meeting of the council.

Tomato Plant Can Be Used Make Hormones

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13 (AP)—The United States Agriculture Department reported today that the common tomato plant contains material that can be used to make sex hormones.

Chemical research has found, the agency said, that a new alkaloid called "chrystalline tomatidine" can be extracted from the tomato leaf.

This alkaloid can be used as a starting material in the manufacture of the medically important sex hormones progesterone and testosterone.

Progesterone is used in drugs for the correction of menstrual disturbances, prevention of spontaneous abortions and the relief of servical cancer. Testosterone also is used as a remedy for menstrual disturbances and for suppressing breast cancer.

The department said the value of the new discovery lies in the fact that heretofore only three sources were available for the preparation of these drugs—animal-nerve tissues, soybeans and Mexican yams.

Production of these drugs from the animal-nerve tissue and soybeans was said to demand more chemical steps than the production of tomatidine from the tomato plant.

Basic Cause Of Alcoholism Said Congenital

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH.

GENEVA, Feb. 13 (AP). — The basic cause of alcoholism is congenital, according to the United Nations World Health Organization.

A seven-country committee of W.H.O. experts on alcoholism found that only those "excessive drinkers" become alcoholics who are born with a "constitutional liability" to alcohol addiction.

The committee defined alcoholics as "excessive drinkers whose dependence upon alcohol has attained such a degree that it shows a noticeable mental disturbance or an interference with their bodily and mental health, their inter-personal relations and their smooth social and economic functioning."

The experts said the precise nature of the congenital factor in alcoholism has not yet been definitely established, but it was believed to be "a slight deficiency of carbohydrate metabolism, of the enzyme system or of certain endocrine relations."

Never Lose Control

The belief this deficiency is congenital is based on the fact that "many drinkers who drink as much as the addict, over periods of 25 years or more, never come to the stage of loss of control."

Persons afflicted with a congenital liability to alcoholism become alcohol addicts, the experts said, if they seek to correct a neurotic condition or "personality inadequacy" by drinking. After a few years of increasing intoxication, such persons reach a point where they lose control of their alcohol consumption and eventualy become chronic cases. The experts estimated the duration of this process to average 15 years.

A cure is possible, the experts said, with the help of drugs making alcohol abhorrent to the patient, as well as of voluntary organizations such as alcoholics anonymous. Once cured, an alcoholic must maintain total abstinence for the rest of his life.

The best way to treat alcoholics is in special out-patient clinics attached to general hospitals, the experts said.

Survey Confirms Not Closing

Any chance that there will be an industrial and retail shutdown in the city Friday disappeared on Tuesday when the results of a survey by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association was announced to the local Chamber of Commerce.

The survey report said that the only industries to close in the country would be those in communities where civic authorities had proclaimed a closed day of mourning. As this is not the case in Peterborough, all industries will be operating as usual and with two or three exceptions all stores will be open.

The day of mourning will be marked in Peterborough by special services in the churches and a city-wide two minutes silence at 11 a.m.

Quota Boosted By $200, Red Cross Told

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 13 (ENS)—Newly-elected president, Mrs. Albert O'Donnell, expressed her appreciation at the splendid attendance Monday afternoon when the Lakefield Branch, Canadian Red Cross Society held their first meeting of the year in Memorial Hall.

Work convener, Mrs. Clarence Foster reported that quilt material had not arrived as yet, but quilts would be ready as soon as possible.

A letter from headquarters requesting that the Branch should accept a quota of children's clothes to be made was read by secretary, and on motion of Mrs. C. Stenner and Mrs. S. E. White, the various organizations of the churches in the village will be asked to be responsible for some of the sewing, as the need is very urgent.

It was decided that the money now held in the Lakefield Branch account, belonging to Young's Point, would be used to equip a loan cupbord for Young's Point, and Mrs. W. W. Leonard, convener of the Lakefield Loan Cupboard will be responsible for making the purchases. Young's Point already have a hospital bed for loan. This move was made with full consent of the Young's Point committee.

Mrs. O'Donnell, Mrs. W. W. Leonard and Mrs. S. A. Grylls were named delegates to attend the annual convention of the Canadian Red Cross Society to be held March 19th at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto.

A letter of thanks was read from Cpl. Harry Baldwin, a Lakefield boy now in Tokyo, for a food parcel sent to him. Cpl. Baldwin remarked in his letter that although the food they received was quite good, it still did not taste like food right from Canada.

Main item on the agenda was the planning of the annual campaign which begins March 1st. Chairman, E. W. Bailey, stated that he felt the procedure which had been followed in previous years had been quite satisfactory and the same would be followed this year. He reminded members that the Lakefield quota had been raised $200 and now stood at $1,000. The dinner for canvassers will be held March 5, and Mr. Bailey was named to be responsible for the securing of a guest speaker. A committee of three, Mrs. W. E. Gillman, Mrs. H. Wilford and Mr. Bailey were appointed as general conveners in charge of arrangements.

Unless an emergency arises meetings will be held quarterly, the next one being Monday, April 21 at 8 p.m. The meeting adjourned on motion of Mrs. Foster.

New Naval Base Dredged Out Of Ocean's Floor

By GEORGE FRANKS.

DEN HELDER, The Netherlands, Feb. 13 (Reuters)—Hydraulic engineers and dyke-builders using centuries of experience to serve defence needs, are building a great new naval base here at the northernmost tip of the Netherlands.

They are scooping the naval base out of the ocean—dredging sand from the ocean floor to form two giant ship basins and then using the sand they have dredged up to build dikes and provide land for shore installations.

When they finish, they will have a brand new base to replace the old tradition-steeped Den Helder, demolished during the German wartime occupation.

It had served as a key harbor in the Netherlands' 18th century sea battles with England and for three centuries was the country's main naval training centre.

Bomb Proof

Experts say the new base will be virtually bomb-proof, chiefly because of its size. Even the largest bomb, they say, "would only make one more hole in the ocean or perhaps make us a third entrance to our new harbor."

The dikes will be so wide, they say, that no bomb could break them open or do more than limited damage.

A plan for its construction was drawn up in 1947. Its estimated cost at that time was about $7,500,000. The plan calls for construction of two large sea basins, many acres of buildings and workshops, a score of double-sided berths for warships of all sizes, a floating dry dock to hold the largest known battleship and huge protecting dikes.

The work is going on in the Wadden Sea, the stretch of water between the Zuyder Zee dike and the Frisian Islands, the chain of islands fringing Holland in the North Sea.

Tho project is divided into two parts. The first basin will be finished in 1954, the second in 1957.

The project is being paid for entirely out of normal budget funds. But it will cost considerably more than the original estimate of $7,500,000. Already most of that has been spent, and there are several years' work ahead.

BACK IN SERVICE—Out of the mothball fleet at San Francisco and back in service is the U.S. Intrepid, 27,000-ton Essex-class aircraft carrier. During the war, the big flat-top lived up to its name. Most-frequently hit carrier in the Navy, it was battered into flames by Jap aerial attack four times and four times, its damage repaired, it returned to battle. In 15 months of combat action, Intrepid's guns and planes sank 89 enemy ships and 660 enemy aircraft. After recommissioning at San Francisco, she goes to Newport News, Va., to have her flight deck modernized to handle new, heavy planes.

Hockey Features Point Carnival

YOUNG'S POINT, Feb. 12—In spite of a fine snowstorm over everything, the annual ice carnival was held at Young's Point rink Friday night with a good crowd in atendance.

The ice was a riot of color as tiny tots and older folk skated in gay costumes until 7:45. The first event was the judging of the children's costumes for Grades 1-4. Winners were little Nancy Pelton as an old fashioned lady, and Carol Mepham as a butterfly, in the girls' contest and Tommy Freeburn as a black cat, and Neil Revoy as a wild western cowboy. In the costume contest for the senior grades, the winners were Marily Jones as a drum majorette and Marilyn Freeburn as a rose queen for the girls, and John Godfrey as a highwayman and Gary Jones as a jockey, for the boys. Judges were Misses M. Walsh and B. Walsh, and Mr. D. Darling.

Following this was a series of races with the winners as follows: girls 5 and 6: Carol Ann Graham, Carol Mepham; boys: Neil Revoy, Wayne Freeburn; Girls 7 and 8: Linda Godfrey, Joyce Garrett; boys: Gary Clark, Nelson Godfrey; girls 9 and 10: Dorothy Clark, Sylvia Freeburn; boys: Bobby Tedford, Frannie Graham, girls 11 and 12: Beth Tedford, Beverley Freeburn; boys: John Dunford, Gary Jones; girls 13 and 14: Helen Dunford, Helen Crapp; boys: Elmer Tedford, Edward Dunford; girls 15 and 16: Joan Townsend, Anne Wilson; boys: John Darling, Ross Freeburn; girls 16 and over: Joan Townsend, Ruth Wilson; boys: John Darling, Doug. The next event on the program was a hockey game which was to have been between Young's Point School team and Lakehurst Boys. Lakehurst however was unable to come so the school team played againt a pick-up team from Burleigh Falls and Young's Point. They played two periods only due to the lengthy program. In the first period Wayne Heard scored twice for the school team. J. Barber received a charging penalty and a few minutes later was banished for boarding. McNaughton each getting one for the Single Men, and P. Godfrey getting the only tally for the Married Men.

Of Interest to Women

SLAP-HAPPY—Harvard sophomores Oakleigh Thorne, left, of Bedford, N.Y., and Richard Mortimer, of New York City, bang away at each other during their 48-hour face-slapping marathon. Having heard how two of Stalin's Reds set a record of slapping each other 17,260 times, they bettered that mark by one slap.

DOROTHY DIX

Faith And Prayer Will Aid Overcoming Despondency

DEAR MISS DIX: At 22, I find myself in a constant state of moodiness and general discouragement. My parents were divorced when I was very young and I have been shifted from pillar to post ever since. Now, though I have a good job, nothing seems worthwhile in life. Also, I'm going out with a fine young man and think a lot of him. He would like to marry me but I hate to inflict my present emotional disturbances upon him. Do you think marriage will change my attitude? If you don't think it would, I'll give up the idea entirely as I don't want to be a burden on anyone.

LOIS

ANSWER: Your unfortunate childhood would, naturally have a lasting and disturbing effect on your present life, but I assure you the situation is anything but hopeless. You now have two of the most precious possessions in the world—a job that is satisfying and absorbing, and a devoted young man. What you are lacking is faith—faith in yourself, your beau and, above all, in God. What you need is a spiritual uplift to take your mind off the material things which seem to occupy you too much.

If you are now connected with a church—and from the tenor of your letter I doubt that you are—have a long talk with your pastor. If you do not have a religious affiliation, make one at once. Discuss your problem with the clergyman in charge, whose advice will be profitable.

There are many fine books at present in print that are written just for people like yourself who are overcome with the (to them) futility of life.

There may be a member of your boy friend's family in whom you could confide: his mother perhaps, an older sister, a wise grandmother. You'll find people surprisingly sympathetic when they realize how much you need understanding and affection. Don't turn your back to a helping hand; take advantage of every aid to reach a healthier outlook on life. If you allow your mind to continue its despondent course, you may, as you predict, come to a nervous breakdown.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: While my son was at college he met a very pretty young girl and left school to marry her. He took a job in her home town and did everything he could to provide her with the necessities and luxuries she demanded. After living above their means for two years, they had a child. At that time his expenses were so high my husband had to give them a large sum of money to meet them. They seemed to be perfectly happy as long as she received what she wanted. Suddenly, after eight years of marriage, she took the child and returned to her mother. She has demanded tremendous alimony and permits my son to see the child but one day a week. He is crushed and will not speak to me about it. My heart goes out to him and I want to help him.

MARIANNE M.

ANSWER: Your son's wife cannot walk off with their child and then just demand whatever she wants of him. He has recourse to the law, and should take advantage of it. After all, she has deserted him, and is therefore in the wrong. No judge will award her unreasonable alimony, nor restrict your son unfairly in the matter of visiting his child.

Further than reminding him of this fact, there is little you can do to help him. Your greatest assistance is not to press him for information, but to let him solve the problem in his own way. The greatest trial a parent can experience is to see a child unhappy and not be able to help. You cannot interfere with your son's trouble; just leave him alone until he comes to you of his own accord.

DEAR MISS DIX: Will you please tell me all that you know concerning face lifting and plastic surgery—approximately what it would cost and how long the after-care would be. Also the name of a reputable physician near my home who performs such services.

LILLIAN

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: This subject is much too complicated to be discussed in a few words. There are many different practices in this field, as well as new methods being introduced every day. I suggest that you visti your local hospital and seek their adivce in this matter.

Queen's Milliner Must Fit Her Crown's Beyond Pricing

LONDON, Feb. 13—(Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth has a date with the Royal milliner before she can wear her two Royal crowns.

The crowns themselves will remain unaltered in their regal splendor. It's the velvet "cap of maintenance" inside the crown that is refitted and padded for each sovereign's head.

Queen Elizabeth II really has three crowns but one of them will never be worn. Since India now is a republic, the Queen is not "Empress of India" and the "Imperial Crown of India" will remain in the ancient Tower of London.

The sovereign's principal crown is the Crown of St. Edward. It is used only at coronations. But since it weighs more than five pounds it is worn only for a few minutes and then is replaced by the lighter Imperial Crown.

These two crowns are beyond pricing. No monetary figure is available. Even if the original value of the individual jewels could be computed it would be meaningless, because of the tremendous change in values over the centuries and the historical significance of some of the jewels.

The Imperial Crown of India is known to have cost about $300,000 but this does not give a true indication of the value of the other two crowns, of which the Imperial Crown is the more valuable.

The original Cullinan diamond, a large piece of which is embedded in the Imperial Crown, was valued at $7,500,000.

The Crown of St. Edward and the Imperial Crown are similar in shape but can be distinguished by the outstanding gems in each and by their overall color.

Both have a jewel-studded main circlet at the base, ringed with ermine. In front there is a main cross, in which is embedded the major gem. Crossed arches form a dome topped with a jewelled ball and a Maltese cross. Filling out the space under the cross pieces is the purple velvet of the cap of maintenance.

The Crown of St. Edward is gold in appearance, the cross pieces lined with pearls. The Imperial Crown looks silvery from the massed diamonds and pearls on platinum.

Queen Elizabeth's husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, may also be entitled to wear a crown if the Queen so decrees. It will be a comparatively simple coronet, a circlet of gold adorned with strawberry-leaf crosses. The use of precious stones is prohibited.

The original crown of St. Edward dated back to Edward the Confesssor (1005-66), last of the Saxon line. It was destroyed during the rule of Oliver Cromwell (1653-58) and was remade when King Charles II was restored to the throne.

In the crown are five rubies, 11 emeralds, 17 sapphires, 277 pearls and 2,785 diamonds.

The smaller Imperial Crown was made by command of Queen Victoria in 1838. This crown contains one large ruby, one large sapphire, 16 smaller sapphires, 11 emerals, four smaller rubies, 1,363 brilliant diamonds, 1,273 rose diamonds, 147 table diamonds, four drop-shaped pearls and 373 other pearls.

The big ruby, in the centre of a diamond cross, was given to Edward, the "Black Prince," by the King of Castile after the battle of Najera in Spain in 1367.

King Henry wore the ruby in his helmet at the battle of Agincourt in 1415.

King Edward VII had the Imperial Crown lightened but he added one of two large portions of the Cullinan diamond presented by the then Colony of Transvaal. This portion of the diamond, the Star of Africa, weighs more than 309 carats.

The famous "Koh - I - Nor" (Mountain of Light) diamond, presented to Queen Victoria in 1850 by the East India Company, is in the silver-and-diamond crown usually worn by the King's wife.

MILLBROOK

MILLBROOK, Feb. 13 (ENS).—Leo W. Copp, principal of Peterborough Normal School, was guest speaker at the February meeting of the Home and School Association held in the school auditorium on Monday evening. He chose "Progressive Education" as his topic, and with it he linked the work of the United Nations. In a way, he said, the work of the Home and School was similar to that of the United Nations, where members of 60 nations sat down together and each was able to say whatever he wished. This came nearer to the ideal of the "parliament of men" than had ever been attained before.

It was being learned that one country could no longer dominate and subjugate another. Instead they met and talked things out. In days gone by the teacher ruled the classroom as supreme monarch. The teacher who was able to get most pupils through the entrance was regarded as the best teacher Now the teacher is becoming a social worker as well, trying to fit pupils for life. Teachers, he said, were taking charge of the most precious thing in the world—the child.

He quoted the late Dr. H. R. H Kenner's definition: "Education is what is left after you have forgotten what you learned in school." Another man's definition of education was that it was "the business of giving the student the best appreciation of the greatest number of fields possible." This had little to do with marks obtained in school. The aim of the present system was two-fold; to develop leaders with competitive ability, and to have each child become the best person possible whether he beat other children or not.

In speaking of the new O.S.U. (outstanding, satisfactory and unsatisfactory) report card system which had created such a furore in Toronto schools, Mr. Copp said it could only be successful if parents were made thoroughly to understand it. Along with the reports, he felt, should go talks between teachers and parents, since only in this way could the individual needs of each child be best met.

Mr. Copp was introduced by Alex Gilbert, and Miss Helen Black, high school principal, moved the vote of thanks.

The public school board held their meeting at an earlier hour in order to attend the Home and School in a body.

Mac. Ingham gave two vocal solos, "Trumpeter, what are you sounding now?" and "Old Man River." Mrs. G. A. Spicer was at the piano for "Gor Save the Queen" at the opening of the meeting and two minutes' silence were observed in memory of King George VI.

Plans were made for Home and School Association members to attend service in Grace Presbyterian church in a body on March 2, the opening day of education week.

A short talk on the work of Mrs. A. C. Courtice, founder of the Home and School movement, was given by the president.

The $2 award for having the most parents present went to the pupils of Mr. Hamilton, the senior room of the public school. Three new members joined to bring the membership to over 60. Refreshments were served by Miss Kent and her committee assisted by some of the men.

CGIT Doings

TRINITY CHURCH GROUP.

With 103 present to enjoy the fine program, Trinity C. G. I. T. and Explorer mother and daughter banquet Monday evening at the church was a splendid success. Mrs. Paige Rowell was the guest speaker and chose as her theme "Mother and daughter relations."

Mrs. Rowell said that mothers want their children to be better than they, because only in this way does the world progress. She stressed the fact that it is the mothers privilege to teach and guide their daughters and this should not be left to the schools.

Questions of morals should be explained fully and unreservedly. Excessive drinking, in her estimation, was the greatest contributor to unhappiness in the world today, caused by parents in every social strata offering beverages to minors.

"Our late king, George VI, was always spoken of as a good man, said Mrs. Rowell. "Mothers want their daughters to be above all things, good. One hundred per cent brains is of little use unless we have one hundred per cent character to go with them. To live a good life among others is of far greater importance than obtaining first class honors at school."

The spritual training of children, she also felt, was the duty and privilege of parents. She closed her talk with a prayer for mothers and daughters.

Chairman was Carole Yelland, department president. Also seated at the head table was her mother, Mrs. A. Wade, Mrs. Rowell, the Rev. D. B. Gordon, Mrs. H. T. Crosbie, W. M. S. secretary for younger groups, Miss Olive Armstrong, chairman of the girls' work committee in the church, Mrs. B. McFadden, president of the W. M. S., Mrs. H. Mitchell, president of the W. A., Miss Anna Edmondson, superintendent of the Sunday School, Miss Gladys Langton, presbyterial secretary for C. G. I. T., Mrs. W. T. Edmondson, Mr. R. M. Elliot, superintendent of the Sunday School, Miss Gladys Langton, presbyterial secretary for C. G. I. T., Mrs. S. Constable, superintendent for Explorers.

Attractive place cards and programs, made by the girls, represented C. G. I. T. girls for that group, while the Explorers had made theirs with a maple leaf enclosed in a red circle to symbolize their purpose. The tables were centred with Union Jacks and Christian flags with white candles at either end, with blue down the centre of the C. G. I. T. girls' tables and red for the Explorers' tables.

Two pleasing piano solos, "The Bat," and "Saviour Lead Me Day by Day" were played by Wendy Collins. A skit entitled "The Mutilated Uniform," was put on by the girls. Marybeth Darling was the judge and Janet Hughson the officer. Others taking part were Margaret Horton, Meredith Morgan, Rosie Nesbitt, Marie Nesbitt, Norma Crowe, Carolyn Horton, Joan Kennedy, Vallerie Bennett, and Beverley Hutton.

After words of welcome by the chairman who then proposed a toast to the Queen, a toast to the church was given by Marie Nesbitt and Dr. Gordon replied. A toast to the mothers was proposed by Jane Ovens and Mrs. M. G. Hughson replied. Mrs. R. Morgan gave a toast to the daughters and it was replied to by Joan Cruikshank.

A hearty sing song was led by Anne Gordon and Mrs. Gordon was at the piano.

Margaret Horton thanked the speaker and those taking part in the program and also expressed appreciation to the Girls' Work Committee who had made the banquet possible.

Hollywood Agrees Girls Propose

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 3 (AP) — Should a girl ask a man for his hand in marriage?

This question has faced women since the beginning of history. Here it is leap year again and the gals have the traditional right to propose marriage to eligible males. But is it wise? A number of Hollywood glamor girls were asked this question and these were their replies:

Maureen O'Hara—"Certainly a girl should propose. There isn't a husband in this world who wasn't manoeuvred into asking for his wife's hand in marriage. But I admit that a girl has to be subtle about it."

Elizabeth Taylor: "Why shouldn't the girl do the asking—if there's a man handy?"

Arlene Dahl—"If her man is the slow type, I think a girl should definitely establish a beachhead. She doesn't have to be too obvious about it, but she can easily work him into a position where he is vulnerable."

Hard to Find

Marilyn Maxwell—"Should a girl propose? Certainly. Today there are six or seven women for every worthwhile man. Just like the song says, a good man nowadays is hard to find."

Esther Williams — "Certainly, the girl should do the asking, if necessary. The important thing for her is to get a husband, establish a home and have babies. If the man doesn't have brains enough to ask her, she might as well take the initiative."

Janet Leigh—"I should say not. If a man didn't think enough of me to ask me to marry him, I wouldn't want him.

What's Right?

Friends drop by unexpectedly and you can offer them very simple refreshments or nothing at all.

WRONG: Decide that since you haven't anything "special" in the house, you'll offer nothing.

RIGHT: Offer what you have.

You receive a written invitation to a party.

WRONG: Wait until a day or two before the party and then telephone the hostess to tell her whether or not you will be able to come.

RIGHT: Write an answer to the invitation as soon as possible after you receive it.

Directions

How do you like Transformation Pie for a name? That is exactly what it is too—ordinary things transformed into a beautiful pie that deserves highbrow-company attention. Guess what modest little violet made it up . . . . me.

Emem's Transformation Pie

I had 1¼ cups, well-packed, leftover ground spiced beef. Smoked ham or highly seasoned ground cold beef would do equally well, I added the meat to 3 well beaten eggs and 1 cup milk. I poured this filling into a pastry-lined pie plate. I made semi-French pastry by rolling a chunk of pastry out once and covering half of it with about 2 tablespoons soft butter, folding it in eight and rolling it out once more. I sprinkled it with salt and baked it at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 20 minutes, when the custard had begun to firm up, then I sprinkled the top generously with grated processed cheese — about ¼ pound. I put it back in the oven at about 400 deg. Fahr. still, and baked it until firm and the cheese was bubbly and brown. Serve with catsup or chili sauce—preferably warm. Cut the pie in wedge-shaped pieces as you would a dessert pie.

Salad Talk

In order to maintain or fan your enthusiasm for salads, especially now when they are needed to do a protective job, I have hammered away at them every week. Last night I was hard up for salad materials when I was preparing dinner. In fact, I was hard up for everything—the refrigerator was almost bare. That is why I had to work a miracle in the form of that Transformation Pie. However, I found a large cooked beet in a jar, the hard centre of a head of lettuce and 1 large tomato in the crisper, and plenty of young carrots.

I shredded the lettuce finely with a sharp knife and divided it among 4 plates. It looked skimpy. I shredded the beet on the shredder and did likewise with it. Things began to look better. I sliced the tomato thin as wafers, and gave each plate 2 slices. Then to make it look generous I piled a bundle of fine carrot strips at one side. We passed garlic French dressing. Something out of nothing? Just the same everybody liked it and you can serve salad every day too if you are determined.

Lazy Daisy Cake

Two eggs, 1 cup each sugar and pastry flour, ½ cup milk, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon each vanilla and baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt. Beat eggs for 2 or 3 minutes, until they are light in color, and of creamy consistency. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly. Remove beater, add vanilla. Add flour which has been sifted with baking powder and salt. Fold in. Scald milk and butter in top of double boiler, and add all at once to flour mixture. Pour into greased pan and bake 30 minues at 375 deg. Fahr.

FROSTING: Three tablespoons melted butter, two-thirds cup light brown sugar, 2 tablespoons cream, ½ cup cocoanut. Mix all ingredients. Spread on hot baked cake in pan immediately it is baked. Return to oven at once to brown the frosting under broiler for about 2 minutes or until it bubbles. Let cake cool in pan. Nuts may be substituted for the cocoanut.

Home and School Association News

GROVE SCHOOL

The kindergarten room at Grove School was filled to capacity for the founder's night meeting Monday of the Home and School Association. One minute silence was observed at the opening in tribute to the late King George VI, followed with prayer by President Mrs. N. Foster.

Guest speaker, Dr. Donald Clarke, specialist in children's diseases, was introduced by Mrs. R. Clements. He spoke on accidents and accident patterns. He states that well over half the deaths in Canada are from accidents, and listed as causes: guns, bicycles, tricycles, automobiles, drowning, fires, poison. Suggested preventative was in teaching children from the beginning the correct use of these things.

The ceremony in tribute to the founder of the Home and School movement, Mrs. A. C. Courtis, commenced with the singing of her favorite hymn "My Task" by Mrs. G. Todd. Eight candles were lighted as the president explained their meaning and Mrs. W. Higgins explained the purpose.

Mrs. R. Johnston lit the candle for Mrs. Courtice, Mrs. R. Page for health, Mrs. A. Johnston for wholesome home life, Mrs. J. Fife for knowledge and learning, Mrs. H. Barker for citizenship and brotherhood, Mr. J. Barnard for vocational effectiveness, Mrs. F. Sanders for well-spent leisure, Mrs. W. Hargreave for spiritual vision and character.

A silver collection was taken at the door, half of which will go to the Federation and half to the Courtice memorial library.

Membership convener Mrs. G. Beauchamp reported 150 paid-up members. It was decided to send $10 to the Canadian Save the Children Fund. Also to spend $30 on school improvement. Two delegates are to be sent to the Home and School Convention at Toronto.

An article on immunization was read by health convener Mrs. R. Page. It was decided to hold a fun night, the date to be set later. Special invitation was given the members to hear Mr. D. M. Graham, director of education for Forest Hill Village, when he speaks on leadership and training at the Y.W.C.A. on Wednesday afternoon, March 19, and also at the evening meeting of Council at Queen Mary Auditorium.

Attendance prize was won by Mr. J. Barnard's room.

Lunch was served by Mrs. W. Higgins and her committee of Mrs. F. Whitfield, Mrs. G. Fredericks, Mrs. H. Barker, Mrs. H. Franklin, Mrs. E. Hoyland, and Mrs. G. Carson.

An executive meeting will be held at Mrs. D. Keene's, 632 Orpington Road, on February 25.

Windsor Plans To Stay With Mother

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Feb. 13 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor arrived home today for the funeral of King George VI, his brother to whom he relinquished his throne.

"This is indeed a sad arrival," said the Duke. "I have crossed the Atlantic for the funeral of a dear brother and to comfort Her Majesty Queen Mary, my mother, in the overwhelming sorrow which has overtaken my family and the Commonwealth of British Nations."

The Duke arrived alone. His American wife, for whom he gave up England's throne, remained in the United States.

The Duke, King Edward VIII until he abdicated in 1936, said in a statement to reporters:

"Ever since our childhood the late King and I have been close. We knew each other well. The outstanding qualities of kingship he possessed made easier for me the passing on of the uninterrupted succession to the throne.

"And my brother drew strength in his heavy responsibilities from what I once described as 'a matchless blessing'—a happy home with his wife and children.

Hearts Go Out

"So as we mourn a much-beloved monarch our hearts go out to the widowed Queen Mother and her two daughters in their grief.

"The eldest, Elizabeth, has by God's will been called upon to succeed her father. His well-known attributes will, I am sure, descend to her....

"Youth and courage are great assets in these precarious times in which Elizabeth II begins her reign. And at the outset she has the help and support of her husband Philip and the loyalty and good wishes of all her peoples.

"God save the Queen."

The Duke, Lord Dudley and his private secretary left Southampton by car for London. He planned to go directly to Marlborough House, home of his mother, where he will stay during his London visit.

Windsor is one of four dukes who will walk immediately behind the Queen's carriage in the funeral procession Friday.

Struck By Limb Farmer Dies

BELL[illegible], Feb. 13 (CP). — Lawren[illegible] Ketcheson, 59-year-old Sid[illegible] Township farmer, died in hospital Tuesday night after being struck by a limb which fell from a tree on his bush lot.

He was a director of the Foxboro Co-operative, president of the Film Council and president of Wallaceburg Cheese Factory.

He is survived by his widow, three sons and a daughter, Jane, a technician at St. Thomas Hospital. One son John is a teacher at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

Newark Death Toll Has Risen To 32

NEW YORK, Feb. 13 —(CP)— The death toll in Monday's plane crash in Elizabeth, N.J., rose today to 32 as disaster-haunted Newark airport, from which the ill-fated plane took off, remained closed.

Miss Sarah Aronwald, 52, of New York, a passenger, became the 32nd victim of the crash—third in two months in the Elizabeth area. A total of 118 persons have died in the three crashes.

Government and airline officials who met here for almost six hours Tuesday promised to keep Newark airport closed pending congressional and other official investigations.

Centenarian Manager Boosts Profit Split

BATLEY, Yorks, England (CP) —Theodore Tahlor, managing director of a woollen firm, delivered a 20-minute speech at his company's 60th annual meeting.

There was nothing remarkable about it—except that Taylor will be 102 years old in August.

Taylor, one of Yorkshire's best-known business men, writes his own speeches.

The older he gets, he said in his speech, the more he appreciates the principle of profit-sharing in industry. He wished everybody in every trade would practise it.

THE KING AT REST—The body of King George VI lies in state in Westminster Hall, London, under the eyes on an honor guard. The coffin will remain there until Friday, while his subjects pay their last respects.

Federal Government

In its ultimate development, this project contemplates a housing development with provision for a shopping centre, sites for playgrounds, churches and other community features.

Proposed annexation may not come into effect until January 1, 1953. In that respect, immediacy of breaking ground for houses may extend to five or ten years before the rolling acres of the southeast corner of Smith assume urbanised appearance in new streets, homes, a park or two and the various other acccessories of city life.

One result is likely to be a check on the city's easy-going drift to the west. And it is also expected that an unestimated number of families in the broad southend may be attracted to the higher ground to the north.

Approximate cost of the land and buildings now under option is in exceess of $200,000.

This proposed enlargement of Peterborough's estate had its inception in the address by Premier L. M. Frost at the convention of the Canadian Association of Mayors in London, Ont., last June. Max J. Swanston was Peterborough's delegate mayor.

Mr. Frost's salient announcement gave the outline of a partnership of the governments of Canada and Ontario in a Land Assembly Plan for the encouraging and assisting of home building in co-operation with municipalities.

Peterborough's interest in this three-way deal began soon after ex-Mayor Swanston's return from the convention.

Survey Map

Most recent phase of approach was the application to the Ontario Department of Planning and Development Monday for a topographical survey and map of the Smith area.

Mayor Waddell was appointed chairman last year of a special committee of enquiry including Keith S. Wightman, superintendent of schools, representing the Board of Education and their interests; City Clerk Outram, City Engineer Chalmers, Lawrie R. Mitchell of Peterborough Bus Lines.

A. E. K. Bunnell, director of housing with the Ontario Department of Planning and Development, explained the general project, and subsequently it was decided by council to request the Department to make a survey of suitable sites, most of them adjoining the city. He was accompanied by W. W. Scott who has been on loan to the department by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, a federal agency.

Other Possibilities

Previously, City Hall discussions had mentioned the old Dickson farm, within the city and east of Little Lake, when it was understood that Peterborough might be allotted some 80 houses for rental in the new project.

Official investigation of properties examined the Dickson site, and proceeded on a tour of the fringe of the city, including part of Otonabee, south of the city. Scope of questing looked over the Stenson property, a long gore between Lansdowne St. west and the Peterborough - Port Hope Highway. The circuit continued west of the city beyond Civic Hospital and on into Smith on the north. That is where the survey ended.

Up to that time, representatives of the Department of Planning had rated St. Thomas site as the best of new residential projects which had come to their attention under the new land assembly plan.

The Smith location changed their opinions, and was moved to the top of their list on the basis of general merits and desirability for a large scale housing area and future residential development.

Eventually, Mr. Everett Parker of the Ontario Department of Public Works, on loan to the planning department, accompanied by Peterborough's Assessment Commissioner J. E. Davis, began negotiations for options. That was last November. Rumors of bids and deals began to reach the public around the first of the year and since then.

Finally, Mayor Waddell agreed that the story of preparatory progress up to the present should be told. Incidentally, Mr. Davis has spent a lot of his time in interviewing owners of the suburban lands.

The Land Assembly Plan is distinct from a rental project but the council's original thinking of some 80 houses to be built for renting may be included in the local development as it gradually takes definite and organized form.

How Plan Works

Land Assembly signifies the purchase of land by joint action and investment of the two governments, and the holding of it for sale. Property may be bought for large scale housing operations, or in lots by individual citizens wishing to build homes of their own. However, in a general sense it is an integrated plan adjusted to the entire site.

The purchaser acquires land by agreement to begin building within six months. When the construction stage is reached, the city is required to provide community services, such as streets, sewers, sidewalks, and is repaid in the usual method of collecting taxes. By that time the farms will be incorporated in the city.

The governments pay for surveys, plans, management and other items. It is understood that a commission will be set up as a government agency to supervise the development of the property.

The opportunity of buying home sites at cost is a major feature of Land Assembly. Boosting of realty values in the subdivision is precluded by this plan.

As for a rental project, Peterborough is entitled to some 80 houses, on the basis of population laid down in the plan. Their cost would be distributed between the Governments and the city in the proportion of 75 per cent to be paid by the Federal government, 17½ per cent by the Provincial government, and 7½ per cent by the city.

Check Needs

Preliminary to any housing project for tenants, an inquiry will be made into the existing housing needs of the city.

Generally, lots will be of 5,000 sq. feet, that is with 50 foot frontage and 100 ft. depth. It is expected that the average house will cost around $9,000, including services, and will be, for the most part, of brick veneer construction—modern, substantial dwellings.

Another detail raises the question of when the city becomes committed to the plan, in conjunction with the governments.

City Clerk Outram said the answer was, when the city signs an agreement with them, the governments will take up the options for purchase of the group of Smith farms.

That investment is made by the governments in their joint interest. Taxes are not collectable by the city until sales of lots have been made, and services are available.

A pertinent clause in the plan affirms: "It will be the responsibility of the municipality to arrange for the acquisition of suitable land at a reasonable price to the partners (governments) and to bring services, free of cost, to the edge of the project area." That refers particularly to rental housing.

Appoint Authority

"A local housing authority will be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council for each project (rental) after consultation with the Federal and municipal authorities, so that management, selection of tenants, etc., will be essentially at the local level."

City Hall opinion expects that development of the new housing area will be more or less similar to the experience of St. Catharines. That city acquired 1,100 acres for a somewhat similar project, and is reported to be surprised at the rate of occupation.

Other details pertain to this Peterborough project, but the outline of the Land Assembly Plan is presented as a community improvement which has received a great deal of attention for the last six months or more.

It is deliberate planning for the future with the guidance and aid of the Federal and Provincial governments acting together.

In its appeal to home owners, it looks up to the higher elevation to the north of the city, with that great sweep of Peterborough from the crest of the hill at Roy Sanderson's farm residence on the Chemong Road.

Robin J. Runnett Dies In Hospital

Robin J. Runnett, 18 Wallace St., died Tuesday evening in Toronto General Hospital after an illness of little more than a week.

Mr. Runnett was born in Kingston 50 years ago, son of James Robert Runnett, and his wife, the late Helen Rebecca Arthurs. He had resided in Peterborough since 1904, coming from Kingston, and was an employee of the switchgear drafting department of the Canadian General Electric Company since 1940.

Prominent in the Masonic Order he was a member of Peterborough Lodge, A.F. & A.M.; Corinthian Chapter; Peterborough Chapter of Rose Croix, Moore Preceptory, Knights Templars.

Breeder Of Dogs

Mr. Runnett was a director of the Kawartha Kennel Club, and secretary of Kawartha Fox Hound Club. He was well-known as a breeder of wire-haired Terriers and Irish Setters, and in that interest he was a lover of dogs and always ready to talk about them with those who shared that attachment.

In his early youth he had worked for a while in farming near Bailieboro.

Mr. Runnett leaves his wife, the former Ila Agnes Storey; one son, James Gordon Runnett, at home; his father, J. R. Runnett, of Peterborough; two brothers, Alex of Willowdale, and Conway of this city; and one sister, Betty, of Kingston.

Mr. Runnett was a member of All Saints' Church. The funeral will be Friday at 1.30 a.m. from Comstock's funeral home, Rubidge St., to the Little Lake cemetery. The funeral service will be conducted by the Rev. M. P. Poole of All Saints' Church.

A Masonic service Thursday at 7.30 p.m. will be held at the funeral home under auspices of Peterborough Lodge A.F. & A.M., of which B. Duder is Worshipful Master.

The death of Robin Runnett has been a shock to his many friends in the city, few of whom were aware of his short illness.

Iran, Egypt Send Floral Tributes

LONDON, Feb. 13 (AP)—Florists disclosed today that one of the most elaborate of an estimated 100,000 floral tributes ordered for Friday's funeral of the King has come from Egypt's King Farouk, whose country is involved in a bitter quarrel with Britain.

The wreath includes hundreds of curled laurel leaves—it took two women 12 hours to curl them—and white lilies. The white silk ribbon attached is inscribed "King Farouk of Egypt and the Sudan."

Other figures embroiled in controversy with the late King's government also sent wreaths. Florists, swamped with work, hired hundreds of extra workers.

Among those who ordered wreaths was Egyptian Prime Minister Aly Maher Pasha, appointed by Farouk to quiet Egyptian riots which marked the country's dispute with Britain.

Iran's Remebrance

Another was Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh and his Iranian government, who still are in dispute with Britain over the British oil properties Iran nationalized last spring.

The King and Queen of Sweden sent a laurel wreath with a blue and yellow crepe band, decorated with the Swedish royal monogram. The Swedish navy ordered a six-foot floral anchor bound in golden crepe.

Three plane loads of flowers were flown in by the French Riviera resort cities of Nice, Antibes and Cannes to decorate St. George's chapel at Windsor Castle, where the King will be buried. White lilacs were flown from the Netherlands and plane loads of mimosa from southern France.

Hidden Taxes Rouse Anger

WINNIPEG, Feb. 13 (CP)—Objection to "hidden" government taxes was raised Tuesday by Rene Perrault of Montreal, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Perrault told a joint meeting of the Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce and the Canadian Club of Winnipeg that the average individual realizes less and less how much he is paying for benefits showered upon him.

By means of hidden taxes and payroll deductions the Canadian is contributing far more through taxation than ever before. In the first nine months of the fiscal year, the taxpayer has contributed to a Federal government surplus of more than $700,000,000, greater than the total amount of cash required in 1939.

"If the government were to attempt to secure this amount of money without resorting to payroll deductions and hidden taxes the public outcry would be so great that no government would attempt to resist the pressure to reduce taxation," said Mr. Perrault.

Merchants Plan Fair In Lindsay

LINDSAY, Feb. 13—(ENS)—At a meeting of the board of directors of the Lindsay Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night, it was decided unanimously to hold a trade fair in Lindsay.

Proposed dates for the fair are May 14-15-16-17 and the fair will be held in the Lindsay Armouries. Sponsored by the chamber, the fair will be open to Lindsay merchants as exhibitors. An attempt will be made by the chamber to confine the exhibits to Lindsay merchants because the directors felt that the fair would be so "overwhelmingly successful that industry could not be accommodated this year".

It is the purpose of the chamber to combine the fair with a special "Shop in Lindsay Week". Exhibits will be much the same as those seen at the Lindsay Central Exhibition.

Soviet Says Trouble Along China Border

MOSCOW, Feb. 13 (AP)—The Soviet press today reported trouble at two points along Communist China's long border.

In further reports from Burma about Chinese Nationalist troops there, the papers said one northern Burmese district near the Chinese border is being governed by 1,300 well-armed Nationalist troops in American uniform. The reports said they are collecting taxes and terrorizing the people but that popular resistance is rising.

From Peiping, the press reported a sharp attack in the Communist organ Jen Min Jih on re[illegible] British prosecution of Ca[illegible] "patriots" in Hong Kong. [illegible] papers referred to "British occupation" of Hong Kong and accused Britain of turning its colony into an advance base for American war against China.

Harvey Utman, 25, Severely Scalded

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 13 (CP).—Harvey Utman, 25, was severely scalded Tuesday night when he slipped into a large tub of hot grain slop while working at the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company Ltd. plant at nearby Corbyville. He is in hospital here in serious condition.

Expect Lively Meeting Of Rugby Union

TORONTO, Feb. 13 (CP). — A number of controversial issues, some the subject of intense discussion in the past, will be aired at the annual meeting here Feb. 21-23 of the Canadian Rugby Union—the time each year when the off-season football gripes reach the boiling point.

The football brass will pound the table and use all the oratory at their command in trying to put over their pet projects. Representatives of the Big Four Union and the Western Canada Conference perhaps will even threaten again to pull both major leagues out of the C.R.U.

But if the results of the C.R.U. annual meetings of the last few years are any indication, the controversial matters will be left pretty much the same, to be brought up again at future gatherings.

Watched With Interest

However, there is always a possibility that some far-reaching decision will be taken. It is with this in mind that the action taken on three particular proposals will be viewed with more than passing interest.

These are: 1. A two-game Grey Cup final to be held in Toronto and Montréal; 2. Elimination of the eastern Canada final; 3. Demands of the Big Four and Western Canada Leagues for majority voting power, particularly on affairs which affect them primarily.

Elimination of the eastern final will be fought vigorously by the Ontario Rugby Football Union, whose champion automatically takes on the Big Four winner. The two top leagues consider the eastern final a waste of time since the O.R.F.U. champions in the post-war years have shown they hardly rate consideration.

G. Ivy, assisted by B. Batt counted one for S. Dummer but West Douro replied with one from Martell. The third period again brought G. Ivy aided by E. Moore whisking a second for S. Dummer, but W. Douro ripped in two more by Murdock, and Cupoli scored unassisted.

Douro drew three of the four penalties. Teams:

Can't Make Decision

TORONTO, Feb. 13 (CP)—The question of senior public schools for Toronto is still in doubt. The 10-man management committee of the Board of Education Tuesday night was unable to decide either to recommend or reject the plan which would have set up special schools to handle Grades 7 and 8. The problem now will go before a full meeting of the board February 21.

Campbellford Splits Doubleheader

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 13 — (ENS)—The largest crowd this season saw one of the best games of hockey played on local ice this year when the Campbellford bantams and midgets lost and won, respectively, in the first of home-and-home series here on Tuesday night.

The bantam O.M.H.A. team, which has been flying high of late, bowed before the stronger Wellington team, who shut out the local puckists by the score of 3-0. Campbellford's passing plays were not clicking on Tuesday, and they go into the final round three goals down.

The midgets opened up after a rather slow start. Wellington got the first goal when the first period was only two minutes old, but the local lads held them from appearing on the score sheet again, until there were less than four minutes remaining in the game. Wellington put on a final burst of speed and went past the tired Campbellford defence twice in the last five minutes. The line of Garvey, Wilson and Dooher got most of the local goals, with Girard carrying the ball on the second line, backed up by Baker.

The final score of 13 to 3 was hardly indicative of the play. The Wellington team was demoralized in the second period as their goalkeeper, Gayer, received a head injury and the game was held up for a few minutes while the unlucky lad was patched up in the dressing room. The Campbellford lads poured rubber at him from all angles, but he continued to kick out most of the shots.

Bancroft Triumphs

BANCROFT, Feb. 13—(ENS)—Bancroft Pontiacs took undisputed possession of first place in the Hastings - Addington Hockey League when they defeated Tweed by a score of 7 to 4 in North Hastings arena Monday night.

With one game to play the Pontiacs have a six-point lead over Madoc. Tamworth occupies third spot and this defeat places Tweed in the cellar.

After a slow start the locals started to click in the second period and were flying high in the third. Tweed ran in the first three goals on some nice work by Robson and McLaughlin but Pontiacs had the finishing power when they flashed the red light three times in the final half of the third.

Gee McAlpine and Jim Bruce came into the limelight in the final period when they made end-to-end rushes that ended in goals from the sticks of Elwood Brough and Doug Maxwell.

At the last moment Milt McGhea, sub-goaltender for Pontiacs, went in the net for Tweed. The visitors had not been able to secure a replacement for Stan Courneyea who suffered a groin injury in a recent game. Playing his first game of the year, Milt deserved a huge orchid for his performance.

Pontiac's goals were by E. Brough (3), Delyea, Ted Maxwell, Bruce and Doug Maxwell, while Robson with a pair and Rivers and McLaughlin with singles accounted for Tweed's goals.

Tweed—Goal, McGhee; defence, Cotton, Graham, centre, Robson; wings, Cole, Sherry; alternates, Rivers, McLaughlin, Rupert, Mitchell, Mumby, Reid, Curry.

Manager-coach, Cassidy.

Bancroft Pontiacs—Goal, Young; defence, McAlpine, Stringer; centre, E. Brough; wings, N. Brough, Delyea; alternates, Stuckey, Green, Hogarth, Hattin, Dugald, Ted Maxwell, D. Maxwell, G. Maxwell.

Referee, Watson of Bancroft; linesman, Fisher of Tweed.

N. Cavan Ratepayers Oppose School Area

MILLBROOK, Feb. 13 (ENS)—Opposition to remaining in the Peterborough suburban high school area is still present in North Cavan, Herbert Morton told Cavan township council Friday.

He said that many of the residents of that district were willing to join the Durham area. He was advised to get information from Allan Brown, secretary of the Peterborough area, on the contract with the board, and the bus contract.

An increase in the printing contract was granted of $225 yearly. Tax collector A. V. Thorn reported $4,140.24 had been collected in January on 1951 taxes. The clerk was ordered to advertise for tenders for crushing 6,000 yards of gravel for township roads.

Accounts totalling more than $2,052 were ordered paid. Major items included $1,866.30 for road vouchers, and $40 for relief.

Wild Tussle

A Saturday game at the Point saw Apsley take a wild tilt 4-3 over the homesters as feelings ran high. Bert Howden barged through for the first one for Apsley, and Doug Heard got another later, but it was called offside. B. Houle got Apsley's second one and the home crew swarmed around the visitor's net then for a time. When Howden and J. Church mixed it, a free-for-all nearly broke out, Howden going off for high-sticking. He got his second goal later and J. Darling netted one to make it 3-1. C. Russell scored then but J. Murray's screened shot settled it. These teams tangle again Saturday in Young's Point.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Randy Turpin, British middleweight champion, made an unimpressive return to the ring Tuesday night in London as he defeated Alex Burton, who was forced to quit at the end of the seventh round with a badly cut left eye.

Each weighed 163 pounds.

Turpin, who had not fought since losing his world crown to Sugar Ray Robinson in New York last September, was slow and wild. In fact, the entire bout was a slow waltz which brought rhythmic handclaps from the capacity crowd of 10,600 at Harringay Arena.

The police of Grey County are going to tangle with the police of Bruce county tonight in Owen Sound, in the second annual charity exhibition hockey game of the Grey and Bruce Police Association. Last year the Bruce policemen scored a one-goal victory but the Greys are confident this year because of the re-instatement of Alex Hawrys of the R.C.M.P. last year, it is reported, he was barred because he insisted on wearing spurs.

The widowed Queen Mother in London has scratched her steeplechaser Devon Loch from all races in which the six-year-old horse had been entered.

Alex MacGregor, who has been secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Soccer Association since it was revived three years ago, now is serving his last term. He announced Tuesday night in Toronto that he will not be a candidate for re-election at the annual meeting of the association Saturday.

Rhoda Wurtele Eaves of Montreal Tuesday drew the honor of being the first racer of the 1952 Olympic winter games in Oslo. She drew start No. 1 in the women's giant slalom, opening event of the games Thursday. But it was a doubtful honor. Few skiers like to break the trail on a slalom run.

Counterpoint, the "horse of the year" in 1951, Tuesday in Arcadia, Calif., was declared out of racing for an indefinite period because of injuries received in the running of the Santa Anita Maturity Feb. 2.

Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League will call up Ray Ross, high-scoring centre for the Guelph Biltmores of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League. The management of the Guelph club was notified on Tuesday of the impending move. Ross is Cleveland property.

Canada Will Build Jets To Boost Forces For NATO

OTTAWA, Feb. 14. (CP)—Canada is going to produce F-86 Sabre jet fighters in quantity to help build up the air forces of Gen. Eisenhower's western defence bulwark. An announcement made simultaneously here and in Washington and London Wednesday night, said Canada has joined with the United States and Britain in a tri-country agreement to build, equip and man "squadrons" of this first-line operational jet fighter. The planes will be built at the Canadair, Limited, plant at Montreal, with Canada making the air frames. The engines and other equipment, such as radio, will be supplied by the United States and the fighters will be turned over to the R.A.F. which will man them to "strengthen the North Atlantic Treaty force."

The new arrangement will not interfere with production by Canadair of several hundred Sabres now being produced for the R.C.A.F. to equip squadrons Canada has promised to send to Europe.

Form Squadrons

The announcement did not indicate when production would begin but said the number would run into "some hundreds." The planes will go to form R.A.F. "squadrons." A modern fighter squadron consists of about 20 planes.

Just what this new development will mean in dollar value as a Canadian contribution to European defence was not indicated. Canada's aid-to-Europe program —including arms shipments abroad and air training in this country—has run to $325,000,000 in the last two fiscal years.

External Affairs Minister Pearson recently said it would be upped and there are reports it will touch $220,000,000 in the next fiscal year, in addition to Canadian expense for the building of airfields and communications in Europe.

The tri-country arrangement to produce Sabres results from discussions between ministers and service heads of the three countries.

St. Laurent Shifts Rinfret To Quebec Bench

OTTAWA, Feb. 14 (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent in a slight shuffle of his cabinet Wednesday replaced his postmaster-general with a 48-year-old Liberal member of parliament.

Postmaster-General Rinfret, 46-year-old Montreal lawyer, goes to the Quebec Court of Queen's Bench. Replacing him is Alcide Cote, member for the Quebec constituency of St. Jean-Iberville-Napierville.

Mr. Cote was sworn into his new post Wednesday.

The prime minister also announced the appointment of John H. Dickey, Liberal member for Halifax, as parliamentary assistant to Production Minister Howe. The post was vacated last week by George McIlraith, Liberal member for Ottawa West, who remains as Mr. Howe's parliamentary assistant in the minister's trade portolio.

Ends Speculation

The appointment of Mr. Rinfret to the Quebec bench confirms speculation which has been prevalent for several weeks. Mr. Rinfret first entered the Commons in 1945 and has been postmaster-general since August, 1949. He is a son of Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret of the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. Cote, a lawyer, was born at St. Johns, Que., in 1903 and is unmarried. He is a direct descendant of Jean Cote, one of the first settlers of Canada.

Mr. Cote was a representative and delegate of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities at the meeting of the International Union of Cities in the Hague, the Netherlands, in 1948. He served as mayor of St. Johns from 1945 to 1949.

In preparation for the parliamentary opening Feb. 28, the prime minister also announced that E. Q. George, Liberal member for Westmorland, will move the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. The address will be seconded by Andre Gauthier, Liberal member for Lac St. Jean.

Red Soldiers Take Initiative

SEOUL, Korea, Feb. 14 (AP).—Communist troops jabbed at advance Allied positions all across Korea today.

Stormy skies restricted the air war. But F-86 Sabre jets flying cover for fighter-bombers damaged one of 30 Communist jets which tried to break through the protective screen.

On the ground, pre-dawn Red attacks knocked Allied infantrymen out of two positions northwest of Yonchon on the western front and one near the Mundung valley in the east. All three were recaptured without trouble, the Eighth Army reported.

East of the Mundung valley the Reds hurled 700 rounds of mortar and artillery fire at a U.N. division in the 24 hours before dawn.

The Eighth Army said the Reds made nearly a dozen other small probes across the front.

The North Korean war communique, broadcast by the Pyongyang radio, said Red shore batteries on the west coast sank two allied warships offshore. There was no Allied confirmation.

May Abandon Search For Nursing Sister

MONTREAL, Feb. 14 (CP) — Montreal police today said they have all but given up their search for Nursing Sister Lieut. Elizabeth Sansom, missing from her post at a Kingston military hospital since Christmas.

Police said they have found "absolutely no trace" of her and can only assume now that she deliberately disappeared.

Search for Lieut. Sansom who was to have spent the holiday at Sherbrooke, centred in Montreal when it was disclosed she had cashed a cheque here on her personal bank account on Dec. 27.

Lieut. Sansom is the niece of Lt.-Gen. E. W. B. Sansom. Her parents live in Stanley, N.B.

Gracie Fields, Fiance Patch Up Quarrel

CAPRI, Italy, Feb. 14 (AP). — Gracie Fields, British film and stage star, chose St. Valentine's Day to flee this island and throw at least a temporary disruption into her plans to marry Capri's radio repairman.

But the 54-year-old comedienne told a friend by telephone from Naples that her fiancee, 48-year-old Boris Alberovich, had joined her there after a bitter quarrel.

"I decided to cancel the marriage"—which originally was set for yesterday, Gracie told her friend. But she and Boris talked it over again in Naples today.

"We changed our minds and decided to go away together for awhile," she added. "Maybe a good rest on the Riviera will do us good."

Boris, Romanian-born technician, also spoke to the friend and and said he was "tired to death" of the publicity which had attended the romance.

Pays Respects

LONDON, Feb. 14 (CP)—Canada's external affairs minister, L. B. Pearson, called at Buckingham Palace today and paid his respects to the Queen. He was accompanied by the Canadian high commissioner, L. Dana Wilgress. It was the first time Pearson had seen Elizabeth since he visited the Palace last summer to invite her and the Duke of Edinburgh to visit Canada.

Police Find Precipitates Under Steps

One of Trio Worked Inside Mine, Toboggan Found

TIMMINS, Feb. 14. (CP)—Three Timmins youths were arrested late Wednesday and early today and charged with armed robbery in connnection with the theft Tuesday of gold precipitates from the nearby Aunor Gold Mines.

Police recovered $30,000 in gold precipitates under the back step of an unidentified Timmins home.

In police custody are Calvan Craik, 21, an employee of the company, Kenneth Eastman, 19, a grocery store clerk, and Reuben Utriainen, 20, a hardware store clerk.

Craik, one of three men seized and bound by the thugs, was picked up as he worked at the mine early today. Police said he was the inside man in the theft, which Mine Manager R. E. Findlay had described as an "inside job from the word go." The other youths were arrested shortly before midnight.

Police said the toboggan used to haul the loot one-quarter mile from the mill, where the precipitates were taken from 10 canvas sacks, was found outside the mine mill. Several locks knocked off the precipitation press also were found under the porch steps, police said.

Fourth Robbery

Wearing hoods of black stockings and brown overalls, the bandits committed the fourth major robbery in this gold-rich Porcupine area since June, 1950, shortly before 4 a.m. Tuesday.

The bandits, armed and working with inside knowledge of the operations of the mine, tied and gagged him inside a 55-foot-long tunnel and left him there. They then entered the mill through the tunnel and also tied up Antony Ferri, another mill worker. Craik told police they had left him tied up.

The precipitates were stuffed in long cotton bags, carried through a window and loaded on a toboggan. The loot was dragged to an awaiting getaway car.

Inspector Harold Graham of the provincial police flew to Timmins Wednesday to investigate the theft and called in Det. Sgt. Gordon Peacock of the Timmins police, who discovered the precipitates.

Propeller Trouble Blamed For Crash

ELIZABETH, N.J., Feb. 14 (AP) —The Civil Aeronautics Board today indicated that trouble in the right propellers caused the crash of the National Airlines plane here Monday that took 32 lives. The announcement was made at a press conference called by the C.A.B. Joseph O. Fluet, chief investigator, said the stricken plane "suffered loss of power on the right side which could have caused a yaw to the right and loss of flying speed."

Prince Charles Still Asks Daily For Grandfather

LONDON, Feb. 14 (Reuters)—"Where is Grandpa?"

This plaintive question is asked almost every day by Prince Charles. And the reply, from his mother or father, is always:

"He has gone to God and is very happy."

The young Prince remains puzzled, however. The nursery routine for him and his sister, Princess Anne, has remained unchanged since the death of the King last week and all Charles knows is that he no longer sees his grandfather.

Each morning the Prince and 18-month-old Princess play happily in the nursery of Clarence House. Later there is an outing in a nearby park with their nurse.

Friday, the day the King is buried, the pattern will be the same. Charles will not realize that his grandfather is dead and that his mother now is Queen. He will not attend the funeral.

Play In Nursery

He and Princess Anne will probably spend the morning indoors in their nursery. They are accustomed to their parents going away, particularly since Elizabeth and Philip went on their six-week tour of Canada.

Clarence House employees try to behave normally and cheerfully so that unnecessary sorrow will not touch the children.

But the death of King George will mean a change for them.

The Queen is expected to move from Clarence House into Buckingham Palace some time before the coronation. Neither date is known.

Daily routine of her children is not likely to be changed until they have settled into new nurseries in Buckingham Palace.

The move into the palace will mean that even the children's afternoon car drives will become much more formal affairs than they were at Clarence House.

There always are people watching and waiting outside the palace, even when the Royal family is not in residence. So there will not be as much chance for privacy.

When he starts his schooling Charles may go to Eton, famous public school, followed by Oxford University and later the navy.

Takes 3 Months To Trap Gift For Queen

Five Young Trumpeter Swans Delivered In Britain Two Days Ago

OTTAWA, Feb. 14 (CP). — The Resources Department told today how it waited three months to trap the five young trumpeter swans delivered to Queen Elizabeth two days ago as a gift from the Department and the British Columbia Government.

The formal presentation was made in Charlottetown last October by Resources Minister Winters when the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh were completing their Canadian tour.

Then the department set out to trap the swans. Early in November R. H. Mackay and D. A. Munro of the Canadian Wildlife Service flew to Lonesome Lake, in the almost inaccessible wilderness region of British Columbia, where about 100 trumpeter swans winter each year in a protected area.

They built a huge trap of netting and the service's swan guardian, Ralph Edwards, and his daughter, Trudy, baited it regularly with grain. By the end of January, the swans had become accustomed to the trap and would enter it regularly for food.

The Wildlife officers returned to the lake and the trap was sprung Feb. 8 and the five young swans were taken. They were crated and flown to England, arriving there Feb. 12.

The swans now are established on the grounds of the Severn Wildfowl Trust, in the Severn estuary in Gloucestershire about 100 miles from London.

Papers Boosting Pearson For NATO Secretaryship

LONDON, Feb. 14. (CP)—The Evening Standard today joined in widespread speculation that L. B. Pearson, Canada's external affairs minister, may be appointed secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The Standard, in its gossip column, said Pearson is regarded as a favorite among two men mentioned for the job. The other is Sir Oliver Franks, Britain's ambassador to Washington.

Ottawa sources say Pearson is not likely to take the job even if it is offered to him. It would require that he leave the Canadian Cabinet—something they say he is unwilling to do. It also would mean that he could not run for president of the United Nations' general assembly — a job he is willing to take.

At his London hotel, Pearson learned of the Standard's tip with some surprise. He said he did not think he had better comment.

Knows Nothing

The original report that Sir Oliver and Pearson were being considered for the post, to be created under a revamped N.A.T.O. setup, brought comment from Washington that Franks knows nothing of the proposal either through official or unofficial channels.

The office of secretary-general is expected to be created at next week's North Atlantic council meeting in Lisbon. So far N.A.T.O. has got along without one.

Report Progress In Ford Talks

WINDSOR, Feb. 14 — (CP) — Faces are brighter in this strike-threatened automotive city than at any other time since a series of wage contract talks between the Ford Motor Company of Canada and the United Automobile workers (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) broke down Monday in Toronto.

The discussions were resumed Wednesday after Labor Minister Daley came from Toronto to get the parties together again. When the conferences were adjourned Wednesday night until this afternoon, Mr. Daley gave the word that brought hope to Windsor citizens:

"Progress has been made."

Today's program calls for union and management delegates to confer in separate groups during the morning in an effort to work towards agreement on the dispute that started last March.

East Germany Asks Four-Power Treaty

BERLIN, Feb. 14—(Reuters)—Prime Minister Otto Grotewohl of East Germany today called for a four-power peace treaty for Germany and promised a non-remilitarization in his Communist half of the country.

After sending letters to the four occupation powers demanding a treaty, he sumoned a press conference to announce that East Germany does not intend to rearm.

Asked who would sign a treaty on the German side, he said: "Either an all-German government specialy formed for the purpose or a government that is willing to do so."

The three Western commandants here received identical letters from Grotewohl declaring that a peace pact is a necessary step towards uniting Germany.

May Change Bosses

LONDON, Feb. 14 (AP)—Britain's top jet engine expert, Air Commodore Sir Frank Whittle, said today he may transfer his activities to the United States because he is dissatisfied with British policies on jet development. He told an interviewer that he had been asked by a large U.S. jet company to discuss a job in America.

New Lease On Life

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 14. (CP) — Within the half-quarter century the average life span will become 100 to 120 years, a noted doctor predicted Wednesday night. "Medical science has given us a 25-year longer life in the past 50 years," said Dr. Edward Bortz, past president of the American Medical Association, in an address here. "They're going to give us 25 years more in the next 50 years."

Reds Present New POW Plan

MUNSAN, Korea, Feb. 14 (AP) — Communist truce negotiators presented a new prisoner-exchange plan today incorporating some Allied ideas but clinging to their own demand for forced repatriation.

The Allies repeatedly have said they won't turn a single prisoner back to the Reds against his will.

The Communists have another new plan. It was drafted for the final clause of a Korean armistice. It will be unveiled Saturday before a full session of truce negotiators.

Col. George Hickman said he had not had time to read carefully the nine-point Red prisoner-exchange plan, but on several points the Communists had "come to our own point of view."

While holding out against voluntary repatriation the Communists did agree to let Red Cross teams operate in prisoner-of-war camps after an armistice is signed.

Egypt Prepares Defence Plan

CAIRO, Feb. 14 (Reuters). — Prime Minister Aly Maher was reported today to be preparing a special defence plan to counter the four-power proposal for a Middle East command.

The independent newspaper Al Ahram said Maher had delegate Mahmoud Fawzi Bey, leader of Egypt's delegation to the United Nations, make a report on the defence pacts between the U.S. and Far East countries, the Atlantic Pact and the Latin-American treaties.

Maher is believed to consider that the Suez Canal defence should be taken out of his present "limited" sphere and brought within the U.N. plans for maintenance of world peace.

British monopoly of the canal's defence has been one of the main causes of the current Anglo-Egyptian crisis.

8 Families Homeless In Apartment Blaze

GATINEAU POINT, Que., Feb. 14 (CP)—Eight families, including 40 children, were made homeless today by a fire which destroyed an old theatre which had been converted into small apartments.

Gatineau Point firemen were asisted by fire-fighting units from nearby Hull, Que. Damage was estimated at more than $125,000. The fire started fro man overheated stovepipe.

Neighbors helped some of the residents to remove their belongings. Women and children were given temporary shelter with families in the neighborhood.

Tyndall Wins Plowing Cup In Irish Match

ARMAGH, Ireland, Feb. 14 — (Reuters)—Norman Tyndall, Ontario's champion tractor plowman from Richmond Hill, Wednesday won the cup for the best performance by an overseas contestant in the international plowing championships here.

A Scot, John Reid of Mechars, Wigtonshire, was declared world's champion horse plowman. An Irishman, T. H. Humphries of Danaghadee, took the tractor plowing title.

With Tyndall, but entered in the horse plowing event, was Eugene Timbers, 18, Canada's horse plowing champion. The Milliken, Ont., boy is the youngest plowman ever to compete outside Canada. In six years five of his family have plowed in international matches.

Dogged By Ill Luck

The two Canadians were kept from the major awards by ill luck which dogged them after snow delayed their arrival until they were a half hour late for the start.

Officials gave them extra time to finish and Tyndall was on the top line until forced to plow through stones big enough to be called boulders. His skill brought him out in good order and he might have taken the day if he could have avoided a dead furrow.

And it was skilfull work coupled with the bad luck which led to Timbers' downfall. He started so expertly that a crowd of the 10,000 flocked to watch him.

That was his undoing. His team, unused to contest work, took fright and became unmanageable.

6 Cans Of Gas Lost In Toronto

TORONTO, Feb. 14—(CP)—Six cans of methyl bromide gas — powerful enough to kill anyone nearby when they are opened — are lost somewhere in Toronto.

The odorless, tasteless, invisible gas is hermetically sealed in six orange-labelled cans about the size of soup tins and bearing the legend "Duo Fume M-2" as well as the skull and crossbones.

The cans have been missing for two days from the Maple Leaf Milling Company. Police arrested two juveniles Wednesday and charged them with breaking into the plant Tuesday. The two denied any knowledge of the gas cans.

Company officials re-checked their stocks but still haven't been able to find the missing cans.

Hotel Bursting At Seams As Royal Guests Arrive

LONDON, Feb. 14 (Reuters)—Claridge's Hotel, founded more than 100 years ago by a retired butler and his housekeeper wife, is packed with the world's kings and queens and aristocracy, here for the funeral of the King.

Europe's few remaining monarchs nod to each other as they walk down the thick-carpeted corridors. Princes and princesses from the ends of the earth chat over coffee.

Visiting royalty has booked nearly 50 rooms in the hotel, in London's exclusive Mayfair district.

First to arrive were 70-year-old King Gustav Adolf and Queen Louise of Sweden. King Haakon, 80, of Norway, hurried over from Buckingham Palace Wednesday to greet them.

Haakon, an erect six-footer, is the only monarch staying with the British Royal family. They call him "Uncle Charlie."

Claridge's is a sombre place this week dispite its glittering clientele. Its orchestra is silent.

As each monarch arrives his flag is unfurled above the roof. By tonight the flags of 16 countries will be fluttering at half-staff.

A corps of detectives has been brought in to guard the visitors.

King Paul of Greece, a great-grandson of Queen Victoria, arrived Wednesday after being greeted at one of London's main line stations by the Duke of Edinburgh.

The Count of Barcelona has a suite at the hotel. He will be joined later by the Duke of Segovia, Prince Ernst August of Hanover, Prince Braganza of Portugal and Prince and Princess Wan Waithayakon of Thailand.

Members of the British Royal family and British diplomats are working an 18-hour day, rushing to air and sea port to greet the arriving monarchs and heads of state.

The Duke of Edinburgh was out again at London airport today to meet President Vincent Auriol of France.

Windsor Requests Permission Stand Honor Guard

LONDON, Feb. 14. (CP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury Britain's foremost Anglican Churchman, bowed in prayer beside the closed coffin of the King today as people by the thousands filed silently past. This was the third day of the King's lying-in-state in Westminster Hall. The body will be lifted on a gun carriage Friday and taken by train to Windsor, burial place of kings. Sorrowing Britons continued to pay their respects in such numbers that palace officials decided not to shut the great iron-strapped doors of the nine-century-old hall until 6 a.m. Friday.

This is only 3½ hours before the ceremonial cortege starts for Paddington Station amid the dirges of massed bands and artillery salutes of the state funeral. Originally, it was planned to close the doors at 10 tonight.

Before that hour, it was reported without confirmation that the Duke of Windsor asked to be allowed to stand a watch at the candle-lighted bier, as he and his three brothers did 16 years ago for their father, King George V.

The Duke, who arrived from New York Wednesday, was said to have besought Queen Elizabeth II for Royal permission to stand beside the body of the brother to whom he relinquished the throne.

Funeral Order

As the greying Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, bowed for a few minutes in front of the purple-draped catafalque and then turned away through the famed star chamber door, palace officials put their seal to the final order of the funeral march.

The young Queen, her mother, and her sister, Princess Margaret, and the King's sister, the Princess Royal, will ride in a carriage close behind the body.

Then on foot and abreast will follow the four Royal Dukes: Windsor who was once Edward VIII; Gloucester, the King's other living brother; Edinburgh, the Queen's husband; and 16-year-old Kent, nephew of the King.

A bearer party of the Brigade of Guards will lift the coffin from its catafalque to the gun carriage. Sailors of the Royal Navy will pull the carriage through the streets with the glittering state crown, orb and sceptre and the King's insignia of the Order of the Garter laid on top.

Coffin Closed

Throughout the lying-in-state and the services at Windsor the coffin is kept closed, as is traditional at the funerals of Kings.

Bands of the R.A.F. and Welsh Guards will lead the procession, followed by 10,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen of Britain and the Commonwealth countries.

Diplomats will follow the troops. Included will be representatives of Russia, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia and Poland from behind the Iron Curtain.

Five crowned heads of Europe, and the chiefs-of-state and their representatives from dozens of countries will follow the Royal Family.

The King's aides-de-camp, pipers, household officials and the monarch's master of the horse will immediately precede the gun carriage. Equerries, flanked by colorful Yeomen of the Guard, will walk close beside it.

Premier Orders France Approve German Army

PARIS, Feb. 14 (AP). — Premier Edgar Faure demanded early today that the French National Assembly approve a six-country European army with Germans in it or get a new government.

The Premier whose government has held office for only four weeks designated the vote on the international army plan as a ballot of confidence—one in which a defeat would cause the cabinet's resignation.

But as a sop to French fears of German re-armament, he endorsed an amendment to the motion calling on the United States and Britain—neither of which will be members of the projected European army—to make sure Germany doesn't pull her troops out and set up an independent army.

France Has Fears

The motion also voiced once again French opposition to reconstruction of either a German national army or a German general staff. It said France wants the Germans rearmed as members of a European army or not at all. The vote on the motion will not be held until the coming weekend.

Faure won an early victory Wednesday night from the Assembly which defeated by a vote of 384 to 240 a Socialist motion to delay a decision on formation of a European army until the United Nations disarmament commission makes its first report in June.

Cupid Visits 2 Chimpanzees

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 14 — (AP)—A lot of people gathered Wednesday for a sneak preview of Valentine's Day put on by a couple of two-year-olds. And the youngsters wowed 'em with their cute bits of love-making.

The amorous youngsters were chimpanzees, just received from West Africa. Zoo superintendent Ed Johnson decided the hitherto unacquainted youngsters should get together before they grow old surly and combative.

The male was pushed protesting into the female's cage. They took one look at each other and gave glad little cries, a quick hug or two, kisses and then retired to the corner to hold hands just like grownups.

Johnson says it will be five or six years before they reach family-raising age. Right now it's pre-adolescent love.

5 Guards Dismissed At Ellis Island

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (AP) — Five Ellis Island guards have been dismissed, one has resigned and 26 others face possible reprimand, suspension or dismissal on charges of charging aliens for special privileges.

The guards are charged with demanding fees for letting island inmates go off limits to use telephones; permitting gambling games to be run in recreation rooms; taking aliens to expensive restaurants and letting the internees pay for all food and drinks.

Farmer Gets Shock Sees Own Cattle Sold

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 14 (CP)—Elo Fleming, Hungerford township farmer, visited the Belleville livestock auction Tuesday night. He stared in disbelief when he saw a yearling heifer being sold in the ring. He thought the heifer was at home in his barn.

Elo drove home and discovered that six yearlings were missing.

Police rounded up four alleged cattle-rustlers early Wednesday.

Trade Loss $20,000,000 For Ontario

U.K. Austerity Plan Makes Farmers Feel Pinch Badly

OTTAWA, Feb. 14. (CP)—Ontario farmers may feel the pinch of Britain's financial crisis with reports that the United Kingdom will halt purchases of Canadian cheddar cheese and trim tobacco buying by 75 per cent this year.

Both agricultural products were purchased largely from Ontario growers last year. The drop in value may run as high as $20,000,000 in 1952.

Canadian trade officials had pointed out earlier that Britain's latest import slashes to help solve financial troubles may lead to cuts in tobacco buying, but there had been hope that the cheese market would not be touched.

However, indications now are that the U.K. will not renew her 1951 contracts with Ontario cheese producers. Last year, the U.K. obtained about 25,000,000 pounds at a price of more than $7,500,000.

Gloomy Prospects

Elimination of the U.K. market will leave cheese producers with gloomy export prospects and probably may result either in curtailment of production or lowering of prices to attract greater trade in the domestic market.

The Ontario tobacco industry, already facing a domestic market trimmed by last year's jump in cigarette prices, has been informed that Britain plans to reduce flue-cured tobacco purchases by 75 per cent in 1952, to 8,500,000 pounds from 35,000,000 pounds last year.

The dollar value may be cut to about $4,500,000 from about $18,000,000. Part of Britain's purchases last year went into storage.

These items are considered marginal by U.K. officials, but the bulk of Canada's exports by Britain — wheat, metals, pulpwood and newsprint—will not be reduced.

So-Ed Groups Enjoy Musical Program

So-Ed Music Appreciation Night Wednesday featured a program of varied musical entertainment at George St. United Church.

Four groups of Peterborough artists presented not only a variety of selection in their program, but also a variety of mediums.

Starting off was the Kawartha Four—a barber shop quartet consisting of Doug Montgomery, lead; Phil Chevalier, tenor; George Mackay, baritone; Harold Colson, bass. This group sang two well-harmonized medleys. The first was Wait 'Till the Sun Shines Nelly, and The Good Old Summer Time, and the second, Daisy, and Annie Rodney.

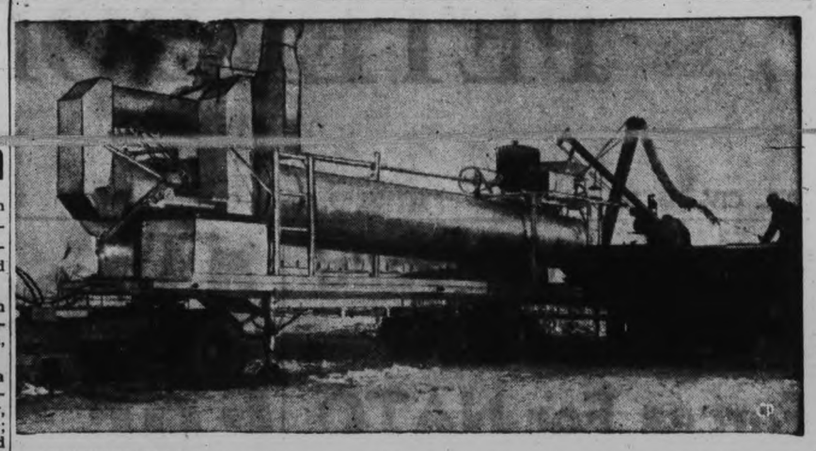
The Searles Trio, Cecil Searles, violinist, Gabriel Tatrallyay, celloist and Olive Searles, pianist, with the playing of Beethoven's impressive Ghost Trio, Opus 7, No. 1 gave an enjoyable presentation of chamber music.

The beautiful, Now Jesus Christ, The Son of God, from Bach's Easter Cantata in a special two-piano arrangement was played in their usual competent manner by the duo-piano team, Mrs. Gwen Craw and Charles Allen. Their second selection was the lightly brilliant, Minuet A L'Antico by Seeboeck and they turned to the modern popular ballad, Deep Purple, by De Rose and arranged by Savine for their third number.

The program came to a close with four representatives from the C.G.E. Pipe Band. The four pipers, Alec Milne, pipe major; Angus Munro, pipe sergeant; Ed Young and Jim Wilson presented a lively set consisting of three parts, a march, a strathspey and a reel.

Master of ceremonies was Bill Sawyer.

Following the concert the audience broke up to attend the interest and hobby groups at the Y.M.C.A.



DRYING GRAIN—Saskatchewan, with an estimated 60,000,000 bushels of damp grain on its farms, has adopted the use of grain driers. Agriculture Minister I. C. Nollet has announced United States grain-drying outfits have been offered transport assistance of 30 cents a mile for one-way travel to help in the drying program. One of these machines, worth about $12,000 and purchased in South Dakota, is shown at work near Saskatoon, handling about 2,500 bushels a day.

Would License Social Workers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Licensing of social workers "to protect the public against quacks," has been urged by Joy Maines, national secretary of the Canadian Association of social workers.

She said the plan is being studied in Association chapters in British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Quebec. It was hoped that registered workers will be able to move from province to province, although licensing will probably be on the provincial level.

Next year only graduate social workers will be allowed in the Association. At present graduates and workers with five years experience are permitted to join.

Miss Main said the serious shortage of social workers in Canada is due to absence of a pension scheme and low salaries.

There are about 50 per cent more men in social service work now than before the war and she said there would be more if salaries were higher.

Trace Purchase Cleaning Fluid In Murder Case

HULL, Que., Feb. 14 (CP). — A cleaning plant employee testified today that Rheal Leo Bertrand, charged with the murder of his wife last Nov. 10, obtained a quantity of cleaning fluid from the plant on the morning Mrs. Bertrand was burned to death.

Lucien Decare, who worked at the plant with Bertrand, said the accused said he wanted some varsol to clean paint brushes. He had helped himself to some used varsol kept at the rear of the plant.

Decare said Bertrand also had discussed that morning the hunting trip he planned to Lac Ste. Marie, 65 miles north of here, where Mrs. Bertrand died in the flaming ruins of a lonely hunting cabin.

The crown is attempting to prove that varsol, not gasoline, started the fire in the hunting cabin. Bertrand has claimed his wife set the fire while trying to light a gasoline lamp.

Decare testified that two five-gallon cans which stood in the court room as crown exhibits and which were found in the ruins of the cabin were "similar" to two cans he had seen last September in the basement of Bertrand's house.

He said he went again to Bertrand's house in November and saw only one can there.

Windsor Requests

Immediately behind will come the household cavalry warrant officer carrying the King's scarlet, gold and blue personal standard.

Just ahead of the aides-de-camp will be chaplains and high officers of the armed forces, including three former chiefs of the imperial general staff, Viscounts Ironside, Alanbrooke and Montgomery, and Admirals of the Fleet Lord Tovey, the Earl of Cork and Orery, (the former William Henry Dudley Boyle) Lord Chatfield and Sir Charles M. Forbes.

No Definite Plans

Sources close to Queen Elizabeth indicated there were no definite plans as yet for the Duke of Windsor and the other royal dukes to mount guard together at the catafalque. It is unlikely that any such plans would be announced beforehand.

Windsor was reported to have asked his mother, Queen Mary, for permission to stand guard beside the coffin. She was reported to have sent him to the Queen for royal permission.

If Elizabeth approves, the Duke —first former King to attend the funeral of his successor—would stand a ceremonial 20-minute guard alongside the coffin later today with his only remaining brother, the Duke of Gloucester, and the Duke of Edinburgh.

As final preparations were made for the funeral of the King, 25,000 persons patiently lined up in cold and slush outside Westminster Hall.

50,000 Waiting

By 10 a.m. today the number of persons waiting to make their last bow to the late King had grown to 50,000.

Many had waited since 3:30 a.m. when the doors of the hall were closed after Wednesday's procession of homage which saw 108,692 pass by the royal catafalque. Since the lying-in-state started Tuesday 185,092 have paid tribute.

Early morning trains into the city, from the suburbs and the provinces were packed to suffocation as people travelled in to see the King's bier and watch Friday's state funeral.

Meantime, the world's remaining monarchs, heads of state and aristocracy arrived at London's international airport and coastal sea ports.

Big Assembly

By tonight London will house the biggest assembly of foreign royalty to gather in one city since before the Second World War. There will be seven monarchs with their queens and consorts and 17 princes and princesses.

Prime ministers, presidents, foreign ministers and diplomats are crowding the city's hotels.

Archbishop Paolo Groppe, representing the Pope, arrived at Harwich channel port today on the same boat as Ole Kraft, Danish foreign minister.

The first of the day's arrivals at London airport was Maj.-Gen. Mahrbib Shamsker, personal representative of King Tribhuvan who rules the tiny Himalayan monarchy of Nepal.

Back in the procession of mourners an old man and woman, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Gilbert, led the file past the purple-draped catafalque. They got up at 2 a.m. to walk four miles to Westminster Hall.

Sidney Hilton and his two daughters, Patricia, 6, and Brenda, 7, waited seven hours "because the King was good to us." Hilton said two years ago when he was without a home he wrote to the King. Within a week he had a house.

A crippled woman, both legs in irons, was carried past the coffin.

Mrs. Mary Davies, 79, laid a small bunch of flowers beside the catafalque. "I shall never forget when the King came to visit me when I was bombed out," she said.

At one stage Wednesday night the line wound for three miles along the banks of the Thames River, across a bridge and far along the opposite bank. It could take anything up to seven hours to reach the top of the line for the brief walk past the closed coffin.

At Windsor, a short distance west of London, the mile-long route from the little railway station to Windsor Castle was being draped in the black and royal purple of mourning.

The boarded windows showed shopkeepers remembered the crowds who were pushed through the glass during the funeral of George V in 1936.

Window space along the procession route was being sold at prices from one guinea to more than five guineas.

Inside St. George's chapel in the castle—where the burial will take place—special broadcasting and television circuits were installed to carry descriptions of the last procession.

Rehearse Ceremony

The funeral ceremony was painstakingly rehearsed to avoid the 1½ hour delays that occurred during the funeral of George V.

The Duke of Windsor paid homage to his dead brother Wednesday night. He went to the bier with his aged mother and his sister, Mary, the Princess Royal. The twin lines of public mourners were halted.

Queen Mary, wearing deep mourning and carrying a tight-rolled umbrella, advanced slowly toward the bier of her son, the third of her five sons to die before her.

A pace behind her came the Duke. The Queen grandmother stopped, and as her gaze passed to the coffin her lips moved silently, perhaps in prayer. She touched a handkerchief to her eyes.

Windsor stepped forward and took his mother's arm for a moment.

Then he dropped to one knee near the catafalque and put his head down upon his right hand. A minute later he arose.

But the Queen grandmother, her eldest son and her daughter stood silently for another moment, then Windsor again sank slowly to his left knee and bowed his head. After several minutes he again arose, and as the three family mourners reached the stone archway of departure, they turned for one more look at the coffin.

Then the slow file of mourners began again their shuffle past the coffin.

Prices Slip Steadily On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Feb. 14 (CP). — Prices slipped steadily today in early afternoon market dealings as support weakened.

A wide list of western oils, base metals and penny golds attracted speculative interest. Industrial dealings were mainly in leading issues as volume for the first three hours reached 1,540,000 shares.

Papers, foods, liquors, textiles, manufacturing companies and miscellaneous issues led industrials lower with a wide majority of fractional declines. Utilities, steels, and banks weakened steadily while only agricultures posted a majority of gains.

Mrs. D. Vansickle Widely Mourned

HAVELOCK, Feb. 14—(ENS)—The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Van Sickle, widow of the late David Van Sickle, was held on Saturday and was largely attended. The Rev. R. G. Newman of Havelock United Church, conducted the service, which was at the family residence where she had lived for 47 years.

Burial was in Maple Grave cemetery. The pallbearers were: William Copp, Carman Coon, James Wilde, Harold and Floyd Hamilton and Gordon Miles. The flower bearers were James and William Laing and Ralph Hamilton.

Mrs. Van Sickle was in her 84th year and was born in Madoc, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Griffin. She was widely known, was a kind and loving mother, a good neighbor and a friend to all. She was a member of Havelock United church. It is quite a coincidence that three important events in her life fell on dates which were important ones in the history of the nation. She was married on May 24, 1887 (Queen Victoria's birthday). She celebrated her 50th wedding anniversary on the day King George VI was crowned and she died the same day that he did.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. R. Richards (Edythe), Mrs. Ernest Williams (Lena), and Mrs. Ross Brown (Grace), of Havelock; one sister, Mrs. A. Larsen of New York city; three grandchildren, Mrs. Harry Buchanan of Toronto, Crofton Richards of Omemee, and Maurice Williams of Hamilton. There are also five great grandchildren.

Those attending the funeral from out of town were: Mrs. Earl Webb, Mrs. H. Sexsmith and Mrs. E. Hartwick of Smith Falls; Mr. and Mrs. D. Van Sickle, Mrs. Edris Page, Mrs. P. O. Carrol, Mr. Arnold Halton, Mr. Jack Darral and Mr. and Mrs. Gibson of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Williams of Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. Crofton Richards, Omemee; Mrs. Harry Buchanan, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. J. Archer, of Port Credit; Mrs. Colby, of Indian River; Mr. and Mrs. Alex McQuire and Mr. R. Richards of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Van Sickle, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Van Sickle and Mr. and Mrs. Usher of Colborne; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Van Sickle, Mrs. McNaught, Mrs. Post, Mrs. Moffat, Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy of Marmora, Mr. Victor McNeely of Norwood.

One wall collapsed at the height of the blaze and the roof fell in. Loss was estimated at several hundred thousand dollars.

Negotiations Start In Transfer Of Land

COBOURG, Feb. 14. (ENS)—Negotiations are underway to turn over the pole yards owned by the H.E.P.C. to the town of [illegible] conferred Wednesday with Mayor Jack Burnet, town clerk Jack Ewart and Clare Saunders, town engineer, to arrange the transfer of the property to the town at a nominal sum.

Initial steps in connection with the Hydro agreeing to deed the land to the town were instigated by the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, [illegible] Northumberland county. The pole yard, no longer used by the H.E.P.C., consists of several acres near the C.N.R. tracks, north of the recreational centre, and is valuable industrial property.

Among the collections which will be on display will be one of signatures of men who were prominent in world history, including Hitler.

Thor Hansen, Danish artist, will exhibit some of his work and ceramics done by Yarko Zavi of Cobourg will be shown. A recent film made of Zavi at work by the National Film Board; will be shown at the exhibition. An amateur photo contest is also being sponsored and the entries will be on display.

20 Enlist In Forces, CobourgOfficeReports

COBOURG, Feb. 14. (ENS)—Twenty men from Cobourg and district enlisted with the armed forces during January, it was announced by Major Russell Manning, C.O. of the local recruiting depot. This was the largest group since the special Korean force was made up last April.

They vary in ages from 17 to 32 and some of them are veterans of the last war. Infantry and artillery absorb most of the enlistments but there has been no preference shown for any particular branch of the service, Major Manning said. Last week four signed up and it is noted that some of those enlisting have been unemployed.

Money On Tortoise

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 14. (AP)—Tortises are faster—and surer—than Mexican telegraph messengers says the afternoon newspaper Ultimas Noticias. The newspaper said it took nearly two hours for a "rush" message to reach the newspaper less than a mile from the telegraph office. It sent a reporter to the zoo to time a tortoise. Figuring the tortoise travelled 30 feet a minute, he reckoned the tortoise could have beaten the Mexican telegraph service by 10 minutes. "And," the paper added "a well-trained turtle would be a better guarantee of delivery than most messengers."

Two Quebec Plays Premiered At Drama Festival

QUEBEC, Feb. 14 (CP)—Two plays written by French-speaking authors will have their premieres during the Eastern Quebec Drama Festival, starting tonight and preliminary to the Dominion Festival in Saint John, N.B., April 28-May 3.

Initial presentation in the three-day festival will be a comedy from the Irish repertory.

Adjudicator Pierre LeFevre is expected to arrive here today after completing reviews of plays in the Maritime provinces.

Le Conservatoire National de Musique, drama section, will stage "La Plus Forte" (She Is Strongest) Friday night and the Three Rivers Les Compagnons Notre-Dame will present "Le Combat Des Elus" (The Battle of the Appointed) Saturday.

Tonight's initial play, "Playboy of the Western World," by J. M. Synge, will be offered by the Quebec Art Theatre, twice winner of the Dominion title, 1935-36, and Eastern Quebec finalist in 1949.

Satirical Plot

The three-act little playboy is a satirical description, complete with Irish brogue, of a young American's antics in the Old Country.

La Plus Forte is the work of Aime Plamondon and Rene Arthur of Quebec City. It relates in two parts the battle between Capital and Labor, each in the person of a beautiful maiden. The play is classified as "neither comedy nor drama."

The Three Rivers group will present a world premiere of a dramatized biography of Frederick Janssoone who on the eve of his betrothal to a young girl in Estaire, France, decides to become a Franciscan missionary.

Written by Jean Pellerin of Three Rivers, the three-act drama depicts the youth's spiritual battle with the devil, a comedian.

Norwood Y.P.U. Meets

NORWOOD, Feb. 14—(ENS)—The Young People's Union of the Norwood United Church held their meeting in the Sunday school room. After a sing-song, with Shirley Starke at the piano, the meeting opened. Lloyd Starke, president of the presbytery, was present and helped with the meeting.

Gordon Williamson, as citizenship and community life convener, then took charge of the worship service. Tom Starke read a poem and conducted a contest of twenty questions.

$14.84 A Day For Patients

The Board of Governors of the Civic Hospital, in their annual report for 1951, revealed that the average cost of operating the hospital during the year amounted to $14.84 a "patient-day"—that is, $14.84 for each patient every day he used the hospital. This shows two things: that hospital costs have mounted (as everybody knows) and that very few patients' room rents come up to the actual cost, since few pay $14.84 a day for their rooms. The patient-day cost in 1950 was $13.56.

• • •

Mounting hospital costs are not new discoveries, and they are not confined to Peterborough. The average daily cost in hospitals across the province has risen from $5.82 a patient in 1945 to $14.30 in 1951. Peterborough Civic Hospital costs are slightly above the average of $14.30. This is chiefly accounted for by the fact that it is a big hospital built for future as well as present needs, and the number of patient days during the year is not yet as great as its capacity permits.

• • •

The total number of patient-days in 1951 was 57,724, an average of 176.5 patients a day. The hospital is equipped to deal with a higher average at no great additional operating expense. The need for the large hospital is evident when one considers that the average number of patients using the old hospital in 1946 was 122, and that the number has constantly risen. It will continue to rise, and the hospital, which cost $881,557.39 to operate last year, will be able to provide for them and thus the total operating costs will be spread over more patients.

• • •

Despite its carefully drawn budget for 1951 of $875,225.33, operating expenses exceeded both the budget and the revenue. The deficit for the year was $40,033 which the city council will have to make up. This will be in addition to $101,416 which the Council already granted the hospital for its year's operating expenses. As Mr. Marshall, retiring Chairman of the Board, pointed out in his address, much of the operating loss was incurred on behalf of non-paying indigent patients, who occupied beds to a total of 8,651 patient days. The grants which the hospital receives towards the care and treatment of indigent patients do not nearly meet the cost of the service. If their beds had been paid for by grants at public ward rates, hospital revenue would have shown an increase of $52,000, and there would thus have been a surplus over expenses, instead of a $40,033 deficit. Various municipal hospital groups are urging that the Provincial grants for indigent patients be increased.

• • •

Nearly every city hospital in Canada is operating at great losses. The Saskatoon City Hospital is an exception. It finished in November with an eleven-month operating surplus of $3,047, and a surplus will be reported for the year when all accounts are in. Saskatchewan has a socialized health plan, special hospital taxes, and municipal hospitals derive nearly all their operating revenue from hospital plan rate payments by the Province, based on "patient-days". These are much larger, of course, than any grants which the Ontario Government makes to Peterborough hospitals, because they are in lieu of direct payment by patients. The grants for the first eleven months totalled $1,066,000. The item which most interests us is that the operating costs of the Saskatchewan hospital, for the first eleven months of the year, were only $9.91 a patient day, compared with the Ontario average of $14.30 and the Peterborough Civic Hospital average of $14.84. We do not know the hospital, and what kind of equipment and service it has. We must presume, on the evidence of operating costs, that it has much less to offer patients than the Peterborough Civic Hospital, and that its beds are more constantly occupied.

Local Tobacco Growers Pinched

Tobacco growers south of the County (west of Rice Lake) are sharing the gloom of western Ontario growers of the weed. They have had two hard knocks in the last six months. The first was the great increase in taxation on tobacco. This has reduced the consumption of cigarettes, at least of Canadian cigarettes, and thus the domestic market for tobacco. (As we have pointed out several times, if Canadians have not cut down their smoking, they are using smuggled American cigarettes instead.) The second blow to tobacco growers was the drastic reduction of the export market, due to Britain slashing her tobacco imports to save dollars.

The Marketing Board of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Association has decided to reduce basic acreage by a third during 1952. This curtailment will affect the district tobacco growers.

It is unlikely that Ontario's tobacco men will sit quiet under these bludgeonings of legislative circumstance. If they do not succeed in having the tobacco tax cut back not only to the levels before the newest imposts but reduced beyond that, we can expect that they will demand higher wholesale prices so as to get greater profits on the reduced crops. This would again raise the retail prices of cigarettes and tobacco. It is a back-door way to bring about the millennium looked for by fanatical enemies of tobacco—a non-smoking Canada.

A Humane Recommendation

A committee composed of lawyers and physicians in England has made a number of interesting recommendations regarding the legal attitude toward, and description of, illegitimate children. The purpose of these recommendations is to relieve children of a stigma which has been placed upon them through no fault of theirs. In approving this move in England, we reflect with satisfaction that for some time the word "illegitimate" has not appeared on birth certificates or personal documents in the Province of Ontario.

Nobody has any choice as to what the circumstances of his birth shall be. Illegitimacy can be a considerable misfortune, and a child may have to struggle until well into adult life in order to overcome this handicap. But its illegitimacy is never a child's fault, and it is manifestly unjust that the indiscretion of its parents should be visited upon it in this avoidable way.

Persons of illegitimate birth have occasionally made a great stir in the world; more often illegitimate birth has been a handicap and a nuisance even after reason has expunged the shame from it. For too many centuries the law has been unkind on this matter, and it is good to know that reform is on its way. To shame a man because of the circumstances of his birth serves no good purpose.

High Election Costs

The Dominion Elections Act requires that the official agent of the candidate handle all expenses for the candidate and publish an account of them in the local newspaper. An exception is that the candidate may himself spend up to $1,000 without his or his agent's having to account for this out-of-pocket expense. Apart from these requirements, there are no limits whatsoever to the amount of money a candidate, agent or party may spend on an election campaign. The United States has limitations (not effectively enforced) and in the United Kingdom there are very strict limits set to election campaign expenses.

It has been estimated that for the last general election, campaign expenses all told amounted to about ten million dollars (seven million by central organizations, three million at constitutency level). As the Financial Post points out, this amounts to about $40,000 for each M.P. elected. For the first time since Confederation, statistics have been compiled, on the basis of published election expense accounts, showing what candidates paid out—or their agents or local political associations—for the 1949 elections. They ranged from $33,149 which an unsuccessful Montreal candidate spent, to $16.42 for a candidate in Nova Scotia. Mr. St. Laurent's election expenses were $2,870; Mr. Drew's, $4,844, and Mr. Coldwell's, $2,772. These sums do not include expenditures of the national organizations, whose figures are not made public.

The high costs of trying to get elected can be a deterrent to good candidates whose means are slender, or to party groups whose coffers are low. The high costs might conceivably lead successful candidates to desire financial compensation for them, by some means or other. In the past, in England, the United States and Canada, the cost of running for office and taking a seat have resulted in nepotism and outright corruption.

Members of Parliament do not like incurring heavy election expenses. They should get together and amend the Election Act to limit them by statute.

NOTES AND COMMENT

A sculptor says that four women out of five are knock-kneed. The result, we assume, of several years of trying to sit modestly in short skirts.

A Milwaukee lad who killed both parents and his brother and sister because he was not allowed to use the family car, is described as "twisted". Probably it won't straighten him out but they might try stretching him.

The dairy farmers of Canada assert their right to "the natural yellow colour associated with butter." As a matter of fact, we have always thought butter was a nasty, billious colour, and suggest that the margarine people might find something better—the rich, appetizing, opulent crimson of strawberry jam, for instance.

PROFILE

The Lord Chamberlain

THERE are offices of heavy responsibility which, nevertheless, allow those who hold them plenty of scope for self-expression. Thus Mr. Churchill is not only unhampered by his role as Prime Minister; he actually uses it to display and enhance his own vivid personality. There are other offices, less weighty, perhaps, in function but more magnificent in apparel, which are as stiff and restrictive as a suit of armour; within them it would be hopeless to attempt an unexpected movement.

Thus it must surely be with the office of Lord Chamberlain. The very title suggests a robed and rather dusty figure in a museum, rather than a living man with a private identity. And it would be impossible to deny that there is something archaic about the various offices of the Queen's Household; once figures of real and practical power, they have retained their grandeur long after the power has slipped away into the hands of Parliament and Cabinet.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE Lord Chamberlain is the senior officer of Her Majesty's Household, but his duties are mainly formal and ceremonial. Thus he is responsible for all State Functions, except Coronations, Openings of Parliament by the Sovereign and State Funerals of Sovereigns: he is the organizer of Levees, Courts, Garden Parties, the reception and entertainment of Foreign Royalties and Heads of States. His secondary functions include the control of the College of Chaplains, the Royal Physicians and Surgeons, the Sergeants at Arms, the Poet Laureate, the Queen's Watermen and the royal swans on the Thames.

The superintendence of the royal picture is a function of the Lord Chamberlain's office, and so is the internal administration of certain, but not all, of the Royal Palaces.

An amiable minor branch of his department is the Ascot Office, which concerns itself with the screening of people to be admitted to the Royal Enclosure. And, by a curious historical accident, the Lord Chamberlain is responsible for the censoring of all plays which are performed within the United Kingdom.

THE office is extremely ancient. A roll of its holders exists from the year 1360, but there were Lord Chamberlains long before then. Its antiquity has encrusted the office with pageantry; thus the Lord Chamberlain must always carry his white staff of office when he attends the Sovereign on State occasions, and it is his personal duty to act as the Queen's emissary to the House of Lords. When the reigning sovereign has a Queen Consort, it is the Lord Chamberlain's privilege to conduct her to and from her carriage.

It will be seen that this strange but impressive position involves a curious variety of tasks. There is a great deal of fairly arduous administration; there are ceremonies which demand both presence and presence of mind, and there is an indirect responsibility for public morals. What sort of man would fit best into these awkward robes?

By tradition, by invariable practice, and by obvious good sense, holders of the office are chosen from the Peers of the Realm. Clearly the role demands an inherited dignity, a natural and gracious sense of pomp which are the proper attributes of the Peerage. It is equally clear that very few peers would make good Lord Chamberlains; special qualities are needed—of tact, of patience, of good sense and of personal dignity. In fact, the figure which begins to emerge is that of the ideal aristocrat, that semi-mythical figure in whom there must be an equal awareness of privilege and of obligation. The present holder of the office comes remarkably close to this ideal.

GEORGE HERBERT HYDE VILLIERS, Sixth Earl of Clarendon, son and nephew of Lord Chamberlains, was born in 1877, and succeeded to the title in 1914. Looking back on his admirable career, it is difficult to avoid the conviction that he was born to his present office, and that all his life, up to his appointment in 1938, was more or less of a preparation for this high dignity. Not that Lord Clarendon can have given the impression of marking time, for his life was both busy and useful.

After the innitial, mild ecentricity of trying to settle on a homestead in Canada (such ventures are almost a requirement of the complete British Peer), Lord Clarendon returned to England on his succession, and resolutely settled down to live the kind of life expected of him. His Court career began when he was appointed a Lord in Waiting to King George the Fifth in 1921: a year later he had been elevated to the captaincy of the Honourable Corps of Gentlemen at Arms.

But preparation for the highest role at Court should obviously involve experience of more than the Court alone. By 1930 Lord Clarendon had been Chancellor of the Primrose League, Conservative Chief Whip in the House of Lords, and Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs. In 1928 he had sponsored and introduced a Bill to institute a fairly drastic reform in the Upper House, and on this occasion, although his motion failed, he showed a clear sense of contemporary policies. He was far more realistic than the majority of his Peers.

FINALLY, and perhaps not altogether suitably, Lord Clarendon served as the first Governor of the newly formed B.B.C. This role would appear to have been rather outside his natural capacities, and it was certainly a keen satisfaction to him when he was appointed Governor-General of South Africa in 1930. In this difficult pro-consular role he was an outstanding success—firm in the face of growing nationalist hostility to the Crown, yet so tactful and so just that the South Africans asked for an extension of his term of office when it came to its natural end in 1935. This was granted, and it was not until 1937 that he returned to England.

It was while he was in Africa that he suffered the worst tragedy of his life, when his son and heir was killed there in a shooting accident. At that time he showed his extraordinary social stoicism—perhaps the most notable of his qualities and the most necessary in his present position. He received the news of his son's death just before the celebration of the 1935 Jubilee, but not a single alteration was made in the elaborate ceremonial.

LORD CLARENDON is a rich man who has bought and sold many large estates during the course of his life. He lives on a grand scale, enjoys shooting and fishing, despite a heavy limp acquired in a childhood accident; and demands high standards in his cuisine. If it is suggested that he is in some ways anachronistic, it must also be said that he is a very successful anachronism. He lives as he was brought up to live, surrounded by his treasured Van Dyks (when obliged to sell a picture from his collection, he readily dispenses with an El Greco rather than lose inferior pictures which are more intimately connected with his own family), well and happily married, performing his difficult office with charm and skill.

When he feels it necessary he can act with great vigour and trenchancy—as when he launched a small but effective campaign against immodest night-club performances in 1940. But on the whole he is a tolerant man, a fair and conscientious censor, a sound administrator and a model courtier. He is old-fashioned, both in his material standards of life and in his conception of his own duties and privileges. But his office is old-fashioned, too, and we must sincerely hope that we shall never see anything so absurd as a new broom attempting to sweep out the cobwebs of pageantry and produce an up-to-date version of this antique role.

Letters To The Editor

PRAISES CIVIC HOSPITAL

Sir: I would like this letter published in the paper. I have just returned from a two weeks stay in Civic Hospital. I have heard so many grumbling it makes my blood boil. I figure I should know, after two weeks, of what I am talking. I found the service tops. The nurses go out of their way to do everything possible to make their patients more comfortable. They are very pleasant at all times when I am sure their legs must ache from top to bottom from the terrible pace they keep up all day.

I feel our hospital is second to none across Canada in service. I wonder how the nurses keep running the way they do. I could not keep up to them. They have first class ward aides, orderlies and nurses aides, too. Our doctors are doing everything in their power for the sick. They are very kind too. I wonder how some of the grumblers would like to change places with our excellent nurses. I am afraid they might change their tunes in a hurry. The only kick I can see coming is on the terrible bus service. As a taxpayer I think it a disgrace and something should be done about it at once. Those who work at the hospital do not have a chance. The visitors do not have one either. If one bus is missed one half visiting hour is gone. That should be righted I believe. I am sure the company officials never have to depend on their buses to get up there or it would be changed at once.

(MRS.) HELEN DOUGLAS.

RE: RELIGION AND MURDER

Sir: I did include an interpretation of the Revelation chapter 17, in my original letter, which for some reason was deleted from the letter. Therefore, I can only suggest that Sapphire write to me personally, sending correct name and address and I will gladly oblige with this important message.

Thank you, C. J. CLARK

R.R. 4, Peterborough.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Dearly beloved, I beseech you as strangers and pilgrims, abstain from fleshy lusts, which war against the soul. (I Pet. 2: 11.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Happy is he that hath the God of Jacob for his help, whose hope is in the Lord his God. (Ps. 146: 5.)

✧ ✧ ✧

My son, keep my words, and lay up my commandments with thee. Keep my commandments, and live; and my law as the apple of thine eye. Bind them upon thy fingers, write them upon the table of thine heart.

Say unto wisdom, Thou art my sister; and call understanding thy kinswoman: that they may keep thee from the strange woman, from the stranger which flattereth with her words....

Let not thine heart decline to her ways, go not astray in her paths. (Prov. 7: 1-5, 25.)

Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth. (Col. 3: 2.)

New Zealand To Concentrate On Anti-Submarine Training

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND, NZ (CP)—Major changes in the role and constitution of the New Zealand navy are expected to be announced soon. This Dominion is expected to concentrate its naval resources almost exclusively on anti-submarine and minesweeping work.

The change in emphasis follows new assessments of trends in the Pacific and possible demands on the New Zealand navy in event of war. Defence experts consider that mines and submarines would be the chief naval dangers to New Zealand in another war, and the navy's main tasks have been set down as ensuring the security of ports, provision of safe coastal passages and providing anti-submarine escorts on the sea routes to and from the Dominion.

Immediately after the Second World War the Royal New Zealand Navy was organized as a force of two cruisers with attendant corvettes and minesweepers. Since then, however, the movement has been away from cruisers in favor of small ships. The war showed the aircraft carrier to be the supreme naval weapon in such a vast expanse of ocean as the Pacific, but a force built round aircraft carriers is too large an undertaking for a country of New Zealand's size.

Linked With Australia

New Zealand has closely co-ordinated her defence with that of Australia, and Australia's decision to build her naval defence around two aircraft carriers has powerfully influenced New Zealand naval planning, as a small-ship navy would make the most useful contribution in any joint operations with the Australian carriers.

Already New Zealand has progressed some distance toward a feet of anti-submarine and minesweeing craft. She has bought from Britain six modern frigates which in rotation have already seen much service off the coasts of Korea. Two minesweepers, also equipped for submarine hunting, will be recommissioned from reserve early this year.

New Zealand has two big class cruisers, the Bellona and Black Prince, which have been kept alternately in operation, one being in commission while the other is in reserve. It is probable that the change to a small-ship navy will affect the future of these cruisers, although one of them would be retained for training purposes. The other would go back to Britain.

These cruisers are light craft of 5,450 tons, armed with 10 guns of 5¼ inch calibre and light armament, with one aircraft launched by catapult and six torpedo tubes. The Dido class was completed in British shipyards shortly after the start of the Second World War, and the vessels have a speed of 33 knots.

The proposed changes contemplate a substantial increase in New Zeland's force of minsweepers, including the acquisition of further frigates.

TRAGEDY AT NIGHT—Firemen battle the flaming wreckage of a National Airlines DC-6, which crashed in Elizabeth, N.J., killing at least 32 persons. The plane Miami-bound from Newark Airport, hit a 60-family apartment building in the third major crash in Elizabeth within two months.

Stresses Canada Is Not Bluffing U.S.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (CP)—Any belief in the United States that Canada is bluffing about her intentions to build the St. Lawrence Seaway alone is a "misconception," Leslie Roberts, Canadian author, says in a special article in today's Herald Tribune.

Roberts says it does not "appear to have struck home in numerous quarters in the United States that Canada needs the completed seaway and the latent power of the St. Lawrence in its rapidly expanding economy."

In an accompanying editorial, the Herald Tribune says no doubt it would be feasible for Canada to build a 27-foot navigation channel around the International Rapids without the power dam—"but such a costly procedure would not make sense to the Canadians themselves, as Mr. Roberts observes, and is hardly within the present range of possibility."

Regarding the power project, Roberts said half the cost of developing the 2,000,000,000-plus horsepower which now roars unharnessed through the International Rapids will be borne by Ontario, the other half by whatever authority is designated by the United States.

Prices Tripled Canada Imports U.S. Spuds

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Feb. 14—(CP)—An unusual potato shortage in Canada has pushed prices three times higher than a year ago, and placed new wealth in the hands of the successful potato grower.

It has also reversed a traditional trading pattern. Canada, which usually sells most of her surplus potatoes to the United States, is leaning more and more on American supplies to fill the gap in her needs.

The irony is that in this potato crop year which started last July, the United States has been prepared to allow a bigger quota on shipments of Canadian potatoes to the U.S. market. However, Canada has sent only a fraction of her normal exports.

The root cause was a drop in Canadian production and a slight decline in American production too. Total output in Canada dropped to 67,195,000 bushels, one of the smallest crops in recent years, and 30,000,000 bushels below the total produced the previous year.

Acreage was trimmed to 400,900 in 1951, compared with 505,200 acres in 1950. Yields dropped from 192 to 168 bushels per acre.

This combination of factors has hoisted the wholesale price to about $3.75 for a 75-pound sack, compared with $1.25 a years ago. Retail prices currently run around $4.50 for 75 pounds.

Exports Slashed

Exports to all countries since last July have declined to 1,940,000 bushels from 3,799,000 bushels in the previous year. The United States, prepared to receive up to 6,600,000 bushels of Canadian spuds at the half-tariff rate, was shipped about 831,000 bushels.

On the other hand, Canada, which usually starts buying new American potatoes in April, May and June before her own are ready, is already digging into the American stockpile with dozens or carloads arriving in Canada. This trend is likely to continue as long as the Canadian price remains high and as long as the scarcity continues.

The American decision to increase imports from Canada at the reduced tariffs had nothing to do with the Canadian shortage, but was the result of a long-standing agreement. Under this agreement Canada may ship a total of 3,500,000 bushels at the low rate, plus any fall-off in American production below 350,000,000 bushels.

For example if the American crop should fall to say 347,000,000 bushels—which it did in 1951—then the Canadian quota would be increased by the difference, or 3,000,000 bushels. The reduced tariff is 37½ cents per hundredweight, or one-half the regular 75-cent rate.

The current shortage in Canada has helped to put a hole in the family budget, but there is one consolation for the housewife. Usually, when the farmer makes a killing on a crop, he tries to boost his earnings still further by expanding the crop the following year.

That is what the experts believe the farmers will do with potatoes next summer. They foresee a much larger crop with a possible surplus, pushing down prices from the current levels.

Marciano Beats Savold Into Submission

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 14 (AP) —A fighter has to have his annuities paid up before going against Rocky Marciano.

Marciano, the hard punching heavyweight from Brockton, Mass., not only beats his opponents into bloody submission, but he sends them scurrying for a rocking chair and retirement.

To all intent and purposes he ended the career of the veteran Lee Savold Wednesday night. It is no exaggeration to say that Marciano slaughtered Savold. The 35-year-old Englewood, N. J., fighter was a blood-soaked hulk when his manager asked referee Pete Tomasso to stop the uneven match at the end of the sixth round.

"The will was there but not the body," said Billy Daly. "I'm going to advise Lee to retire from the ring."

John (Ox) Dagrosa, Pennsylvania State Athletic Commissioner, said he was going to suspend Savold indefinitely and ask him to retire.

Savold never had a chance Wednesday night. The unbeaten Marciano charged across the ring from the first bell, smashed two tremendous left hooks into Savold's face and then unmercifully cut down his bigger opponent. Marciano weighed 186½ and Savold 200 for the scheduled nationally-televised 10 rounder. The announced attendance was 9,243 and the gate a disappointing $61,386.

Layoff Too Long

Despite his easy victory—Marciano won every round—the Rock was far from satisfied. Asked how he felt after cutting Savold's eyes and the veteran's lip so badly it needed stitches, Rocky said, "It wasn't sharp at all. I need a fight oftener. A four month layoff is too much."

Marciano said, "I'd like to have another fight under my belt before I shoot for the title."

Marciano doesn't know who he'll fight next. "I leave that up to my managers." His managers probably are waiting for the Jim Norris-Felix Bocchicchio conference in New York today before deciding. Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, and Bocchicchio, manager of heavyweight champion Jersey Joe Walcott, are meeting to decide who Walcott will defend against.

BOUND FOR NEW BRUNSWICK and the Dominion Schoolboys' Curling Championship next week are these four high school boys from Lindsay (above): Hugh Lightbody, Jack Ward, Jack Mosley (skip) and Bud Martin. This rink won the Ontario Schoolboys' Tankard at the bonspiel in Kingston three weeks ago. Representing 119 Ontario high schools, they will fly to Moncton Saturday, leaving from Malton. Today, Bob Faulkner, district manager of the Empire Life Insurance Co., presented the boys with caps and sweaters (shown in photo) at the senior assembly of Lindsay Collegiate.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

VermontWoman Captures Skiing Crown

NOREFJELL, Norway, Feb. 14 (CP).—Andrea Mead Lawrence of Rutland, Vt., won the women's giant slalom Olympic ski championship today.

The American girl was timed in 2:06.8 in her streak down the sleet-packed Norefjell course.

Rhoda Wurtele Eaves of Montreal was timed in 2:14, and on the basis of unofficial results, seldom altered, appeared at that time likely to placed anywhere from fifth to 10th.

Mrs. Mead's time was 2.2 seconds better than that of her nearest competitor, Digmar Rom, blue-eyer blonde Austrian movie actress, who was clocked in 2:09.

The unofficial results placed Mrs. Anne Marie Buchner-Fischer of Germany third in 2:10, Trudy Klecker of Austria fourth in 2:11.4 and Louise (Katy) Rodolph of Hayden, Colo., fifth in 2:11.7.

Proves Disappointment

Austria's chief hope, Trude Jochum-Besier, expected to be Mrs. Mead's most dangerous threat, was a disappointment, finishing in 2:14.3, three seconds slower than Rhoda Eaves.

The 19-year-old Mrs. Lawrence fell into the arms of her husband, David, 21, a member of the American men's ski team, and panted for several seconds after crossing the finish line.

As soon as she could catch her breath she exclaimed: "Gee, it was great. The course was fine and I went faster than I thought."

Jannette Burr of Seattle, Wash., the United States' No. 2 skier, almost missed one of the control gates and had to back up and go through it properly. She was timed in 2:19.2.

Flying Ambulance Ready At Olympics

NOREFJELL, Norway, Feb. 14 (AP).—Three American airmen manned a flying ambulance today at the finish line of the perilous women's giant slalom course of the winter Olympic games.

The ambulance helicopter can carry any seriously injured skiers to the Oslo hospital in 45 minutes. by automobile the 70-mile trip takes about four hours.

The plane was sent from the United States Air Force headquarters in Wiesbaden, Germany.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Time the local senior ball interests got checking about and maybe take in a Saturday meeting. We note this item from Brantford: "The Brantford Red Sox baseball club has been invited to attend a meeting of clubs from Welland, St. Catharines, Niagara Falls, Oshawa and Toronto, to be held Saturday. The promoters of that meeting read of the Red Sox situation with the Intercounty loop and asked them to move east with this proposed loop." We don't think for a minute the Brants will leave the Intercounty, but Oshawa, Toronto and the Niagara peninsula have to do something this spring, and why not the Petes? After all, our lacrossers travel as far as St. Kitts.

* * * * * *

Oshawa scribe writes: "The O.B.A. is doing something about it. President Fred Young is trying to correlate the interests concerned with ball at a senior level. Niagara Falls, Welland, St. Catharines, West Toronto, Toronto Viaduct and Oshawa will get the opportunity of forming an inter-city league with two teams each from the Toronto leagues, if they are interested. Brantford might be in, too. Certainly, a senior circuit of this nature would be okay with local fans and the two-lane highway embracing all entries would mean that the travelling problem is not too serious from the standpoint of time and comfort, at any rate." It's a thought, at least.

Minor Puck Playoffs

Last hockey here this week—ere Saturday — is the P.M.H.A. playoff triple-header tonight at Civic, starting at 6.30. It's Otonabee Wolves with a two-goal lead o'er St. Peter's bantams, the Martin-Hewitt midgets leading Trojans by five goals, and the juvenile Marines with a three-goal edge on Oddfellows. City champs will be declared at this time, and winners will proceed into provincial playdowns in the O.M.H.A. They go first against Oshawa teams in the Motor City on Monday and back here Thursday in two-game series. Fans should drop around and see these hustling young loop finalists go.

Probably quite a few Peterborough and district puck followers have never seen big Dit Clapper in action, since he spent his 20-year N.H.L. career with Boston Bruins. But he'll don the blades with the oldtimers at the Saturday night exhibition here, proceeds for crippled children. Dit was an all-star National League forward for years and a high scorer, before dropping back to shine on defence in the days of Eddie Shore and others. Wound up his pro hockey career a few seasons ago as playing coach and then bench coach of the Bruins, and he's still on their board of directors. Holds the N.H.L. longevity record and was the first active player to be named to Hockey's Hall of Fame. Born in Newmarket, his home was in Hastings for many years—in the off season—ere he started in business in Peterborough. Dit is but one of many former N.H.L. aces who will play this Saturday p.m.

Eagles Fly O'er Hawks

Eagles kept winging last night in chilly Civic Arena before a few hundred faithful and frosty fans to take a 6-2 senior "B" puck win o'er Belleville Hawks, dumping the Doran dudes to third place and grabbing onto the second rung. They've got their sights set now on top spot and can narrow the gap on Petes with a win over Kingston here Monday. 'Twas a pretty tidy tussle, chippy at times and marked with one fight, but generally fast and fairly clean. Hawks have been suffering from the injury jinx lately and were minus three players, so they tired somewhat in the third and Eagles kept peppering away at M'sieu Leforte. Dootch Vitarelli, George Samalenko, Keith Montgomery, Jed Wilson and Bert Hill were prominent on their attack, and Sambo Smith of Oshawa bumped all and sundry. Those he missed, Munroe got.

* * * * * *

Word on O.H.A. group playoff arrangements has been seeping in lately. Junior Oddfellows are drawn against Belleville Hawklets and play first two of their best-of-five semi-final on Quinte ice next Monday and Wednesday. Then, they're back here Friday, Feb. 22 and on Feb. 27, if necessary. A fifth game, if needed, would be in Bella Villa on March 1. Kingston Vics open their three-in-five series next Tuesday e'en in Lindsay. So says Frank Buckland, who acts as convener for the juniors and lakeshore intermediates up this way. Convener Lorne Cook of Kingston says all four senior "B" clubs will go in best-of-five semi-finals early in March, but hasn't announced yet which team meets which, that is first vs. fourth, or first vs. third.

60 Germans Enter Olympics

OSLO, Feb. 14 (AP).—Germany may mark its return to Olympic competition after a 16-year lapse with three gold medals in the winter games starting today.

A total of almost 60 athletes have entered, all from Western Germany. Winning chances, however, are pretty well confined to figure-skating and the bobsled competitions.

Rated high in the figure-skating contest for pairs are Ria and Paul Falk, twice European champions and holders of the German title for the last six years.

Also regarded as heavy favorites in their contests are the German two-man and four-man bobsledders.

World champion Anderl Ostler, who turned in the fastest times in official training, is the choice of many experts to drive both gold medal winning combinations.

Flyers Move Back To Top Trent League

TRENTON, Fev. 14. — The R.C.A.F. Flyers of Trenton moved back into a first place tie with Belleville Glen Roy A.C. in the Trent Valley Southern Division race by downing Trenton Gould Jewellers 10-5 here Wednesday night.

Chris Bowman, with three goals, Charlie McDonald with two, Len Beatch and Bob Parnall, with a goal and three assists, featured the Flyer victory.

Bob Johnson, Larry Simpson, Bob Campney, Austin Scott and Mac Watson collected the Jeweller goals.

School Teams Draw

Queen Alex and King George battled to a 2-2 school hockey tie at Civic Arena, both sides dishing up neat checking play and the rival goalies going well. Donaldson and Jim Harding counted for the easterners, English getting one assist. Macklin and Stewart were the northern marksmen, as McClennan and Johnston each earned an assist. King George drew three of the four penalties: Teams:

Queen Alex: McNamee, Macklin, McClennan, Johnston, Jackson, Stewart, Nelson, Downer, Wannamaker, Olmstead.

King George: G. Harding, Clark, English, Grills, Whatman, Hewitt, Moffitt, Donaldson, Dixson, J. Harding.

Eagles Beat Quinte Hawks By 6-2 In Senior Tilt To Take Over Second Place

Pulling out a 6-2 O.H.A. senior "B" win here last night over Belleville Hawks before a slim and shivering crowd, the Eagles climbed into second place, a game and a half back of the leading Petes in the Central Ontario race. The loss dropped Hawks to third slot, half a game behind Eagles. It was the highest in the standing the Vitarelli pack has reached all season, and the lowest ebb for Belleville.

Though chippy in spots and marked with a fist fight in the final minute, play was fairly clean and quite fast. Hawks drew six of the nine penalties, including a major to Barrett for fighting with Wilson, who also went off for five minute. Jed Wilson earlier got a misconduct allegedly for arguing with Referee Louis Lecompte. The Quinte crew were shy three players and the pace told on them in the windup stanza. Eagles led 3-2 in the first and, after a scoreless second stanza, they threw in three more in the third period and were outplaying Hawks by a good margin toward the finish.

Score Pair Each

Dootch Vitarelli and George Samalenko each fire home two goals for the winners, with Bert Hill and Freddy Mortimer accounting for the other pair. Keith Montgomery flashed some fast stepping and passing to aid on three markers, as Jed Wilson helped or two, single assists going to Reg. Stewart, Toodie Greenlaw, Hill, Bill Berwick and Bill Crowley. For the losers, Vern Goyer and Jackie Wardhaugh were the snipers, as Red Doran and Peter Jones each earned an assist. Some good goaltending was seen by both netminders, with Nicholls busy enough the first half, and Leforte having plenty to do throughout.

In less than half a minute after the faceoff, Goyer scored when he raked the puck out from behind the Eagles' net and backhanded it into the mesh. Play was fast and clean then, besides being fairly even. Vitarelli evened the count shortly on fine finish of a rush with Crowley and Montgomery, pulling Leforte out of the net to sink it. Samalenko made it 2-1 later on an angle rebound in close on a play started by Wilson and Berwick. Wardhaugh tied it on a close-in stab with Jones and Doran for their last goal. Wardhaugh returned from a slashing penalty, and Samalenko took two slaps to net the rubber on a passout from Wilson to make it 3-2 at period's end.

Not A Tally

Play swept up and down fairly rapidly through the middle chukker but the rival goalies kicked aside everything in this heat. Goyer almost tallied early. Doran drew a holding penalty, followed by Montgomery for interference. They were back and Eagles drove hard with a Crowley-Vitarelli thrust almost paying off. Sambo Smith of Oshawa was bouncing all and sundry as the going got a bit stiffer. Wilson complained to the ref that Hawks had too many men on the ice and he was given a misconduct for "arguing" with his nibs. Moher was gated next for charging but returned with no damage done and both sides were bumping hard at the bell.

It slowed down a spell in the third and Hawks seemed tired. The Hill line pepped it up but it wasn't till Doran went off for playing with a broken stick momentarily that Vitarelli slapped in a forward pass on a play with Hill and Montgomery. Red returned and Hill added one on a sizzling angle shot from Montgomery going in fast. Wilson returned to the fold and Eagles kept sweeping in to test Leforte. They buzzed around him hard and finally in a banging-away mixup Mortimer scored the final goal of the game with Stewart and Greenlaw in on it. McDonald got the finger for boarding and just got back when Barrett and Wilson tangled on the boards and started throwing punches. Order was restored and they drew majors just before the last gong.

Belleville: Goal, Leforte; defence, Reeves and Semark; centre, Goyer; wings, McDonald and Moher; alternates, Doran, Wardhaugh, Jones, Barrett and Day.

Eagles: Goal, Nicholls; defence, Fennell and Munroe; centre, F. Mortimer; wings, Greenlaw and Stewart; alternates, Hill, Crowley, Vitarelli, Samalenko, Berwick, Wilson, Montgomery and Smith.

Referee, L. Lecompte; linesman, W. Romhanyi.

Doug Masters scored both Bowmanville goals.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

Courage in the sports world is like Christmas packages. It comes in assorted wrappings, some in gaudy covering, with glittering ribbons, some modestly reserved. Some courage is physical. The late George Hainsworth, Shut Out King of his day played an entire game for Canadiens one night with blood dripping slowly down his sweater front. His nose had been broken by a practise shot just before the game started. Ching Johnson played for Rangers with a broken jaw, partially protected by a steel cage that covered his head and face. Eddie Shore played with one ear dangling, his nose broken, teeth knocked out.

Some courage is mental. There's the player afflicted with an inferiority complex, who rallies his faltering courage and fights not only the opposition, but his own fears and uncertainties. There's the player who carries on in the face of heartbreaking family tragedy. And all these constitute courage. But you can't measure physical courage and hardihood as against the less-spectacular but equally gallant mental courage.

So we're not going to say that a little fellow named Gerry McNeil, who guards the nets for Canadiens in the National Hockey League is the most courageous athlete of the month or year. There may be scores of other lads who faced situations just as bleak, and rode across the barriers just as gallantly. We're not making comparisons. We're merely here to record what we thought was a throat-catching bit of sports heroism, of the quiet fortitude that is the stamp of true valor.

McNeil is a sentimental boy. He is an only child. His mother had been ill for a long time, her death was a certainty, a mere matter of time. This is a plight calculated to unnerve the stoutest morale. But game after game, McNeil played, and played well, despite the shadowy spectre of death hovering nearby. The blow came one night just as Canadiens were starting for a two-game road trip, in Detroit and Chicago in turn. But McNeil, sadly shaken by the news, even though not unexpected, refused to leave the team. His face actually tear-strained, he played in Detroit, put up a fine game and Canadiens won. The team went on to Chicago. There he played brilliantly, though in between periods he couldn't keep back the tears. But he scored a shut-out.

He arrived back in time to reach Quebec City and be present at his mother's funeral, a trying ordeal in itself. There was a game in Montreal that very night against Toronto Leafs. The club management, feeling that McNeil deserved a rest to recover poise, offered to get a replacement. But McNeil declined. "The replacement might be better than me, but it might upset the team when we're going well," he said. "I'll play."

And play he did. His mates fought savagely to protect McNeil. Only 15 shots were thrown at him, though Leafs boast the second-best scoring line in the League, the Kennedy-Sloan-Smith combine. Canadiens won, 3-1. And when the game was over, it wasn't around the goal scorers that the players gathered. It was around McNeil, shaking his hand, and pounding him on the back, a tribute to courage, to a trouper who had most gallantly upheld the ancient slogan of sport and the theatre: The Show Must Go On.

Rangers Dump Boston 6-2 As Wings Down Leafs 3-1

By ED SIMON, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Lantern-jawed Bill Cook has discovered a new way of coaxing customers into Madison Square Garden to watch his New York Rangers play hockey. The gimmick is amazingly simple. All he has to do is get them to score a few goals. For example, 7,644 fans were sitting on their hands Wednesday night for the first 25 minutes while Boston Bruins took a 2-0 lead over the New Yorkers in a listless game. Then Rookie Wally Hergesheimer fired home the first of two tallies and before the startled onlookers knew what had happened the Rangers had skated off with a 6-2 victory.

Rangers' whirlwind finish, which tied them with Boston for the N.H.L.'s fourth and last playoff spot, overshadowed the league leading Detroit Red Wings' 3-1 triumph over the Maple Leafs at Toronto which increased their margin over the second-place Torontonians to 12 points.

Apart from Hergesheimer, who brought his freshman goal-scoring total to 19, Ed Kullman, Reg Sinclair, Paul Ronty and Frank Eddolls fattened the New York total. Dunc Fisher and Milt Schmidt tallied for Boston.

Sniping Difference

The difference between the teams was strictly in the accuracy of the sniping, in which old maestro Cook is a bit of an expert after many productive seasons as a deadly rightwinger for the Rangers in the 20s and 30s. His charges fired 14 shots at Sugar Jim Henry in the Boston nets while Chuck Rayner turned aside 20 Bruins' efforts.

The Toronto game was much tighter, with the Leafs pressing hard for a tie in the last minute of play when Gordie Howe broke loose to score his 29th goal in an empty net. The home club had lifted goalie Al Rollins in favor of an extra forward.

Tony Leswick and Alex Delvecchio scored the earlier Detroit goals, both at close range. The only Leaf tally came on a picture play by rookie defenceman Hugh Bolton, who skated through the entire Detroit team before faking goalie Terry Sawchuk out of position and firing the puck home.

The Red Wings move on to Chicago tonight for a date with the last-place Black Hawks. Toronto will be in Montreal, protecting their slim, three-point lead over the third-place Canadiens.

New Zealand Thermal Area Source Of Steam Power

By J. C. GRAHAM

ROTORUA, NZ. (CP).—Optimism is growing that New Zealand will be able to meet its future needs of electric power — natural steam emitted at high pressure from deep bores in the thermal regions in the centre of the north island.

In view of the coal shortage and the fact that the end of river development for power is not many years distant in the north island, the government began tests about 18 months ago in a search for natural steam power. The results have been increasingly hopeful and although much further research is necessary it now seems virtually certain that a large and constant supply of steam is waiting to be tapped for power plants in the thermal areas.

Large numbers of bores have been put down to considerable depths. Some of them have been blowing off large quantities of steam constantly for months without any sign of diminution.

BAMBOO CURTAIN—This impressive "wall of death," formed by pointed spears of bamboo, guards a French army post near Hao-Binh, Indo-China, against night attack by Communist guerrillas. A specialty of the Red Viet Minh forces is to strike at night on army posts and villages and disappear into the hills or jungles before dawn.

Several of the bores are near the Karapiti blowhole — a celebrated tourist attraction which for many years has filled visitors with awe as it emits a great volume of steam with a thunderous roar. But the ancient natural blowhole has been dwarfed by man-made successors. Only 100 feet from the blowhole the loudest noise comes from a man-made vent more than a mile away which drowns the sound of the natural outlet.

Seek "Dry' Steam

Most of the bores so far made emit "wet" steam, which can be used for power but is not so suitable as "dry" steam, usually given off at greater depths. New drilling equipment is being imported able to go deeper and engineers are confident that a large and steady supply of steam suitable for power will be found. They base their view on the excellent results already obtained, the fact that some bores have already given off a certain amount of "dry" steam, and the known lower composition of the earth at depths below those so far reached.

Meanwhile at Te Teko, in the Bay of Plenty district, another highly promising area has been found which government experts think may be even better than that already prospected by drilling in the ceentre of the island. The geological make-up of the country is more suitable at Te Teko to obtain steam under the best possible conditions, and some small bores put down to obtain core samples have already given off steam.

Te Teko is near the area where a great pulp and paper enterprise is to be established in the next few years and provision of a geothermal power station here would be invaluable.

New Zealand engineers have been investigating the power stations at Lardarello, Italy, the only other place in the world where geothermal power is developed on a large scale. On the results of these inquiries and the findings of the engineers engaged on test bores in New Zealand's thermal region, the government will soon reach a decision on whether to invest millions of pounds on a huge power project.

Boost Bird Watchers

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont. (CP) —Kirkland and district amateur naturalists gathered to organize a bird watchers' club for the district. They were told that while much is known of animal life in the north, little has been done in the way of bird cataloguing and classification.

Aldermen's Pay

TORONTO— (CP)— Toronto's 18 aldermen are "the most exploited group of workers in the city," says Ford Brand, member of the board of control He said in a recent speech that on an hourly basis, the $1,200 paid annually to the aldermen averages 37 cents an hour.

Council Efficiency

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. — (CP)—City council streamlined old procedure when it passed a resolution that all cost estimates which have been prepared should be placed on the budget file. Previously each cost report was read by the city engineer.

Charge Husband With Abduction Of Young Bride

PERTH, Feb. 14 — (CP). — A 43-year-old Lanark magazine salesman was formally charged with abduction Wednesday a few hours after he and his 15-year-old bride ended a two-day police search by walking into police headquarters here.

John Lalonde and Marjorie Mary McGonegal, his bride of six days, walked arm-in-arm into the Provincial Police offices in this town about 58 miles southeast of Ottawa.

"I understand the police want to see me," Lalonde said quietly.

He was taken into custody by Inspector T. W. Cousans of the Ontario Provincial Police on a warrant sworn out by the girl's mother, Mrs. Elwood McGonegal of Lanark. Later he appeared before a justice of the peace and was formally charged with abduction. He was remanded to the county jail until Tuesday when he will appear in magistrate's court.

The brown-haired, brown-eyed schoolgirl was placed in the custody of Inspector J. Miller of the Children's Aid Society.

Opposed to Courtship

Mrs. McGonegal, who had strongly opposed Lalonde's courtship of her daughter, said the couple was married last Thursday while she was visiting her husband, a construction worker in Sault Ste. Marie.

A neighbor telephoned Mrs. McGonegal and informed her of the marriage, which took place in the United Church manse at nearby Watson's Corners. Mrs. McGonegal returned to Lanark by train, arriving Saturday. After waiting for a time to hear from her daughter, she swore out a warrant for Lalonde's arrest.

Police launched a search that spread to Niagara Falls, traditional spot for honeymooners, and to Toronto. The girl's home at Lanark, is about 20 miles form Perth where the couple turned up at police headquarters.

"Marjorie is a quiet and good girl ordinarily," said Mrs. McGonegal. "She has never been boy-crazy. I can't understand it. I just don't know what got into her."

Doukhobor Urges Terrors Driven Naked From Colony

KRESTOVA, B.C., Feb. 14 — (CP). — A man who spoke against the spiritual leaders of the Sons of Freedom Doukhobors was driven naked from their colony here.

The man also urged the fanatical sons to a new reign of terror in the Kootenays, but he was stripped, decked with a necklace of tin cans and ejected from the community.

A woman threw a necklace of 30 imitation pieces of silver, "as unto Judas," around the man's neck.

The man was said to be the husband of a Sons of Freedom woman now serving a penitentiary term for nude parading.

Stephan Sorokin was accepted last year as spiritual leader of the Freedomites and since then there have been no major outbreaks of violence.

The ejected man charged Sorokin was not a true Doukhobor leader, but an enemy of the Doukhobors, a Nazi now working with the government and police. (Sorokin came to Canada from Germany about two years ago. He is a Russian by birth.)

Toronto Man Wins Award For Designing

OTTAWA, Feb. 14 (CP).—Lawrie McIntosh, 27-year-old Toronto designer, Wednesday took first prize of $1,000 in Canada's second national industrial design competition.

Though the sponsors had offered four first prizes of $1,000 each, in four categories of designing, the design of a plywood chair by Mr. McIntosh was the only one of some 250 entries considered worthy of a top award.

Other awards: Charles H. Blais of Winnipeg, second prize of $500 for design of a writing desk. Hugh Allan Dodds of Oakville, third prize of $250 in the class A chair design group. Frank E. Dudas, Toronto, third prize of $250 in the writing desk class C group.

Two awards of $100 each for recognition of effort went to George Robb and James Warren, both of Toronto, for aluminum door hardware designing.

No awards were made in a fourth category, that of a design for a chair made basically of aluminum.

The competition was sponsored jointly by the National Gallery, the Aluminum Company of Canada and the Canadian Lumbermen's Association.

Mr. McIntosh is a mechanical engineering graduate of the University of Toronto. He was awarded an industrial design scholarship four years ago and studied at the Illinois Institute of Technology, Chicago. He now is doing industrial design work in Toronto.

His $1,000 chair is a simple structure of moulded plywood with legs of seamless steel.

On Buying Spree

OTTAWA, Feb. 14 (CP)—Consumers went on a buying splurge in 1951, increasing their spending in Canada's retail stores by $1,000,000,000 to create a new high of $10,400,000,000 in sales for the year, the Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday.

Buy Less, Pay More

TORONTO, Feb. 14 (CP)—The Canadian Automobile Manufacturers', Research Service said Wednesday that Canadians bought 45,000 fewer motor vehicles last year than in 1950 but paid $53,000,000 more for them in federal taxes.

English Stores Plan To Insure Customers

LONDON — (CP) — Free insurance against food poisoning, accidents or disease contracted as a direct result of their patronage is to be granted nearly 2,000,000 customers doing business at 12,000 small shops throughout England.

The plan, announced by D. W. Harrison, president of the National Union of Small Shopkeepers, becomes operative after 18 months of negotiation.

Financed by the union, the policy provides for unlimited compensation where accidents are involved, and up to £10,000 in cases of food poisoning and related diseases.

"The danger of food poisoning is increasing as we now eat more tinned food than ever before," Mr. Harrison said. In the past, he added, many shopkeepers had operated under the impression they were fully protected under their normal insurance policies only to discover their mistake when they were hauled into court. Sometimes these claims had forced them out of business and left them penniless while customers often had received no compensation for injuries.

Under the new scheme a customer is required to file his claim 72 hours after an accident in a union shop or the purchase of tainted food.

APSLEY SCHOOL FOR CHILDREN OF THREE TOWNSHIPS NOW OPEN

Apsley Central School Opens Makes Educational History

The Apsley Central School is making educational history in Ontario.

That's the opinion of Gordon L. Duffin who officially opened the school Wednesday afternoon. And Mr. Duffin ought to know He's the assistant superintendent of elementary eduction in Ontario.

For the first time, a school was conceived and planned to accommodate both primary and secondary school pupils.

There are many instances of secondary school pupils having to make-do" in spare public school classrooms. But this time the educational authorities wanted it that way.

"To the best of my knowledge no other place in Ontario has anything like this," said Mr. Duffin. "And it reflects great credit on the spirit of co-operation among the ratepayers and trustees in Burleigh-Anstruther and Chandos."

"In my opinion you have taken the most important educational step that has been made in the last 50 years.. Now you are able to bring to rural children the same opportunities they should enjoy. Here they have an opportunity to measure up to their city cousins so far as accommodation is concerned, and they now have a chance for an equally good education."

The $105,000 school was built through the co-operative efforts of Burleigh-Anstruther and Chandos Township School Area Board and the Lakefield District High School Board.

Combining of the schools was planned after a long and controversial discussion.

Keith O. Birkin, inspector of public schools for Peterborough East, believes the ratepayers and children are now reaping the full benefits of being in both a township area (for public schools and a high school area (for secondary schools.)

Children in the elementary classes are transported to and from a central school; and this eliminates the pokey, one-room schoolhouses. Secondary school pupils in Grades XI to XIII are brought to Lakefield high school.

But it was felt by Mr. Birkin, and a majority of the school board, that Lakefield was a long way to go for pupils who live in North Burleigh and in Chandos. So they wouldn't be dissuaded by the difficulty of distance from starting secondary school, two rooms — Grades IX and X— were planned in the Apsley Central School.

The two secondary school classrooms are actually part of Lakefield high school and they come under the jurisdiction of R. E. Sutton, Lakefield principal. Transportation is arranged by the Lakefield District High School Board.

Though more than 60 per cent of school sections in Ontario are now in township areas, none of them has a setup like this. So in one phase of education in Ontario, the townships of Burleigh-Anstruther and Chandos lead the way.

Solid, Plain Construction Gives Good Accommodation

An attractive six - classroom school to be built as economically as possible. Good accommodation but no frills.

Those were the general specifications laid down by the two school boards who planned the Apsley Central School. And that's what they got.

By eliminating all frills, and using building materials that were cheap and readily available, the W. H. Mortlock Construction Co. were able to erect the Apsley school for less than $100,000. With furnishings included, the total cost of the new school is $105,000.

It was built on the northern outskirts of the village of Apsley.

Two In One

The unique feature of the school is that it was designed to accommodate both primary and secondary school pupils. Four of the classrooms are for the 130 public school children and two others are for 30 pupils in Grades IX and X.

The other unusual feature is the low cost of construction.

Cost per classroom was slightly over $13,000. Similar rooms in the city and in schools throughout the province vary between $20,000 and $25,000.

This does not mean that the contractor skimped on materials or that the result is a shoddy job. The building is a one-storey structure, shaped somewhat like a "T", and it presents an attractive appearance both inside and out.

It is of frame construction with the insides finished with plywood and gyproc. One of the economies is the elimination of the lathe and plaster and conventional masonry construction.

The outside of most of the school is vertical cedar boards with a natural finish. The walls have a layer of heavy asphalt paper inside the cedar boards, three inches of rock wool, and gyproc and plywood finishing inside.

The rock wool is good insulation and keeps the building warm even in sub-zero weather.

Hot Water Heating

Heating is by hot water from a boiler room that is dropped three feet below ground level. Coal is the fuel burned.

Running water is obtained from a drilled well and is drawn, under pressure, by an electric pump. Besides being used in the heating system, the water is necessary for drinking, flush toilets, and for science benches.

The general structure of the school is reinforced concrete with flooring of multi-colored asphalt tile, running throughout the building. Roofing is asphalt.

Practically the whole exterior of the north side of the building is casement windows. Along with smaller, clear-storey windows that let in indirect light, they give an abundance of daylight for pupils to work in.

Artificial lighting is incandescent.

Screen Sun

There is also a wide overlay of the eaves to screen out the direct rays of the sun during summer.

Keynote of room planning is the way they can be converted to different uses.

The largest room is a 60 ft. by 32 ft. playroom. It can be used as an assembly hall, a manual training room or a make-do gymnasium.

The six manual training benches can be pushed together to form the foundation for a platform. On those tongued and grooved pine boards are placed and the whole structure is bolted together at the front and rear edges of the platform.

The operation takes only a few minutes.

The room can be cleared in even faster time by moving the benches out into the hall. It could then be used as a playroom.

Eventually there will be a folding door that divides the room into two parts; temporary basketball hoops can also be installed.

In the lady teachers' room there is hot and cold water. Girls will be able to learn the fundamentals of home economics here. Besides ordinary furniture, donated by the Lakefield District High School Board, there will be a gas stove for cooking; a table and a studio couch that can be converted into a bed.

One of the secondary school rooms has science desks at the rear; the rest of the room is equipped with lecture chairs.

Besides the six classrooms, and the large playroom, there is an administrative wing with a women teachers' room, men teachers' room (also the principal's office) and lavatories with flush toilets.

Drainage is into a septic tank.

"We feel we made exceptionally good time in completing the school," said Walter Mortlock. "We started in mid-June and finished actual construction by Christmas."

Mr. Mortlock kept his eye on progress during the construction period but the on-the-job work was done by Ed Hill, superintendent.

"The building was designed for materials that would be readily available as well as economical," said Mr. Mortlock.

Outstanding Example

James S. Craig, architect, described the whole school as "an outstanding example of good construction." On behalf of his firm Mr. Craig donated electric clocks for each classroom.

According to the last system of grants the public school board will receive 89 per cent of their approved expenditure for the cost of constructing the building, furnishings, teachers' salaries, and transportation costs. The public school share of the $105,000 total cost was $70,000.

The high school share was $35,000 and the school board will likely receive an 80 per cent grant on building, furnishings and transportation.

MOST IMPORTANT EDUCATIONAL STEP in 50 years was the way Gordon L. Duffin described the planning and operation of the $105,000 Apsley Central School. Mr. Duffin, who is assistant superintendent of elementary education, is shown (right) as he said: "I declare this beautiful building open to the children of the district—for them to improve their knowledge and character." In the background (left to right) are Reeve Norman Wilson, the Rev. C. A. G. Spence, and Inspector E. C. Anderson, Peterborough West. Earlier in the day a new executive was elected by the county rural public school teachers. Studying an agenda paper are Mrs. Laura Irwin, past president; Gregory Knox, vice-president (standing); Duncan Sinclair (seated), the 1952 president, and Don Rintoul, secretary-treasurer.—(Examiner Staff Photos)

Urge Eisenhower To Come Home

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 — (AP) —General Eisenhower as urged by one of his supporters today to come home and launch a vigorous campaign for the Republican Presidential nomination "before it is too late."

This was a change in viewpoint for Senator Wayne Morse. He indicated a month ago he thought the General could win the Republican nomination in July without leaving Europe.

Morse's statement in an interview was interpreted as reflecting a growing belief among some Eisenhower backers that he will have to meet head-on the drive by Senator Robert Taft of Ohio for the nomination.

The Oregon Senator added that there were several generals who could take over Eisenhower's job as Commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization but no one was so well qualified for the presidency.

"I am very hopeful," Morse said, "that Eisenhower will recognize before it is too late that the welfare of the country needs his great leadership much more in the White house than as head of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization."

Eisenhower said last month he would not seek the nomination but would accept it if it were offered.

NEW ERA IN EDUCATION STARTS IN NORTH PART OF COUNTY

Little Red School House Gone; New Era Welcomed By Apsley District Citizens

Ratepayers of Apsley and district Wednesday afternoon welcomed in a new educational era. The occasion was the official opening of the new $105,000 Apsley Central School.

They figuratively waved goodbye to the "little old red schoolhouse" that has taught district children their three R's since the municipality was formed some 90 years ago. The parting was affectionate but without regrets.

In a brief address at the opening ceremony, Reeve Norman Wilson of Burleigh-Anstruther said: "The little red schoolhouse has done a good job in its day, but we must move along."

To be exact, the Apsley Central School replaces nine one-room schoolhouses scattered throughout the township area of Burleigh-Anstruther and Chandos.

130 In Elementary

About 130 children from the townships are attending the elementary section of the school and another 30 are attending the two secondary school grades. There are six classrooms altogether — four accommodating elementary pupils and two accommodating Grades 9 and 10.

Addressing some 200 rural teachers and trustees, Reeve Wilson recalled some of the problems with the one-room schools. They were poorly ventilated, he said, and poorly lighted. On a dark day the pupils could scarcely see to work.

"...And then to move into this building," said Mr. Wilson, "it's a change that is hard to realize."

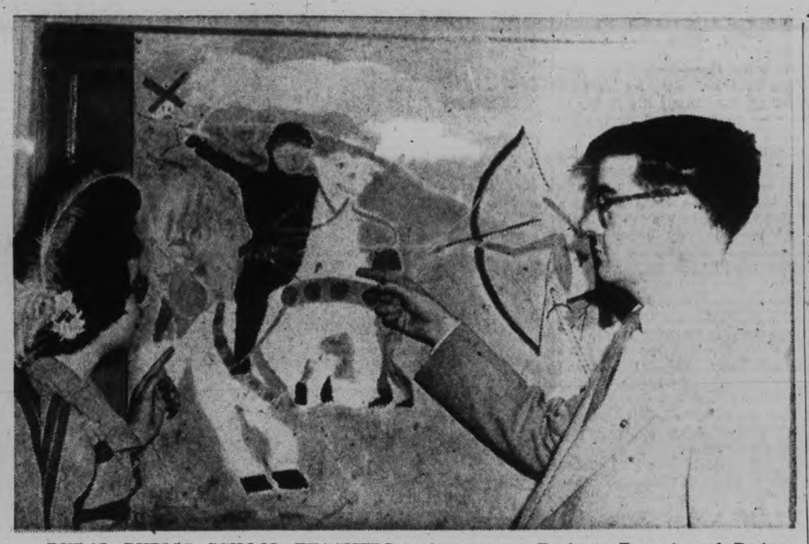
Instead of each school section having its own individual schoolhouse the plan now in effect is this: Spend the ratepayers' money on one good central school that compares favorably with a similar city building. Then bring the pupils to the school by bus (or some other form of transportation).

That is what is happening at the Apsley Central School.

The Rev. C. A. G. Spence of Apsley, a trustee for many years, described the new school as "the most important in the history of the municipality of Burleigh-Anstruther."

He said it was the fulfillment of a dream that he and "four or five other public-spirited people" had shared 20 years ago. Now it was a reality.

The equipment, lighting, sanitation, educational facilities, and teaching staff are second to none, said Mr. Spence.



RURAL PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS were in the majority as spectators when the Apsley Central School was officially opened Wednesday afternoon. Examining science equipment in one of the two secondary school rooms (top left) are Howard Hempstead of Auburn School and Murray Paterson (holding test tube), Lakefield public school. Top Right shows two other teachers completing their tour of the six classrooms. Barbara Bryant and Rodger Hendren, both teaching at Warsaw, are examining a Grade VII-VIII mural. One of the driving forces behind the building of the new school was K. O. Birkin, inspector of schools in Peterborough East. Douglas Walker Named Coach Of Alouettes

MONTREAL, Feb. 14 —(CP)— Douglas (Peahead) Walker, former line coach for Yale University has been appointed coach of Montreal Alouettes in the Big Four Football League.

Walker arrived in Montreal today to sign his contract with the Als where he will take over the coaching duties from Lew Hayman, part-owner of the team who will confine his future activities to front-office work.

"You can say that I'll have complete command of the club and won't be interfered with from any quarters," said Walker.

Hayman, in a long-distance call from Miami, Fla., confirmed Walker's statement

The Als had what might adequately be described as a "disastrous" season last year and finished in the league cellar after a pre-season build-up that seemed to bode plenty of promise.

Failed To Click

Among other things the Als imported George Ratterman from American pro football ranks, boosted his stock to the skies as a quarterbacking field general, and then had to watch the dreams go glimmering when Georgie failed to click at the Canadian game.

Fan reaction wasn't good. There was considerable clamor that Hayman was trying to do too much—run the team on the field and in the front office in the end Lew pulled stakes as coach in favor of devoting himself to the business end of things and announced he would find a top-line American coach to run the Als on the field.

The importation of Walker is the result.

He comes to the Als directly from Yale University where he served as line coach under the fabulous Herman Hickman.

Charge Lepine Ill-Treats Dog

OTTAWA, Feb. 14 (CP)—Wilf (Pit) Lepine, winner of the International Dog Derby, was charged today with racing a dog although it suffered from raw sores.

A charge of ill-treating a dog was laid against Lepine in Magistrate's Court today by the Ottawa Humane Society. He pleaded innocent.

The 31-year-old Quebec City musher drove his dogs to an easy victory in the three-day, 90-mile classic which wound up Wednesday.

Assistant Crown Counsel Edward Hueston told Magistrate Glenn Strike that although the charge was placed under the criminal code the crown had no part in making the charge and wished to take no part in the prosecution.

Lepine's counsel, Louis Assaly of Ottawa then requested and obtained a half-hour adjournment to discuss the case with Lepine.

Duncan W. Sinclair Heads Public School Teahers

Duncan W. Sinclair, principal of Norwood High Schol on Wednesday was elected president of the Peterborough County Public School Teachers Association.

The annual convention was held Wednesday morning and afternoon at the new $105,000 Apsley Central School. The day's activities combined the regular convention program along with the official opening of the new school.

Usually the convention is in the fall, but officials thought that the teachers would be interested in the educational experiment at Apsley. There, for the first time in Ontario, a school has been planned and built to accommodate both primary and secondary school students.

Mr. Sinclair, who was a member of the 1951 executive, was the unanimous choice as president for 1952. He succeeds Mrs. Laura Irwin, S.S. No. 1, Otonabee township.

Gregory Knox, S.S. No. 6, Smith township, is the new vice-president; and Don Rintoul, manual training teacher, remains as secretary-treasurer.

Other executive members are Everett Sloan, Lakefield Public School; Harold Hunter, Havelock Public School; Roy C. Mawhiney, Apsley Public School; Ted Loveday, Queen Elizabeth School; and Rita Heffernan, Douro township.

125 At Luncheon.

As was the case last year, rural trustees were invited to the convention. There were about 125 county teachers present at the luncheon, as well as trustees — some 200 in all.

The opening exercises were presided over by the Rev. C. A. G. Spence of Apsley. A welcome from the municipality was given by Norman Wilson, reeve of Burleigh-Anstruther.

After a business session and an address from President Irwin, the teachers and trustees adjourned for a luncheon prepared by the Apsley Women's Institute.

Guest speaker at the luncheon was Wilson M. Gemmell, Peterborough banker.

Mr. Gemmell said that the objective of educationalists and parents —in fact the whole community at large— was to produce a rising generation of "Godly, generous and kindly men."

Business men, religious leaders and politicians should strive to encourage these traits. But parents and teachers must have first instilled into children the fundamentals of education.

Encourage Development.

Parents and teachers can then "encourage (the children) to perfect themselves in the finer things in our cultural heritage and serve their fellow men 'beyond the call of duty.'"

Many people do contribute to the community "far beyond the call of duty," said Mr. Gemmell. He singled out the service to the Commonwealth that was given by the late George VI and Queen Mother Elizabeth.

"There is no hope when service like that dies out,' he said.

After attending the ceremony of officially opening the Apsley Central School— performed by Gordon L. Duffin, assistant superintendent of elementary education— the teachers and trustees went on a personal inspection of the six-classroom school.

Russians Due To Return Manchuria To Chinese

By FRED HAMPSON.

HONG KONG, Feb. 14—(AP)—This is the year Russia is supposed to get out of Manchuria, rendering unto Communist China the things that are China's.

Manchuria is the rich, vast land beyond the Great Wall in Northeast China. It was fought over by the Russians, Chinese and Japanese for more than half a century.

Turning full control back to the Chinese Reds will be a gruelling test of friendship for Moscow, but most observers here expect Russia to get out, or at least to go through the motions.

Yet today, on this second anniversary of the signing of the Chinese-Russian friendship treaty, there is no mention of Manchuria in propaganda out of Peiping.

Cardinal Point

This could be significant. The Russian withdrawal from Manchuria was one of the cardinal points of that treaty.

The Japanese seized Manchuria in the 1930's. It came back to China with Japan's surrender in 1945. But Russia had occupied Manchuria in its last-minute entry into the war and it drove a hard bargain.

In a treaty with the Chinese Nationalist Government, Russia staked out special privileges in Port Arthur's naval base and Dairen in the South Manchurian Railway.

Then the Communists captured China in 1949. Red leader Mao Tze-tung announced his policy of "leaning to one side" — toward Russia. But he wanted Manchuria for industrial development with no strings attached.

So two years ago today, Russia and the Chinese Reds signed a cluster of agreements now usually given the catch-all name of the Sino-Soviet Friendship Treaty. Russia would give up her special rights in Port Arthur, Dairen, and in the South Manchurian Railway which is jointly operated. Soviet troops were to be withdrawn, and installations and other properties handed back when the peace treaty was signed with Japan, but in any case "not later than 1952."

You can listen all day, but you won't hear Peiping mention this part of the treaty.

Neither Russia nor Red China recognize the San Francisco peace treaty with Japan. Neither is likely to sign a treaty with Japan soon. Consequently December 31, 1952, becomes the deadline for Russia to get out of Manchuria.

Atomic Energy Heating Idaho House

OAK RIDGE, Tenn., Feb. 14—(CP)—Atomic energy is heating a house here and lighting electric lamps in Idaho.

And "in the not-too-distant future" energy from atoms in atomic ovens may replace such electric power systems as the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The prediction was made by Dr. Alvin Weinberg, research director at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, who spoke to newspapermen on a tour of the laboratory.

Dr. Weinberg said the house heated by atomic energy had used the winds that cool the Oak Ridge oven. This method in use for four years, involved carrying the air through filters and concrete ducts and then up a 200-foot smokestack.

The lights are lit by electricity generated by the atomic reactor at Arco, Idaho. The heat from splitting atoms is used to make steam to run a generator, Dr. Weinberg said.

So far, he added, only a few kilowatts of electricity have been produced. But the prospects for really useful power were looking up.

New Kind Of Oven

One hope is a new kind of oven, the homogeneous reactor. In these, the uranium is dissolved in a liquid soup, not used as rods of metal inside a great block of graphite.

There is hope, Dr. Weinberg said, that "in the not-too-indefinite future, we may put the T.V.A. out of business. We may push the button to turn T.V.A. off and turn nuclear energy on."

It is "no longer really a question of whether we can make atomic energy work this way. We have to make it work."

He cited figures indicating that coal preserves would be exhausted in 468 years at present rates of use, and usage is going up. Coal might even be in short supply "by the time your grandchildren die."

But it is estimated that we have in uranium 100 times the energy in our reserves of coal.

Wool Production Adequate For World Demand

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Reports that sheep are going to be replaced by the test tube are distinctly myths, says the Wool Bureau, Inc.

Sheep, apparently, will continue to nibble in the meadows and grow their rich coats as of old—bleating defiance to the glamors of synthetic fibres.

The bureau, an international organization devoted to the interests of wool, makes its comment in a statement issued in Toronto by George Kimpton, managing director.

It terms "fantastic" stories that impending shortages will make wool textiles almost unobtainable. It says that wool is not nearly as scarce as some people think, and that its price has dropped from the extreme high figures of early 1951. The statement adds:

"World production in the 1950-51 season is estimated at 2,285,000,000 pounds, clean basis, a rise of four per cent over the previous season, and approximating the all-time record of 1941-42. Sheep and wool production are increasing in all world wool centres.

Meet Shortages

"While it is true that the huge stock piles which existed in world markets after the close of the Second World War are exhausted, it is equally true that the abnormal markets created by huge war shortages in the occupied countries of Europe have been largely met.

"The present outlook is that wool production for the coming year will meet world demands; including an allowance of more than 500,000,000 pounds on a gross basis for military requirements.

"The basis of the apparel industry continues to be wool. Consumption of wool in Canada in 1950 increased 45 per cent over the base period 1931-35."

He said: "The economic fact governing wool prices is that no world commodity, sold competitively without restrictions, ever prices itself out of the market. The prices at which wool or any other commodity moves freely into commerce are the prices which buyers are willing to pay because they believe they can resell the particular commodity, or convert it into products to be resold at a profit.

"Prices of representaitve raw apparel wools have fallen some 55 per cent from the high point of March, 1951."

OSLO, Feb. 14 (CP).—Russia's formal application for membership in the International Ice Hockey Federation will be made here Sunday, Dr. Fritz Kraatz of Switzerland, I.I.H.F. president, announced today.

"The Russians have said they will agree to our statutes and regulations and a letter confirming this will be signed Feb. 17 by the general secretary of the Russian Olympic Committee," said Dr. Kraatz in an interview.

A mail vote of the 22 member countries of the I.I.H.F. on the application will be held immediately the document is signed. A decision is expected from four to six weeks later.

Kraatz said the Russians originally wanted their own version of voting rights, giving them three votes instead of the usual one for each country, but they now have agreed to abide by the Federation's rules.

English John 50 Years Among Indians

BISSETT, Man.—(CP)—People who are finicky about their diet should try the fare of "English John", a trapper on the fringe of this rock-girt mining settlement, 100 miles northeast of Winnipeg.

English John has lived with the Indians of Manitoba as one of them since he was a small boy. He speaks the language better than most natives.

He even thinks like an Indian. In conversation he makes constant reference to "the white man" although he is one himself.

In his time—John figures he's "somewhere around 63"—he has eaten most of the foods of his adopted brothers including caribou, fish, beaver, squirrel, lynx and hawks. But he has often gone hungry while on the trap-line trail.

"Sometimes we would go three and four days without food," he says. "We had to live on the wild stuff. If there was none we went hungry. But I backed up on night owls and skunks. That was too much for me."

Typical fare of trappers in this district is illustrated by the assortment of foods served up at a trappers' banquet here recently.

First they brought in beaver-tail soup, flavored with mint leaf. This was followed by a 25-pound roast of beaver served with rose petal jam.

Rare Menu

Other items on the menu were: tomato juice; wild rice worth $2.50 a pound; roast turkey and dressing; potatoes; gravy; wax beans; cranberry, apple, gooseberry, chokecherry, mossberry and mountain ash jellies; pickled nasturtium pods; roast flying squirrel; apple, raisin and lemon pie, and coffee.

English John has no intention of leaving his Indian friends. But he admits he gets tired of trapping sometimes and takes the odd trip out—always to Bissett.

He says that at one time, when he first came to Manitoba, he spent 36 years in the bush with Indians without seeing a white man.

"When I first saw my own kind again I was so shy of them I couldn't even look them in the eye."

His real name is John Henry Thomas but he is so well known by the "English John" handle that banks in Bissett cash cheques made out to him under that name.

His unusual story starts somewhere in Cornwall, England. His father, a doctor, died when John was quite young and the boy ran away from home.

Two years later, at the age of 10, he was sent to Canada and arrived at a farm at Stonewall, Man. After a dish-washing job in Winnipeg, further travels in the United States at the age of 12, he returned to Manigotagan, Man., where he was adopted by a Saulteaux Indian.

THIS HEAVY TRAM jumped the rails in downtown Montreal recently to leap across the street (top photo) without scratching one of the more than 150 passengers or injuring a pedestrian. A transport truck was struck a glancing blow and turned broadside by the impact. Heavy Hydro-Quebec power poles (lower photo) snapped in the crash but prevented the tram from pushing in the side of a small corner safe where patrons were breakfasting.

Military Aid For Indo-China

SAIGON, Indo-China—(AP)—United States military aid to the French union forces fighting the Communist-led Vietminh in Indo-China now is close to the $500,000,000 mark—and there's more on the way.

An average of one ship daily—often two or three—is unloading in the ports of Saigon and Haiphong -everything needed to fight a war.

Donald R. Heath, U.S. minister to the three associated states of Indo-China—Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos—said the war the French forces are fighting against the Vietminh is the same cause for which the U.S. is helping all freedom-loving countries.

Heath told a gathering of French and Indo-Chinese officials at the Saigon docks as ship No. 100 arived to unload U.S. supplies that "we are sending you not only the tools of war but the implements of peace."

No official announcement has ever been made here by American sources on the value of the war equipment which has been delivered, but from information available and based upon what French themselves have estimated, the figure now is around the $500,000,000 mark.

American interest in deliveries to the French union forces doesn't end with the arrival of supplies here.

U.S. army, navy and air officers, attached to the U.S. military advisory group for Indo-China, follow the equipment right up to the front lines to see what the French union forces are doing with it.

No Garbage Can Mother Jailed, Police Apologize

DETROIT, Feb. 14 (AP)—Embarrassed police officers tried to explain Wednesday why they arrested a Detroit housewife and held her in jail overnight because she did not have a garbage can.

Senior Inspector Arthur Heidt headed a delegation of top officers who went to the home of Mrs. Hildegarde Walgreave Wednesday to offer the 42-year-old mother their apologies.

Mrs. Walgreave said her troubles began in December when thieves stole her garbage can. On Jan. 12 police ticketed her for not having a garbage receptacle. Last Thursday police arrested her on a warrant charging violation of the garbage ordnance.

The unemployed mother said she had only 75 cents and was jailed overnight when unable to post a $10 bond.

Mrs. Walgreave got a supended sentence in court the following morning. She pleaded innocent but was found guilty without any testimony being taken. She then wrote letters to Detroit newspapers which took up her case.

Up To Communities

OTTAWA, Feb. 14 — (CP) — Government officials said Wednesday it will be up to local communities to decide whether they want to observe a two-minute silence Friday as a mark of respect for King George VI.

Pushing Federation Plan May Be Solution To Central Africa's Many Problems

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON — (CP) — Britain's decision to speed talks on federation of Central Africa suggests that a new state may be just around the next conference table. But skeptics still see no solutior to difficulties which have kept the project in the blueprint stage.

The plan for federation involves Southern Rhodesia, Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland, three colonial or semi-colonial territories spread over 475,000 square miles in the country that explorer David Livingstone opened to civilization 100 years ago. Federation, everyone agrees, would strengthen the area economically and change the balance of power in Africa.

The chief difficulty is that the black Africans fear federation as a device employed by white Africans to strengthen and extend a system in which the blacks, tacitly or openly, are regarded as inferior.

The British government, partly under pressure from white settlers in Central Africa, has been working on the federation idea for several years. Little progress has been made. Now, as its latest move—again probably under pressure—it has advanced by three months a conference on federation originally scheduled for London in July. The meetings now will be held in April.

Question Haste

Some British observers questioned the need for haste. The Liberal Manchester Guardian recalled editorially that Sir Godfrey Huggins, long-time Prime Minister of Southern Rhodesia, made this response at a press conference in London two weeks ago:

"Part of the hurry," (said Sir Godfrey) "is that the Africans, if nothing is done, with the propaganda they have got going, will become more and more averse to it, and you might even have trouble if you did it."

Earlier, Sir Godfrey outlined his views on federation in a lengthy article in the Conservative Sunday Times. His main point was that the non-Europeans in Africa, with a few exceptions, are not ready for equality. (In passing, he noted that it is only about 25 years since Britain adopted the common voters' roll). The African population, he said, only 60 years ago had no written language and did not know the use of the wheel.

"It is my belief," he wrote, "that social contact between people of such widely separated cultural levels is of no real benefit to either party."

The economic disparity between white and black is admittedly great. In the mines of Northern Rhodesia, a black miner cannot earn more than two shillings a day, compared with an average white wage of £100 a month.

The independent Weekly Economist, concluding a series on federation, comments:

"The mass of white opinion in both the Rhodesias remains implacably opposed to any tampering with the color-bars. In Northern Rhodesia, even an 'educated' African may find himself barred from entering a shop, and have to be content with being served through a hatch opening on to the pavement."

Taking Home Poor Report Card Worse Than Being Given Caning

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 14—(CP)—The average child in Britain would rather submit to corporal punishment or other disciplinary measures than face the humiliation of taking home an unfavorable school report.

Children also disagree with teachers that assignment of pupils to posts of responsibility is one of the best incentives to better work and behaviour.

These are conclusions reached by the National Foundation for Education Research in a survey just completed at the request of the ministry of education. The investigators questioned nearly 1,000 teachers and 7,500 secondary school-children through the country.

In a poll confined to teachers, the report shows that 89.2 per cent consider that the cane or strap should be retained in schools. Most feel justified in administering punishment as a last resort for conduct involving malicious destructiveness, wilful disobedience and bullying. Only 3.6 per cent favored abolition of all forms of corporal punishment.

It was found that teachers in rural schools were less prone to use the cane than those in towns and cities. Men teachers also regard punishment more favorably then women and it is resorted to more frequently by elderly instructors.

Here is how the children listed in order of importance punishment that impressed them most: (1) taking home unfavorable reports; (2) loss of games or favorite lessons; (3) being regarded as pupils requiring close supervision; (4) corporal punishment; (5) reporting to the head teacher for misbehavior; (6) being made to look foolish in class through a teacher's sarcasm.

Look Foolish

The report discloses that girls dislike corporal punishment and classroom sarcasm more than boys, but boys were found to be more sensitive to jocular ridicule.

Teachers believe a good talking to in private is an effective deterrent to misbehavior. The children, however, thought differently. They rate it with detention after school or some such discipline, as much less effective than having to look foloish in class.

There was no disagreement as to the best incentives to good work. These, said the teachers, were quiet appreciation of work, entrusting a pupil with some position of authority or public praise.

But that's not the way the children saw it. They voted overwhelmingly in favor of factors relating to high scholarship standing. Here they are: good reports to take home; success in school tests; achievement by team or grade representatives; good marks for written work.

Rejecting the teachers' suggestion about public praise, the report observes: "The adolescent pupil may find praise embarrassing. It may induce a swelled head in some. It may also arouse envy and suspicion in fellow pupils."

Among reforms most urgently needed to improve school work generally, the teachers listed stricter home discipline, small classes, more special school and better facilities for difficult and backward children.

Taxi Driver To Stand Trial In Murder Case

BRAMPTON, Feb. 14—(CP)—James Hutchinson, a Brampton taxi driver, Wednesday was committed for trial of murdering his former employer, Harry Brading. Brading died January 27 in Ottawa Civic Hospital as a result of a severe beating suffered on a side road near here January 18.

Mrs. Eileen Brading testified that she took her husband to Ottawa but did not call a doctor because she "didn't think he was hurt bad enough." She said she was afraid he might lose his taxi licence.

"He was always getting beaten up," she said.

William Elliott, another witness at the preliminary hearing, said he rode into the country with Brading on the night of January 18 while Hutchinson followed in a truck. He said both vehicles stopped and he walked down the road while the two men argued.

Elliott said he returned shortly to find Brading lying on the road, bloody and with blackened eyes. He said he had overheard Brading accuse Hutchinson of "improper relations" with Mrs. Brading.

Jean Brading, daughter of the dead man, said she and her stepmother took Brading to Ottawa by car and put him to bed at her home. "Mrs. Brading refused to take him to a hospital," she said.

Mrs. Brading, asked about her relationship with Hutchinson, testified that he was "merely a driver." She said her husband fired him two weeks before his death.

Ask To Settle Union Dispute

TORONTO, Feb. 14 (CP)—The Ontario Labor Relations Board was asked Wednesday in effect to determine whether a memorandum of settlement of a strike has the force, under the law, of a collective agreement.

It reserved decision on the case, in which the United Steel Workers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) sought leave to prosecute the Hollinger Gold Mines of Timmins for what the union contends was a violation of the Labor Act. The union accuses the company of refusing to be bound by what the union holds is a collective agreement.

David Lewis, union counsel, said strike settlements would be worthless if the parties chose to ignore them on the grounds that they were not agreements.

The dispute arises from the terms of settlement of a two-month strike at the mine last summer. It centres on a job-evaluation plan on which the company and union could not agree.

Mr. Lewis said the memorandum of settlement dealt with eight or nine matters and could not be regarded other than as an agreement.

Company counsel P. C. Finlay said the company and the union still were in the process of completing an agreement and the job-evaluation plan was only one phase of it.

Record Deliveries

SAINT JOHN—(CP)—Now the rush is over, the post office here has calculated that parcel post deliveries in this district set a record over Christmas. The total for all December of more than 50,000 was about 10,000 higher than the same month in 1950.

Circulation Up, Librarian Reports To Board

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 14 (ENS)—Annual report of the Lakefield Public Library, as presented by librarian Mrs. J. W. Ridpath at the meeting held Monday in the library, showed progress in all departments. Present at the meeting were Mrs. K. Jakins, Mrs. W. H. Fife, Mrs. L. Delaney, Reeve E. H. Northey, C. J. Davis.

Present circulation, Mrs. Ridpath reported, was 8,741, an increase of 551 over last year. This is broken up as follows: junior members, 331, adult readers, 175. These figures do not show the real increase as it probably would have been, owing to the fact that the library was closed one week in February, due to lack of heat, and three weeks in April for redecorating. During the year 104 members joined.

A display of paintings was placed in the library by J. McKerchar and Mary Lee, which proved to be a great attraction, and many who came to see the paintings became members of the library.

During March the children of grades 7 and 8 visit the library and use old magazines as a source of material for their scrap books.

Redecoration in April greatly improved the attractiveness of the library. New lights were installed, floors were sanded and polished and later a door was cut between the library and the veterans' room, now the new reading room. Venetian blinds were added and a vacuum purchased.

Teachers attending the Teachers' Workshop" held at the Grove School in August made use of the books for research work.

"Young Canada Book Week", November 11-18 was observed. Posters, folders and book-marks made available to the children helped stimulate interest. Mrs. Ridpath also addressed the November meeting of the Home and School and had a display of books there for members to see.

Noon sessions are still held, during which children of the high school who come by bus and are not here during regular library hours can get books. This service has filled a decided need.

Provincial grant was increased $511.00 this year with most of the increase spent on books and equipment. During the year 684 new books were added.

Financial report showed receipts to be $2,437.79; expenses $2,105.58; and a bank balance of $332.21.

Mrs. Ridpath extended her appreciation to members of the Board for their co-operation; to all those who had donated books to the library and to Miss Deirdre Moher who so capably assists her. The slate of officers for the year are—librarian, Mrs. J. W. Ridpath; chairman, Mrs. W. H. Fife; vice-chairman, Mrs. Ken Jakins; book committee, Mrs. L. Delaney and C. J. Davis.

Mrs. Ken Jakins, chairman, presided for the meeting.

Valentines In Leap Year Are You Off For the Bush?

Valentines running the gamut from sheer saccharine sentiment to insufferable insolence are now in the mails, speeding messages of love and insult to their objectives.

The fortunate coincidence of Leap Year and St. Valentine's Day gives timid woman an opportunity that will not come her way for another four years. Greeting card makers have taken up her plight, and offer her varying ways of proposing to the object of her affections.

Some Not So Cute

In the straight Valentine class are the cute and strictly sentimental cards. Bitter feelings may be vented in a few types which are innocuous on the cover, but pride-puncturing inside.

One of the latter shows a small, smiling rabbit on the cover declaring "Whoever gets you for a Valentine . . ." and concludes inside with ". . . is sure gonna get stung."

Another declares in large type on the outside: "Gee, you can sure kiss. . .": and inside the single word "my," with a large foot protruding from the centre of the card.

Leap Year cards are few and far between. A count in one store showed only four among about 200 of all kinds. The messages are strong enough to overcome their lack of numbers, however.

By accident or design, the heroines of two of these Leap Year cards are depicted as kittens. One, in cave girl garb — recalling the time when women wore furs and didn't want to — declares she is a forlorn female who has waited three long, lonely years in a cave.

She says that happy days are here again. By the way, she carries a club.

Beware

The other kittenish card has a sensible sort of warning on it: "It's Leap Year; Beware of most females." This kitten is a skittish model.

She tells the world:
"You think you can't trust me,
But I'm here to state you can;
'Cause I don't want a husband,
I want a single man."

Inside the card is the last line, accompanied by an outsize picture of the no-longer skittish kitten leaping with all her might, arms outstretched, presumably for a single man.

At one time, a Valentine was considered a proposal of marriage. The practice, fortunately or otherwise, has died out.

Of course, the day is named for St. Valentine, who was beheaded for his refusal to renounce Christianity on the day of the pagan Roman festival of Lupercalia, when Roman youths picked lots for their sweethearts.

Legend maintains that the saint was a matchmaker who defied the decree of Claudius II against marriage by Roman soldiers, and secretly heard the vows of young lovers.

While in prison, on the eve of his execution, he wrote a farewell letter to the jailer's daughter, signing it "from your Valentine."

And so, this being Leap Year, and tomorrow being St. Valentine's Day, here are the thoughts of one bachelor:

"Roses are red, violets are blue,
I'm off for the bush; how about you?"

New Discovery To Help Conserve Gas

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

GORGAS, Ala., Feb. 14 (AP)—A coal fire, lighted under an oil well to produce more petroleum, is the new step in conservation of gasoline.

The discovery was described here Wednesday to enthusiastic mining scientists attending the first international conference on underground gasification of coal. The process was reported by Frederick Squires and Edmund S. Merriam, of Champaign, Ill.

They said there are seams of coal in many oil fields. A hole is drilled down to a seam, and the coal there is set on fire and sealed in such a way as to force the gases from the fire out long distances underground.

No matter whether the oil sands are over or under the coal, the gas reaches the oil and forces it up the petroleum wells. The Illinois scientists said a similar trick can be done, where there is no coal, by burning some of the oil in the sands to produce gas to make the wells flow again.

Another Trick

This oil recovery is an offshoot of the underground cooking of coal to substitute for mining here at Gorgas.

The newest trick was shown Wednesday. Electricity is used to boil the coal underground. This saves digging shafts.

Holes 60 feet apart are drilled down to a coal seam, electric cables are lowered down each hole and current flows through the coal between the two cable ends.

The electrical heat boils the coal. Rich gasses boil off and rise through the holes to be trapped for industrial use.

Lowest Death Rate

TORONTO, Feb. 14 — (CP) — Ontario had the lowest tuberculosis death rate in its history last year when 13 deaths per 100,000 population were recorded, Health Minister Phillips said Wednesday. The Canadian death rate in 1950 was 25.9 per 100,000.

Aerial Hunters

FORT FANCES, Ont. —(CP)— Several permits have been granted here to hunters planning to shoot wolves from aircraft. A special permit is required for these.

PLANE MISSED ORPHANAGE — The crumpled wreckage of the National Airlines DC-6, which crashed in Elizabeth, N.J., lies in the street in front of the Janet Memorial Home, an orphanage. In the right rear background, behind the trees, is the apartment building the plane hit. It then careened into the field in front of the orphanage and parts bounced into the street.

End Wolf Menace By Poison Bait

SUDBURY, Ont. — (CP) — Strychnine poisoning is the method recommended by veteran trapper Ed Sawyer of Biscotasing, Ont., to dispose of wolf packs which have caused deer to become almost extinct in some areas on northern Ontario.

Sawyer, who has spent 60 of 66 years in the bush around Biscotasing, 90 miles northwest of Sudbury, says strychnine sprinkled beneath the hides of deer carcases will rid the north of the problem of deer-marauding wolves—a method he is willing to bet $100 on would be successful.

Sawyer, who thinks the provincial government should license qualified trappers to poison wolf packs en masse, told the recent convention of the New Ontario Trappers' Association that the hides should be peeled back and the inside meat treated then the hides replaced and the carcasses rolled back to their original positions.

One lick of the treated meat is sufficient to kill a wolf, said Sawyer as he explained that treatment of the inside meat is necessary because wolves know a carcass usually becomes frozen and will roll it over to get at the softer meat on the underside.

Scottish Landowner Calls For More Food Production

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 13 — (CP) — Lord Lovat of Beauly, one of Scotland's leading landowners and cattle-breeders, believes he has a solution for Britain's acute food-shortage problem.

Speaking in a House of Lords debate, he suggested that as a starter the people themselves should concentrate on producing more home-grown food from nearly 20,000,000 acres still to be developed in the United Kingdom.

But to get back on its agricultural feet the country primarily needs a bold, long-term development policy.

Lord Lovat, a wartime commando, who controls about 190,000 acres of farmland, mainly in Inverness-Shire, aroused considerable curiosity in the chamber when he placed on the seat beside him a plate containing a pair of rowelled spurs. Later, he disclosed they had been brought along to spur the government into action, if necessary.

Too much money had already been squandered, the Scottish peer charged, on overseas developments such as the £30,000,000 West Africa peanuts scheme and a costly egg venture in Gambia. He also told of a plan to provide a factory ship to produce shark's fin soup for rich Chinese. This was a commodity, he said, that apparently was no longer popular in Communist China, but it had cost the taxpayer approximately £500,000 before operations were closed down.

All this money, he contended, could have been spent to far greater advantage by helping the United Kingdom to become more self-reliant on her agricultural resources.

Chief Ingredients

The British people, he said, had been told it would be a comparativey easy matter to go overseas for the purpose of their meat requirements. That no longer held true. Supplies in some of the major exporting countries, like Argentina and Australia, were tightening up, while the general rise in production costs was shooting prices sky high.

"In spite of these facts," Lord Lovat continued, "there still seems to be a school of thought which considers that it might be possible to make bargains with the new world and Australia to get beef at cheaper rates. In my view that is entirely wrong".

To redress prevailing shortages, Lord Lovat outlined a program he said he would recommend to the government as a means of implementing a long-term development policy.

The chief ingredients of his proposal: (1) review of existing subsidies; (2) restoration of plowing grants on hill and marginal farms; (3) immediate survey of the country's freight rates structure and easing of charges in areas where intensified production could best be affected; (4) a program providing for winter keep of livestock; (5) reduction of state-owned land so the problem of production may be tackled by the farmers themselves instead of government officials.

"As a farming community we are inarticulate," Lord Lovat said. "Yet if we had only the slightest confidence, if we had over a reasonable period an assurance of guaranteed prices and some form of hope of a policy which did not change every five years with every government, we would gladly launch into a full-scale development program."

Easy Extraction? Nip Doc's Thumb

LONDON—(CP)—If you're extracting a back molar, allow the patient to bite the thumb of your free hand, is the latest advice for dentists.

Dr. A. Livingston, writing in the British Dental Journal, says this will help reduce pain. And it won't hurt the dentist. Eight layers of gauze round the thumb will see to that.

Dr. Livingston says that when a lower molar is being extracted pressure can make the jaw-bone joint on the other side quite painful. If the patient is allowed to bite on the dentist's thumb the pressure tends to decrease.

"This is the kind of wheeze dentists find out for themselves and use, but don't generally pass on," said an official of the British Dental Association.

Claims Invention Eliminates Smoke

VANCOUVER (CP)—Officials in charge of anti-smoke campaigns may be interested in the claim of a Vancouver man that he has invented a smokeless furnace.

Joe Colosimo, 47, says the principle of his invention is simple and may be applied to the oldest furnaces at a cost of between $30 and $40. He says it also may be used on larger furnaces, such as those used in hospitals.

Following a recent demonstration here Fire Marshal W. A. Walker said he was "impressed" but that he could not endorse it until the device has been tested and approved by the British Columbia Research Council.

Colosimo is a veteran of the Second World War and holder of the British Empire medal. He used his re-establishment credits to set up a foundry where he works on the "smokeless furnace" and other inventions.

He claims his invention not only eliminates smoke, but gives 40 per cent greater heat from the same fuel. Instead of the smoke pouring straight up, it is pulled down to the bottom of the furnace by a down-draft and is reburned before the remaining "smokeless smoke" moves up the chimney.

Colosimo has also produced a new type heater for orchards, to protect trees from frost, and demonstrated this in California recently. He plans to show it in the Okanagan fruit district soon.

Members of the property committee of the Public Library Board toured the Library building Wednesday afternoon to make a survey of needed improvements so that the expenses will be included in the 1952 estimates to be drawn up this month.

CHILD HEALTH CLINICS

There were 12 child health clinics held by the Department of Health during January with a total attendance of 323 infants and pre-school children for an average attendance of 26.9. For December, 1951, the average attendance was 13.9, and for January, 1951, 24.1.

TENDER RECOMMENDED

W. R. Turner Co. tender of $568 for heating alterations at the Public Library was recommended to the Council by the Property Committee Wednesday. City Hall contract carried its heating system to the Library, but not beyond. The hook-up failed to supply sufficient heat in the basement of the Library.

FUNERAL SERVICE

The funeral service for Robin J. Runnett, 18 Wallace St., who died in Toronto General Hospital Tuesday will be held at All Saints' Anglican Church Friday at 1.30 p.m. instead of the Comstock funeral home as arranged earlier. A Masonic service will be held Thursday at 7.30 p.m. at the Comstock funeral home.

AT DIRECTORS' MEETING

G. C. Ferguson, owner of the Sanitary Ice and Fuel Co., was one of the directors of the Chemical Industries Accident Prevention Association who met in Toronto Wednesday. Thomas Taylor, Canadian Ventilating Shades Ltd., attended a meeting of the Woodworkers' Accident Prevention Association in Toronto Tuesday as a director.

CONFERENCE HERE

The 8th Regional Conference of Sanitary Inspectors will be held in Peterborough some time in March. This was announced Wednesday at the Board of Health meeting by sanitary inspector R. M. MacPherson. Approximately 40 inspectors are expected to attend from the region which extends west to Bowmanville and east to Cornwall.

UNEXPECTED VISITOR

Some people go south during the winter, but many would find it much cheaper to do what a large brown toad did to beat the cold this winter. Joe Gibbs, engineer in the boiler room of the Beaver Lumber Co., thought he had the boiler room pretty much to himself, but this morning he found a large, healthy-looking toad snuggling up to the furnace. He'll be staying around, Mr. Gibbs said. "I wouldn't turn him out in this cold."

EDUCATION COSTS

A partial answer was given Wednesday to why the cost of education keeps on mounting. Gordon L. Duffin, assistant superintendent of elementary education told an Apsley audience that for the last five years there has been an average increase of 30,000 school children in the province of Ontario. This means 1,000 additional classrooms and 1,000 additional teachers each year to look after the larger enrolment. Education has cost the province some $30,000,000 a year for the last four years and Mr. Duffin predicted it would cost more than $40,000,000 a year for the next two years.

Love Business Through The Mails Drops Off Still Heavy Enough To Plug Post Office

Fewer notes of "sweet nothings" were mailed by sweethearts through the post office channels this Valentine's day than last year although the rush today did resemble any day before Christmas.

The cards began to flow into the offices from the street letter boxes late Tuesday night and remained steady until early today. During that 48 hours the sorters worked just as hard as any day during the Christmas rush.

But all the cards were ready for delivery with the carriers early today. The men left the offices loaded down with the sweetheart messages. They'll all be delivered today as the postmen will be forced to work longer hours than usual.

"It's been just like Christmas," said assistant postmaster, Claire Stuart. "The sorting's completed and the carriers have the load."

35,900 Cards

But the young and old couples wishing to assure each other of their love, or young girls taking advantage of the Leap Year privileges, filled the postage channel with 35,900 Valentine cards today. This was about 9,000 less than last year.

An employee explained the decrease, saying, "Why a number of those people are now married and are not sending cards this year."

But the increase in mail increased the number of cards and letters mis-addressed or without postage. A number were without stamps this year and an equal number with only one-cent stamps instead of the required two-cent stamp. There were the usual mis-addressed mistakes such as no street, no number and mis-spelled names.

Although these cards will be a little late, the postmen will deliver most of them when corrections have been made and thus help Cupid's cause.

The parcel mail this year was not heavy, most the people relying upon cards to carry their wishes. Only a slight increase in numbers was noticed.

Peterborough Mourns Death King George VI Entire Day

All Peterborough will join in mourning the death of King George VI Friday when funeral services will be held in England. At 11 a.m. Friday, all local industries will observe two minutes silence in tribute to the late King George VI. Special memorial services will be held in churches of all faiths, and banks, schools, government and city buildings will remain closed all day Friday—the national day of mourning.

The federal government has informed all municipalities that it is up to local authorities to decide what observances will be held.

Nine Protestant churches in the city will hold memorial services under the direction of the Peterborough Ministerial Association. Five of these services in: George Street United, St. Paul's Presbyterian, Murray Street Baptist, Trinity and Knox United, will be held at 8 p.m.

Follow Program

While the ministers of the respective churches will be in charge, the program will follow the order of service drawn up by the Ministerial Association headed: "A Memorial Service for the Occasion of a Day of Mourning for His Late Majesty King George VI."

Services in three Anglican churches, St. John's, St. Luke's, and All Saints', will be held at 11 a.m. The service at St. George's Anglican Church will be held at 7:30 in the evening. The service from St. John's will be broadcast over CHEX.

Solemn pontifical mass will be celebrated at St. Peter's Cathedral at 10 a.m., and a votive mass will be offered for the peace and welfare of the entire Commonwealth. Similar services will be held in all Roman Catholic churchs in the Peterborough diocese at 8 a.m.

A special memorial service in addition to the regular Friday evening service will be held at the Synagogue at 7:30 p.m., Rabbi J. Mayer announced today.

I.O.D.E. Marching

The I.O.D.E. will be marching in a body to attend the service at St. Paul's Church, but the Canadian Legion will not be attending any particular service in a body.

Legion secretary Hurrell Dodds said that the Ontario Command has informed local branches to adapt their method of observing the day of mourning to local conditions.

With industries operating as usual, it was felt that it would not be practical for the Legion to attend any one service and members are being urged to attend the church of their choice at a convenient time. All Legion activities have been cancelled until after Friday.

Eaton's and Simpson's are two local stores which will be closed. Most other stores and business offices will remain open.

All law offices will be closed all day, and the Public Library will also be closed.

There will be no mail deliveries on Friday. Collections will be made from boxes, and the post office will operate as it does on Sunday.

Downtown ticket offices of both C.N.R and C.P.R. will be closed, but rail passengers will be able to obtain tickets as usual at the ticket offices in the railway stations.

Telegraph offices of the C.N.R. and C.P..R will be open for business.

Broadcast At 4:15 a.m.

Radio station CHEX will go on the air at 4:15 a.m. with the broadcast of the funeral services for the late King and will continue until 9:05 p.m., when the station will end its broadcasting activities for the day.

Theatres have cancelled their matinee performances and will not be opening until 6 in the evening.

Welfare Dep't Secures Pensions For 195 Aged

Applications for 195 old age pensions were secured for eligible Peterborough people by the welfare department last year as mentioned in the annual report by welfare officer A. G. Metheral.

Of that total, 124 were of the new dispensation in the brackets of 65 to 69 years of age. There were also six blind pensions, 18 mothers allowances.

Twenty-nine home calls were made in cases where the applicant was unable to go to the office owing to illness or age.

By the end of 1951, the Old Age Commission had granted 122 of the applications. During the year 72 old age pensioners died; 18 were suspended.

Thirteen mothers allowances were granted by the Commission. One of them was a foster mother.

327 Investigations

There were 327 investigations of hospital cases last year, resulting in 232 admissions and 69 refusals. Ninety-four went to Civic Hospital, 82 to St. Joseph's, and 56 others were for hospitals beyond Peterborough. Twenty-five were sanatoria and 8 were Ontario hospitals.

That is a little chapter reflecting anxiety and humiliation on the one side, and public care and attention on the other.

In its hospital concern, the welfare department as an agency of the general public extends its aid only to indigent patients. They are people without sufficient means to pay their hospital bills.

Mr. Metheral said that the 25 sanatoria cases emphasized the continuing presence of tuberculosis. It was his opinion that this number was the total for Peterborough last year, whether indigent or not. The eight Ontario Hospital cases were indigents in the category of mental aberration.

Cost $22,543

Total cost of hospitalization at Peterborough's two institutions was $22,543.45 of which $3,433.60 was for relief recipients. The balance was incurred for indigent patients. Collections amounted to $731.20. Net cost to the city was $21,813.25, an increase of $10,073.84 from the previous year.

Peterborough paid for 26 patients in outside hospitals, including five in the Ontario hospital for epileptics at Woodstock, Ont.

Payments to outside hospitals included the following: Queen Elizabeth Hospital, Toronto, $1,705; Toronto General Hospital $1,013; Ontario Hospital, Woodstock $982; Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, $820; Kingston General $162; Brockville General $133.

Total of these items was $5,128.20; minus collections $365.10; leaving cost to city at $4,763.10.

Total hospitalization cost to the city last year was $26,575.35. That comprises the Peterborough and out of town hospital charges.

The increase over 1950 was $13,233.67. Mr. Metheral explained that $9,987 of this sum was the effect of an increase of one dollar a day in hospital rates beginning Jan. 1, 1951.

Transportation to and from outside hospitals was $161.10. Extra cars for two patients at outside hospitals was $13.12.

Public Health Nurses Make 544 Visits

Public health nurses of the Department of Health made a total of 544 visits to homes in the city during January. Visits to individuals totalled 959.

These figures were included in a report submitted to the Board of Health at their regular monthly meeting Wednesday afternoon.

Of this total 281 visits were made to infants between the age of one month and one year; 220 visits to pre-school children, and 122 to infants under one month.

The total of individuals visited for the first time was 824.

Beef Prices Drop Again To New Low Of 69 Cents

A beefing public for a second week has forced a reduction in beef prices for roasts, steaks and other cuts today. Large downtown stores changed their prices early today after they had remained steady since a week ago when the first decrease was noticed. Most prices were down about four cents a pound.

The private stores, where the turnover is not as great, lowered prices usually by two cents on all beef cuts. Their prices were slightly higher across the board for beef.

Roasts, short rib, blade and shoulders, registered a four-cent drop today to a low winter price of 69 cents a pound; the same last week were selling for 73 cents and 75 cents. Steaks which sold last week for prices varying from 88 cents to 95 cents were offered today at 84 cents to 87 cents, depending upon the grade.

Drop At Toronto

The cuts in prices reflects a drop in the liveweight prices on the Toronto market. These decreases were the results of buyer resistance to the high prices, a surplus of live cattle on the western and home markets and a surplus of slaughtered cattle at the packing houses. Buying didn't absorb the usual amount of meat.

Further decrease in beef prices are not expected by the wholesalers, although they do expect the present prices to remain firm for two or three weeks.

"The prices have reached the low point for a while, the prices will be firm for three weeks", said a wholesaler.

Foxhound Trials Here Sunday

Largest winter foxhound trials will be held on Sunday at Tully's swamp on the second line of Smith township, sponsored by the Kawartha Foxhound Club.

District officials expect president of the Ottawa club, Preston Bonnyman, and other officials will be present to assist in judging.

There will also be several entrants from various centres present from southern Ontario. Kawartha executives have already been informed that five ladies will enter hounds with an eye to the winning of the Lowe Brothers trophy.

It is expected that this meet will be the largest ever held in the district partly due to the fact that dogs do not have to be registered in order to enter the trials. Members of the Peterborough Beagle Club will attend to the numbering of animals and in judging.

Everyone who intends to go to the meet is requested to meet on Sunday morning at 9 at the C.N.R. freight sheds, Aylmer St., to secure transportation to the meet. For those in their own cars, the highways will be amply marked to direct them to the spot. Bud Lloyd at 23935 will give any additional information.

Hopes To Form Health Unit

"It is hoped and expected that the formation of Health Unit in Peterborough County will be under consideration in the very near future."

This statement was made Wednesday afternoon by Dr. R. A. Kelly, M.O.H., at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Health.

"During the past several years, various municipalities in the county have displayed interest in this matter and as a result a public meeting was held in Norwood, Feb. 7, for the purpose of discussing the question of the formation of such a unit", he explained.

"There were present at the meeting representatives from several municipalities as well as interested persons from the city. After consideration, a committee was formed for the purpose of creating interest in a health unit and then bring the matter before the appropriate bodies".

Dr. Kelly explained that the matter would first be brought before township councils, and after approval was received, to the county council. Not until approval had been received from the county council would the city council be approached.

He also explained that if this unit were formed it would mean that the city would have 25-33⅓ per cent of the cost of its health services subsidized by the provincial government. At present the city is not eligible for such a grant and pays the total cost of these services.

Department Of Health Reports $6,000 Deficit

The Department of Health have a deficit of nearly $6,000 for 1951 of expenditures over the year's estimates as reported at the regular Board of Health meeting Wednesday afternoon.

The estimates were presented by Dr. R. A. Kelly, M.O.H., but no action was taken due to the absence of Board Chairman J. A. Dewart.

Acting chairman P. J. Anglesey explained that this deficit was due entirely to cost of living bonuses given to the Department of Health staff during the year which were not budgeted for in the 1951 estimates.

It was decided to call for tenders for a new car for R. M. MacPherson, sanitary inspector. The matter will be carried over until the next meeting when the results of the tenders will be reported.

The 1952 estimates will again come under consideration by the board at the next meeting.

City People May Cross For Coronation

Once the date of coronation is announced, the Peterborough travel agencies expect a large increase in bookings for England from the Peterborough district.

So far the people are only enquiring about boat and air rates with the possibility that they will attend the coronation. But no definite bookings have been made at either of the railway offices or private booking agencies.

"I imagine that a number of city and district people are interested in attending the coronation but it's too early yet for bookings; besides the date hasn't been announced, said one railway official.

A number have had passage booked for England for a year or more, contemplating a holiday in England and the continent this summer. There is generally a heavy flow of tourist travel in the summer months for England from Peterborough.

Many of these people have told the travel agencies that now they hope the coronation will be held in August or early September, when their holidays are planned for.

"Some people are just planning vacations in England in the early fall or next spring and the coronation will help them definitely make a decision," reasoned another official.

All the agencies expect most of the people to take advantage of the new air rates which go into effect in May. For $477 the tourists may receive return transportation by air to England, thus reducing the number of days they must take off for travel.

One Peterborough citizen recently booked passage for six for England in the spring of 1953. They plan to vacation in England and on the continent with the hopes of seeing the coronation as well.

In Toronto at least 25 persons have their names down for passage to attend the coronation.

An employee of the Union Travel Service said today that inquiries about bookings began last week. There also are no definite bookings made. People are waiting until the coronation date is set.

Six Driven Out By Fire, Destroys Home In Douro Settlement

Two Families Made Homeless by Flames
Believed Extinguished Earlier
One Family's Furniture, Clothing Saved

DOURO, Feb. 14. (Staff)—Six people are homeless today after fire burned to the ground the double house they lived in opposite St. Joseph's Church in Douro. Cause was said to be a chimney fire that flared up four hours after it was thought to be extinguished. Damage to the house is estimated at about $10,000, and damage to the contents has not been estimated.

Homeless are: Michael Casey, 78, and his sister Catherine, 76; Mr. and Mrs. James Moher and sons Robert 4, and Frederick 3; Miss Mary O'Grady, a boarder with the Mohers.

All Possessions Gone

Mr. Casey and his sister lost all their possessions — furniture, clothing, food, etc. The Mohers lost everything they owned in the second storey of the 12-room brick house. They saved all their possessions that were downstairs.

Miss O'Grady lost her engagement ring and a fur coat, as well as some other jewellery and most of her clothing. Half a dozen workers were sifting the ashes of the house today, trying to find the steel box that held the ring.

Mrs. Moher said she first noticed the fire shortly before 5 p.m. She phoned neighbors to spread the alarm, and within 10 minutes, a sizeable crowd had gathered outside the house.

Smoke in the house was too thick for them to do much beyond help the Moher family with their belongings.

Within an hour and a half, the house was burned to the ground. Only the chimney stood, and that was flattened today for safety's sake.

Mr. and Mrs. Moher, staying temporarily with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Towns, say they are at a loss. For a time they will live with Mr. Moher, Sr., until they can find a new home.

On Way Home

Mr. Moher, who works at the C.G.E. in Peterborough, was on his way home from work when the fire started. He didn't get home until the house was burned to the ground. Only $1,000 insurance was carried on the furniture in their part of the house, he said.

The house was a well-known one to Douro residents. It was built in 1886 by James Barry, known for years as "the best carpenter in Douro." He lived in the house for some years, using part of it is a general store. Later he moved to Vancouver, where he died several years ago.

Couple Charged With Perjury

A husband and wife, charged with perjury elected trial by a higher court when they appeared in police court today. They were remanded on bail of $2,500 each until February 20 for preliminary hearing.

Cyril Anderson, 84½ Douro St., and his wife Margaret are charged with committing perjury in a bootlegging charge against Anderson and his wife misled the

The crown alleges that Anderson and his wife mislead the court by swearing falsely that they had not seen Peter McNeely, a crown witness for two months prior to January 11.

McNeely and his wife both swore they visited Anderson's house that day and purchased wine from him.

Gordon H. T. Farquharson who defended Anderson on the bootlegging charge which was dismissed represented Mr. and Mrs. Anderson when they were arraigned on the perjury charges before Magistrate W. R. Philp today.

No Bid Received For Old City Hall What To Do?

Circumstances affecting the old city hall at Simcoe and Water Streets are: (a) no bid for purchase (b) the civic kin, Utilities Commission, beginning to count the days until they move off to their new office at Aylmer and Dalhousie Streets.

That was the prospect before the propery committee with Ald. S. J. Longhurst in the chair Wednesday.

Incidentally, the ceiling in the Utilities board room is a job for a paperhanger that will probably never be done. Strips of bare plaster are showing where the once decorative paper peeled off.

Eventual fate of the building was suggested in a proposal that it be demolished to provide additional parking space and revenue.

That would be only a transitional use until the property is sold some day for commercial or other suitable building site.

Sent To Council

The proolem of the old city hall will be referred to the council in committee of the whole for consideration, including the parking area extension.

City council invited tenders for purchase, but at the specified time at Jan. 31 none was received by City Clerk Outram.

The alternative of rental has not been finally excluded from future prospect, but the council of 1951 was not favorably disposed to leased occupancy. The building is old and outdated. Prospective tenants might demand alterations. For purpose of sale, council is inclined to view the entire block between Charlotte, Water and Simcoe Streets to the rear of the stores on George Streets, as probably most attractive to any future buyers. Meantime, parking revenue would be available, and the central area of parking space could be expanded if the old city hall were down and gone.

Begin Inquiry In Mine Robbery

TIMMINS, Feb. 14 (CP). — Provincial Police Inspector Harold Graham, who arrived by plane from Toronto today to investigate Thursday's $25,000 robbery of gold precipitates from the nearby Aunor Gold Mines, said that all mine employees are being questioned.

Three armed and hooded bandits early Tuesday carried off the precipitates on a toboggan to a get-away car, after binding and gagging three employees at the Aunor mill. Mine manager R. E. Findlay termed it "an inside job from the word go."

Provincial police at the Gold Squad office said the gunmen were apparently in a "highly nervous state" during the robbery. There was evidence that one of them became sick to his stomach in the mill.

Inspector Graham came to Timmins last October to lead the investigation of the $30,000 gold precipitates robbery at the Delnite Mine, 1½ miles south of the Aunor Mines.

Urges Support For Highways

TORONTO, Feb. 14 (CP)—The automobile today is no more of a luxury than a suit of clothes, J. D. Millar, Ontario Deputy Highways Minister, said Wednesday.

He told the Ontario Good Roads Association that unless the need for priority in materials and financial assistance to highways is realized, "a serious breakdown in automotive transport is bound to occur."

Highways Minister Doucett, speaking to the Ontario Road Builders' Association, advocated a "bold and forthright program" to meet the needs of an expanding economy.

"We must not hamper our growth by failing to develop highway transportation," he said in a recorded address played at the annual Road Builders' dinner. Mr Doucett recorded the address in hospital at Ottawa where he is recovering from injuries suffered in a traffic accident last November.

He announced that two new highways designed to relieve Toronto's downtown traffic congestion will be completed by the end of this year.

Accidentally Shot

PENETANGUISHENE, Feb. 14 (CP).—Julian Cascanette, 18, was killed Wednesday when struck by a bullet from a rifle which police said was held by a companion on a hunting trip. John Boucher, 15, and Edgar Perrault, 18, the dead youth's companions, said Perreault's bolt-action rifle jammed. While Perrault was trying to clear it, the weapon discharged and the bullet pierced the heart of Cascanette, who had been standing 10 feet away.

Barbara Brent's BUYS AND WHYS
A WEEKLY INFORMATION SERVICE

MONTREAL, Feb. 14th—Here's my "Tip-of-the-Week" for y-o-u . . . Look for KRAFT DINNER in a brand new package . . . the bright yellow and red package that's really an eye-catcher. "Kraft Dinner" is a wonderful, kind-to-your-budget, good-to-eat dish that you won't want to miss! In fact you'll always want to have it handy—for "get-ready-quick" meals and unexpected dinner guests. You see, "Kraft Dinner" is a real main dish . . . a delicious macaroni-and-cheese combination that cooks to tasty lightness in only 7 minutes. And so economical, too. One package of "Kraft Dinner" contains enough for a main dish for four . . . for less than 4c a serving.

Now That Everyone's Had Their Share of eating health foods to "Look Younger and Live Longer"—here's my suggestion. Why not go to your grocer's and treat yourself to something you really like and enjoy —something that sets your appetite a-soaring and a-singing at breakfast time! Now's the time to do it. For the NEW PACK of freshly-made WAGSTAFFE PURE SEVILLE ORANGE MARMALADE has just come in. So first thing tomorrow—you can enjoy the fresh-made goodness of marmalade made from tangy Sevilles imported from Spain. (That's the very best kind, the experts say.) Yes, Wagstaffe has imported real Seville oranges from Spain—and captured their sunny flavour in this delicious marmalade. So don't wait until it's all gone. Ask your grocer today—for the NEW PACK of Wagstaffe Pure Seville Orange Marmalade!

No More Sleepless Nights For Me . . . not since I've discovered how quickly BEN-GAY (Baume Bengué) relieves rheumatic pain! Just rub in Ben-Gay to rub out "Peter Pain"! Whether he strikes in a head or chest cold—or hits hard in neuralgia, rheumatism or muscular pain . . . this grand rub-in gives happy relief, along with a soothing, nice warm feeling. Yes, Ben-Gay does the trick . . . and it's so easy to apply. Just rub it on the aching areas and see how quickly you feel better. Always keep Ben-Gay on hand—the generous tube costs just 75c at your druggist's.

It's A Toast to health and beauty when you drink the juice of one fresh lemon in a glass of water first thing on arising . . . for this natural fruit drink helps keep you regular the healthful way. That's because lemon-in-water doesn't "tie you up in knots" as harsh laxatives do . . . just gently helps your system regulate itself. So take my tip . . . if you're feeling "low 'n' grumpy"—follow this healthful lemon formula for feeling better. It always makes me feel like a new woman . . . but one thing I make a point of remembering, I always ask for SUNKIST CALIFORNIA LEMONS. You see, they're the finest, juiciest grown.

You'll Be His Favourite Valentine . . . when you serve any one of the delicious HEINZ CONDENSED SOUPS . . . in any one of the lots of ways you can serve them! Yes, "Soup's On!" means something specially good when the soup you serve is Heinz. You see, the folks at Heinz are soup specialists. They combine long experience with great skill to bring you the very best of flavour-packed soup. And there are more than just a few good ways to enjoy Heinz soups. They're "tops" as a first course—marvellous in meat loaves, pies and rarebits. Ask your grocer for Heinz Soups. You know they're good because they're Heinz.

Don't Give Up those marvellous detergents just because they're drying to your hands. You can feel perfectly relaxed about using them if you smoo-oth your hands with JERGENS LOTION afterwards. I keep a bottle of Jergens Lotion in my kitchen—always—and in my bathroom, too—and use it between chores. It doesn't slow me down because it's never sticky or greasy. It's soothing, smoothing liquid that quickly supplies the softening moisture that dry, thirsty skin needs. Yes, you'll find when you use Jergens Lotion regularly that your hands will be soft and smooth as a baby's skin —always. You'll love Jergens Lotion! Ask for it—just 15c, 37c, 65c and $1.15.

"No Time" Is No Excuse for not giving your family the kind of breakfast they deserve —and need. It takes so little time to prepare one of the most delicious morning treats I know . . . a "CREAM OF WHEAT" breakfast. You see, 5 Minute "Cream of Wheat" cooks to satin-smooth perfection and full digestibility in just five minutes of boiling . . . and it takes just seconds more to sprinkle it with raisins or brown sugar. M-mmm! . . . there it is —a breakfast treat that really begins your day. 5 Minute "Cream of Wheat" is not only good—it's good for you. It provides Iron, Calcium and Phosphorus for diets deficient in these elements.

Pretty Important To A Man — sparkling white shirts! So you can take a bow when your husband raves about the whiteness of his! But give some of the credit to Blue—for Blue does the best job of all in keeping clothes from turning yellow. Just a swish or two of Blue in the final rinsing—that's all there is to it. And it's so safe for the fine fabrics in your wash! Those wonderful sheets you got for your anniversary—the luncheon set that's your pride and joy . . . don't take chances—use Blue to keep them white! Costs just a few pennies a month—and that makes good sense, doesn't it?

Yes, for the whitest wash, it's RECKITT'S Blue.

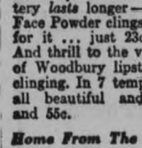
More Beautiful Women use Woodbury Face Powder . . . why don't you? Yes, more and more of the loveliest women you know are choosing WOODBURY FACE POWDER. Know why? Only Woodbury, with its secret blending process and special foundation cream ingredient, offers such exciting satin-smoothness, such superb shades. And its flattery lasts longer—for Woodbury Face Powder clings for hours! Ask for it . . . just 23c, 45c and 75c. And thrill to the vivid excitement of Woodbury lipstick . . . creamy, clinging. In 7 tempting shades . . . all beautiful and velvety. 23c and 55c.

Hang Some Gay Decorations — put on a pretty dress—and have fun at your youngsters' parties. It's easy to do when you're not all worn out from fussing over "fussy" food. Simply make something easy — yet oh-so-delicious . . . with wonderful JELL-O PUDDINGS. Here's a recipe that's always a party-success—yet economical and simple to prepare . . .

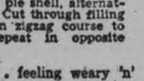
MARBLE PIE

Prepare 1 package each Jell-O Chocolate Pudding and Jell-O Vanilla Pudding, using 1¾ cups milk for each. Cool mixtures. Put, a tablespoon at a time, into baked 9-inch pie shell, alternating flavours. Cut through filling with knife in zigzag course to "marble", repeat in opposite direction.

Home From The Office Or From Shopping . . . feeling weary 'n' worn? Then I'd suggest you try the tastiest "perk-me-up" I know . . . INSTANT CHASE & SANBORN COFFEE. It's quick and easy to make —takes no longer than boiling the water—so there isn't long to wait before you can enjoy its full-bodied goodness. M-mmm . . . isn't it good? The flavour's there—and the real lift . . . thanks to the Chase & Sanborn coffee-experts. I always keep a jar of Instant Chase & Sanborn handy in my pantry cupboard. It's a real friend when I'm feeling tired . . . and a real delight when guests drop in. You see, it's as easy to make ten cups as one. And economical—for there's no waste.



I Hope You've Never Had Any Valuables Stolen Or Lost through fire . . . it's such an unhappy experience. But I do know one way to avoid it! So simple—so convenient—and so inexpensive . . . just store your precious possessions in a Safety Deposit Box at the BANK OF MONTREAL. Then, when you go visiting for a night or a week—you can be perfectly relaxed in the thought that they're safe as can be. I find my B of M Safety Deposit Box a wonderful aid to my peace of mind. Why not gather your valuable papers and keepsakes together today . . . and take them down to your neighbourhood branch of the B of M. It takes just minutes to rent a Safety Deposit Box . . . and costs less than two cents a day!



Be sure to read this column next week for full details of the exciting new $5,000.00 Contest.

Dairy Industry Plans More Fluid Milk

SASKATOON, Feb. 14 (CP).—George F. Raithby of Guelph on Wednesday said forces outside the field of dairy production are determining the trend of that production toward fluid milk or into some form of concentrated milk.

Mr. Raithby, Professor of Animal Husbandry at the Ontario Agricultural College, told the annual convention of the Saskatchewan Dairy Association that the trend of Canada's dairy industry is towards more production for fluid milk and concentrates rather than for butter. He said this was a result of the heavy settlement in industrialized areas of Canada and technical advances in transportation and in concentrating milk in cans and packages as a powder.

New Power Sources Sought In N. Ontario

TORONTO, Feb. 14 — (CP). — Ontario Hydro is looking north for new sources of power.

Premier Frost said Wednesday that Ontario is interested in the possibility of using the lignite deposits of Northern Ontario to produce electrical energy.

The presence of great quantities of lignite in an area north of Cochrane has been known for years, but a way of bringing it to the major markets of the province at a reasonable price has not yet been found.

Now it is thought that hydro's steam-powered generators, for which lignite would be the fuel, could be brought to the deposits.

Jailed 3 Months

WINNIPEG, Feb. 14 (CP). — Hipolit Buczel, 25-year-old miner, Wednesday was sentenced to three months in jail in connection with the rifle slaying of Jan Rurarz, 30. An Assize Court jury trying Buczel for murder found him guilty on the lesser charge of manslaughter in the shooting, which occurred Oct. 29 at Bissett, Man., 100 miles northeast of Winnipeg.

Possible Election

REGINA, Feb. 14 (CP). — The possibility of a Saskatchewan provincial election this year became more apparent Wednesday when Premier T. C. Douglas told the Saskatchewan Legislature that "expansion" would be his government's third-term watchword. The present C.C.F. administration is nearing the end of its second term.

Would Reduce Drives

TORONTO, Feb. 14 (CP). — Trevor Moore, retiring president of the Toronto Community Chest, said Wednesday night that business men should serve notice that they will only donate to charity twice a year. He suggested that all non-recurring capital appeals hold their drives in the fall. Another plan was to hold all national health and welfare drives in the spring and all other campaigns in the fall.

V.O.N. POSTER GIRL—Margaret Hayward, R.N., 25, of the Victorian Order of Nurses, who is stationed in Montreal, has been selected to portray the cheerful, competent nursing spirit of her Order in picture posters being distributed across the country for "V.O.N. A native of Winnipeg, Miss Hayward served at Deer Lodge Military Hospital, Winnipeg, King Edward Memorial Hospital, Bermuda, and Reddy Memorial Hospital, Montreal, before joining the Greater Montreal Branch of the V.O.N. in 1951.

King's Death Imposed Truce To Britain's Party Rivalry

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 14—(CP)—The events set in train by the King's death have imposed a temporary stillness on the houses of parliametn, leaving the rival parties frozen in stance of mutual hostility.

The King's death not only, as in Prime Minister Winston Churchill's phrase, "stilled the clatter and traffic of 20th-century life", but also forced a postponement of party strife at a time when labor seemed set to offer stern parliamentary opposition.

With the King's funeral set for Friday, normal work in the House of Commons is not expected to be resumed until the following Tuesday. The unexpected loss of parliamentary time will have the effect of telescoping into a few weeks matters that would ordinarily require longer discussion. As previously announced, the budget will be brought down March 4.

In the brief interval between next Tuesday the Commons therefore will have to take up such unfinished business as the foreign affair debate, which adjourned with a Labor motion of censure still on the books, and a number of government bills which have been published but not yet discussed.

One of the most controversial is the national health service bill, which seeks to put an annual ceiling of £400,000,000 on the country's "free" health service.

The additional pressure exerted by the abbreviation of the parliamentary timetable may well intensify the controversy expected to develop within the next few weeks. Since the Conservative victory in last October's general election, Britain has experienced what amounts to a political armistice. The Conservatives, back in office after six years on the sidelines, moved cautiously at first and Labor used the same period to orient itself to the unfamiliar role of an opposition party.

Left Turn

Now the two contestants seem ready to renew the fray, once the proper solemnities have been observed.

A few guesses can be made about the coming conduct of the parties. The Conservative strategy seems to be to provoke as little partisan opposition as possible, at the same time not shrinking from unpopular policies. As for Labor, the trend will almost certainly be to the left, though not necessarily as far as rebel leader Aneurin (Nye) Bevan and his followers would like.

Such a shift may not be of great significance. Parties in opposition always tend to be tugged towards the left. During its period in office, the Labor Government was always to the right of the party as a whole. In opposition, the movement to the left may merely be a natural readjustment.

There have been colorful reports of a split within the Labor ranks, of a weakening of trade-union opposition to the Bevan group and of an all-out bid by the "Bevanites" to capture the party leadership.

It is this correspondent's guess, based party on conversations with a former Labor minister, that the reports can be largely discounted and that Bevan is no nearer to being party leader than he was, say three years ago.

Drop Telecast Plan

NEW YORK, Feb. 14—(CP)—The National Broadcasting Co. Wednesday discarded plans for an attempt to telecast Queen Elizabeth's coronation in the United States by means of an airborne radio relay line.

MINING PRESIDENT—Dr. D. F. Kidd, consulting engineer and mine executive of Vancouver, was elected president of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy at annual meeting held in Ottawa. Dr. Kidd suceeded Dr. Oliver B. Hopkins, director of the Petroleum Division of the Defence Production Department and vice-president of Imperial Oil, Ltd.

Army On Skis

MONTREAL (CP)—All reserve army units in the Montreal area will have a chance at ski manoeuvres being held in the Laurentian foothills each weekend until the middle of March. A small caretaking staff of regular soldiers looks after the camp site during the winter months so the visitors have no chores.

Schools Raided

WINNIPEG (CP)—Night raids by vandals on Winnipeg schools culminated in damage to a new $700 sound projector at the Florence Nightingale school. Trustees agreed to instal outside lighting and to aid juvenile court psychiatrists in their efforts to curb the trouble.

Slalom Starts Olympic Games Prayers Answered, It Snows

By JACK SULLIVAN.

OSLO, Feb. 14 (CP).—Months of training and years of organization work moved into the background today and play-for-keeps took over the sixth winter Olympic games.

By nightfall the winner of the first 1952 Olympic gold medal will be known—for the women's giant slalom.

Down the steep mountainside at Norefjell, 70 miles northeast of this Norwegian capital, 45 of the top women skiers from 15 countries were scheduled to take off for the thrilling 1,500-metre run, about a mile.

An hour before the opening event a heavy snow began falling and although it stopped after several hours the skies remained overcast and there were good prospects of more welcome snow.

Only a few days ago it was feared the opening races might have to be postponed, or even called off. But Norwegian ingenuity triumphed and soldiers, shovelling snow from gulleys to the course, brought it into a condition pronounced fit for racing.

Still Dangerous

It is still dangerous, say the experts, and only "smart" skiers can hope to win.

The only other event on today's program is the two-man bobsled race at Oslo's new Frognerseteren bob run. Germany's Anderl Ostler and Lorenz Nieberl, current world champions, are heavily favored, with the United States and Switzerland ranked next. Canada has no entry.

The bobsledders go down the 1,500-metre course twice today. They do the same thing Friday, and the best total time for the four runs wins the event.

Open Against Germany

Hockey stays largely in the background until Friday when three rinks will be occupied. Canada's opening game is against Germany. The winner of the nine-country tournament may not be known until the final day of the round-robin affair, Feb. 24, when Canada and the United States meet.

Canada's team, the Mercurys from Edmonton, showed what might be expected when they defeated the Americans Wednesday night 3-2 in an exhibition game that brought out 10,000 spectators.

The Mercurys showed better all-round play but one glaring deficiency was their lack of finish around the nets.

Bob Watt, George Abel and Engeubert Miller scored for the Canadians, Engelbert whipping in the winning goal in the final period on Watt's rebound. Arnold Oss and John Mulhern scored for the Americans.

Miller took over his right-wing spot only an hour or so after the player control committee of the International Ice Hockey Federation had given him a clean bill of health on his Olympic eligibility status.

Only 82 of the 1,187 athletes from 30 nations entered in the games were involved in today's events. Canada's contribution toward the 1,187 active participants is 39.

Lepine Wins Sled-Dog Derby

OTTAWA, Feb. 14 (CP).—For the second straight year, a Canadian beat out an American to win the gold challenge trophy and $1,000 in the 1952 three-day annual international sled-dog derby.

Wilf (Bit) Lepine, 31-year-old Quebec City musher, galloped across the downtown finish line, puffing a bit but an easy winner in the 90-mile classic over 17 other contestants, including two women.

He finished the final 30-mile lap in 2:08:20 for his best time in the three heats against a 20-mile-an-hour wind and temperatures below zero. His elapsed time for the race was 6:27:27. The course normally is 100 miles, but it was reduced this year because of the lack of snow in some sections.

Second was Dr. Charles Belford, 30-year-old veterinarian from Deerfield, Mass., who completed the course in 6:40:22. His time in the final lap was 2:12:25. He was driving a team of nine Siberian huskies. Bill Shearer, Boston, Mass., was third with a total time of 6:42:22. He also was driving huskies.

Mrs. Bunty Dunlop, 26-year-old housewife from Bronte, Ont., won a $300 special purse and a $500 gold cup for compiling the best time for the women. She finished with 11:03:13, beating out her lone rival, Mrs. Marie Ouellette of The Pas, Man., who finished in last place with 11:50:29. Her husband Laird, finished in ninth spot with 8:10:11.

Norwood Triumphs

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 14 (ENS)—Norwood defeated Lakefield 8-2 here last night in a speedy T.V.L. contest. A good-sized crowd saw keen play, roughing up late in the tilt. It was 1-1 in the first, as Fawcett scored from Blewett for Lakefield, and Thorpe counted for Norwood with Tompkins and Brydges aiding. Norwood ran wild in the second for six unanswered tallies. Thorpe, Ferguson and Brydges each hit the mesh twice, as Whitnall and Thorpe had two assists each and Brydges one. Griffin got their marker in the third from Rogers and Eady slipped one in for Lakefield.

Marshall and Payne drew majors for fighting, and Jopling and Thompson also tangled for majors during the rugged third heat. Bob Thorpe led the snipers with three goals and two assists, while Brydges also shone with two markers and a pair of assists.

Teams:

Norwood: Goal, Jones; defence, Kelly, Rogers; centre, Tompkins; wings, Thorpe, Brydges; alternates, Payne, Thompson, Whitnall, Robinson, Ferguson, Creighton, Aldred, Magee, Griffin.

Lakefield: Goal, Edgar; defence, Blewett, D. Wasson; centre, Fawcett; wings, Doris, Jopling; alternates, C. Wasson, Hunter, Casey, Eady, Quigley, Williams, Millar, Marshall, Caravaggio.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

The Ace Bailey benefit game at Toronto 18 years ago tonight drew more than 14,000 fans who paid $20,900 into the fund for the injured Toronto player, whose hockey career had been cut short when he was seriously injured in a collision with Eddie Shore on Dec. 11, 1933. The crowd cheered as Bailey and Shore shook hands at centre ice. The game itself ended in a 7-3 victory for Toronto Maple Leafs over an All-Star team.

Giroux Foursome Victors In Walker Cup 'Spiel One Point Up On Stenson

With a capacity entry from a dozen curling centres, that veteran of the Peterborough Curling Club, Cyril Giroux, skipped his rink to first honors to win the Hiram Walker Trophy at the open bonspiel held here Wednesday. One point behind came President F. Stenson's rink, with H. Baptie's local rink a bang-up third, and J. Curtis of Fenelon Falls fourth.

So keenly were the games contested that only six points separated the first four winners—and at that nine games had to go into the extra end before winners were declared.

Kept Moving

Secretary I. Moore kept things going at a good pace all day. In presenting the trophy to skip Giroux's rink, E. O'Toole, on behalf of the Hiram Walker Co., thanked everyone for helping to make the bonspiel a success.

It was the first time some of the out-of-town curlers had been to this rink since the olden days, and they were greatly pleased with the artificial ice and the matched stones. All rinks played the usual three 10-end games, and the bonspiel wound up around midnight.

Sarnia Bows To Redmen 5-3 And Loses Playoff Chance

By The Canadian Press.

The Sailors from Sarnia sailed right out of a playoff berth in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League Wednesday night when they dropped their game with Brantford Redmen 5-3.

Redmen's victory over the last place Sailors in Sarnia strengthened their hold on third place in the league standings.

In the Junior A circuit of the O.H.A., Toronto Marlboros increased their margin in top place in the league with a 6-3 win over ninth place Windsor Spitfires in Windsor. Marlies now lead second place Guelph Biltmores by six points.

Waterloo Hurricanes, in seventh place, played host to Oshawa Generals and whipped the cellar-dwellers 3-2 to snap a 10-game losing streak, and a third period drive in Barrie gave the Flyers a 6-2 triumph over Toronto St. Michael's in the other junior games Wednesday night.

Scorers for Redmen in their triumphant visit to Sarnia were Bill Simpell, Lloyd Ferguson, Robin Hewson, Don Oberholtzer and Bud Kemp. George Gosselin scored twice for the losing Sailors and Vern Gardiner came through with the other.

Paces Marlboros

Danny Poland, the junior league's top goal-getter, paced the Marlboros in their Windsor victory with two goals and an assist. Singletons went to Louis Bendo, Wally Maxwell, Parker MacDonald, and Earl Balfour. Jim Robertson and Joe Zorica sniped for Spitfires.

Bob Attersley's two goals gave Oshawa an early lead at Waterloo, but Ken McNeill, Jerry Horton and Roger Maisonneuve came through for Hurricanes to spoil Generals' chances of moving out of the cellar.

In Barrie Bill Dineen and Bob Sabourin put St. Michael's ahead until Ken Robertson started a Flyer comeback that wound up with a pair of goals by Don McKenny and singletons by Charles Wood, Ron Stewart and Johnny Martan—and victory for the eighth-place Flyers.

Here and There In Sport

"I'll just play on weekends and in my spare time," the towering, 23-year-old Savitt added in an interview. "My tournament schedule will be cut down sharply."

Asked if he would be a candidate for the next Davis Cup team and whether he would go to Australia to help try to retrieve the trophy if selected, Savitt said:

"I don't know. That's too far ahead. After the nationals, I intend to give first consideration to a business career."

Bloodshed On The Nile

Anti-British Rioting 'Old Stuff' Throughout Egypt

The current battles in the Suez Canal Zone and riotous demonstrations in Cairo are not new experiences for either Egyptians or the British. The strategic Suez Zone and the Nile Valley have echoed the sounds of many anti-British riots, armed clashes and demonstrations since Queen Victoria's forces took over rule of Egypt in 1882. Egypt's aim—by now a national obsession—is to free itself of all ties with Britain, to expel all British troops from its shores. Britain's aim is to guard, at all costs, the vital Suez Canal lifeline of the British Empire and key to Middle Eastern power.

1922 British Tommies and Egyptian firemen speed into action after rioters set fire to Cairo railway station. This year Egypt became independent, shaking off the British protectorate. But issue of British military occupation remained. Fuad, father of present King Farouk, became first ruler.

1928 Riot clubs swing as police put down a student uprising at gates of nationalist party headquarters in Cairo. As usual, subject in dispute was independence of British influence. Under negotiation was one of the treaties that gradually loosened Britain's hold.

1936 Water hoses and clubs are used by steel-helmeted police to put down student riots in Cairo. Inflamed by Italian pressure, nationalists made strong bid to oust Britain, touching off savage fighting. But this year, 20-year treaty of alliance was signed.

1952 Anti-British demonstrators hold poster that cries, "Imperialism is collapsing in Egypt, Iran, Morocco, Korea and Viet Nam!" Now, Egypt has torn up the 1936 treaty, touching off new riots, Britsh-Arab battles and cries for "holy war." Britain stands firm, rushes reinforcements.

Hope To Hear Stars

COLUMBUSO., Feb. 14—(CP)—A radio telescope with 48 antennas, is being constructed at Ohio State University and scientists hope that when it is completed they will be able to hear the sounds produced by stars 1,000,000 light years away. The stars produce a "frying sound," said Professor John Kraus, who is conducting the construction of the apparatus, largest in existence and the only one of its particular design.

Rubber-Asphalt Roads Tested

TORONTO — (CP)—Canadian motorists some day may drive on rubber roads.

In fact, some are already.

Eleven miles north of Montreal near Ste. Rose, a quarter-mile strip of rubberized asphalt paving has been in use since October, 1949. Recently, another test strip was built near Unionville, 13 miles northeast of Toronto.

Tests on some 40 stretches of road in Europe indicate that natural rubber mixed with the asphalt adds years to the life of the road, gives a better braking surface and tends to keep ice from forming.

One stretch in the Netherlands has been in use for 13 years on the main highway between Amsterdam and the Hague. It was used by German military traffic and later by Allied tanks and trucks during the Second World War.

Other roads in the Netherlands were torn to pieces by heavy military traffic but the rubber-asphalt stretch still is in good condition and has needed no maintenance work.

Creamy-Colored Powder

The rubber—a creamy-colored powder is grains from half an inch in diameter to dust—is mixed with the asphalt just before the gravel is added.

Scientists say that the rubber absorbs the lighter hydro carbons in the bitumen but not the asphaltenes. To the layman, it looks as if the rubber swells to five or six times its original size.

First experiments with the rubber powder in a paving mixture took place in Malaya and England in the early 1930s. The strip near Ste. Rose was the first laid in Canada, but five now are in operation, two in Ontario, two in Quebec and one in St. John's, Nfld.

The first rubber airplane runway was built in Canada at the RCAF station at St. Hubert, Que.

Conclusive results from the tests now under way may not be available for several years.

Legion Parachutists Closing In On Gafsa

TUNIS, Feb. 14—(Reuters)—Parachutists of the French Foreign Legion were reported today to be moving towards Gafsa, in Central Tunisia, after a leading pro-French Tunisian and two French police had been shot dead in the area.

The Tunisian, Si Sliman Ben Mamouda, was Caliph of Gafsa. He was shot dead with a pistol bullet in the heart, at the village of Msila, near Gafsa. The assassin escaped.

Police regarded the killing of the Caliph with anxiety as the first evidence that the lives of pro-French Tunisians are in danger.

The shootings broke a lull which set in after the recent bloody rioting against French colonial rule.

Three Canadians Mount To Ballet Fame

By JOHN PATERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO—(CP)—Two promising young dancers and a veteran showman are Canada's contribution to the United States' largest ballet company, Ballet Theatre, now touring Canada.

Dorothy Scott of Vancouver, Fernand Nault of Montreal both are soloists and Les Appleby of Perth, Ont., whose theatrical career dates back to the famed Dumbells of the First World War era, is company manager.

The three have toured England, France, Italy, Denmark and other European countries with Ballet Theatre as well as travelling over most of North America, although none had ballet in mind when they started their respective careers.

Fernand, 26, single, a veteran of the Canadian army with the sturdy physique of a highly-trained athlete, got his chance because of a broken leg—not his own.

It came in his native Montreal where he had studied dancing for a number of years. He had started with tap, added acrobatic dancing for variety and was advised to study ballet. After he had seen one performance of the U.S. company, a place with it became his goal.

He tried first in 1941 in New York without success. Then in 1946 the company re-visited Montreal. One of the dancers, Todd Bolender broke his leg and Rosella Hightower, then company ballerina, who knew his work, recommended him to Miss Lucia Chase, company director.

Appeared At Met

"I was accepted, flew to Ottawa for a passport, went to New York and with just one rehearsal appeared on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House with the company, all within three days," he said in an interview.

He does character roles principally.

For the fair-haired, slender Miss Scott, in her early 20s, the road was more circuitous.

She started tap lessons when she was five. Her mother, pianist in a dancing school, started her early. Later she took up ballet and at 17 joined a vaudeville show that went broke in Mexico.

"Faced with a choice of returning to Vancouver or trying my luck in New York I chose the big city," she said.

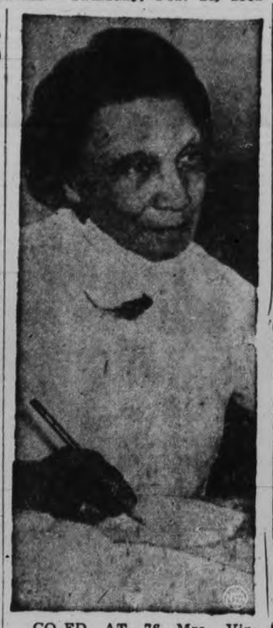
Her first Broadway chance came within a few weeks, but it, too, was a flop—a 10-day wonder called 'Rhapsody'," she said.

Other musicals followed and she had the dancing lead in "Red Mill." Between shows she did television but the urge to dance ballet brought her two lunch-hour auditions with Ballet Theatre. Three years ago she was accepted. She has a reputation back-stage for her "terrific turns" and the long hours of rehearsal and practice she puts in.

Company manager Mr. Appleby said of her: "One of five members of Ballet Theatre who have star potential as ballerinas."

The veteran himself is still erect with the soldierly bearing acquired during overseas service with the 7th Battalion in the First World War. He went to the U.S. when "Canadian show business died on the vine."

He joined Ballet Theatre seven years ago. He took time off in 1949 to handle English comedian George Formby's Canadian tour.



CO-ED AT 76—Mrs. Virginia Fountain, 76-year-old grandmother, has entered Wayne University, Detroit, aiming at a college degree "if it doesn't take too long." Mrs. Fountain entered the second grade at 53, after her husband died and her two children were "able to take care of themselves." The elderly co-ed plans to make the most of her college career. "After all," she says, "It's Leap Year and I might meet a nice college boy."

New Sheep

CAPETOWN (CP) — A new South African breed of sheep, the Dorper, was shown for the first time at an agricultural show in Paarl recently. Originally bred from Dorset Horns and Persians, the breed is claimed to be an unusually hardy type.

Recalls Copper Shortage

LINCOLN, England (CP) — While demolishing property here a workman found an old lead token. An official of Hull museum says the find is a reminder of the copper shortage in the early 18th century when people melted down pennies for their own use.

Steel X-Rayed With Atomic Eye

OTTAWA — (CP) — Canada's National Research Council now is equipped with an "eye" that can see through steel, that can X-ray steel in roughly the same sort of way doctors have long X-rayed human bodies.

It is one of the valuable products of the Chalk Rifer atomic project, one of the uses found for the radioisotopes or radioactive atoms which are turned out in the reactor of nuclear furnace as a sideline to the splitting of atoms.

The isotopes are finding increasing use in medicine, in research, in detecting flaws in steel, in other things. They can be traced as they move through the human body, through steel, through other things because they give off rays which can be charted.

Thus in the N.R.C.'s radiology laboratory here there is equipment which allows minute inspection of steel through and through.

Put a pair of steel pliers in front of a fluorescent screen lighted by eerie gamma rays from the isotope and the pliers become transparent. This sort of eye is not unique but scientists here say Canada's is unsurpassed in its keenness because of the unique qualities of Chalk River's reactor.

The equipment allows, say, an engineer to know that the steel he is going to use has no flaws deep inside which might some day cause trouble. It also will check through a cement wall to see whether steel rods inside the wall are in good condition.

The radiosotope used is the now-well-known Cobalt 60, a piece of cobalt the size of a stack of 25 cent pieces half an inch high. Equipment developed by Dr. Adair Morrison and Graham Rice of N.R.C. allows the object of study to be X-rayed on a screen or to be photographed.

New Collection

MONTREAL (CP) — Lost and strayed automobiles of doubtful vintage, along with wrecked and stolen cars, have overflowed the usual collection spot on the sewer department lot and now are being collected at historic Champ de Mars near city hall. There they rest with sewer pipes, valves and other items.

Young Child Speaks For First Time After Watching Television

PITTSBURGH — (AP)—Television has helped a five-year-old girl start a new life—which seems like a miracle to her.

It was while watching a Pittsburgh TV star do pantomime that little Claire Porvaznik broke through the speech barrier caused by a cleft palate at birth. A cleft palate is a hole in the roof of the mouth which prevents pronunciation.

When Claire called to her brother, "look at Mitzi Johnny!" everyone in the Porvaznik living room froze. Mrs. Porvaznik made Claire repeat what she had said.

Amid tears the family realized that Claire was cured. They looked at the television set and saw Mitzie Steiner doing her pantomime piece.

"If anyone is directly repsonsible for Claire speaking it is Mitzi Steiner," said Mrs. Porvaznik.

"We had noticed some progress since Claire's plastic surgery operation last September. But we were depressed at the thought of long months of speech training that lay ahead."

Dec. 7 Claire returned to the clinic for a check-up on her operation. The doctors didn't know what to say. They examined Claire, and told the happy parents she was cured.

"Claire can go to school next year," they said.

One of the biggest thrills in Claire's new miracle life came when her idol, Mitzi Steiner, walked [illegible] home. Little Claire ra[illegible]ross the room and threw her arms around Mitzi and both cried.

British Firm Reproduces Fabrics Of Historical Value

LONDON — (CP) — Beautiful fabric designs in furnishings of 15 of Britain's ancestral homes have been copied and reproduced by a British textile firm.

During the Second World War owners of the historic furnishings gave permission for the work to be done and now a series of 25 of the hangings and coverings in various color compositions have been reproduced in rayon. At present they are on exhibition in London, but eventually most of them will go for export.

Of most interest historically, perhaps, are four examples from the great collection of needlework embroideries at Hardwick Hall, Derbyshire, owned by the Duke of Devonshire.

These are fabrics embroidered during her long imprisonment by Mary Queen of Scots, with the help of her custodian "Bess of Harwick." One has a design of octagonal panels, with latin mottoes referring to her misfortunes. Another has been taken from an embroidered screen with painted panels of birds and insects.

A perfect example of brocade is copied from hangings on the Tester bed in the Duke of Northumberland's Alnwick Castle. Adam influence is seen in damask from Osterley Park, the home of Lord Jersey.

From Drummond Castle, the property of the Earl of Ancaster, comes a quaint applique design of ancient Scottish soldiers and their weapons, taken from the cover of a 16th-century workbox.

When George IV was Prince of Wales he visited Burghley House, in Lincolnshire, home of the Marquess of Exeter. The crimson silk damask that covered the walls of the room prepared for him is also reproduced in this fine collection.

Peanut Yields Wool Substitute

LONDON—(CP). — Austerity-ridden Britons will soon be parading about in mothproof, unshrinkable synthetic clothing made from peanuts grown in West Africa.

Known as ardil, the new protein-type wool substitute, is being mass-produced by a factory near Dumfries, Scotland. Clothes made from the material will be sold in British shops for the first time this year.

A report issued by the Commonwealth Economic Committee estimates that approximately 20,000,000 pounds of the synthetic fabric will be produced during 1952 and marketed in the United Kingdom and overseas.

The new cloth, said to be superior in quality to anything developed by the synthetic textiles industry in Germany before the war, can be dyed any color and blends well with wool or cotton to produce a hard-wearing fabric.

Tests have shown that ardil clothing lasts as long as cloth made from pure wool and possesses the wool-like qualities of warmth and softness. It will also be cheaper as the new material sells a 30 per cent less than natural wool.

The committee's report discloses that experiments also being made with fish, feathers, soya beans and eggs in the development of synthetic fibres.

Dick Contino, Accordionist, Would Alter Way Of Life

By BOB THOMAS

GLENDALE, Calif., Feb. 14—(AP)—"If I had life to live over again? Certainly, I'd do things differently. But I'd start back a few years."

Dick Contino, the onetime sensation of the accordion, was pondering his past mistakes. He has plenty of time to do so, since he has made no professional appearances since a year ago. His career came to an abrupt halt when he failed to report for army duty at Fort Ord.

The handsome, husky 21-year-old was sentenced to six months in prison and fined $10,000. He served the full time at McNeill Island, Wash., minus a month for good behavior and 15 days allowance for working on the prison farm. He regained his freedom two days before last Christmas.

"Naturally, I thought about the past while I was in prison and since I've been home," he said. "But it isn't just the one big mistake I would have changed. I would have started further back.

Heavy Pace

"When I was touring with an entertainment unit for Horace Heidt, I was doing one-night stands with five and six shows a day. Sometimes we would travel 400 miles to make the next show the following day. When I finally got my freedom from Heidt, I started out with my own show the next day. The performers who had been with me before handed in their notice to Heidt and joined me.

"I kept going at the same pace. The offers kept pouring in, and I saw no reason not to take them. I was young, I felt strong and I was enjoying myself. I didn't realize what the fast pace was doing to me until the crack-up came. Then I had plenty of time to think about it."

Contino has done little since his release from prison. He went to his home town, Fresno, for Christmas and then came back to Glendale. At present, he said, he is waiting to be drafted into the army. "If I'm not drafted, I'll enlist," he said.

It has an all over tiny dobby pattern.

Mary Moore Takes A Busman's Day Off—And Loves It!

What city I was in doesn't matter, but some who read this will know I was in their town by the folks I saw.

The primary reason for my visit was to see the newspaper folks and, as often happens when I breeze in, the first thing I was greeted with was a letter from a reader and a note to call another on the telephone. It is all fun and I love it.

Because the publisher suggested it I called Mrs. J. S. Campbell on the telephone too, and she invited me over. Such a charming and diminutive little lady! I felt I could have listened to her for hours, and hope to sometime for she invited me back. She has a wealth of treasured memories to share. Then I skidded down the icy street to Marion Opperman's new shop. That gal sure has a big viewpoint. She has girls' clothes of all sizes and shapes and ages and quality: I wish I could have bought little silk broadcloth hand-smocked dresses at her prices for Marianne when she was wee.

Then the crowning event of the day—dinner at Marjie's. This was her plan: Since she does not get home in time to prepare dinners with roasts very often she said if I could make my calls in time to be back in her apartment by 4:30 p.m. we could have roast beef for dinner,—otherwise—she didn't get any further for I snapped up the roast beef offer too fast.

I had the roast beef in under the wire at 4:30 (and I do mean wire for the oven was electric), and from then on the fun grew.

The folks that belonged in the house and the guests that were invited because I was there began to arrive home—and I received them in the kitchen.

I tried to look as if I were helping by basting the roast and scrubbing the potatoes to roast around it, but I actually was quite in the way. However I did make the gravy and for two reasons I am going to tell you how: (1) a reader said she appreciated my careful instructions on how to properly poach an egg (so maybe simple things like that and how to make gravy should be given more space) and (2) I was figuratively under Marjie's thumb and had to do it the way it is always done in her household, because Gracie likes it this way, and Gracie is the gravy addict.

I belong to the school that sprinkles the dry flour in the roasting pan, but—

Gravy a la Marjie

Is done this away. Into a rose plastic gravy shaker (with a twist-on lid) put 4 tablespoons flour and about one-third cup cold water. Shake until it is mixed and smooth. Stir this into the fat and lovely brown sediment in the pan and add the water from the celery stalks you are boiling for a vegetable (see below) and stir until thick. If needed add salt and pepper to taste. If gravy is ever too pale have on hand some Gravy caramel (burnt sugar) or gravy granules and stir them in sparingly.

Celery Dish

I could stand this once per week in winter—and it is an excellent way to utilize those outside celery stalks. Clean and cut outer celery stalks into bite-size pieces. Boil in salted water to barely cover but not so long that all the crispness is gone—never more than 15 minutes. Use water in gravy or soup. Add 1 can of condensed mushroom soup. Heat through. Serve in hot vegetable dish. Sprinkle ½ cup almonds browned in a little butter over top.

Endive and Green Onion Salad

Gracie's boy friend wasn't coming so Marjie pulled apart a whole head of endive and mixed in the green part from about 6 onions chopped fine. Tossed the works with heavenly French Dressing. A grand day.

BABY'S CRY IS NOT ALWAYS TEMPER

DISTINGUISH between your baby's cry at pain and cry of temper. The "pain cry" should have instant attention. For the feverish distress due to gas on stomach or bowels or those common digestive upsets, give Baby's Own Tablets at once. As one Toronto Mother reports — she finds they work every time. "I am the mother of nine children, three of them prize babies, and Baby's Own Tablets have been my only medicine in raising them to the healthy children they now are. As soon as my children became a little feverish I at once gave them Baby's Own Tablets and in a very short time the fever disappeared and the children were normal again."

Equally effective for constipation, upset stomach, teething troubles and other minor ailments of babies. Quickly effective. Sweet-tasting. No "sleepy" stuff—no dulling effect. Sickness often strikes in the night. Get a package today at drug stores. Money back if you are not satisfied. 30¢.

THE Y CAFETERIA from today on will be known as "The Copper Kettle," the name selected by judges from more than 100 entries in a name-the-cafeteria contest. Dietitian in charge, Miss Gwen Reed (left), and chairman of the contest, Mrs. Donald Whyte, arranged bright spring flowers in a copper kettle which will become the symbolic decoration in the cafeteria.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

'The Copper Kettle' Name Chosen For Y Cafeteria

"At the Copper Kettle" will soon be a familiar phrase among Peterborough's downtown diners.

Christening of the popular cafeteria in the Y.W.C.A. building took place today, and it is now "The Copper Kettle."

The name was picked by judges from the more than 100 entries in the name-the-cafeteria contest which closed on Saturday. Immediately the decision was made, judge Mr. R. R. Faryon said he would provide a copper kettle for the room.

It was then revealed by chairman of the contest, Mrs. Donald Whyte, that this name was submitted by Miss Leta Brownscombe, executive director of the Y. The prize is six dinners in the cafeteria, and Miss Brownscombe has decided to give the cash value of her prize toward purchasing small copper ornaments for the tables.

Redecoration of the cafeteria for this occasion is not yet complete, so the special dinner that was planned to announce the contest selection will have to be held early next week instead. The committee is awaiting a pretty plaid wallpaper which they selected for one wall. The other walls have been painted with an unreflective neutral tone, and thus the room will be completely changed.

Two members of the Y board, Mrs. H. T. Rehill and Mrs. Paige Rowell, were judges, with Mr. Faryon, of the contest entries. They gave lengthy consideration to some of the suggestions which embodied names of the new Queen and her children and others bringing in the word Dominion.

The Rev. C. G. Boyd spoke briefly on the history of the Fraser Auxiliary. Greetings were then extended by Mrs. Harold Tate of the Toronto and Kingston Synodical, and Mrs. A. Newton Reid of Colborne, Prebyterial president.

The tea room convener was Mrs. H. G. McKenzie who had arranged bouquets of dainty pink and white carnations for the tea table and to centre the table on which the candles were in pink-tinted holders.

"New Silhouette" To Flatter The Male Figure

MONTREAL, Feb. 14—(CP) — The "new silhouette" in men's clothing, designed to flatter the male figure, will give men the neat, well-groomed look, Thomas Adler of Montreal said today.

He told delegates attending a convention of the Retail Men's Wear Association of Canada that in 1952 styles, from top to bottom, the well dressed man will wear "better looking and better fitting clothes than ever before."

"The cut of the lapels are narrower and shoulders are to be less accentuated to conform to the more slender silhouette," he said. "The shoulder padding that made a slim man look like a Hercules, will disappear. Waistlines also will come in and trousers will conform to these slenderizing lines."

WARM CONGREGATION

Seats in the ancient church at Lammi, ner Helsinki in Finland, will be warmed next winter by electric rod hidden underneath.

YEP, SILLY SEASON'S A-COMIN'—Yes, boys, spring is supposed to be the silly season, and these new Paris hats don't prove otherwise. That little opus at left, for instance. That was designed by Pierre Balmain, for spring, 1952. In case this picture is one the missus misses, you can tell her it is a white felt tricorne, with severe side-sweep, cut-out crown and a long feather, looking like a solidified drip, drooping down behind. The other thing, that looks like an explosion in a spaghetti factory, is also a hat, according to designer Lanvin Castille. No spaghetti it, but merely an "asymmetrical cascade of rolled black organdy sticks falling from a tiny black straw cap." See?

Hymn Charades Entertain Springville YPU

SPRINGVILLE, Feb. 14 (ENS) —The Young People's Union of the Springville charge held their Sunday evening meeting at the home of Hazel McIntosh.

A short service in memory of King George VI was conducted by the president. She emphasized his upright Godly life that gained him the respect and love of his people and suggested that in remembrance of him the young people takes as their motto: "Put your hand into the hand of God", a quotation from one of his Christmas broadcasts.

Catherine Earle, convener of the Missions and World Outreach group, had charge of the evening program. Margaret Earle read the scripture. Marion Diven and John Campbell spoke on United Church missions. Myrtle Seymour and Eleanor Whitfield had charge of an interesting missionary treasure hunt and discussion groups.

Hymn charades formed the special recreation for the evening. Four groups acted out such hymns as Jesus Wants Me For A Sunbeam, We Plough the Fields, Rest Ye Weary.

Plans were made for representatives of the group to attend the Presbytery skating party on Wednesday evening at Norwood.

Lunch was served by the hostess and her parents. John Campbell expressed the appreciation of the group to the hostess and her parents for their hospitality.

DOROTHY DIX

Wife With Too Much Money May Disrupt Her Marriage

DEAR MISS DIX: My father died two years ago and left me quite a bit of cash, securities and property. I had been married a year at that time and was doing private duty nursing while my husband finished college. The estate, when settled, gave me quite a bit of spending money—so we spent!

I have now settled down (with two children), my husband is out of school and has a good job but he wants to continue spending my income and I want to live on what he makes, saving what I get for our children. We want a big family and it takes a lot of money to put youngsters through school. With my money, we recently purchased a nice house, furniture and a car. Now my husband wants a bigger car. Doesn't want to go into debt, or take out a loan for it, but to get if from "my" money. He brags about the fact that we paid cash for our house and don't owe a thing—as if he did it all. I feel lucky—almost humble—that we don't have the usual financial worries that beset most young couples.

How can I make my husband stop bragging about how much money we have to spend, and how can I convince him that we should live on his income?

ELLEN B.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You are indeed fortunate to be in such fine financial shape, but there is altogether too much "my" money in your life. Marriage is a partnership, remember. Since you are apparently able to pay for luxuries that the family wouldn't have without your income, either buy them gracefully or not at all. If your husband's income is not sufficient to cover these items, it is your good fortune that makes them possible.

Make Specific Plan

You should both come to a definite arrangement, however, as to how much of your money should go into the family's living expenses, and how much should be saved. Some of it certainly should be salted away for the future, the amount to be determined by a mutual budget conference, and scrupulously adhered to.

Your husband should be told that bragging about money, or for that matter, even discussing it outside the family circle, is extremely bad form. If he wants his manners to fit in with his secure financial position, this is one habit he should most assuredly eschew.

It is very evident that the apparently fortunate prosperity in your family will, unless very intelligently handled, result in considerable discord in the near future. In order to put the matter on a more congenial basis, I suggest an interview between you and your husband and your local banker. He can best recommend a budget that will take care of current expenses, luxury buying and future security.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: In order to get a boy friend, would it be advisable to ask an attorney I have known for some time to come to my home, which I share with my parents? I feel that were he to see me in my home surroundings he might become interested in me. A friend tells me it is mid-Victorian not to go places where boys go to pick up girls. I have always been told that it isn't good for girls to pick up dates. I am very anxious to have a boy friend, but being a woman of thirty I feel that you just can't ask a man that you may like for a date. I think that everyone feels that it's the man's place to ask the girl and if she asks him perhaps he will think she's a fast female. What is your advise in this matter?

J. D.

ANSWER: I think that you should feel perfectly free to invite this gentleman to your home. Should you feel some shyness about it, you might make some casual remark about it being a leap year when you extend the invitation.

There are any number of ways that you might meet some eligible single men without resorting to the very sad as well as dangerous practice of "picking up" perfect strangers. It is not only not mid-Victorian, but very wise not to visit those places where men just pick up dates. I doubt that you would ever find anyone that you would want for a life mate in such a place.

I suggest that you entertain a few friends in your home and then invite on that occasion some male that you might be interested in, or that you go to the socials in your church or some social club that you may belong to. You are much more likely to meet a young man who would suit you in these environments than in the cheap dance hall, or other such unnatural social contrivance.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 19 years old and have a small patch of gray hair. What causes this, and is there a remedy besides using a hair rinse or any other of the dying processes as a cover-up?

SUSAN

ANSWER: What actually causes the hair follicles to die and produce hair that is gray is still very much a puzzle. There are only two courses left open to you. You may either let nature take its course, and incidentally such streaks in the hair are now the vogue, or you can use one of the many harmless rinses that are on the market and which are very effective.

Bride-To-Be Runs Away

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 14 (AP)—Plans for a Valentine Day wedding went awry today because the pretty bride-to-be disappeared after leaving a note to her fiance and her engagement ring pinned to a pillow. She said she couldn't go through with it.

Edward Weigner of Chicago waited in a hotel room for some word of his fiancee—Lois Ethlyn Weiland, 23.

The Valentine Day's wedding scheduled for tonight was to climax a romance of tall people which began at a convention of tall people's clubs last year in St. Louis.

Weigner, a six-foot-five insurance engineer, made a radio appeal last night urging his five-foot-11 fiancee to return.

He pleaded:

"Lois, this is Ed. I want you to know I love you. I am worried and upset and your mother is near a nervous breakdown."

Mrs. William N. Weiland said her daughter disappeared Tuesday.

HONG KONG, Feb. 14 (Reuters) — The Communist New China news agency reported the death of King George VI and accession of Queen Elizabeth II in a 46-word item from Peiping Feb. 9. The agency—official source of foreign news in China—made no comment on the King's death.

OSLO, Norway, Feb. 14 (Reuters)—Prince Harald, grandson of King Haakon, today joined Britons, Canadians and Norwegians attending a memorial service for King George VI. The service was held today so as not to clash with the opening of the winter Olympic games Friday.

LONDON, Feb. 14 (AP)—The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh gave a luncheon at Clarence House today for the King and Queen of Sweden, the Queen of the Netherlands and Prince Bernhard, and Earl and Countess Mountbatten.

LONDON, Feb. 14 (AP) — Russia's ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin will march in the front row of foreign diplomatic mourners during the funeral procession for the King Friday.

Msgr. Paolo Giobbe, representing the Pope, will be last. The United States secretary of state, Dean Acheson, will walk in the fourth row. Dr. Konrad Adenauer, chancellor of the West German republic, and Giovanni Gronchi, Italian representative, are in the next-to-last of the 11 rows.

The earl marshal's office, the protocol section of the Foreign Office, and the marshal of the diplomatic corps said they did not know how the order of march was drawn up.

PARIS, Feb. 14 (Reuters) — General Eisenhower, supreme commander of the allied forces in Europe, left Orly airport today for London to attend the funeral of the King Friday. He was accompanied by his wife.

Anson House Management Report Year Of Activity

The annual meeting of Anson House Board of Management was held Wednesday afternoon in the board room at the House.

This board consists of 16 voluntary members—five men and 11 women, some of whom have been serving for many years, following in succession relatives who had helped in years gone by to keep the home open. Recently a secretary-treasurer was appointed and the members divided into groups to look after different interests of the home. Mr. T. A. MacKay is chairman.

Each Protestant church in the city appoints members to make regular calls on the residents of Anson House and to report at the church meetings.

Admission

It was outlined at the meeting by Miss Claire Mason just how admission to the Anson House is gained. This is the procedure: The applicant, a relative or friend, applies to superintendent Miss A. Robinson and received a form to fill out and return with a doctor's certificate. The chairman or a member of the board then visits the applicant to acquaint her or him with the rules of the house and what is expected of a resident there. If the applicant receives a pension it is turned over to the Anson House and $5 is returned for spending money.

It was emphasized that sick persons cannot be looked after in the house as it is not staffed for such cases, who must go to hospital, in which event their rooms are held for one month.

Residents are helped in making their rooms as homelike as possible and may bring in furniture and ornaments, etc., excepting a bed. They must be able to dress themselves, tidy their rooms and to attend all meals, and are expected to contribute to the general morale of the house.

They can have visitor or go out at any time if word is left with the superintendent when to expect them in—this rule for their own protection in case of accident or illness.

16 Years Superintendent

Miss Robinson has successfully operated the Anson House for 16 years with a dining room and kitchen staff. It was suggested in the report of the house committee read by Miss Laura Davidson that the board concern itself with securing an assistant superintendent. Also that the problem of adequate and capable help be studied.

Secretary-treasurer Mr. H. C. Sootheran read a detailed report of the assets, liabilities and operating costs and revenue. Operating showed about the same balance as the previous year, though food was up $370, salaries up $1,100 and fuel $500, with board increased only $250, since the repairs were considerably lower than in 1950. It was assumed that the city will continue its usual support though a statement to that effect had not been received.

Help Others

The superintendent reported 11 men and 22 women now in residence and one room being held for a person in hospital, making up the capacity of 34. To illustrate the generous attitude of residents that $47.10 was given last year to the community chest and $13.50 was collected at Christmas time and divided between the postman and the paper boy.

Finances of the Anson House are eased from time to time by bequests from estates. During 1951 the gift of $1,000 was received from Miss J. Stenton's estate, and $1,200 from that of Mrs. Mary Payne.

On motion of Mrs. F. W. K. Harris, nominations convener, the officers were re-elected for 1952.

A short devotional service conducted by the Rev. Henry Cotton opened the meeting.

Marmora CWL Holds Grandmothers' Night

MARMORA, Feb. 14—(ENS)—February meeting of the Catholic Women's League took the form of a Valentine party and also Grandmothers' Night in Sacred Heart hall on Tuesday evening. The president, Mrs. Charles Cook, occupied the chair and welcomed the 15 grandmothers as well as other members present.

Mrs. Ed. Warren gave the treasurer's report in the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. J. O. O'Neill. Mrs. H. English and Mrs. K. Donaldson reported for social welfare and Mrs. E. Shannon and Mrs. J. A. Shannon reported 11 visits made to the sick and shutins. Mrs. B. Hughes and Mrs. J. McCrodan volunteered for this duty in the coming month.

The president paid tribute to King George VI and pledged loyalty of the league to Queen Elizabeth II.

Members were asked to bring donations to the March meeting for a basket of groceries for which a draw will be held at Easter.

A discussion was then held regarding the pre-lenten formal to be held in Sacred Heart hall on February 22. Groups 1, 2, 6 and 9 were asked to furnish refreshments for the occasion. Some of the members donated coffee and prizes for spot dances.

The president then presented prizes to the grandmothers as follows: oldest grandmother, Mrs. B. Gaffney; largest number of grandchildren, Mrs. D. Quinlan; youngest grandmother, Mrs. Dermont Bedore; newest grandmother, Mrs. J. Black.

Mrs. J. Black, program convener, then presented the following program: reading, "Grandma Now and Then," Mrs. B. A. Stephens; contest, "Cupid's Valentine," won by Mrs. J. A. Shannon; reading, "The Devil Finds Work for Idle Hands To Do," Mrs. J. O. Doyle; piano solo, "Petite Waltz," by Mrs. E. Shannon; recitation, "That Old Sweetheart of Mine," Mrs. James Black; musical contest, "Grandma's Courtship," won by Mrs. E. D. O'Connor; reading, "Point of View," Mrs. James Black.

Judge Apologizes For Sentencing Indian

REGINA (CP).—It isn't often that a judge apologizes in sentencing a prisoner. But that's what Chief Justice J. T. Brown of the Saskatchewan Court of King's Bench did recently in sentencing an Indian for manslaughter.

The Indian, Robert George Strongquill, killed his young wife after a drinking party — and the evidence was that two white men had supplied him with drink.

The episode touched off a discussion of the so-called "firewater evil" just when British Columbia and Prince Edward Island acted to admit Indians to beer parlors, and Manitoba had the question under consideration.

Two Saskatchewan cabinet ministers, clergymen, welfare workers and a number of the Indians themselves voiced varying views. Some saw the Indian situation simply as part of the greater problem of liquor as a whole. Others said it's time to quit treating Indians as children.

Have Free Hand

The question of admitting Indians to drinking establishments arose from a provision of the new federal Indian Act. It gives the provinces a free hand in the matter. Previously only Indians who had foresworn their privileges as wards of the government had been able to enter beer parlors.

Alberta and Saskatchewan have announced they will not follow the example of BC and PEI in taking advantage of the option. Manitoba's special committee on liquor enforcement and administration has voted in favor of allowing Indians in drinking establishments but the provincial government has yet to make a final decision.

Mr. Justice Brown, in sentencing Strongquill, said the white man is "the tool and the instrument that the (liquor) traffic uses to menace the sanity and sobriety of the Indian, to rob him and his home of his means of livelihood and bring his downfall."

"And as a member of that race," he said, "I apologize to you, an Indian, and to your race for this Trojan Horse kind of gift which we have so generously and so heartlessly bestowed upon you."

Recall Indian's Words

In the comment that followed, words spoken by Chief Gambler of the Crees in signing a treaty with Queen Victoria's representatives 75 years ago were recalled:

"We don't want your firewater. It's bad. It makes us crazy."

But one Saskatchewan treaty Indian, A. H. Brass, whose wife is a direct descendant of one of the Cree chiefs who signed the 1874 treaty, said he did not agree completely with the widespread belief than an Indian goes "crazy drunk" when he drinks.

He argued that if liquor restrictions on the reserves were removed at least the quality of the alcohol consumed would improve.

"Where liquor is illegal, people will drink hair tonic, shoe polish, or anything else they can get hold of," he said. 'If drinking were allowed, the Indian could at least get alcohol intended for drinking."

Not Much Difference

Miss Marjory Bernard, Director of the Regina Welfare Bureau, said she thought the evils of drinking among Indians were similar to those among whites—they varied with the individual Indian, just as with any other race.

Attorney-General J. W. Corman of Saskatchewan said: "Some people speak of the Bill of Rights when pointing out that Indians aren't allowed to drink. But the Indian chiefs are against any relaxation of restrictions."

Welfare Minister J. H. Sturdy attached some blame to the policy of segregating Indians on reserves where they lack opportunities to become integrated with the life of Canada.

"Wherever there are reserves there is an attendant metis (half-breed) problem — one cannot be solved separately from the other," the minister said.

U.S. Airmen Pack Growing Bases In Great Britain

By ERNEST AGNEW.

MILDENHALL, Suffolk, England (AP).—Miles of heavy, new eight-foot barbed wire fence are going up around the growing number of United States air bases in Britain.

U.S. airmen patrol the perimeters of the giant bases 24 hours daily. Airmen assigned to U.S. anti-aircraft units man their guns around the clock.

Security precautions are far tighter than they were on the U.S. Air Force bases in Britain during the last war.

The stringent security rules have led to many guesses that the United States has stockpiled some atom bombs here. But there is no positive indication that there are any atom bombs on any of the U.S. bases.

30,000 Airmen

Between 20,000 and 30,000 U.S. airmen, including the anti-aircraft units, are in England now. Ostensibly they're here for training. They would be ready to fight if war broke out.

They maintain and fly B29 and B50 bombers and F84 and F86 fighter escort groups.

The U.S. bombardment, refueling and reconnaissance units fly from bases at Marham, Waddington, Lakeneath, Mildenhall, Wyton and Sculthorpe in East Anglia Nearer London, there are bases at Bassingbourn, Chicksand, Bovington, Newbury and Blandford.

Fighter escort units use the famous Second World War base at Manston, Kent.

Maintenance Bases

There are two big maintenance bases at Burtonwood in Lancashire and Sealand in Flintshire.

Four new bomber bases at Brize Norton, Upper Heyford, Fairford and Greenham Common in the Oxford area will be opened early this year.

The United States wants even more bases here, with a corresponding increase in air force personnel and planes in Britain. Talks on this are now going on in Washington.

The U.S. Third Air Force—then just a division—came to Britain in 1948, primarily to service planes carrying supplies to Russian-blockaded Berlin.

Without any lease or treaty, and only a verbal understanding the division took over the Burtonwood base.

So Washington decided—with London's approval — more U.S. airmen should be stationed in England.

The 3rd Division took over six more bases from the Royal Air Force, all without charge to the United States. In many cases existing facilities were improved and expanded before the Americans moved in.

All have been greatly expanded since the transfer. Costs of work have been split between the United States and Britain.

Long Runways

Most of the bomber bases have—or will have—9,000 foot runways capable of handling the U.S. Air Force's biggest bombers, the B-36s.

A wing of B-47s, the new jet engined bomber with a maximum speed of more than 600 miles an hour, is expected to be based here sometime this year.

Along with the increase in the number of planes and personnel, the 3rd Air Division has grown, too. It now is the Third Air Force and includes the 7th Air Division of Lieut.-Gen. Curtis Lemay's Strategic Air Command.

The Third Air Force is headed by Maj.-Gen. Leon Johnson, 47, who won the Congressional Medal of Honor for his part in bombing the Ploesti oil fields in Romania.

Step Up Program

Maj.-Gen. John P. McConnell, 44, who served in the China-India-Burma theatre during the last war, came to England in July 1951 as head of the recently re-activated 7th Division. He came over with orders to step up sharply the training program.

The men do train almost constantly. Day in and day out and many nights, many of England's great industrial centres are "bombed."

The training system is called the "R.B.S."—The Radar Bomb Scoring system. The ground equipment is highly technical and, the airmen say, is the best in the world.

In addition to the bombing missions, U.S. airmen fly long range navigational or radar flights over the Middle East and the Azores. Over Britain they fly eight and 10 hours triangular courses, taking in most of the British Isles.

More than 1,600 of the men have married here in Britain even though marriage regulations are tight. Before an airman, who is a favored matrimonial catch because of his relatively high pay and his commissary privileges, may get permission to marry he must put up a $900 cash bond with his commanding officer and receive permission from him and his base chaplain.

R.A.F. Navigators Will Visit Canada

SHAWBURY, Shropshire, England (CP)—Four Lincoln aircraft of the R.A.F. Central Navigation and Control School will take off from their base here Feb. 18 on a round-trip 10,750-mile training flight to Canada. Each of the machines will carry seven trainees as well as its own maintenance and servicing crews.

Object of the flight is to provide practical training in long-range flying for students completing the specialist navigation course at the school. Opportunity also will be taken to discuss current navigation techniques with officers of the R.C.A.F. Navigation School at Summerside, Prince Edward Island.

The westward flight will be made in easy stages with the first stop-over in the Azores. After a rest there for re-fuelling and servicing, the crews will take off on February 21 for Bermuda and will remain there for three days before flying on to the R.C.A.F. Navigation School at Summerside.

The return flight, via Keflavik, Iceland, has been set for February 27.

Flying as co-pilot on one of the aircraft will be Flt. Lt. F. R. Edmonson, D.F.C., a native of Oakville, Man. During the war he served with the R.C.A.F. on bomber operations and in 1947 accepted a permanent commission with the Royal Air Force.

Chinese Nationalists Fight Each Other

RANGOON, Burma, Feb. 14 — (AP).—Chinese Nationalist troops on Burma's border with China today were reported battling among themselves over the division of operations between two cliques. The reports said there were heavy losses on both sides.

Remnants of Nationalist troops under command of Brig. Wan Ywe Wai clashed with locally-recruited guerrillas at Muse, on the border between East Central Burma and China's Yunnan Province.

Reports reaching Rangoon tended to confirm that Gen. Li Mi no longer commands the 15,000-man remnant of two Chinese armies he previously has led on large-scale raids into Yunnan. The troops recently have been operating from hideouts in eastern Burma.

The latest reports here said Li Mi's command was taken over by Lt.-Gen. Nui Kwoh Chwen, commander of the remnant 26th army of Nationalist China. The 26th Army and the remains of the Eighth Army had been under Li's command and were the last to escape from China after the Nationalist defeat in 1949-50.

CHEMICAL EXPERT

Antoine Jerome Balard, French chemist who died in 1876, discovered bromide in 1826.

Color Brightens Interior Of Old Houses

You can do a lot more with paint than cover up a dirty wall. You make your room look larger, make it seem wider, make it seem warmer or cooler. You can do it all with color.

When families started moving out of the kitchen and changed the old-fashioned parlor into a living room, they found they had to do more than leave the entrance door open.

They found that the first thing they had to do was to get rid of the old dark wall paper, wood trim and draperies. Light colored walls and rich bright colors in the furniture took away that depressing feeling.

They found there were some simpl basic rules in the use of color. In general light colors tend to go away from you, especially cool light colors. Therefore light blues, blue greens, greens, grays, light ivories, off-white and white made a room look larger.

Dark colors are called advancing colors, especially the warm colors such as reds, purples, browns, oranges. For this reason these colors make a room appear smaller.

Change Shape

A combination of light and dark can make a room appear to change its shape. If the end of a long narrow room is painted a dark and the other three walls a light color, the room will appear wider and not too long.

In a room that is too high, a darker color on the ceiling than on the walls will lower the ceiling.

Color can alter not only the appearance, but the whole feeling of a room. Light, airy colors make a room seem larger. Warm sunny tones on the wall of a room that faces north make it inviting and pleasant, while tones of blue or white can actually make you feel chilly in such a room in spite of adequate heating.

Rooms Seem Cooler

On the other hand fresh greens and blues are excelint for a sunny exposure, and make the room seem several degrees cooler.

Colors can also change the shape of the exterior of your house. By using a dark color on the roof and upper shutters of a house, you reduce its apparent height. Painting dormers the same color as the roof has the same effect. It is a matter of accenting horizontal rather than vertical lines.

On the other hand, with a house which seems too low and squat, accent the vertical lines and trim.

Unfavorable architectural features, such as windows of varied sizes, over fancy decorations and trim and similar distracting units, can be reduced in prominence by painting them the same color as the body of the house. One or two notes of contrast, such as the door or the porch, will usually add sufficient interest in such instances.

Retired Navy Officer Back On Active Duty

OTTAWA, Feb. 14 — (CP) — Commodore Paul E. Earl, C.B.E. of Montreal, who retired from the Navy in 1946 after a distinguished career in two wars, has returned to active duty with the reserve as naval officer in charge of the Montreal area.

Naval headquarters said today the post previously had been filled temporarily by Cmdr. P. A. Langlois, who also is commanding officer of H.M.C.S. Donnacona, the Montreal Naval Division. The increasing pressure of Cmrd. Langlois' duties and expansion of naval activity in the Montreal area made it necessary to relieve him of the dual appointment.

Cmdr. Earl will be responsible for the co-ordination of all naval matters in the Montreal area where he was naval officer in charge in 1944. In the First World War he served with the Royal Navy on various seas and he wound up the Second World War as Chief of Staff Officer of the reserves and chief of naval personnel.

Plan To Use Electronics In Treasure Quest

By LOUIS L. LECK.

BRISBANE, Australia (CP).—George Lane, a 61-year-old Englishman plans to use electronic instruments to hunt for treasure he is convinced is hidden on Cocos Island in the Indian Ocean.

He claims to have secret information given him by a Second World War German spy named Bergman. Lane says he saved Bergman's life during a brawl in Panama, when Lane was serving in the Columbian navy.

Lane went to Cocos with the 1938 expedition led by the late Sir Malcolm Campbell. There have been many unsuccessful expeditions to the island.

He said his party would try to find treasure buried probably in three caches with modern electronic instruments used for finding metals.

Among letters and documents he possesses is an article by Sir Malcolm Campbell, saying he was certain immense treasure was hidden on Cocos Island.

Size of Hoard

Sir Malcolm Campbell believed hoards included:

Buccaneer loot hidden by Captain Edward Davis, partner of the famous 17th-century pirate and explorer Dampier.

Plunder of the early 19th-century pirate Benito Bonito, believed to consist of more than 133 tons of silver, concealed in a sandstone cavern near Wafer Bay.

Loot of three great tresure ships, carrying the whole wealth of the Peruvian city of Lima, captured by the Spaniards in 1821.

Lane, with his son Tom, 24, a ship's steward, hopes to get the expedition on the move within 12 months.

His one worry is that the Peruvian government may lay claim if he finds the treasure.

HEART CHECK-UPS about once a year are recommended by specialists. Here, reporter Wade Jones is tested by the electrocardiograph machine, which amplifies the electrical currents produced by the heart muscle. This tells the specialist if the muscle is functioning properly.

Heart Trouble Imaginary With Some Folk

By WADE JONES

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Worried about that heart pain? Relax. Chances are it's not your heart at all, or anything else very serious.

Afraid all those strenuous games you once played left you with an "athletic heart?" There's no such thing.

Scared that coffee, cigarettes or whiskey will be the death of you yet? They won't even hurt a normal heart.

These are not the haphazard judgments of a publicity-conscious quack. They are the considered opinions of one of New York's leading heart specialists, who is so publicity-shy he won't even allow his name to be used.

In his reassuring statements, he is not trying to minimize the seriousness of United States' greatest killer—the diseases of the heart and blood vessels. Each year they take more than 745,000 lives—cancer kills approximately 209,000; accidents 88,000; pneumonia, 47,000; tuberculosis, 34,000.

The doctor is trying to ease the fears of impressionable people who become frightened and run to heart specialists, with the result that the specialists' time is taken from important work.

"Let a certain national magazine carry a 'heart' article, and 50 per cent of my patients are ringing me on the phone the next morning," he says.

Imaginary Ills

The doctor is completely serious when he talks about these medical millstones—people with imaginary ills.

He is equally serious when he tells you about the other kind—people who have every reason to be suffering from heart disease but won't do anything about it until it strikes them down.

"The other day I was called in to treat a 200-pound woman who had suffered a heart attack. Although she was 50 pounds overweight, she had never had her heart examined to see if it was being harmed by all that excess baggage she was carrying around."

The reason why fat people so often suffer from heart disease is almost as simple as that—excess baggage. "It's just as if a 150-pound person went out and bought a 50-pound bag of flour and carried it every place he went," the doctor says. "Such a constant strain on the heart can often be damaging."

Periodic Examinations

The value of periodic heart examinations—about once a year is ample—for everyone is illustrated by the case of an eight-year-old girl here who will be operated on for a heart ailment next summer, when school is out.

Her case was brought to the attention of a heart specialist by her family physician, who in the course of a routine examination detected a heart murmur. The murmur was not serious, but, in the course of his examination, the specialist discovered another murmur, barely audible. Undetected, it would in time have meant a serious heart ailment.

As it is, the operation next summer will take care of the matter. It is almost certain that the girl will be perfectly all right.

Most heart pains are not caused by heart disease. Some are, of course, but most are not. They may be caused by pleurisy, an inflammation of the lung lining; or by sore muscles and nerves of the rib cage; or general tension and an over-active imagination regarding heart disease.

In the latter connection, complaints of heart disease seem most common among city people, probably because they read and hear more about the subject than do rural folks. There's no proof, however, that the stepped-up pace of city life, despite its tensions, is in itself conductive to heart trouble. But, as one doctor pointed out, "city life won't help any if the disease is already there."

If you do have heart disease, very few things, aside from specialized treatment, are actually going to help you, and quite a few things can hurt you. If you think you have heart trouble and a specialist confirms it, follow his directions.

But if you have a normal, healthy heart it can take a lot of heavy duty and there is not much that will hurt it except disease. Which is why the doctor believes there's no such thing as an athletic heart.

Tennis after 40? No reason why not, says the doctor, providing you're not overweight, and your ticker is normal.

"Feel Well First Time In Years," Praises Syntona

"Free of Stomach Disorders, Headaches and Backache; Rheumatic Pain Gone — "Even Work Seems Easier," Says This Man.

"After benig rundown and suffering from stomach disorders for several years I have found Syntona to be the best medicine I ever used," said Mr. Stanley Stafford, Shedden, Ontario, in a recent report.

"Many people who suffer as I did will know how badly I felt all the time. I could scarcely eat a meal without having distress from gas, indigestion, heartburn and sour stomach. I'd get very bad headaches that nothing would relieve. But the worst trouble came when rheumatic pains set in my back, limbs, joints and muscles. They would get sore and swollen and kept me from doing my work properly. I became nervous, always tired and rundown.

"I had often heard people telling about Syntona, but I didn't take it seriously until a few weeks ago and then I made up my mind to try it. From the first few days I began to feel better, then my food began to digest better, the gas sourness and heartburn cleared up and I was keeping from headache. Now the aches and pains are gone away, nerves are calmed down and I have more energy. As I go about my work I feel well for the first time in several years and I give Syntona full credit for helping me this way."

MR. STANLEY STAFFORD

Made from 12 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots, Syntona has helped thousands of men and women in this same way. Given a fair chance it can do as much for you.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store. (Advt.)

VICTORIA, B.C. (CP)—Entries are open for the honor of being Canada's oldest practising dentist.

Dr. Arthur J. Garesche, 91, of this city has put in 70 years with drill and forceps and is still going strong.

His claim to the record was disclosed recently after it was reported that Dr. W. T. McGorman, 89, of Port Arthur, is the oldest in Ontario. Dr. McGorman has been practising for 59 years after graduating in 1893.

Dr. Garesche, who will be 92 next October, has ditched old-fashioned equipment and keeps pace with modern development.

"Well Done Thou Good and Faithful Servant . . ."

ALMIGHTY GOD, by Whom Kings and Queens do reign, we yield Thee unfeinged thanks for our late Sovereign Lord, King George, whom Thou hast called from the life of service to the life of rest eternal. We remember with thanksgiving, his noble character and shining example; his service to our Commonwealth; his devotion to duty, and to the cause of righteousness, justice and peace.

O GOD, Who art a strong tower of defence unto Thy servants in times of trouble, look in tender love and pity, we beseech Thee, upon our Gracious Queen Elizabeth, who is called to assume the duties and responsibilities of sovereignty. Give unto her grace, wisdom and strength that she may be enabled to discharge worthily the heavy tasks which have been laid upon her. Assuage her bereavement; accommodate Thy grace to her present circumstances, and in this her hour of sorrow suffer not her trust in Thee to fail. May her reign be long in years, and abundantly blessed in the love and prosperity of all her subjects.

Grant Thy gracious consolations to the Dowager Queen Mary, Elizabeth the Queen Mother, and all the Royal Family whose joy is turned into mourning.

O LORD GOD, Who rulest over the kingdoms of the world, bless all Prime Ministers, Cabinets, Members of Parliaments, and all who occupy positions of authority, power and influence within the realms of our Commonwealth. May Thy wisdom be their guide in foreign and domestic policy, that law and order, justice and truth, righteousness and peace may prevail within our borders.

Pour out Thy Spirit upon all flesh, and visit the whole world with Thy salvation, through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

Canada Paying Homage To King George VI

OTTAWA, Feb. 15. (CP)—Canada today pays homage to King George VI. Focal point of the country's tribute will be a national ceremony of mourning to be held in parliament's Hall of Fame, with wreaths being placed by state officials and representatives of veterans and other organizations. Similar ceremonies will take place in cities and towns across the country. Churches throughout the land held memorial services this morning for the late King, who was buried today in Windsor Castle.

The day has been proclaimed by the government as a public holiday to be observed as a day of general mourning. Most schools are closed.

Originally, the government had planned to hold an open-air ceremony at the National War Memorial on Ottawa's Confederation Square. However, unfavorable weather forecasts Thursday forced it to shift the ceremony to the parliament buildings.

The national ceremony will begin at 2.45 p.m. EST but before that, at 2 p.m., the great bell of the carillon high in the Peace Tower will begin to toll.

Massed Bands

At 2.53 p.m., mased bands of the armed forces and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police will play Chopin's Funeral March, Abide With Me, God Save the Queen and O Canada.

A two-minute silence, signalled by the firing of a gun, will follow at 2.58 p.m. It will end at 3 p.m. with the firing of the first gun of a 56-gun salute from an artil-

Truce Delegates To Hear New Proposal

MUNSAN, Korea, Feb. 15 (AP)—Truce negotiators will hold an important full dress session on Saturday to hear a new Communist proposal for a Korean peace conference.

Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief U.N. negotiator, returned today from Tokyo where he has conferred for two days with Gen. Matthew Ridgway and two high-ranking officials from Washington.

Staff officers working on prisoner exchange plans reported some slight progress Friday. The session on truce supervision marked time. Col. Don O. Darrow said it looked as though the Reds were stalling until after Saturday's plenary session.

There has been no hint of what the Communists will suggest in their new plan for a post-armistice peace conference.

Previously the U.N. agreed to talk about the withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea and a final peace settlement, but rejected a Red proposal to discuss other Asian problems related to Korea.

New Instructions?

Joy conferred in Tokyo with Gen. John E. Hull, Army Vice-Chief of Staff, and U. Alexis Johnson, Deputy Assistantant Secretary of State for the Far East, as well as with General Ridgway. Hull denied bringing instructions from Washington, but there was speculation that the two officials might be taking a hand in the stalled truce talks.

Col. George W. Hickman said staff officers discussed the new nine-point Communist plan for exchanging prisoners. He said that except for the basic disagreement over voluntary repatriation only disputes over wording separate the two sides now.

The Reds are holding out for the forced repatriation of all prisoners while the U.N. inisists on giving each man a choice.

5 Plead Guilty To Hijacking

BRANTFORD, Feb. 15—(CP)—Five men pleaded guilty Thursday to charges of theft involving what police said was a hijacking ring that had taken $8,000 in goods from transport trucks.

Three brothers, Reginald, Bruce and Keith Myercough, of Brant County, and Bill Dougherty and Leslie Moyer, of Woodstock, were remanded a week for sentence.

Police said they laid 43 charges against the men, some of which were dropped following the pleas of guilty.

Police said the thieves boarded transport trucks when they slowed up on a steep hill and threw the goods to the side of the road to be picked up later. Police have recovered most of the goods.

Avalanches Isolate Hundreds Of Villages

VIENNA, Feb. 15 (AP)—New snowfalls and avalanches cut road and rail communications in Austria, leaving hundreds of villages temporarily isolated.

Evacuation of farmers from areas endangered by avalanches appeared, however, to have prevented new casualties to add to Australia's death toll of 29 since Sunday.

More than two feet of new snow fell in many areas during the night.

Scores of trains were at a standstill and transportation between Austria and Italy broke down.

Heads For Trenton Pilot Lands In U.S.

SCANTON, Pa., Feb. 1 (CP)—Flt. Lt. Cecil Rain, 26-year-old R.C.A.F. pilot who took off from Ottawa Thursday on a 150-mile flight to Trenton, Ont., made an emergency landing two hours later at Avoca airport in northeastern Pennsylvania.

Flt. Lt. Rain was heading for the R.C.A.F. station at Trenton to attend services today for the King.

He radioed from his single-engined Harvard aircraft Thursday that he couldn't locate his position and had only an hour's supply of fuel. Joseph Kuhar, airways operations specialist, said strong winds apparently had thrown the pilot off course.

Find Bandits' Guns

TIMMINS, Feb. 15. (CP)—Police said today they have found a rifle and revolver believed to have been used by bandits who robbed the Aunor Gold Mine Tuesday of $25,000 in gold precipitates. Bail of $10,000 has been set for the three Timmins youths charged with armed robbery. Calvin Craik, 20, Kenneth Eastman, 19-year-old grocery store clerk and Reuben Utrainen, 20-year-old hardware store clerk, are still in police cells.

Heart Of Britain Stilled For Service

LONDON, Feb. 15 (Reuters)—For two minutes today the heart of Britain stopped beating as the King's funeral service started in Windsor.

Throughout the land work came to a standstill and in factories, offices and city streets men, women and children rose to attention to stand with bowed heads.

In London, the silence began with the boom of police torpedoes. Elsewhere air-raid sirens signalled the 2 p.m. G.M.T. (9 a.m. EST) hush.

The silence was requested specially by the Queen.

All traffic jerked to a halt in London.

At the cenotaph in Whitehall, passed by the funeral procession not long before, a crowd gathered to observe the silence.

Everything Stilled

In Piccadilly and Leicester Square, Londoners stood like statues in memory of the King. Piccadilly Circus was a solid mass of unmoving humanity. Bus drivers jumped from their seats and stood in the roadway.

Subway trains everywhere stopped at the nearest station to observe the silence.

Buckingham Palace guards sprang to attention and sloped arms before hundreds of people. From nearby Wellington Barracks came the sound of the Last Post.

Far underground in the coal mines of South Wales, miners stood in the dim light of their tiny lamps to pay their tribute.

Enemy Casualties

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (AP)—The United States Army today estimated total enemy casualties in Korea at 1,577,734 through Feb. 6. That figure, covering Communist military losses alone, is an increase of 14,260 since the Jan. 25 estimate.

MOURNERS FILED PAST the bier of the King in Westminster Hall during the Lying in State at the rate of from 4,000 to 5,000 an hour. Atop the closed coffin are the wreath of Queen Mother Elizabeth, the imperial crown and the Cross of Westminster. Mourners passed on both sides and left the great hall through the door in the background.

Iran Official Wounded By Terrorist

Right-Hand Man For Mossadegh Shot At Meeting

TEHRAN, Feb. 15. (AP) — Hossein Fatemi, right-hand man of Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh, was shot and wounded today by a youthful Moslem terrorist who shouted, "there is no God but Allah."

Fatemi, former deputy prime minister was felled by a pistol shot fired at point-blank range as he was addressing a crowd in a cemetery near Tehran. He was speaking on the fifth anniversary of the assassination of one of Iran's first Nationalist martyrs.

Fatemi was taken to hospital where attendants said the chest wound would not be fatal.

The would-be assassin was seized by the crowd, which scuffled with police in apparent anger over police failure to prevent the attack. He told police only that his name was Mohammed.

Previous Threats

The Moslem terrorist organization, Fedayan Islam, which boasted that it assassinated the late premier, Ali Razmara, has publicly threatened Mossadegh and his followers with death unless the government free Navab Safavi, one of its leaders.

Police have guarded Mossadegh's residence since the threats, and the aged Prime Minister has not appeared in public for two months.

Fatemi resigned as Deputy Premier last December to run for parliament. He was among 11 National Front deputies elected from Tehran.

There have been a number of assassinations and plots against leaders in the last two turbulent years in Iran.

Prime Minister Ali Razmara was slain last March by members of a secret terror society. He was succeeded by Mossadegh who on several occasions has said plotters have sought to slay him. Attempts also have been made on the life of Iran's ruler, Shah Mohammed Reza Pehlevi.

Car Strikes Tree Four Killed

AILSA CRAIG, Ont., Feb. 15 (CP)—Three soldiers and a civilian were killed early today when the car in which they were riding left the highway about a mile west of here and hit a tree.

Police said their only explanation of the accident is that the driver, a civilian, Ed Hunniford of Thedford, fell asleep at the wheel. He was killed. Three other soldiers in the car were injured, two severely.

Names of the killed and injured soldiers, members of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry from Camp Ipperwash, were withheld by the army until notification of next-of-kin.

Police said the highway on which the crash occurred was straight, level and dry. They said the soldiers met Hunniford in a Thedford restaurant late Thursday night, went to London with him in the car and were returning when the accident occurred.

Ailsa Craig is 20 miles northwest of London. Camp Ipperwash is about 50 miles northwest of London.

Queen Elizabeth Pays Last Visit To Father

LONDON, Feb. 15 (AP) — Young Queen Elizabeth went to the bier of the King at Westminster Hall for the last time today, just before the start of the King's majestic funeral procession through the crowd-lined streets of London.

KING BORNE HOME TO WINDSOR AMID GLITTERING PAGEANTRY

Seniority Issue Settled In Ford Strike

WINDSOR, Feb. 15 (CP)—Ford and union negotiators have passed the contentious contract seniority clause which brought a settlement talk breakdown in Toronto this week and a strike call for 10 p.m. Sunday.

The negotiators met this morning to discuss another thorny item — the voluntary overtime clause. At that time they made no prediction on the possibility of settlement of the contract dispute.

When George Burt, Canadian director of the United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.), set the strike deadline, he said: "This time we will not go past it."

A strike set for Jan. 27 was averted when Labor Minister Daley persuaded Ford of Canada and union negotiators to meet in the Toronto talks.

It was not known what agreement has been reached on the seniority issue. A complex clause, it governs the order in which men shall be laid off during slack periods at the Ford plant.

Postponement Unlikely

Passing of the seniority clause does not mean that the Sunday strike will be postponed. The overtime clause also is a contentious one and there are seven further clauses and a money "package" clause on which disagreement has arisen.

The seven clauses deal with union security, leave of absence and length of contract.

It was generally believed that, if necessary, the talks would go on until the moment set for the start of the tieup.

A strike would affect the same 12,000 workers made idle for 12 days by an unauthorized walkout at the Ford plant last December.

The talks here, as in Toronto, concern the proposed 85-clause contract. The matter of wages has been agreed upon in principle —a 15-cent-an-hour increase, part of it retroactive to June, 1951, when the previous contract ran out.

However, the union and the company are reported far apart on basic factors related to wage rates.

Passenger Lands Diving Plane

CANDO, N. D., Feb. 15 (AP)—The pilot of a light plane slumped over the control stick and died of a heart attack Thursday but the ship was landed safely by a passenger who knew how to fly.

Ross Case, 50, collapsed when the ship was about 50 feet off the ground. Ansel Christopherson took over in time to avert a crash and brought the plane back to the local airport.

Eriksen Wins Men's Slalom

NOREFJELL, Norway, Feb. 15 (CP).—The host country won its first gold medal of the winter Olympic games today when Stein Eriksen, a handsome, blonde 24-year-old Norwegian, streaked down the winding, 2,300-metre course—about a mile and a half—to win the men's giant slalom ski race in two minutes, 25 seconds.

Christian Pravda, of Austria, officially timed in 2:26.9, was second.

Austria also took third place, in the field of 85 starters from 29 countries, on the performance of Tony Spiess, pre-race favorite, in 2:28.8.

Egon Schopf of Austria and Zeno Colo of Italy, 1950 world giant slalom and downhill champion, and first man down the course today, were both tied for next placing but Schopf was disqualified later for failing to pass properly through one of the 66 control gates.

Millions Mourn Beloved Ruler As Monarchs, Citizens Watch Royal Coffin On Last Journey

WINDSOR, England, Feb. 15. (CP)—The coffin of George VI sank slowly from sight today, bearing a beloved sovereign to join his ancesters within the tomb of kings. In a service of mediaeval splendor, surrounded by those he loved, the chiefs of many countries, the humble and exalted of his own estate, the "Good King" who did not want to rule, was gently laid to rest amid a universal hush and general mourning. Crowned heads, princes of the realm, government ministers, high churchmen and distinguished representatives of 40 countries, joined in Britain's final act of fealty, enacted in gothic St. George's chapel, shrine of English chivalry since 1483 and resting place of many rulers.

Paying their reverent tribute as representatives of Canada were High Commissioner L. Dana Wilgress, Vincent Massey, governor-general-designate, External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson and Defence Minister Brooke Claxton. Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, Canada's wartime army commander, also attended as a former aide-de-camp to the late King.

The funeral service, almost serene in its solemn and measured dignity, came to a close in the dying notes of a choir, as a faint light filtered through lofty stained-glass windows and glowed on St. George's grey and silver Cotswold stone.

At Head Of Coffin

Throughout the simple but moving Church of England service which lasted 26 minutes, the Queen, Queen Mother, Princess Margaret and Princess Royal, stood at the head of the plain oak coffin.

The scene in the choir chapel was an impressive one. Concealed lights in front of the pews and tall, white candles glowed on the lofty walls, reaching with delicate fan-tracery high into the tesselated roof.

Behind the Royal ladies in serried ranks across the width of the choir were kings of other countries and dignitaries who had come to pay their homage.

Before the coffin disappeared from sight through the floor of the chapel to the Royal vault below, the King's company color of the King's Company, Grenadier Guards, was handed by an officer to the Queen. She took it from the crimson cushion and placed it on the head of the casket.

Sprinkles Earth

Then as the Archbishop of Canterbury pronounced the committal and the coffin descended, the Queen sprinkled some earth from a gilt bowl handed to her by an official of the household.

The Queen Mother stepped close to the Queen as the solemn notes of the Dead March faded away.

As the Queen Mother and other members of the Royal Family passed from the chapel they bowed in final tribute as they filed past the coffin.

At a signal, the sepulchral slab bearing the King's coffin was set

Ex-Guard Performs Last Duty For King

WINDSOR, England, Feb. 15—(CP).—Grizzled Jack Newton, once a corporal of the Grenadier Guards, performed his last duty for the King today as the Monarch's body was borne into Windsor Castle.

Newton, keeper at the castle's Cambridge gate since he left the army, opened the gate for the funeral cortege.

Years ago, as Newton was nearing retirement age, the King heard he did not want to leave His Majesty's service.

One day the King paused as he walked in the grounds and said: "Newton, you may stay here at the gatehouse as long as you want. I know you will always be ready to open the gate to me."

Passing Of a Monarch

LONDON, Feb. 15—(AP)—John Masefield, Poet Laureate, today published his poem in commemoration of the King. It was his second since the death of the King Feb. 6.

His first poem was a simple quatrain. The newer commemorative poem, entitled "At the Passing of a Beloved Monarch, Our Sovereign Lord King George the Sixth of Blessed Memory," follows:

"The everlasting wisdom has ordained
That this rare soul, his earthly service done,
Shall leave the peoples over whom he reigned
For other service at a higher throne,
Where life's rewarders sing at triumph won
In nobleness attempted and attained
Through years more terrible than any known.
What is a nation's love? No little thing:
A vast dumb tenderness beyond all price;
Surely a power of prayer upon a wing;
The living anguish of a hope to heal
Offered by all hearts here in sacrifice
To spirits bowed in sorrow for the King
That it may touch, to comfort or anneal.
May this devotion help them in their grief,
May the devotion kindle to resolve
To make this stricken country green with leaf
Glad with another hope to be again
A sun about which singing orbs revolve,
A Kingdom grown so worthy of her chief
That millions yet unborn shall bless her reign."

Two Minutes Of Silence Begin Services

WINDSOR, England, Feb. 15—(AP).—Two minutes of silence began the funeral services for the King today.

Then, to music composed by Westminster Abbey organist William Croft some 200 years ago, the St. George's choir chapel sang: "I am the resurrection and the life, saith the Lord; he that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die." (St. John VI—25, 26.)

"I know that my redeemer liveth, and that He shall stand at the latter day upon the earth, and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh I see God; whom shall I see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold and not another." (Job XIX—25-27.)

"We brought nothing into this world, and it is certain that we can carry nothing out. The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord." (1 Tim. VI-7, Job 1-21.)

The choristers then sang the 23rd Psalm.

Chosen By Queen

Then the choir sang the hymn chosen for the occasion by the Queen and her mother. The hymn was "The Strife Is O'er, the Battle Done," an 18th century translation from an earlier German hymn. The words of the first verse:

"The strife is o'er, the battle done;
Now is the victor's triumph won,
O let the song of praise be sung,
Alleluia."

The Archbishop of Canterbury then pronounced these solemn words of scripture, passages taken from the Church of England's book of Common Prayer written in 1662:

"Man that is born of a woman hath but a short time to live, and is full of misery. He cometh up, and is cut down like a flower; he fleeth as it were a shadow, and never continueth in one stay.

Germany Wins Bobsled Crown

OSLO, Feb. 15 (CP) — Daredevil Andreas Ostler piloted Germany's two-man bobsled to the Olympic and world championship today with two fast, final runs down the icy, 1,500-metre course.

The winter games marked Germany's first appearance in the Olympics since 1936.

Ostler and his teammate, Lorenz Nieberl, virtually clinched their title with a record-breaking run Thursday in the first two heats.

The two piled up a lead over the runner-up United States No. 1 sled piloted by Stan Benham of Lake Placid, N.Y.

Drafting Compromise Avert French Crisis

LONDON, Feb. 15 (AP)—The big three foreign ministers pushed new proposals today for West German rearmament in a move to win French approval and save the French government from falling.

French Premier Edgar Faure has staked his regime on a National Assembly vote of confidence Saturday on the question of bringing German soldiers into the projected European army.

To head off the crisis, State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman met Thursday night with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain at his home.

Officials reported they had before them a new compromise army plan drafted by the 12 depuities of N.A.T.O. The ministers hoped it would give West Germany a voice in N.A.T.O. and still keep enough control over her to reassure the French.

Using Torch To Thaw Pipe House Burned

COBOURG, Feb. 15 (ENS). — Fire which started from a blow torch being used to thaw out a pipe, caused a blaze Thursday which totally destroyed the home of J. W. Hunter a few miles east of here. Cobourg fire department was called but due to the lack of water it was impossible to save the house, although some of the furniture, from downstairs, was removed.

The cold of the preceding night froze the drain pipe in the kitchen sink and it is believed that sparks from the blow torch, which was being applied to the frozen pipe, were carried up the inside of the wall to the rafters where the fire broke out. The flames swept through the two storey frame building with great rapidity and in a very short time the whole building was on fire. Five were rendered homeless and were given shelter by neighbors. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

The Rev. Ole B. Hoieson was introduced by the Rev. Walton Tonge of Lakefield. Rev. Of special interest were the increases recorded by the missionary and maintenance committee: 1951, $33,914: 1950, $32,-581—an increase of $1,333. And the Women's Missionary Society, 1951, $12,905; 1950, $12,215—an increase of $690.

During the luncheon hour Mrs. Robert Hanscom, first vice-president of the Women's Missionary Society Presbyterial, brought greetings. Rev. H. D. McCormack of St. James' Church expressed the appreciation of Presbytery for the lovely luncheon provided by the ladies of George Street Church.

The afternoon session convened with worship conducted by the Rev. R. G. Newman of Havelock.

Mrs. Carmen Bell, president of the Woman's Association of Peterborough Presbytery, spoke to the meeting regarding the fund for the new United Church Training School for women church workers preparing for all branches of the work except the ministry. The new training school is to be erected on the campus of Victoria University. The campaign, to be carried out by the Woman's Association and Woman's Association and Women's Missionary Society of each church will be completed in the interval from March 1 to May 30. Miss Harriett Christie, M.A., dean of the United Church Training School, will be in Peterborough to speak on Sunday, February 24, in Mark Street Church at 11:00 a.m., Knox at 3:00 p.m., and St. James' at 7:00 p.m.

The report of the committee on Evangelism and Social Service brought before Presbytery the matter of the voluntary total abstinence program proposed by the Department of Evangelism and Social Service of the United Church in compliance with the request of the General Council. In this connection the Presbytery committee made the following recommendations: (1) that the ministers of the Presbytery consult with their Sessions as to the best means of promoting the temperance campaign; (2) that temperance education be given in all departments of church life, especially to youth groups; (3) that, on the proposed commitment on Sunday, there be emphasized the two-fold task of evangelism, the conversion of souls to Christ and the nurture of souls in Christ, and the appeal for complete surrender in heart and mind to Jesus Christ; (4) that the following four ways of approach be considered regarding the proposed commitment Sunday: (a) the minister to preach a sermon acknowledging Christian liberty of conscience and recommending the adoption of the practice of personal abstinence; (b) the minister to preach such a serman and to distribute the leaflet "Make The Church's Stand Your Stand"; (c) the minister to preach such a sermon and to make available for use of the congregation the declaration-of-purpose card provided; (d) the minister to preach such a sermon and to request that the congregation record their support of voluntary total abstinence on the declaration-of-purpose card. The members of Presbytery commended the committee for its excellent suggestions regarding this controversial issue. The report of the committee was unanimously adopted.

Rev. Albert E. Larke of Springville thanked the officials of George Street Church for the kindness and hospitality extended to the members of Presbytery.

Presbytery adjourned at 5:00 p.m.

Trying To Provoke Strike, Murray Charge

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 (AP) — Philip Murray, president of both the C.I.O. and the United Steelworkers (C.I.O.), accused the steel industry today of trying to provoke a strike or threat of a walkout to get "unjustified price increases."

Murray made his charge in a statement as he opened the union's rebuttal before a wage stabilization board panel seeking to settle a wage-contract dispute and avert a threatened Feb. 23 strike.

The union's 650,000 basic steel workers are demanding an 18½-cents-and-hour wage boost, a guaranteed annual minimum wage and other benefits, including a union shop to replace an existing maintenance of membership clause.

Locomotive Workers Reject Two Offers

KINGSTON, Feb. 15 — (CP).— Union employees of the Canadian Locomotive Company here Thursday night rejected two alternative contract offers by the company. The men are members of the United Radio, Electrical and Machine Workers of America (Ind.).

A union statement today said the membership meeting voted 97 per cent against the offers and gave the union negotiating committee full authority to take any necessary action to reach a settlement.

The union is seeking wage increases of from 15 to 25 cents an hour. The company has offered from 7 to 10 cents an hour for skilled workmen.

Present basic wage for the 800 employees is $1.26 an hour, which includes a cost-of-living adjustment of 15 cents an hour.

Egypt Has Refused Renew Soviet Visas

There was no immediate information whether the correspondents had been expelled or still remain in Egypt.

The new government of Premier Aly Maher Pasha has taken a strong anti-Communist stand recently.

Millions Mourn

in motion. Slowly, amid a poignant stillness, it sank from view to rest momentarily in the underground crypt. Thus the service ended.

For this reporter, privileged to be the only Canadian newspaper representative in the chapel, it was an unique experience, moving yet majestic, a moment in history —a link in the long story of monarchical institutions which endure though their outward mortal symbols change.

Quietly the chapel emptied of its more than 1,000 mourners as they filed past a profusion of floral tributes from all parts of the world. Outside, on the great Norman keep of Windsor Castle, flew the ceremonial standard, Britain's largest official flag, reminding the people that the King, who may be the last of the Windsor dynasty, had come home for the last time.

Rest Beside Brother

From the crypt where it now rests, the King's coffin will be moved by trolley through an underground passage, built by the Prince Regent in 1813, to the Royal tombhouse which the third of the Georges fashioned for his family a century and a half ago.

It is understood the coffin will rest beside another draped with a personal standard — that of George's brother, the Duke of Kent, killed in a wartime air crash on a Scottish hill.

In the same arched vault lie the bones of Henry VIII and Jane Seymour, unhappy Charles I and all of England's rulers of the last 150 years, except Victoria. The chapel was first used for the repose of royalty at the command of Edward VI, who died in 1483.

Elizabeth II led the country's final homage to her father. For 2½ hours she rode in a horse-drawn carriage behind the coffin to the dirge of 10 bands, while more than 1,000,000 Britons, packed along the chill streets of London, bowed in reverence. Then she entrained for Windsor with the body.

At the close of the service the Royal family left the chapel by a side door. Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh kissed the Queen Mother on the cheek just before they stepped into a waiting limousine.

Stays In London

Queen Mary, 84, stayed in London and waved her farewell from a window of Marlborough House. But the widowed Queen Mother Elizabeth was here with Princess Margaret to hear the choir sing the hymn she and the new Queen had chosen—a hymn of victory, often sung at Easter :

"The strife is o'er, the battle done;
"Now is the victor's triumph won . . ."

The Archbishop of Canterbury voiced the commital the Church of England assigns to King and commoner alike:

"Earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust, in sure and certain hope of the resurrection to eternal life. . . ."

There was the Duke of Windsor, who was a King himself when his father George V was laid to rest here 16 years ago. There was Winston Churchill, the servant of four sovereigns; there were seven sovereigns from other countries, State Secretary of State Acheson representing President Truman; and the ambassador of Russia.

There was also General Eisenhower, who led Commonwealth soldiers as well as Americans against the Nazis while the King stood unflinching beside his people in this island Hitler coveted. And by the turn of time, the dignitaries invited to the funeral included the chancellor of a new Germany.

Britain and all the Commonwealth fell silent for two minutes at 2 p.m. (9 a.m. EST), the hour of the funeral.

In London, more than 1,000,000 people from all walks of life, watched in reverent silence as 150 Royal Navy ratings drew the King's coffin, mounted on a gun carriage, from Westminster Hall to Paddington station.

Waves Farewell

As Queen Mary waved her farewell from Marlborough House, the Duke of Windsor turned in the line of march and saluted his mother. Salutes came also from the Dukes of Edinburgh and Gloucester, and from the Duke of Gent, the King's 16-year-old nephew.

Queen Elizabeth and the Queen Mother bowed toward the window where Queen Mary watched and checked each contingent in the line of march from the funeral program.

The King's coffin left Westminster Hall in London at 9:30 a.m. for the journey here. Women wept, and men bared their heads amid reverent silence as the mile-long cortege paced through three miles of London's streets in two hours and 25 minutes.

Kings with bowed heads, statesmen from great republics, soldiers in resplendent uniforms, moved with his family through the hushed streets of London in one last tribute to the head of the great commonwealth.

To the sound of muffled drums and the mournful wails of pipes, his body was taken through the city.

Mighty Column

Before them stretched a mighty column of the King's men and representatives of foreign military powers, marching in slow time to the melancholy music of massed bands. Behind came kings and commoners, diplomats from great nations and small, all marching in tribute to a King whose might lay in his integrity.

And all around the long processional route were packed the people of London, whose wartime horrors the King had shared.

While guns boomed and church bells tolled in the background, they watched the end of another chapter written in their ancient history. The King was going to rest. But behind him came the new Elizabeth, with all the promise of her youth.

At the end of its long progress, gentle hands lifted the coffin from the gun carriage. Guardsmen carried it into the gloomy cavern of Paddington station and laid it in the silver-topped funeral coach.

Watches Coffin Carried By

Queen Elizabeth, who as a child stood in this station to watch her grandfather's coffin entrained for Windsor, stood with her mother as her father was carried by.

The bagpipes broke out their sad lament as she turned and with her companions boarded the train. Once seated, she was seen to raise her veil and stare out at the glittering guard of honor.

Then the train moved forward, out into the winter sunshine, taking the King into the rolling green countryside and home.

Thin wintry sunshine slanted down as the King's body began its last journey into history.

Quiet homage mingled with the panoply of centuries has been the keynote since the 56-year-old sovereign died nine days ago.

A few minutes before eight guardsmen bore his body from its catafalque in historic Westminster Hall, his daughter-successor, the Queen, came once more to look upon his coffin.

With her was her mother, Princess Margaret, and the King's sister, Princess Mary. All wore black and heavy mourning veils.

Big Ben, high above the route of procession, tolled 56 chimes, a minute apart, each marking a year of the late sovereign's life.

A wreath of flowers from the Queen Mother was the only floral decoration on the coffin, which was draped in the red and gold royal standard. Atop it also were the glittering bejewelled symbols of his sovereignty, the great imperial crown, the sceptre and the orb.

Dukes Behind Carriage

The Dukes walked abreast behind the Queen's carriage— Windsor and Edinburgh in Royal Navy uniforms, Gloucester in the uniform of a general, Kent in civilian dress.

Walking just before the coffin-bearing carriage were the King's two closest personal servants—his two valets, Thomas Jerram and James Macdonald. It was Macdonald, taking a morning cup of tea to his master Feb. 6, who found the King dead.

In the procession were seven monarchs with their queens or consorts, 17 princes and princesses, the presidents of three states, and five prime ministers, joining with the family and with the leaders of the nation to pay homage.

Nine bands accompanied the cortege.

Prime Minister Churchill and his cabinet waited at Windsor for the special funeral train to arrive. Following tradition, the government ministers did not take part in the procession through London.

After a night of sleet and rain, whipped by a sharp wind and chilled by 30-degree temperatures, the sun broke through the clouds as the cortege began to move.

Besides the thousands who came early and got places of vantage along the funeral route, hundreds of thousands more with little chance of seeing the pageant poured into the closed-off side streets.

Many with the best places had taken their stand Thursday afternoon, and waited through the night.

The throng stood 10 deep along the broad sidewalks of Whithall, site of most government offices and the nearest point to Westminster Hall.

More than 11,000 police lined the route from the hall to Paddington.

Find Flowers Overflow Chapel

WINDSOR, England, Feb. 15—(Reuters).— Hundreds of wreaths to the memory of the King today overflowed from St. George's Chapel, the monarch's burial place, on to the surrounding courtyard.

The floral and other tributes came from all over the world. From Cardiff, Wales, came a harp of gold composed of finely-woven lilies and violets.

Some of the wreaths surrounding the Chapel gave no clue as to who had sent them. One small bunch of tulips bore the simple message: "To My Beloved King."

Two school children sent a tribute of carnations and anemones "In Affectionate Remembrance."

One of the most touching was a bunch of white lilacs and violets with a message in the raised lettering of Braille from the British Empire Society for the Blind.

One of the largest was a collection of palms, carnations, tulips, mimosa and daffodils from Premier Aly Maher Pasha of Egypt.

A faded lily lying among the formal tributes carried a crumpled piece of paper with the enigmatic message: "Vebruary 12. Sun shining very bright. Blue, white and grey skies."

Three Schools Resign Athletic Association

MONTREAL, Feb. 15—(CP)—Principals of three Protestant high schools Thursday notified the Greater Montreal Interscholastic Athletic Association that their schools will resign February 8.

The resignations, sent to secretary-treasurer Jack Lang, of the association, were from Montreal West, West Hill and Herbert Symonds High Schools.

The Federation of Protestant Men Teachers last week announced it would cease after-school coaching and extra-curricular activities unless satisfactory wage boosts were granted. A 10-day period of grace was given the school board February 8, to consider wage demands.

Foster Homes Needed

ST. CATHARINES — (CP). — Need for foster homes for older children was stressed at a local meeting of the Children's Aid Society. Mrs. James Thompson reported the board has not placed a child older than pre-school age in a foster home for more than five years. An average of 40 to 50 younger children are placed each year.

Expect Canadian Production To Hit 23 Billion In 1952

OTTAWA, Feb. 15 (CP)—An expanding labor force, experiencing only minor pockets of unemployment, is expected to produce a record $23,000,000,000 worth of goods and services in 1952.

A figure of these proportions—up almost $2,000,000,000 from the 1951 peak—likely will be used by Trade Minister Howe when he makes his annual economic forecast before the Commons when parliament reconvenes Feb. 28.

Government economists now are gathering all the vital statistics which go into this major forecasting job, and so far all signs point to another big advance in the mid-century expansion of the Canadian economy.

Key to the entire outlook is the "G.N.P."—the gross national product—total value of all goods and services produced. In 1951, the G.N.P. reached a peak of $21,200,000,000—higher by $1,200,000,000 than the forecast made by Mr. Howe at the beginning of last year.

Almost all of last year's records are expected to be shattered by increases in both volume of production and prices.

Expected To Climb

The labor force is expected to climb to 5,400,000 from $5,200,000. The national income, which reached a peak of $17,000,000,000 in 1951, is likely to climb to $18,000,000,000 or more in 1952. The national income includes wages paid to labor, investment income and pay allowances to Canada's military forces.

Spending by consumers, totalling $13,000,000,000 in 1951, may reach $14,000,000,000, and spending by governments on goods and services likely will reach $4,000,000,000 from $3,112,000,000.

Both imports and exports are expected to climb beyond the peak of more than $8,000,000,000 worth of foreign trade completed in 1951.

The economists estimate that more money will be spent in purchases of new machinery and equipment and in the building of commercial structures with public and private capital investment climbing to a record $5,000,000,000 from last year's $4,600,000,000.

The only soft spot is in the light industry field—textiles and electrical appliances—and in housing. Buying in these fields appears to be easing.

Slander Regulation

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 15 (AP) —The Mississippi House of Representatives Thursday passed a Bill which allows a Mississippian who thinks he has been slandered in a radio broadcast to file against the broadcaster by serving papers on the Secretary of State. Its author, Representative Boyce Holleman, said "this measure would hit Walter Winchell and Drew Pearson right square between the eyes."

Advocate Removal Of House Restrictions

MONTREAL, Feb. 14—(CP)—The Canadian Lumbermen's Association at the close of its annual meeting Wednesday night advocated removal of credit restrictions on house building.

The Association in a resolution said: "We believe that the measure of credit restrictions placed on housing was unnecessary and could be removed without fear of injury to the defence effort or without adding to inflationary trends".

Restoration of the "extra one sixth value for mortgage purpose" was asked from the federal government which, along with loan and insurance companies, was urged to take a "more realistic view of the lending as well as the sales value of houses to be built under the National Housing Act as necessary for inducement to build needed housing in Canada".

The Funeral Of George VI

Through the long avenues of silent people
Let the King pass!
(Full silent he, alas!)—
Only the dolorous bells from every steeple
Moment by moment toll, and muffled drums
And muted flutes and trumpets slow vibrate
A worldwide sigh, a dirge more intimate,
While in profound farewell and ancient state
England to England comes.

These lines are from an ode written upon the death of King George the Fifth, by the Canadian poet George Herbert Clarke; we quote them here because they seem to us to express with equal poignancy what the people of Canada feel today, when George the Fifth's son is buried near his father.

If we look at the reign of George the Sixth coldly, it must seem to us that he was an ill-starred monarch, coming to the Throne by a chance that could not have been foretold, dreading the heavy duties laid upon him, and ill-fitted by nature to bear them. A long and terrible war doubled and trebled the anxieties of his time. He saw his country badly crippled after the fight was won, and then disease began its own, intimate, terrible war in his own body.

Within this burial place of kings, a king
Illustrious thou art come
To dwell in thy long home.
The benisons of faith are chanted clear:
Thou art content thy heritor shall hear,
And strew the dust upon thy downgoing.

Yet when we look with more understanding at the King's life and reign, we see that he ennobled it by his humility, lovingkindness and determination to do his duty. We see that his life was, in its way, a triumph of spirit over circumstance, and we take our leave of him today not with pity in our hearts, but with admiration and love.

From tombs marmoreal
In crypt or choir
Nor a frail breath takes wing,
No faintest sighs suspire;
The kings, the knights and our so knightly king
Unbroken silence keep Motionless, tranced deep
Within the ghostly galleries of sleep

Sixth Georgian

The death of the King marks the end of an era—but what sort of era was it? The following appreciation, from the pen of the distinguished British editor, Ivor Brown, attempts an appraisal.

We know rather vaguely what we mean by the Victorian and Edwardian ages. Naturally there are disputes as to the essence of Victorianism. Most would stress the severity of mind and morals, while a smaller number would emphasize the energy, the industrial and technical enterprise, the confident invasion of new worlds. About Edwardianism there might be more agreement; —it suggests complacent opulence, the noon of the plutocracy which had "muscled in" upon the seigneurial pastures without elbowing the seigneurs out. It was the summer of showmanship and personality, of the great actor-managers, of the Sargent portraits, of games-playing that wore its colours with a smile and had not become scientific, calculating, a branch of arithmetic, or an embitterment between nations.

Fifth Georgian, despite the social strains of the First World War, was typified by a doctrine of Safety First and security haphazardly achieved. We just avoided Civil War in Ulster, a major Constitutional upheaval over the House of Lords, a major war with Southern Ireland, and the social chaos that might have followed the General Strike, whose leaders obviously did not want the nation to be struck too hard; we somehow struggled out of the World Slump of the thirties, with the sufferings most inequitably shared. The appeasement of Mussolini's bull-frog impudence and the doctrine of "Don't let's be beastly to the Germans" at least did not collapse in ruin until three years after "Fifth Georgian" was over.

It was a period of uneasy belief that "thinking will make it so," with the public vaguely conscious of a sunset light. "The Forsyte Saga" reminded them of old suavities departing in a rougher circumstance. But the younger artists were beginning to break tradition with acceptance. Poetry changed its tune. The old could murmur with Gloucester in "King Lear": "Love cools, friendship falls off, brothers divide: in cities, mutinies; in countries, discord . . . . We have seen the best of our time: machinations, hollowness, treachery, and all ruinous disorders follow us disquietly to our graves."

* * *

Under such clouds George VI ascended the throne and faced the challenge which came to him so unexpectedly. The war broke. So Sixth Georgian could only have been an adjective to describe a unified or unsettled way of life if the King had been spared to reach a far greater age. In his short time he saw greater social and economic change than ever touched his country in a similar period of years. His Empire was in flux and dismemberment. The whole Edwardian structure of "Big House" society crumbled clean away; but we are not a murderous nation and let the tax-collector do the headsman's work. So there came the euthanasia of the rich in a bloodless revolution that landed the National Trust with more castles than it can handle and left the remaining milords to act as gate-money collectors.

During far more than a third of George VI's reign the nation was involved in desperate war, with destruction everywhere and with construction concentrated upon engines of yet more destruction. Architecture ceased inevitably. Yet the arts did not wither. There was a keen hunger for escape into beauty: the very drabness of wartime black-out and general austerity called for excitement and colour. Thus the period of the war and after saw a tremendous growth of reading and a new, huge public assembled for the ballet and orchestral music. Ballet, which had once been the fashionable thing of the more precious few in the capital, became a "joy in widest commonalty spread" and even a national asset, a dollar export. The State, which, in the old days of opulence, had been a most grudging patron of the arts, set out, albeit in a small and tentative way, to be a patron in lieu of the displaced Maecenas. There were strange stirrings of all kinds. Poetry, which had long found it hard to hold even a corner in the theatre where once it had been monarch, came back to a new and wide applause: and architecture, so long limited to paper planning and the service of utility housing, at least had a chance in the Festival of 1951 to display its new ideas.

* * *

If world peace be maintained, the new region, which we may confidently hope will be a very long one, will develop its New Elizabethanism. Sixth Georgian culture, pinned between the years of a fidgety and futile appeasement and the age of nagging anxiety, never had its chance to settle, to develop a dominant style, or to create a pattern which would live as a phrase in the history books. But, amid all the dreariness of bomb-sites and "pre-fabs," of trashy, standardized clothes, and of a diet that turned the art of eating into the calculation of calories and the absorption of "nutrition units," there was some thrusting of shoots and some budding whose fruit is yet to be gathered.

When tradition has been broken, there is always novelty in excess. When fussy architecture gave way to functional, there was some dreadful abuse of a sensible change; one occasionally sees those cubic blocks pretending to be small country houses which were the last and most lamentable word of the 1930s and now look as dated as the worst neo-Gothic Victorian villa. It was the fate of the war-ravaged reign that has now so tragically ended to see all the necessary rebellions against the naturally senescent Edwardian and Fifth Georgian modes carried to preposterous conclusions; because classical sculpture had gone dull, it was assumed that Mumbo Jumbo might be marvellous; the flight from the old complacency and its sweetly reasonable writing had led to the barbaric worship of blood, guts, and bad grammar, or to the minimal verse which mistook a mental spasm for genuine feeling. Distaste for the equability of academic painting had run riot in angry and childish distortions.

* * *

These violent reactions there will always be in any culture and, in the Sixth Georgian, the enormous social upheavals and the sense of danger and even of doom, naturally gave additional vigour to the cult of the ugly, the turbid, and the merely pretentious. But all reactions lose pace and fury in time: frenzy, exhausted, falls even from the fancies. Despised common sense may creep back to be endured, even enjoyed. So our next Elizabethanism, while it will be rightly different and distinctive, should profit by all that had stirred and bubbled and even seethed in the chaos of recent years. If time and security be granted to it, then it will have the chance to shape in an adult way what, in the last reign has been struggling to grow amid the pain and muddle of the times with a puerile, wanton, and despersed vitality. It may be said that the utterance of the Sixth Georgian arts was not young at all, but a vehicle of age-weary world-hatred, confusion, despair. But melancholy is always the badge of immaturity, and they are indeed the hollow men who cry "hollow, hollow, hollow," all day long.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

SIR: In many pictures taken of the King in his childhood, youth and early manhood, Princess Mary his sister is shown with him. I have always understood that King George VI and Princess Mary were especially fond of each other. Yet since the King died I have seen only one mention of the Princess Royal —that she had called on her Mother Queen Mary. Why?

ANSWER: I cannot even guess. Perhaps when reports of the funeral come into the press later today, she will appear in her rightful prominence. Princess Victoria Alexandra Alice Mary, Countess of Harewood, was born in April 1897 and is thus only a year and a half older than King George Princess Mary was created Princess Royal in 1932, ten years after her marriage to the Viscount Lascelles, who succeeded his father as Earl of Harewood in 1929. The Viscount was 40 when he married Princess Mary, then 24.

DEAR ALPHA: What is the stringy bit of purple rag over the centre door of the City Hall for? It couldn't by any chance be Peterborough's official indication that she is in mourning for the King? And what are those three empty poles over each of the centre doors for? To hang fly-paper from in summer? They can't surely be flag-poles, otherwise, this week especially, flags at half-mast would be hanging from them.

RESPONSE: Alpha has nothing to add to what you have said. Except this—the doorway at the City Hall is large and draping requires an astonishing amount of material. A couple of dozen yards of purple go neither wide nor far when draped over a large door.

AGAIN Q.C.: I believe that the first use of the letters Q.C. in the Examiner was after the name of Crown Attorney John Bradshaw, Q.C. when he was administering the oath of allegiance to the new Queen to Judge McGibbon. After so many years of K.C.-ing every lawyer in town, the Q.C. looks strange. One of the few men in Canada to have been a Queen's Councillor twice was Sir Allen Aylesworth, who died Wednesday at the age of 97. He was created a Q.C. in Queen Victoria's time; and, with the beginning of the reign of Elizabeth, he automatically reverted from K.C. to Q.C. again.

Incidentally, sign painters, letter-head printers and others are going to have a lot of new business changing every K.C. on windows and doors and notepaper to Q.C. There will be many other physical changes—Royal Mail vans (if they are still to have anywhere in the Dominion any indication of Royal Mail) will have all their G.R.'s changed to E.R. (George Rex to Elizabeth Regina).... Purveyors of foods, wines, manufacturers of crockery and toilet bowls—all firms which have bought the Royal warrant entitling them to advertise their business as "By Appointment to His Majesty the King", will have to lay out new money if they wish to be appointed wine-merchants, furriers, photographers, or sanitary ware purveyors to Her Majesty.

ALPH OLD BEAN: In your last For the Record note you said that you belonged to 2½ clubs. What's the half—not the City Council, surely?

ANSWER: Dear me, no; the electors have eschewed my candidature in unanimous mouthfuls. The half-club is so because it operates only half the year. Surely you have heard of the Summer Solstice Society? From March 21st its meetings prepare for the guzzle in the sun on June 21st (the solstice). Thereafter until September 21st (the other equinox) is the fizzing out period. The first half of the Club's half year is known as the Glubbing Quarter, the next as the Burping Quarter. It is a very merry club, making few demands on one's energy or system. Membership is by invitation only, after a demonstration of prowess.

ROYALTY AT FUNERALS: The funeral of King George VI today was attended by six reigning monarchs: all of Europe's six except Baudouin of Belgium, and by King Feisel of Iraq, a schoolboy at Harrow. (Haakon of Norway, Gustav Adolf of Sweden, Frederick of Denmark, Paul of Greece and Queen Juliana of the Netherlands.)

Only five monarchs attended the funeral of George V in 1936, all of them Kings: Haakon of Norway, Carol of Rumania, Christian of Denmark, Leopold of Belgium and Boris of Bulgaria. The Crown Prince of Sweden attended instead of the aged King, and the Prince Regent of Yugoslavia was present. Herr Adolph Hitler, General Goering, Dr. Goebbels and other high officials attended a memorial service at St. George's Church, Berlin. King Victor Emmanuel of Italy and Signor Mussolini attended a memorial service in Rome.

Seven crowned heads attended the funeral of Edward VII in 1911—including his nephew, the Kaiser of Germany.

FOR THE RECORD: Almost everybody in town and across the country except Alpha is being newly sworn in this week, promising to bear faithful allegiance to Her Majesty. The ceremony is infectious; all sorts of people in all sorts of offices are taking a new oath of allegiance, even if they never took one before. As a subject of Her Majesty I feel slighted not to have been sworn in by somebody or something. (Sworn in is different from being sworn at.) I plan to go to one of those people entitled to take affidavits, plunk down my dollar, and demand that I too be given an oath of allegiance to bear true words and somewhat honest opinions in this column during the reign of Queen Elizabeth, so long as my life as a pen-pusher shall last.

If every private citizen took a new oath, a surge of high morality might uplift this country, right off its feet. Think of the effect if every corn-flake maker, pew duster, shirt seller, beef producer, house renter, apple grower, floor sweeper, ticket seller, song singer, pupil guider, machine tooler, union organizer, insurance agent, tooth puller, car salesman, husband shopper, club speaker, phrase maker, were to swear to be trusty and true! The lawyers in town have already set an example in reform; every one has taken an oath to the new Queen, even if the office he holds does not require it. As if to underline their new declaration of fidelity, the lawyers across the province (the Ontario Bar Association) earlier this week announced plans to set up a Fund to cover defalcations should any of their number swipe trust funds in estates assigned to his care and administration.

"Most Difficult Office In The World"

By PHILIP VERNON

"HIS conduct on the throne", said Mr. Winston Churchill is his broadcast tribute to George the Sixth, "may be a model and a guide to constitutional sovereigns throughout the world today and also in future generations".

Lest it be suspected that Mr. Churchill was speaking for only a section of the British people, it is worth putting on record the words used this week by the militant left-wing journal, the "New Statesman and Nation". "He has", it writes of George the Sixth, "been an excellent, an irreproachable monarch . . . No such popularity as the Crown has now won could have grown up in our democracy if the Crown had not in fact displayed the qualities which our age demanded of it . . . During the Labour Government, he never departed by a hair's breadth from the perfect pattern of constitutional correctness."

This tribute from the "New Statesman" is one measure—and not an inadequate one—of King George the Sixth's achievement. He was, in the full sense of the word, a great King. The word slips easily into the obituaries of royalty, but in this case it can be justified; and for this reason alone it would be worth defining the precise nature of King George's achievement. But there is another reason; if we can make such a definition, it will help us to understand more easily the almost terrifying responsibility which is now laid on the shoulders of a young and comparatively inexperienced Queen.

NEVER has there been so little republicanism, either in the Labour Party itself or in the country as a whole. This is due entirely to George the Sixth's conception of the role of a constitutional monarch. Mr. Clement Attlee has been known to speak privately of the assistance which he constantly had from the King during his six years as Prime Minister. Before long, no doubt, he will say the same in public. But it scarcely needs Mr. Attlee's assurance to prove the point. It is enough that throughout these six stormy years there was not one breath of criticism of King George's conduct.

George the Sixth proved beyond doubt what his father, his grandfather and his great-grandmother had striven to establish; namely, that the constitutional monarch in Britain "has, so to speak, no party history"; he may, and will, have his personal opinions and prejudices but they do not inform his actions as King. That George the Sixth should have achieved this when for the first time in history a Labour Government took office with a full working majority is itself sufficient justification of the word "great".

But the achievement will seem ever more remarkable when the full story of George the Sixth's reign can be told. His has been a reign of changing manners, of changing patterns of behaviour, and it was inevitable that these should be reflected in his relations with his Prime Ministers. It was inevitable, in short, that these relations should become less formal.

The published correspondence between Mr. Churchill and King George on the vexed question of whether both or either of them should accompany the Allied Forces on D-Day (Allied invasion of Normandy, June 6, 1944) is particularly revealing. The whole tone of the King's letters—the form of address to "Dear Winston", and the signature, "Yours affectionately"—reveals an informal relationship between the two men which would have been impossible under any earlier monarch.

Similarly, the weekly luncheons with his Prime Ministers, when the conversation could be "off the record", with no question of advice being formally given or accepted, marked a new and tremendously significant development.

IT WAS, as I have said, inevitable that this development towards a less formal relationship should take place. It was in accordance with the manners of the time. But the development is not without its dangers; the obvious dangers that the monarch might be more open to influence by a Prime Minister whose personality he found attractive, or that he might be unable to maintain these informal relations with a Prime Minister whose personality was uncongenial to him.

That King George the Sixth was able to carry through this quite startling innovation without endangering his position as an impartial, constitutional monarch is the kind of achievement which can be fully appreciated only by those few men who—from their own first-hand experience—know how delicately poised is the relationship between a King and his Prime Minister.

In many other respects the constitutional position of a monarch is a delicate one. For this reason the first years of her reign cannot but be anxious ones for the new Queen. One of the advantages of the constitutional monarchy is, as Sir Ivor Jennings remarks in his standard work on "Cabinet Government", the fact that "British monarchs usually have a longer period of 'office' than their ministers". Queen Victoria on one occasion quoted to Mr. Gladstone what the Duke of Wellington had told her about William Pitt, and even that impenitent republican, Charles Dilke, admitted that Queen Victoria, by reason of her exceptional experience, had a special right to press her own opinions on her ministers.

Queen Elizabeth the Second does not yet possess such experience, and accordingly her duties are all the more onerous. The opportunities for a monarch to exert his or her influence are numerous, and it is all too easy to put a foot wrong. But it is not merely a matter of influence. The powers remaining to a King or Queen are still considerable. There are occasions when he or she must exercise a real choice, in appointing a Prime Minister.

The source of the Crown's stability lies in its adaptability. The monarch as a social figure must today perform a very different function from that which was recognized by Queen Victoria, Edward the Seventh and even George the Fifth. "Society," as Edward the Seventh and his contemporaries understood the word, is no longer socially important. The only Society which need concern the monarch today is his entire people. This task of projecting the monarchy so that is touches the lives of people of all classes is a difficult one.

Sir Ivor Jennings, who has little time for the "sloppy stupidity" which informs some people's attitude to the monarchy, says in his book on "Cabinet Government" that "the office of King is one of the most difficult in the world".

Nations Mourn

By HIS EMINENCE
CARDINAL McGUIGAN

ONE could sensibly perceive the hush of sorrow and reverence that hung over the city the morning of His Majesty's death. The shock and sense of loss which takes possession of our hearts at this time is experienced not only throughout our own country, but in the corners of the globe where the Commonwealth is extended, and in those numerous nations which love and respect King George. We have lost our King, and a troubled world has lost a great and good man.

King Solomon, inspired by God, prayed thus: "Remember, O Lord, thy servant David and all his meekness." The prayer is beautifully apt for our deceased monarch. Here was no proud and haughty ruler whose gaze went over the heads of his people. Here was a man who carried authority after the example of the gentle Christ. King George ruled reverently, as one vividly conscious that his authority was from God.

The meekness and gentle reserve which were so evident in the late King were not signs of weakness or lack of devotion. In Britain's darkest hour the King went about the arduous task of inspiring his people and presented a resolute example of calm confidence. His courage never deserted him, and it never deserted his subjects. Nor did they ever call on him in vain. Perhaps King George the Sixth will be remembered by most for his continual and whole-hearted devotion to his people. He placed himself at their service and his people are grateful.

IT IS the sense of loss that causes our sorrow. And yet it is a mixed sorrow, for while we have lost, King George has gained. No one could be sorrowful that God has taken him from this troubled world to the peace and happiness of His everlasting presence. The King lived in the fear and love of God, observing His commandments, and trusting in Divine Power for the safety and welfare of his people. This confidence, we may be sure, will be amply rewarded by Him Who is the Resurrection and the Life. Joy and hope then are not absent from our mourning, for we do not lose sight of the reward that God has prepared for those who love Him.

There is another consideration which relieves the heavy burden of sorrow. In the announcement of the King's death the official words are these: "The King is dead; long live the Queen." We do not say or hear the first part without the second. The two parts are inseparable, as it seems, one proceeding naturally from the other. And indeed, the pictures and accounts of His Majesty's death are balanced by those of our new Queen. On Wednesday last the flag was lowered to mourn the departed King, but on Thursday the flag flew high and the guns boomed to honour the ascended Queen.

These reflections occasioned by the death of our beloved King George turn us to the God of all consolation to ask of Him a threefold grace: that those who mourn may be comforted, that Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth the Second may receive strength, grace, and light, and that the soul of King George may rest in peace.

Subsidy Demanded Or Buses To Stop

OWEN SOUND, Feb. 14 (CP)—Scenic City Buses travelled along city streets today although owners Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Davey told city council that without subsidy the vehicles would cease operations at midnight Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Davey told council Monday that unless some relief was granted they would cease to operate. Council declined Wednesday either to subsidize or to assume control of the bus lines.

The buses serve 1,200 to 1,300 passengers weekly. In 1946-47 the company operated four buses for 3,300-3,700 passengers weekly. A decline in revenue forced two routes to be eliminated.

Today there was no indication how long the service would be continued. Mr. and Mrs. Davey were not immediately available for comment.

Import Slash Worries Ont. Dairymen

TORONTO, Feb. 15—(CP)—Ontario dairymen today looked unhappily toward a year which may see Britain cutting her cheese imports.

Possible reductions in United Kingdom cheese imports were predicted Wednesday by government officials at Ottawa. Last year Ontario producers exported 25,000,000 pounds of cheddar to Britain.

Orman Coons of Elgin, president of the Ontario Cheese Producers Association, said in an interview that for 50 years Ontario's cheese exports to the United Kingdom have "taken up the slack in the province's dairy industry and prevented surpluses of milk."

Mr. Coons said he did not agree with a suggestion made by H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, that if Canadian cheddar cheese were properly merchandised, domestic consumption would take care of all the country could produce.

V. S. Milburn, secretary-manager of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said a shift will have to be made for the milk which went into that export cheese.

Mr. Coons said any reduction in British imports chiefly would affect Ontario's 16,000 or so cheese producing farmers, 350 cheese factories, and the dairy industry generally.

Great Bush Fires Sweep Wide Area In Australia

By WILLIAM FITTER
Special To The Examiner

SYDNEY, Feb. 14—I have just returned from the South Coast district of New South Wales, one of the chief sufferers in the disastrous bush and grass fires which have been ravaging huge tracts of Australia intermittently for the past four months.

When we drove south from Sydney three weeks ago to Wallaga Lake for a quiet fishing holiday, our 250-mile journey lay mainly through dairying lands and bush, which, as we pushed farther down, changed to magnificent stands of blue and spotted gum trees.

We drove home through mile after mile of blackened forest and burned-out pastures, with wayside homesteads gutted and wire fences twisted and broken, their charred posts still smoulering.

Exeprience Related

Our own experience, small compared with that of hundreds of farmers, will serve to illustrate the terrifying speed of the bush fire. With my wife and 13-year-old son I was camped on the shore of Walling's Lake, which runs in from the Pacific Ocean six miles north of Bermagui, the big game fishing village made famous by Zane Grey. The morning of January 25 broke hot. By 10 a.m. the shade temperature was 85 degrees. So we drove into Bormagui to buy provisions and swim in its shark-proof ocean pool. As we left the camp we noticed smoke rising from Mount Dromedary, 20 miles inland, but there was little wind and all seemed safe.

But by noon, when we came out of the pool a fifty-mile-an-hour gale was blowing up from the north-west—a hot, seering wind from the interior, which was fanning one bush fire towards Bermagui from the Bega area, and another, the Mount Dromedary outbreak, towards Wallaga Lake. The temperature had soared. In the shade of the Bermagui Hotel verandah it was 120 degrees; in the sun-drenched main street, lined with timber houses and a few shops, it was ten degrees higher.

Through blinding smoke and the overpowering smell of burning gum trees, we raced back to camp to save our clothes and fishing gear. As we turned off the main road by the lakeside the flames were 400 yards away. In three minutes we had grabbed our most valuable possessions and were back on the road, headed for the safety strip of coast between the lake and Bermagui, and in another five minutes our tent and equipment went up in smoke.

The Dromedary fire had swept to the coast, 20 miles, in less than an hour, burning a 10-mile swathe and sparing only those houses which were protected by an adequate clearing around them.

Wind Changed

Hermagui escaped because at 4 p.m. the wind swung to the south and forestry officials and volunteers were then able to burn a break-back into the fire three miles outside the township. It takes knowledge and courage to burn a break but it is the only sure protection. As the new fire is started along a 10 to 20 mile front the flames lick up and hover as though undecided which path to travel. Then the fires race together provided the wind holds, and by morning there is a blackened three or four-mile wide belt around the danger side of the township—a moat, as it were, through which the main fire cannot pass.

The South Coast is but one of the areas devastated by fires this summer. Not since 1939 has the country known such an outbreak. Four good seasons, with above normal rainfall and prolific pasture and bush growth, prepared the way. The Northern Territory was hit first, last October and November. Thousands of square miles of country, much of it uninhabited, were burned out. Then inland Queensland and northwest New South Wales suffered, and here sheep and cattle losses were high and more than a score of homesteads were destroyed.

Then, as the drought persisted, the whole of the eastern seaboard running down from the Great Dividing Range to the coast, the rich lamb-raising Riverina in south-western New South Wales and large tracts of Victoria, came into the danger area. As fires were subdued or burned themselves out in one area others would flare up elsewhere. Sydney for a fortnight has been struggling to check fires in its wooded outer suburbs of Hornsby, Killara and Pymble.

The atmosphere is constantly smoke-laden, and airline pilots report dense clouds of smoke hundreds of miles out over the Tasman Sea.

Nobody has yet estimated, much less compiled, the total losses, but from district reports to the Department of Agriculture, the New South Wales losses alone will exceed £20 million.

Own Teeth Better

BELGRADE (Reuters)—Authorities in North Bosnia have started a drive to persuade Yugoslavian peasants that healthy natural teeth are more beautiful than false ones, even of gold or chromium. In the villages it is considered a mark of special merit to be able to show a row of gold teeth. Since trade in gold was prohibited, they turned to chromium.

Say Commons Facing Heavy Business

OTTAWA, Feb. 15 (CP)—Parliament will face heavy business when it meets Feb. 28.

To the half-dozen bills left over from the 1951 fall session, the government is reported to be adding a substantial legislative program and political leaders are suggesting that Parliament will have enough business to keep it sitting into August.

The precise program won't be known until it is detailed in the speech from the throne, but much of the legislation can be guessed from hints already dropped.

It is known, for example, that the administration plans to proceed with the controversial annuities bill which got some study at the fall session but was sidetracked by the heated debates concerning anti-price-fixing legislation. This measure raises the ceiling on federal annuities to $2,400 a year from $1,200.

May Make Alterations

The government is reported to be prepared to drop one or two unpopular features in an effort to win opposition approval.

There also will be another segment of the railway legislation resulting from the report of the Royal Commission which spent two years studying Canada's transportation problems. Three rail bills were adopted last fall.

It is expected to provide for recapitalization of the bonded debt of the Canadian National Railways and for the merging of the Board Air Transport Board and the of Transport Commissioners, the Canadian Maritime Commission.

Most controversial business will be the government's plans for the decennial redistribution of Commons representation. With 1953 almost certain to be a general election year, the government is expected to set up a special committee to revise constituency boundaries on the basis of the latest distribution of population.

Dr. Ralph Clark's Four Takes Ontario Final To Advance To Winnipeg

TORONTO, Feb. 15. (CP)—A Peterborough Curling Club rink skipped by Dr. Ralph Clark will represent Ontario in the Canadian Curling Championships at Winnipeg, starting March 3. The Clark rink defeated J. G. W. Sands' Kingston quartet 12-7 last night to win the Ontario Tankard final and the Ontario Curling Association Trophy. The Kingston rink fell apart on the seventh end, when Peterborough scored a big five to take a 9-3 lead that proved to be the winning margin.

Kingston came back to score a total of four over the next three ends. On the 11th they were laying two but Clark played a brilliant shot to knock them out and count one. Starting the final end with a 10-7 lead, Peterborough got in a couple of counters early and guarded them.

Day of Triumph

The game ended a day of triumph for the Peterborough foursome in which it roared through the quarter-finals and semi-finals with top-heavy scores. Earlier it gave Ross Tarlton's Hamiltonians probably the worst beating of the veteran skip's curling career, a 13-4 drubbing called on the 10th end. In the quarter-finals, Clark won from J. Graham of Fergus 12-4 without the formality of playing the 12th end.

The success of the Clark quartet spelled failure for an attempt by the Sands' rink to score the first triple in Ontario curling association history. Two weeks ago the Kingston curlers scored the sixth double in association history by winning the two double-rink events, the Tankard and the Governor-General's Trophy.

Members of the victorious Peterborough rink are: B. Harrison, K. Bissett, J. V. Brown and Dr. Clark.

In the consolation final, Gerve Meech of Toronto High Park used fours on both the first and 10th ends to defeat Fred Perry of Galt 15-10.

Sands, in his advance to the final, eliminated Ivan Brown of Thornbury 11-8 and H. E. Ross of Sarnia 12-7.

In other quarter-finals Tarlton downed F. W. Perry's Galt rink 9-5 and the Ross foursome stopped the Meech High Park crew 11-8.

Collegiate Gals Whip Cobourg, Enter Quarters

While their junior mates dropped by the wayside, the P.C.V.S. Garnet and Grey senior lasses' basketball team proceeded into the C.O.S.S.A. quarter-finals on Thursday night.

In the final games of the grouping the Garnet and Grey junior cage girls lost their fourth straight 22-15 to Cobourg High and the seniors won their fourth straight 16-10, also playing against Cobourg.

Two weeks ago the Cobourg juniors edged the Garnet and Grey while the seniors marched to their third win in easy fashion.

Backed by their four wins over Port Hope and Cobourg Highs, the Garnet and Grey seniors, coached by Audrey Hustwitt, now enter the Lake Ontario district finals, actually the C.O.S.S.A. quarter-finals. They await the winner of the other groups, one including Port Perry, Uxbridge and Lindsay and the other from the Bowmanville area. P.C.V.S. has a bye into that series.

Checking Counted

Steady checking by the four senior guards, Betty Wilkinson, Maureen Fletcher, Nancy Rowell and Eleanor White, accounted largely for the victory. A ssisted by junior Nancy Rose, these girls checked the Cobourg lasses closely throughout the game, not letting Cobourg take too many shots.

Recovering from a broken finger suffered early in the season Fletcher was given the task of hounding star scorer Isobel Reedy of Cobourg. Her success is shown by Reedy's scoring, only two free shot points.

Meanwhile the forwards began to distribute the points, not leaving that important part entirely to Mark Clark or Janet Fredricks. Shirley Frost, Betty Jones, Joan White and Lorraine Derry this game added points to Clark's and Fredrick's to build up the winning margin.

Frost, Clark and Fredricks each notched a basket in the first half as P.C.V.S. went up 6-4. Cobourg actually outplayed the Garnet and Grey but couldn't get the chance to shoot as the collegiate guards checked closely. But the P.C.V.S. lasses began to shoot better in the second to outscore Cobourg 10-6.

No Contest

The inexperienced Garnet and Grey juniors were no match for the Cobourg girls who could pass, shoot and check better. But the ball handling of both teams was poor as the girls bunched too close all trying for the ball.

With neat close-in passing plays the lakeshore girls sank eight points to P.C.V.S.' two by Maizie Shearer who scored in the final seconds of the first quarter. The ball changed hands often in the second quarter as the girls checked closely and few shots were taken. Cobourg played on even terms four-all.

The Garnet and Grey came out with a spurt of speed in the second half but their shooting fell short. Again Cobourg pulled away for an 18-9 score at the third quarter mark. P.C.V.S. rallied in the fourth to outscore Cobourg 6-4. Lineups:

Junior Game, P.C.V.S. (15). — Shearer 7, Callan 5, Raddon 9, Bertram, Bradburn, Buckland, Dobson, Hayward, Rose, Patterson, Steele, Hughson.

Cobourg (22)—Waldie, Boyle 9, Deyell 6, Hart 5, Oliver 2, McGuire, Lawless, Craig, Hogan, McKenzie, Barr, Bray.

Senior game, P.C.V.S. (16) — Clark 4, Frost 4, Fredricks 2, Jones 2, White 2, Derry 2, Thomson, Wilkinson, Rowell, White, Fletcher, Rose.

Cobourg (10). — Reedy 2, Holmes 6, Marsden 2, Corby, Bates, Crabbe, C. Marsden, Harvey, Roy, Hogan, Seale.

P.C.V.S. Drops Close One 41-38 To Oshawa Team

Oshawa Central collegiate's senior "A" basketball quintet, a powerhouse this year, preserved an early lead to edge Bev Goulding's Garnet and Grey seniors from P.C.V.S. 41-38 Thursday in the Motor City.

With a number of last year's seniors back, the Oshawa Central team is the first real threat to P.C.V.S. supremacy in Lake Ontario district's basketball in recent years. Last season Central shawowed the Garnet and Grey but fell down in the last game.

Despite the loss, coach Goulding said after the game, "I feel that the game was a moral victory for us. We should be all right at home a week Friday night, after all three points is neither here nor there on the home floor."

Reports from Oshawa, both last year and this season, have built up the performances by Central's high scorer, Mozewsky. Only as recently as last weekend he racked up 43 points in a game with Ridley College.

Held To 14

The "Big Moe" as he's referred to in Oshawa, received special attention Thursday night by the Garnet and Grey. Harold Grafstein was assigned the checking chore with him and held him fairly well to 14 points.

At the same time the Garnet and Grey dropped their usual break-in style and potted shots from well out. This action was taken to help cover the quick breaks by the "big Moe." It helped Grafstein.

Although the Garnet and Grey opened the scoring, Central roared back to take the lead which they never relinquished. During that first quarter the Oshawa cagers seemed headed for a walk-away as the Garnet and Grey were again slow starting. They went down 12-6 at the quarter.

Whittled Lead

From there it was a matter of fighting uphill for P.C.V.S. and they gradually whittled down the lead. Central was up 20-15 at the half and 32-25 at the three-quarter mark before the Garnet and Grey began to strengthen their offensive to outscore Central 13-9 in the final.

Driving in for layup shots and working from the pivot with a jump shot, Mozewsky led the scoring with 14 points. His teammates, Andrinovich had 10, mostly on rebounds, and Stroz shots from 15 feet out for eight points.

Bryon Young, P.C.V.S. guard, drifted in long shots from 12 to 15 feet for 11 points as the Garnet and Grey's top scorer. Don Ash scored 10 in a similar fashion and Dave Langhorne eight.

The hardest task of the game fell to Young, Grafstein and Langhorne who played the entire game.

The return game of the points-to-count two-game series will be a week today, the winner entering the C.O.S.S.A. finals on March 15.

Lineups:

P.C.V.S. (38)—Ash 10, Young 11, Grafstein 3, Hempstead, Brown 3, Hendry 3, Langhorse 8, Cranfield, Cunningham.

Central (41)—Mozewsky 14, Andrinovich 10, Varga 6, Etroz 8, Edwards 3, Matthews, Starr, Balsco, McInally.

Dr. Ralph Clark, Vic Brown, Ken Bissett, and Bert Harrison will be the rink which will represent the Ontario curlers in the nation-wide all-week Macdonald Brier competition which takes place in Winipeg the first week in March. These boys won that right yesterday at the Granite Club, Toronto, when they met and defeated the pick of the Ontario curlers.

The competition started in Lindsay a couple of weeks ago when the Clark rink came through the preliminary stages, and then played the winners of another district. From there they went to Toronto with the above result.

Not only has this rink won honor for itself, but it has brought honor to this city and club. Two years ago the Clark rink was defeated in the final game by the famous Gilbert rink from Chatham, but this year there was no mistake.

It will be the regular program for tomorrow: 2 p.m., men's bonspiel; 7:45 p.m., mixed rink bonspiel.

T. Doughty, H. Baptie, G. Gobel and W. Westren leave tonight for a short trip down east for some friendly games.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

The eighth Olympic Winter Games commenced yesterday at Oslo, Norway — the Summer Games are in Helsinki next summer — and one can expect lots of international ill-will for the next few weeks. Canada hopes for the hockey title again and mayhap the figures-skating crown, though there's no Barbara Ann cutting her fancy ice capers for the Canucks this time. With the decidedly strained relations between the Iron Curtain countries and the rest of the world, trouble has loomed, is occurring and will happen ere the end. The Soviet Union makes even sports a government matter, subsidizes its athletes, won't let 'em mix socially with athletes of the democracies and, in fact, enters the Olympics with a large chip on the shoulder.

* * * * * *

Unctious Avery Brundage, U.S.A. big shot in amateurism, is much on the scene again. He's the guy who sent Eleanor Holmes home from one Olympics for sipping champagne, made Barbara Ann return the gift of a car to Ottawa ere she could compete last time, and agrees Jim Thorpe should not get the medals he won for cleaning up on early Olympics because he'd once received a few bucks to play ball. Yet, he now says that the committee must take the word of the U.S.S.R. that all Soviet entries are amateur — even though we know the Soviet pays its athletes so much a day when they're competing for the Union. How silly can an amateur badger get?

* * * * * *

These Guys Strictly Pros

No amateursim will be evident in Civic Arena tomorrow night—except that proceeds go to crippled children — when the N.H.L. Oldtimers stage their puck exhibition. These veteran hockeyists all received plenty of dough in their day to chase the elusive puck. In fact, some of them were the best ever to perform in the National League, and they received hefty salaries for their winter's work. They were and are pros, and right proud of it. They've hung up their gear as active players, but are willing to don skates again and shed poundage playing for charity. A good gang of former ice aces.

Lineups of the Reds and Whites were listed here yesterday, and to date we haven't heard of any changes. There'll be the Conachers, Worters, Wentworth, Taylor, Fowler, Thompson Goldup, Jackson, Bailey, Forbes, Clapper, Hollett, Stewart, Aurie, McDonald, Robinson, Hammill, Boyd, Draper, Duguid, Keeling, O'Neill, Convey, King, Bellemer, Shylie, Heron, probably Brennan, and several others. Plus some ice forward-passing ala football by Krol and Smylie; figure skating betwixt periods; bantam play ere the start of the big game at 8.30; introductions, etc. A large evening before the season's biggest crowd. Folks who haven't visited Civic Arena yet have been hounding Dave Kerr and Dit Clapper for ducats.

Local hoop teams lost out on several fronts last p.m., though the senior P.C.V.S. lasses beat Cobourg 16-10 to advance into the Lake Ontario district playoffs. Junior Collegiate colleens dropped a 22-15 decision to Cobourg. In play at Oshawa, P.C.V.S. senior boys were nudged out 41-38 by Central but should take that series back here a week tonight, it being a points-to-count sawoff. P.C.V.S. junior lads lost 51-46 in the Motor City, too, in a league fixture. Gord McIntyre's male Marines were beaten by Queen's 43-36 in Kingston to lose out on their O.A.B.A. intermediate playdown round by eight points, and that marks the end of the trail for a good Peterborough pack of cagers this semester. Tough luck. Several cage jousts around and about on the morrow.

Foul Shots Spell Difference Queen's University Wins Scond Game, Series

In the close basketball games the foul shots can make the difference whether a team wins or not, as the Marines found out Thursday night in Kingston. The Queen's University Thirds sank 14 foul shots in the second half to overcome a small deficit and win the second game of the points-to-count Eastern Ontario intermediate series 43-36. With that loss the Marines bowed out of further Ontario play, losing the two-game series with the Queen's students by eight points, 94-86, The Marines lost the first game Tuesday 51-50.

On Tuesday night the final verdict was not reached until after the whistle ended the game; then a successful foul shot made the Kingston cagers the winner by a point. Again on Thursday in the Limestone City foul shots counted.

Zone Defence

Using a zone defence with a fast break, the Marines built up an early lead but fell back to a 10-all score at the quarter. Again they went ahead as Hugh Dibben pitched in four out of five foul shots and Joe Stewart began to set up his teammates. They held a seven-point lead at the half, 26-19.

But the fouls began to rain on the Marines in the second half and probably put them off their game. The college students tied the score 33-all at the three-quarter mark.

The fouls continued to stack up against the Marines in the fourth and the Queen's cagers cashed in for the single points to build up their score. With five minutes remaining the students went ahead to build up the winning margin for the first time in the game.

Actually Thursday night's game was not as rough as the first game. The Marines were handed 25 personal fouls, losing top scorer, Gord Burns, and veteran guard, Chum Gillespie, in the fourth quarter. Meanwhile Queens were handed 12 personals.

But the difference was in the students' foul shooting. They whipped in no less than 19 out of 31, 14 of the good shots in the second half to help them pull up and pass the Marines.

Queen's top scorer and also the game's was Milligan, most of his 13 points coming on foul shots. He scored on eight of his 11 foul shot chances. Donnelly with set shots distributed his 11 points in both halves.

Gord Burns Collects Nine

Gord Burns, with long lofty shots in the first half rolled up a total of nine points to lead the Marines scoring while Ted Payne picked up six from close in work. As in the first game Joe Stewart, Ab Stewart and Bill Trimm clicked closely.

The Marines lost Hugh Dibben, their tall centre who has been playing the whole game in recent contests, in the fourth quarter. He hurt his leg. Before that accident he had been rebounding well, more than holding his own with the collegians. Lineups:

Marines (36).—Dibben 4, J. Stewart 5, Trimm, A. Stewart 4, Dadson, Payne 6, Smith 4, Gillespie 2, Grafstein, Burns 9, Thompson 2.

Queens (43).—Clark 4, King 3, Hayden 2, Donnelly 11, Gagnon 5, Nogas 1, Milligan 13, Bell 1.

L. Crocker Rolls 710 In 'Y' Ladies' League

Competition was keen this week in the ladies "Y" senior bowling league. All victories were of the 2-1 variety, with Lucky Strikes successful over Tigers, Corvettes defeating Hurricanes, Commandos winning from Bombers, and Aces victorious against Glengarrys.

L. Crocker rolled high three for the evening with a 710 effort, and her 335 showed the way to other trundlers in high singles. For teams, Commandos compiled top pinnage on the night with a roll of 2730.

P.C.V.S. Juniors Edged Out In Oshawa Tilt

A last-minute spurt by the Oshawa Central junior "A" cagers gave the Motor City five a 51-46 win over Jack Cullis' junior "A" quintet from P.C.V.S. in Oshawa. The loss was the first in season play for the Garnet and Grey.

The teams renew the battle at the Collegiate gym next Friday when the Central teams have a double-header night with the Garnet and Grey. A win for P.C.V.S. would tie the final standing at three wins and a loss each, forcing a sudden-death game or a points-to-count series to decide a winner.

P.C.V.S. lost Thursday night only because they lacked sufficient reserves to help carry through the fourth quarter. After Ken Armstrong received four personal fouls in the first half, he was used lightly in the second.

The Cullis-coached boys led throughout the game 12-8 at the quarter, 20-15 at the half and 34-32 at the three-quarter mark. It was not as close as the score indicates for P.C.V.S. outplayed the Motor City quintet in all quarters but the final minutes of the fourth.

Visitors Tired

At one time in the fourth the Garnet and Grey held a 10-point lead but they tired, began to pass wild and commit various violations which they had previously evaded. Then Oshawa, with Chaszewski leading the way, rallied to take the lead in the final two minutes with layup shots from fast breaks.

Oshawa players were on the average three inches taller than the Garnet and Grey lads. But the lakeshore team were slow and violated more than P.C.V.S., who were faster and better coached.

Without a tall man to check Chazewski, the Motor City strong man scored most of his 20 points in the fourth from the key hole area and in closer. Morely for Oshawa chalked up 11 points, Zilinsky nine and Olinyk six.

Dan Griffin again topped P.C.V.S. scorers with a 13-point effort on layup shots, his speciality. Harry Carleton, with shots from the foul line, at the side, totalled nine points, while Armstrong and Bob Boorman each chalked up eight.

Lineups:

Oshawa Central (51)—Zilinsky 9, Petroniskin, Benkowski, Rhame, Zinkiewich, Ruskay, Fisher 5, Gule, Laverty, Chazewski 20, Olinyk 6, Morely 11.

P.C.V.S. Junior "A" (46) — Griffin 13, Burgess, R. Boorman 8, Eastwood, Roberts 4, Davis, Carleton 9, Armstrong 8, Marshall 4, Fowler, J. Boorman, D. Ash.

Whip To Tackle Lord Layton

Whipper Billy Watson, British Empire Champion and Lord Athol Layton will headline next Tuesday's mat card at the Brock. Bad blood exists between these two grapplers and Layton's past actions have indicated he will stop at practically nothing to win a match.

Watson's position as titleholder speaks volumes for him. His Unconscious Commando is one of the most feared holds in mat circles. However, he'll be up against Layton's judo chop which has been largely responsible for the big Britisher's victory record and which has flattened many of the game's leaders. It should be a rugged encounter.

A special match bringing together Hans Hermann, hated German grappler and Warren Bockwinkle, will hold plenty of interest. Whether Bockwinkle can stand up to Hermann's driving style and his famous Prussian Squeeze will be decided Tuesday. It will take a wrestler as big and powerful as Bockwinkle to accomplish this.

Chief Suni War Cloud, popular Indian mat star will start things off against tough Stan Mayslack.

Habs Cool Off Leafs 3-1 As Detroit Edges Luckless Hawks 3-2

By The Canadian Press

Rumors that Conn Smythe might cut short his annual Florida winter vacation and fly north to hound Toronto Maple Leafs into more forceful ways were strengthened on Thursday night down Montreal way. The Leaf general manager who Sunday hopped up to New York from his Florida winter hide-away to have a look at his problem children, was reported none too pleased with their showing, even though his team did edge the Rangers 4-3. However, he said little.

The Leafs came home and on Wednesday stumbled 3-1 before the powerful league-leading Detroit Red Wings, then entrained for Montreal and repeated their faux pas in front of the surging Canadiens Thursday night. Again they were on the wrong end of a 3-1 score.

The loss left Toronto a bare point in front of the third-place Montrealers while Detroit, in copping a 3-2 decision from the Black Hawks at Chicago, pulled a full seven games out in front of the runner-up Leafs.

The Habs opened fast against Toronto and took a 1-0 first period lead. They stretched it to 3-1 in the middle session, the final stanza going scoreless.

Starts Ball Rolling

Dickie Moore started the ball rolling for Montreal at 1:34 of the initial period while the Leafs were two men short.

Dick Gamble and Bernie Geoffrion made it 3-0 for Montreal early in the second period. Tod Sloan scored Toronto's lone marker at 18:03 of the period.

Aside from the old scuffle there was little of the rugged play which is usually a feature of Toronto-Montreal clashes.

Elmer Lach, the veteran Canadien playmaker, played one of his best games in recent years. He drew assists on all three of the Montreal goals.

In Chicago, Gordie Howe, the National Hockey League's top point maker scored two goals — his 30th and 31st of the season — to lead the Red Wings to their 3-2 win over Black Hawks.

Gus Bodnar tied it up for Chicago after Howe's first goal and Al Ewsbury gave the Hawks a brief third period lead. However, Metro Prystai tied it 2-2 before Howe came through with his final marker which proved to be the winner.

No games are scheduled for tonight. New York is at Montreal Saturday night while Chicago plays in Toronto.

Buffalo Downs Mohawks 4-1

By The Canadian Press.

Buffalo Bisons' hopes for an American Hockey League playoff berth are brighter today.

Buffalo, eastern division winners last year, strengthened its grip on third place, the last playoff spot, Thursday night by beating Cincinnati Mohawks 4-1.

The Bisons wrapped it up in the first period on goals by Stan Long, Ab Demarco and Loren Davis.

Buddy O'Connor scored for Cincinnati in the second period and Sid McNabny got Buffalo's fourth goal in the final stanza.

The victory enabled the Bisons to pull six points ahead of the fourth place Syracuse Warriors.

Pete Durham, the league's most penalized player, made his Buffalo debut an impressive one. Durham, a former Indianapolis forward-defenceman, drew one assist and two penalties.

Guelph Edges Black Hawks 5-4 As Stratford Drops Tigers 6-4

By The Canadian Press.

Guelph Biltmores pulled to within four points of the league-leading Toronto Marlboros Thursday night when they downed the third-place Galt Black Hawks 5-4 in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A tussle.

The win moved Guelph within striking distance of the league-leaders and pulled them a full six points up on third-place Galt.

In senior play, the league-leading Stratford Indians dropped Hamilton Tigers 6-4 and pulled out in front of the runner-up Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts by 13 points.

Goal Getters

George Aitken and Don Heinbuch pushed in two goals each for the Indians while Mickey Roth and playing coach Pat Wilson added one each. Tiger marksmen were Polly Miocinovich, Frank Liscombe, Johnny Conick and Gord Peebles.

Ron Murphy tallied twice for Guelph with Dean Prentice, Chuck Henderson and Bill McCreery notching the others. Mike Buchanan garnered a pair for the losers with the others going to Jim McBurney and Johnny Sleaver.

Duke Edmundson banged in two for Kitchener with singletons going to Jim Farelli, Joe Ingoldsby and Orv Tessier. Doug Mohns potted three for the losers while Johnny Martan got the other.

No games are scheduled in any of the Ontario Hockey Association's leagues tonight because of the funeral of the King today.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press.

Gordie Howe of Detroit picked up two goals Thursday night as the Wings downed Chicago Black Hawks 3-2 to move further ahead in the goal-scoring department of the National Hockey League's individual scoring race.

Howe now has 58 points, made up of a record 31 goals and 27 assists. Lach has 12 goals and a pace-setting 38 assists.

Minor Leagues Face Good Year

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 15 (AP) —Minor league baseball, despite the demise of seven leagues since the 1951 campaign, looked forward today to a healthy and happy season.

In 1950 the minors hit their peak of 59 leagues and 444 teams. Now the field has dwindled to 43 leagues and 320 clubs.

Ten loops dropped out between the 1950 and 1951 seasons, seven gave up this winter, and one 10-club circuit split up to help form two six-team loops.

Phil Piton, No. 1 aide to minor league president George M. Trautman, struck an optimistic note today as he said:

"The leagues still in the fold appear to be financially stable. Most of those which dissolved were borderline loops, unable to hold up in the face of attendance drops, major league competition, and the loss of players to the services.

"We are hoping the minor leagues will receive some consideration and some relief from the flood of radio and television broadcasts of major league games. Economists predict the current 'good times' will continue, so I'd say minor league baseball's outlook is a bright and healthy one."

Freighter SOS Story Termed Just Hoax

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 15—(AP)—The Coast Guard Thursday night termed a "hoax" the radio distress message that a freighter was afire off the northwest coast of Cuba and had been abandoned by her crew.

A plane from the Coast Guard station at Miami and a cutter from Key West searched the area thoroughly without finding any debris.

MORE ABOUT—

Two Minutes

"In the midst of life we are in death. Of whom may we seek for succour but of Thee, O Lord, who for our sins are justly displeased?"

"Yet, O Lord, God most holy, O Lord most mighty, O holy and merciful Saviour, deliver us not unto the bitter pains of eternal death.

"Thou knowest, Lord, the secrets of our hearts. Shut not Thy merciful ears to our prayer, but spare us, Lord most holy, O God most mighty, O holy and merciful Saviour, Thou most worthy judge eternal, suffer us not, at our last hour, for any pains of death, to fall from Thee."

Intones Committal Words

As the body of the dead Monarch was lowered into the vault beneath the chapel, the Archbishop intoned the words of committal:

"Forasmuch as it hath pleased Almighty God to take unto himself the soul of our dear brother here departed; we therefore commit his body to the ground; earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust, in sure and certain hope of the resurrection to eternal life, through our Lord Jesus Christ, who shall change our vile body, that it may be like until His glorious body, according to the mighty working, whereby He is able to subdue all things to Himself."

The choir sang:

"I heard a voice from heaven, saying unto me, write, from henceforth blessed are the dead which die in the Lord. Even so saith the spirit, for they rest from their labors."

Reads Special Prayers

The Dean of Windsor read three special prayers. One of them asked God's blessing on "those whom we love but see no longer." The second besought God to "Deal graciously with those who mourn." The third asked God's help in keeping faith.

The Garter King of Arms, Hon. Sir George Bellew, stepped forward and proclaimed in full the styles of the dead King:

"Thus it has pleased Almighty God to take out of this transitory life unto his divine mercy the late most high, most mighty and most excellent monarch, George the Sixth, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, Ireland and the British dominions beyond the seas, King, defender of the faith and sovereign of the most noble Order of the Garter.

"Let us humbly beseech Almighty God to bless with long life, health and honor, and all worldly happiness, the most high, most mighty and most excellent Monarch, our sovereign lady, Elizabeth the Second, now, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, Ireland, and the British dominions beyond the seas, Queen, defender of the faith, and sovereign of the most noble Order of the Garter."

Pronounces Benediction

The choir sang the anthem "God be in my heart and in my understanding," composed by Sir Walford Davies, who was master of the King's music during the reign of Georoge V. The Archbishop of Canterbury then pronounced the benediction:

"The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost, be with us all evermore. Amen."

As the mourners slowly left the chapel, the organist played "The Dead March" from Handel's "Saul."

Find Argentine Similar To United States

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 15 (AP).—Today's travelogue comes from actor Hugh Marlowe, who along with Gene Tierney and Rory Calhoun, went to the Argentine to film "Way of the Gaucho."

"It is very much like the United States," was his comment on the southern Republic. "Both our countries have good supplies of beef, good women and wheat. Man could exist on these three things alone.

"The women are very charming and very beautiful. They wear their clothes very well, too. From all I could observe, there are no falsies in the Argentine. The women appear to have no need for them. I am at a loss to account for this. Perhaps it is because the women lead active lives or because they eat a great deal of meat."

That was the other thing that impressed Marlowe—the abundance of beef. Beleaguered housewives will be pained to learn that the Argentines don't bother with such penny-savers as hamburger and hot dogs. They eat filets.

Covered Much Ground

Marlowe said the film company shot for about 2½ months in Argentina, travelling all over the country, from the Pampas to the Andes.

"The face of the country is very much like ours," he remarked. "They have the same vast spaces, since the Argentine is a third the size of the United States. The only different thing they have is the Pampas, the vast areas with rolling grass.

"In other respects we are much the same, too. Their Gaucho is similar to our cowboy. And they have the same frontier tradition. But, except for Buenos Aires, the country is not as modern."

Farmer Convicted Of Dangerous Driving

He had been tried on a charge of manslaughter in the death of Henry Reist of Elmira, a passenger in his automobile when it was in an accident last August 19. The jury reduced the charge.

Second Reading

WINNIPEG, Feb. 15 (CP). — A bill giving women the right to sit on juries in Manitoba was introduced for second reading in the Provincial Legislature Thursday.

FOLEY FUND AID.

Peterborough received $520 from the treasurer of the Almira Grover Foley estate, and was distributed quarterly to thirteen needy persons. That is a welfare item in the annual report of A. G. Metheral, welfare officer.

SWOOPED ON CARS.

Cars that roost all night against curbs in Ottawa drew 457 tickets in two nights in Ottawa. Police had 33 others towed away at a cost to the owner of $2 to $5. Obstruction of snow clearance was the charge as provided by local statute. There's one here too.

FEW CARDS LEFT.

The Valentine card counter at the corner store was reduced last night to a few pretty remnants. They were missives undelivered, and their message was exactly the same as that which had gone forth on many wings in recent days.

WATER MAIN BREAK

About six households on King George Street were without water overnight due to a break in the street's water main on Thursday night. Ross Dobbin, manager of the Utilities Commission said today that frost was believed to have caused the break.

SKI TRAIN CANCELLED

The ski train scheduled to run to the Peterborough Ski Club's open house at Bethany on Saturday has been cancelled, Toby Westbye said today. A radio announcement as to whether the ski school at Kemp's Hill will be held will be made Saturday morning at 8:10.

FALLS, BREAKS HIP

An 87-year-old Hastings resident, Mrs. Ellen Warner, is in Civic Hospital with a fractured left hip. Mrs. Warner has been in ill health for the last week, and she broke her hip when she fell in her bedroom at her son's home, Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Warner was taken to hospital in Peterborough by ambulance and a successful operation was performed on the injured hip, as soon as she was admitted.

Service At Plant

The melancholy lament, "Flowers of the Forest," was played today by Pipe Major Alex Milne as C.G.E. management and employees assembled by the gatehouse today for a memorial service. Shortly before 11 a.m. various groups — veterans, S.A. and C.C.C. and union representatives — filed out of the plant and then remained standing for a two minutes' silence in memory of the late King George VI. After playing of the Lament, the assembly dispersed and work was resumed in the plant.

Board To Discuss Salaries With Teachers

The appointments committee of the Board of Education are going to meet with all the teacher-federation groups in city schools to discuss salaries.

This move came after correspondence from the teacher-board committee of the Peterborough local, Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, listing four points of dissatisfaction:

1. They had received no written reply to their requests of Oct. 6, 1951, for (a) an increase in salary averaging $425 to meet the cost of living; (b) a basic maximum of $5,600; and (c) a probationary period.

2. Failure of the Board to bring local salaries into line with those of comparable cities.

3. An unsatisfactory basic-maximum recently adopted by the Board. Negotiations should begin on this at the first opportunity. (The Board raised the maximum to $4,700 instead of $5,600 as asked by the teachers.)

"Not only are our immediate salaries below those of many other centres," said a letter from the teachers' local, "but our basic-maximum is far below that ratified by the 1951 annual assembly of the O.S.S.T.F., and at the same time it is considerably less than those listed for other schools comparable in size to Peterborough."

Want Meeting

The teachers said they wanted to meet with the Board and get the salary dispute settled before the final estimates are struck for the year.

Dr. Ralph Honey answered the points, one by one.

As chairman of the Board in 1951 he may have been remiss in not acknowledging the October letter, he conceded. "But the subject matter dealt with by the teachers could not be dealt with by the 1951 Board."

On comparable salaries: "This is a familiar but vexing question," said Dr. Honey. "Actually you can't make an accurate comparison so as to say 'the Board has not closed the gap between our salaries and comparable centres'. That's just not true. But it may

Welfare Dep't Reports $5,250 Surplus

Peterborough's welfare department had a surplus of $5,250.35 from its work in 1951 as tabulated in the statement of A. G. Metheral, welfare officer.

Total expenditure by that department was $61,869.26, which was an increase of $6,922.08 over the 1950 total of $54,947.18.

Grants and refunds on the credit side amounted to $26,844.11 of which $24,409.21 was received from the provincial government.

The credits subtracted from the total left $35,025.15 as the actual cost of welfare service to the city.

Cost to the city in 1950 was $33,729.69, or $1,295.46 less than the actual cost last year.

City council appropriated $40,275.50 to the department for its year's work and outlay. Subtract from that figure, the actual expenditure of $35,025.15; and the surplus emerges at $5,250.35.

Those are the main features of the Metheral statement.

Details of expenditure were:

Food $29,275.26; clothing $1,500.60; household sundries $988; doctors $1,994.96; medicine $200.19; funerals $460; fuel $6,954.51; shelter $8,099.65; special home care $720; sanitaria aftercare $1,247.90; ambulance service $12; miscellaneous $27.35.

Mr. Metheral reported that in December last year 278 persons received assistance from the welfare department.

137 For Relief

Registrations for relief during the year were 137; for 25 of them their relief cost was entirely chargeable to the municipality; of the others, 70 received assistance because of age or illness; 17 because of desertion of the head of the family; ten because of imprisonment of the head of the family; two while awaiting old age pensions; five waiting on mother's allowances.

Two mothers separated from their husbands with illegitimate children; and six received aid awaiting dependents allowances from the Army.

During the year there were 140 relief investigations.

Orders for six funerals and eight ambulances were issued. Four of the ambulances were to outside hospitals.

Six Peterborough residents were recommended to receive free insulin. Three were refused. Twenty-one persons received free insulin chargeable to the municipality 25% last year. The sum of $106.12 was paid to the provincial department of health for this purpose.

Hope Revived

People who were beginning to resign themselves to a major cold spell that would break up sometime next June can begin to nurse hope again. The weatherman promises that Saturday will not be sunny and cold, but sunny and milder. Most people, sick of the winter, are hoping that it will be about 60 degrees milder.

Village Council Favors Controls

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 15 — (ENS) —This week's meeting of the Village Council proved to be quiet with no business of importance on the agenda. Present were Reeve E. H. Northey and Councillors J. L. Fraser, J. R. Hull, D. B. Millar and K. W. Morris.

Deputations included Thomas O'Connor of Peterborough and his son to discuss with the council the status of the cottage on lot 24 plan 30, Lakefield, which is owned by William Whibbs and on which Mr. O'Connor and the councillors made a down payment. After considerable discussion with Mr. O'Connor and the councillors it was decided to let the matter stand as was decided at the January 1952 meeting.

The Rev. W. H. Tonge and the Rev. W. B. Walker also addressed the council about plans for the memorial service to be held for the late King on Friday in the United Church.

The Lakefield Hydro Electric Commission will be authorized to improve the street lighting by installing five 300 watt lights each year, to replace five 100 watt lights.

A letter was received from the Hon. Harold A. Scott re the opinion if Lakefield should or should not be under rent control, and on motion of Councillors Fraser and Hull, the following motion was passed. "That in the opinion of the council, Lakefield should continue under rent control."

Bylaw number 1072 authorizing Dayligth Saving Time in Lakefield in the year 1952 was passed.

Finance committee recommended payment of accounts totalling $5313.07. Major item was $3,000 for Lakefield Public School Board.

Fred Clements Dies At Home In Leaside

Baseball fans of 40 years ago should remember Fred Clements, pitcher of the local team that won the Central Ontario championship in 1908.

Mr. Clements died at his home in Leaside, Toronto, Wednesday, and will be buried in St. John's cemetery (Norway) Saturday at 2 p.m. He leaves his widow, Violet Lea, and three sons, Bill, Fred and Norman.

Edwin T. Johnston, manager of the Windsor Hotel, recalled today that his father, the late Arthur Johnston, had selected and sponsored that team. Most of the players were from Toronto.

Jerry Edmunds, now of Niagara Falls, was catcher, and some of the others were Corney Burns, Fred Maddox, Conny Murphy and Lawson at first base.

Mr. Johnston said that Mr. Clements returned to Peterborough on vacation fishing trips during the last two summers.

Peterborough Citizens Mourn Death Of King In Churches, Homes, Work

Silence fell gently in the city's churches, spreading from pulpit and chancel to the congregations, the people who had come to mourn their king. In the city's stores and industries, everything stopped. A king was buried today in England, and his funeral was reflected in the mourning of the commonwealths beyond the seas.

The silence in the churches grew and was broken finally by the words: "I am the resurrection and the life, saith the Lord; he that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die."

Morning Services

Morning services were held in three Anglican churches today at 11 a.m.—at All Saints', St. Luke's and St. John's.

At All Saints', the Rev. Henry Cotton said:

"If he could speak to us, his last message would be: 'Give to my daughter, now your Queen, the same love and loyalty that you gave to me'."

Apart from brief eulogies, the services were identical with that held in St. George's Chapel at Windsor, where the King was buried.

Congregations were large at all three. About 200 were present at St. John's, with smaller numbers at St. Luke's and All Saints'.

At one church, Winston Churchill's words in praise of the King were recalled:

"In the end, death came as a friend. He fell asleep, as every man and woman who strives to fear God and nothing else in the world may hope to do."

Special Services Held In Cobourg

COBOURG, Feb. 15 (ENS). — The people of Cobourg mourned their King today, turning out in large numbers to the special memorial services. At nine this morning, High Mass was solemnized by Rev. P. J. Collins, at St. Michael's church; at 11 a.m. the community service was held at St. Peter's Anglican church where the Rev. E. C. Kelloway of Trinity United church delivered the address. Mayor, council and public utilities commission attended both services. In the evening was scheduled a special memorial service at Glad Tidings Tabernacle, Rev. M. W. Holmes conducting the service. Two minutes silence were observed at nine a.m.

Park Costs $12,373

COBOURG, Feb. 15. — The 1952 estimates for operating Victoria Park have been set at $12,373.25 by the Parks Board and a statement to this effect has been sent on to the town council. The usual one mill subsidy is being asked for this year. The board plans to instal lockers, showers and electric dryers in the new park lavatory.

Father Wounded In Head By Bullet Thrown In Stove To Protect Son

"Too Dangerous For You To Have," Boy Told Shell Explodes, Hits Man Above Eye; Not Seriously Injured

CHEMONG PARK, Feb. 15. (Staff)—A father's attempt to protect his son from injury boomeranged shortly after 8 a.m. today when a shell he had taken from the boy exploded in a coal stove. "That's too dangerous for you to have," Bernard Pearson told his 14-year-old son Noel as he threw a .22-calibre shell into the stove. Minutes later, a neighbor, Bruce Patterson, was racing toward Peterborough at 70 miles an hour, taking Pearson to hospital with a fragment of the bullet lodged in his forehead.

Another neighbor, Mrs. Karl Thomson was listening to a rebroadcast of the funeral of King George VI when she saw nine-year-old Peter Pearson running down the road. Believing the boy's mother who has been ill might not be well, she called to ask him what was wrong.

"My daddy has a bullet in his head," Peter shouted as he ran to the door of his scoutmaster, Bruce Patterson to obtain aid.

Drove To Help

Mr. Patterson dressed hurriedly and drove his car to the Pearson home, two doors down on the opposite side of the street.

By this time cold cloths were being applied by Mrs. Pearson and Mrs. Thomson to try and stop the bleeding. A sheet was wrapped around his head, and with Mr. Patterson at the wheel, and Mrs. Thomson trying to stop the flow of blood from the scalp wound, Pearson was rushed to hospital in Peterborough.

A fragment of the shell is still lodged in his forehead but it did not penetrate the skull.

Hospital authorities said later in the morning that the wound is only a minor injury and that he is in no danger.

On Way To Work

Mrs. Pearson explained that her husband was on his way to work, when he noticed Noel had a .22-calibre bullet. Fearing that the boy might be injured if it exploded, he took it from him and tossed it into a coal heater.

"There was fresh coal on the fire and he was just poking it down under the coals. It exploded too soon," Mrs. Pearson said. When she first saw him, she said his face was covered with blood and there was a white welt over his left eye.

Her first attempt to obtain aid from an off duty nurse who lives nearby failed. The nurse informed Mrs. Pearson she "was under bond," and forbidden by the Peterborough hospital where she is employed to administer first aid in any circumstances when not on duty.

Then she sent Peter to obtain aid while she attended her husband.

With five small children to look after, four boys and a girl, Mrs. Pearson remained at home while Mr. Patterson and Mrs. Thomson rushed her husband to the hospital.

Board Asks City For Sewer To Grove School

City Council are being asked by the Board of Education to put a sewer into Grove School this summer.

Frank Jobbitt, chairman of property, told the Board Thursday night that laying of the sewer was a project that should be pressed strongly.

"The sewer at present ends at Cameron St. and Erskine Ave., about half a block away," said Mr. Jobbitt. "I see no reason why this can't be completed this summer.

Grove School now has running water but no sewerage system. Drainage is into two septic tanks.

"Couldn't we have a cinder path put in as well"? asked Mrs. Anne Rowell.

"There's no place for children to walk except out in the middle of the road," said Mr. Jobbitt.

"What alarms me is the deep ditches by the side of the road," said Mrs. Rowell. "They're a hazard."

It is estimated that slightly less than half the children come down Erskine Ave., and the majority come via Orpington Rd. and Cameron St. from Monaghan Rd.

Discussed Before

K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools, pointed out that the board have taken this matter up with the city before. The city cannot lay sidewalks except as a local improvement. This means there must be a petition from the citizens.

Even laying a cinder path requires grading and that comes under local improvements.

Some of the ditches in springtime fill with as much as eight feet of water and could easily drown a young child. The only course open for them is to walk in the centre of the road.

The problem of what to do was given to the property committee. After an investigation they will report back to the board.

Grove Home and School Club are also seeing what can be done about eliminating the hazards.

Shorthorn Breeders Re-elect Lou Shaw President.... Federation Directors Grant $200 to Central Ontario Spring Show.... Forums Study Commodity Marketing Boards... Local Maple Meeting March 6.... Federation Dinner at Norwood Wed., Feb. 20.

Peterborough Shorthorn Breeders retained Lou Shaw as president of their association at its annual meeting Saturday, February 9. The two vice-presidents are Lorne Pimmett and Ken Hunt.

Dr. Harold Worton was elected secretary-treasurer. He said he was accepting the post on the understanding that he would receive the active support of all the members.

Directors are: Elwood Dunford, George Shoniker, Ross Wiles, Jack Bolin, Stewart Whittington, Stewart Armstrong and Victor Moloney.

Reviewing 1951, Mr. Shaw said it had brought new prominence to the quality of the Shorthorn breed in this county. The field day at Louada Manor Farm was a big success, and the association was grateful to Louis Cadesky for his liberal support.

The family of M. H. Pimmett and Sons, Mr. Shaw said, had won honor for themselves, the county and Otonabee township at Toronto and Chicago. Their junior heifer Strathore Duthie Violet had won her class, and the junior and grand championships at the Royal Winter Fair, and also the coveted United Kingdom trophy for the best Shorthorn in the show.

Collynie Violet had also stood high at the Royal. They were Shorthorns of this county, sired by Louada Marshall, the Cadesky herd sire.

Mr. Shaw said he would prefer to step down from the chair this year, but the members re-elected him unopposed.

Ab Stoltz, fieldman, reported present membership of 4,600 breeders in the Canadian Shorthorn Association, an increase of 160 over 1950. There were 600 more registrations, and transfers were at a high level.

Just back from the Maritimes, Mr. Stoltz said that in two years bulldozers had uprooted 200,000 apple trees. Heavy cropping of potatoes year after year was wearing out the soil.

"I can see an opportunity for beef cattle in both New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Keep your eye on the commercial man and his needs. Try to figure out and keep ahead of what he wants. Hold your quality and develop good large animals. Even if some of you are a little out of the way, people will find you out to see good cattle."

The association decided to make a gift of two dollars to each junior beef cattle club member who showed Shorthorn at Achievement Day next September. Arrangements for co-operating with Durham at the field day this summer at the farm of Morley Beath was left to the directors.

CENTURY OF FERTILIZER

At the Rothamsted Experimental Station in England, a plot of land has received nearly 4,400 pounds of commercial fertilizer every year for more than 100 years and is still producing bumper crops. The land has been sown continuously to wheat and the yield of grain has been maintained at about 34 bushels per acre during the entire period. Yields on a nearby unfertilized field average 12 bushels an acre.

GRAIN UNDER SNOW

A total of 286,000,000 bushels of wheat, oats, barley and flaxseed remained to be harvested in the west at the end of the year.

Bureau of Statistics, Ottawa, estimates are: 150,000,000 bus. wheat, 134,600,000 bus. oats and barley. Largest part of the unharvested wheat is 91,000,000 bus. under the snow of Saskatchewan.

"The proportion of this grain eventually saved will depend on the extent to which the unthreshed crop escapes injury from lengthy exposure, and on the development of weather conditions suitable for spring harvesting."

Robert Bell tapped a promising vein of junior enthusiasm at Lakehurst last Friday night. Immediate result was the forming of a forestry club of 15 boys. It was also decided to send two cars of young folks of that Harvey community to the meeting of Peterborough Junior Farmers, February 19.

The two Bells, John and Bob, were delighted with the response of the 40 adults and junior, parents attending with younger members of their families. Mr. John Bell is zone forester, and Mr. R. E. Bell is assistant agricultural representative.

Group officers elected are: President, Donald Jackson; vice-president, Douglas Northey; secretary-treasurer, Fred Barcroft.

Other boys who joined the Forestry Club, the first group organized in the county this season, were: Archie, Walter and Douglas McIlmoye; Arthur, Charles and William Hutchinson; John Weiss, Burritt Irwin, Arnold Jackson, Orvis Barcroft, Eldon Stockdale and Hugh Jackson.

Forester Bell explained the club's project, scope of study and planting, and generally outlined the club prospects for the year. John Edmison, county director for the Junior Farmers, invited Lakehurst people to become actively interested in the organized Junior Farmers, and thereby help extend its numbers and influence on the west side of the county.

Bob Bell thanked the parents for coming out with the boys, and urged them to sustain their co-operation all the way to Achievement Day.

FINDINGS OF FORUM

"Marketing boards should definitely have the backing of every producer, or their work is fruitless."

That was part of the consensus Feb. 11 of Stewart Hall Forum on the question: "Are Commodity Groups Doing Their Job?" Twenty members attended at the home of Mr. and Mrs. K. Savigny. Two discussion groups were formed.

They agreed that control of supply should be secured, "so that prices may be stabilized." But, they said, without support from the general body of producers, the efforts of commodity groups cannot be expected to yield the desired resuts.

As to further steps, they reported: "Keep a steady supply of hogs (for example) coming along 12 months in the year. We feel that it is up to us to back up our commodity groups 100% financially as well as giving them our full moral support."

Central Smith Forum's recommendations on the first question of what can be done to improve marketing schemes were: have a steady supply of any commodity; maintain good quality and fair price; pay a premium to encourge quality. They also suggest: "by having a universal currency." Fourteen were present at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Irwin.

"Advertise and encourage production of quality products" was the proposal of Pine Grove Forum at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Garbutt. Thirty-eight members turned out, and discussion was general within the whole company.

Stewart Hall group commented: "We did not feel satisfied with the broadcast," and Pine Grove: "Owing to poor radio reception, we did not get the program." Those are notations for headquarters.

Nine members of Daisy D Forum met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Shoniker. Their findings included: Cut down on the difference between producer and consumer; have the floor price in keeping with the cost of production; and maintain stabilized price. They also report the need of more life in organizations, with leadership of active production.

TWO HOLSTEIN AUCTIONS

Auction of 126 Holsteins at Glanworth and Oakville averaged $435 for a total of $54,382, indicating continuing activity and satisfactory prices.

Sixty-seven head brought $30,877 at Oakville for an average of $460; and 58 at Glanworth, Ont., sold for $23,505, averaging $405.

Top price at Glanworth was $775 paid by Dr. F. W. Stires of Louisville, Ky., for the six-year-old cow Ourvilla R. A. Nina, consigned by Norman Smith, Belton.

Largely Signed Petition First Step Needed For Marketing Poultry

Establishment of a national fund to buy seasonally surplus eggs for storage is one of the objectives of the proposed marketing scheme that is now being submitted to Ontario poultry producers.

Through county Federations of Agriculture and the Poultry Producers Association, a petition is being ciruclated to obtain signatures to a request for permission to take a vote on the proposed poultry marketing scheme.

A news release from the office of the Ontario Federation explains the details of this plan.

"The executive of the Poultry Producers Association, which is a democratically elected group drawn from democratically elected delegates from each county, has worked with the Farm Products Marketing Board in preparing a scheme. Purpose of the scheme is to establish uniformity and some security in the price paid to producers to relieve the fear of surplus—the unsettling factor which unduly depresses our markets.

The marketing method suggested for eggs at the moment proposes establishment of a national agency in co-operation with the three prairie provinces that are surplus producers. This national agency would be controlled and financed by and through provincial marketing schemes set up at provincial level, under provincial acts, and would be prepared to purchase and store eggs at wholesale level during periods of surplus, feeding them back to the market at a price during the period of short supply. The national agency would have to be prepared to seek export markets should the Canadian egg supply exceed home consumption demands.

Seek Level Prices

The proposed plan would in no way interfere with the present method of purchase and sale at either wholesale or retail level, but it would have the effect of levelling out price peaks and preventing the extremely high or extremely low price which causes harm to consumer and producer alike.

It is proposed to collect one cent per dozen at point of initial sale. A small portion of this would be used for administration of the producer association and operation of the scheme. It has been suggested that not more than one-tenth should be used for this purpose, the balance to be placed at the disposal of the national board to purchase eggs for storage when offered.

In the opinion of those who have studied this plan, our national fund would need to be some place in the neighborhood of one and a half to three million dollars, depending on the volume of eggs offered and the volume to be exported. It would take several years of collecting to establish the required funds. The volume purchased in any one year might be small; but it is possible that a substantial volume would have to be purchased if production increased and demand diminished.

In order to make the proposed plan operative a provincial poultry marketing scheme must be secured, controlled by democratically elected producer representation.

Poultry Vote Also

It is proposed to use the scheme in handling eggs, only, at the moment; but since it requires considerable work to take a vote the board of directors of the Poultry Producers Association decided that poultry meats should also be included in the scheme. However, these powers would not be used until there is evidence of further need and until the board had secured some experience. It has been suggested that one-tenth of a cent a pound would be collected on poultry meats if and when it is decided to handle that product under the scheme.

It is imperative that we secure a large volume of signatures to the petition now being circulated in order to assure the Minister of Agriculture and the Government that there is a live and honest interest in this poultry marketing plan. It is also important that a large percentage of poultry producers vote when permission has been granted to take a vote on the scheme. Reasonably simple, but adequate, arrangements are being made to facilitate the taking of this vote when permission has been granted. Details will be announced well in advance, and copies of the scheme with the necessary explanations will be provided at the time of voting."

P. M. Dewan of Ingersoll paid $575 for a three-year-old offered by Shore Holsteins of Glanworth. Third high was $535 for a four-year-old heifer bought by E. T. Bowers of Medina, Ohio, from Alfred Groves of Salford. Paul K. McKenny of Decker, Mich., bought two bred heifers at $510 each. Six bulls averaged $247, and 38 milking females $419.

Best price at Oakville was $1,100 paid by James Carter of Brampton to John Malcolm of Sheffield Farms, St. George, Ont., for the 22-months-old bull Sheffield Paul Louis, first prize winner at the C.N.E. last year; also junior and reserve grand champion at the Brant County Black and White Day in 1950, and junior champion in 1951. Among other purchases, Mr. Carter paid Norman Schell of Woodstock $810 and $800 for pair of bred heifers.

For the herd that is being assembled by the Massey-Harris Co. at their Milliken, Ont., Farm, William J. Murphy, Lindsay, received $860 for a three-year-old female; Norman Schell, Woodstock, $800, and Norman McConkey of Peterborough $500 for bred heifers.

Thirty milking females averaged $485; 21 bred heifers $484; and four bulls averaged $462.

ADVISES LONGER FEEDING

"Half-finished cattle are becoming a glut on the market," said B. B. Warnica of Barrie, president of the Ontario Beef Producers' Association, this week. More attention to finish would fetch better prices on the home market and make them more attractive to U.S. buyers. Encouraging signs to producers, he said, was the appearance of U.S. cattle buyers in Toronto this week for the first time since the beginning of the year. It was also evident that the public was again buying more beef. The U.S. market was the only export outlet, and Mr. Warnica said their price ceilings should guarantee a Canadian level.

HOW TO STORE FERTILIZER

In view of a possible shortage of certain fertilizers in 1952, many farmers will be placing their orders early so they won't be caught short in the spring. Fertilizer obtained now is well cured, dry and free-running.

Store fertilizer in a dry, well-ventilated building. Keep windows and doors closed during damp weather and open when dry. Never pile wet or damaged bags with sound ones. Bags must not rest on bare ground, concrete, metal or against the side of the building, but should be piled on skids at least four inches off the ground. The pile should not be more than seven bags high. A space should be left between piles for circulation of air. A few inches of straw on top of the pile will prevent moisture from settling on the bags.

Grass Seeds Plentiful For Farm Programs, Canadian Alfalfa Scarce

With the exception of Canadian grown alfalfa, which is comparatively scarce, the seed picture looks brighter for this year. Quality of seeds is excellent, and prices are more favorable from the buyer's viewpoint.

That is a brief summary of the prospects as farmers are getting into plans for the new season.

Canadian alfalfa seed will not be available in sufficient quantities to supply our normal requirements. Considerable foreign alfalfa seed is now in Canada, some from France and some from southwestern United States. All foreign alfalfa seed will carry a 10 per cent red stain for identification.

Prices of Canadian grown alfalfa seed will be higher than in previous years, and will all be purchased before the seed season gets under way, leaving the cheaper foreign seed available to the late buyers.

The outlook for clovers and grasses is indicated as follows:

Red Clover.—Supplies are plentiful of choice quality seeds due to the large crop harvested in Ontario last year. Prices of Red Clover seed will be considerably lower than in previous years and should encourage an increased acreage of this crop being sown.

Alsike Clover.—This seed is in somewhat the same category as Canadian grown Affalfa; with scarce supplies, and somewhat advanced prices due to the small acreage produced in Ontario and the destruction of the western crop by snow.

Sweet Clovers.—Excellent supplies at low prices should encourage the growing of these crops for plowing under.

Timothy.—Once again Timothy is in excellent supply, mostly originating in northern United States. Prices are somewhat the same as last year or a little dearer.

Commercial Grasses.—All commercial grasses are in good supply at lower prices with the exception of Creeping Red Fescue, Chewings Fescue and Canada Blue Grass. The lower prices on these grasses should encourage the seeding down of larger areas of permanent type pasture mixtures and hay and pasture mixtures. An increased acreage of these crops is very desirable and should be stimulated by the favorable spring seed market.

Mr. Ernie McWilliam suggests that all farmers planning to use Canadian Alfalfa should try to purchase their seed requirements as soon as possible as stocks are at an all-time low and inferior seed will be marketed before the season advances far. Much of the alfalfa from western sources this year will not be good quality, bein badly weathered and somewhat shrunken in appearance, due to excessive moisture and unfavorable harvesting conditions.

School For Boys Houses Ottawa's Theatre Company

By JOHN VAN DUSEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Feb. 15—(CP)—The doorway of Ottawa's three-year-old Canadian Repertory Theatre leads into a world of fantasy and confusion.

The theatre housed in the Lasalle Academy, a school for boys, has all the glamor of the theatrical world, with an ability to improvise off-stage as well as on.

Buried in the depths of the structure in a cavern-like room is Martha Jamieson's workshop. The blue-eyed blonde is the group's stage designer and scenic artist.

Miss Jamieson, a Calgarian by birth who calls Kingston home, is "approximately 30" and came to Ottawa October last. Since then she has designed and made an average of one stage setting a week.

Her workshop is a cement-walled cellar-room of the school, brightened by the presence of stage props and multi-colored paints.

Miss Jamieson, who started as a portrait painter, became interested in her side of the theatre while studying at Queen's.

"The stage designer for the summer school's production of Joseph Schull's 'The Bridge' was unavailable, so I took over. It was so interesting and Mr. Schull impressed me so much, I got the bug."

Studied At Old Vic

Other stage settings followed and led to acceptance of a British Arts Council scholarship to study theatre design at the Old Vic in England. She has also studied with the Art Student's League in New York.

She returned to Canada, "because I believe drama has a great future here. But, at the moment we're working with a pencil that has no lead."

"All we need is a financial boost. We get tired of struggling for things that should be taken for granted. We need a theatre with proper dressing rooms and workshops. It's the idea of, 'give us the tools and we'll do the job,' to quote Churchill.

"Then again it's the envelope that sells the contents. We're dealing with a public that's used to the comforts of the modern movie house and to get them interested in drama we must give them comparative comfort.

"We manage to turn confusion into order here, but it's a tough job without the proper finances. By hook or crook we turn out a new play every week, making use of every trick of the trade. Our stage is small, but a blue light for example makes a room much deeper and narrow doors along with slanting walls make it bigger."

Stage director David Haber, Montreal, and property mistress Dora Clarke, Ottawa, turn chaos into order in the basement room below the stage.

Between acting, stage managing and costume re-making they're kept on a "24-hour shift." Dave tells of one incident when they were stuck without navy white duck uniforms. "I put a notice in the navy officers' mess and we were swamped with them."

Jas. W. Gemmell Dies At Home

SAULT STE. MARIE, Feb. 15—(CP) — James W. Gemmell, manager of an insurance company here, died at his home Thursday. He was 62.

He is survived by his widow, Margaret Cameron Gemmell and a son, James W., of Toronto.

Mr. Gemmell, who came to the Sault about 35 years ago, was vice-president and controller of Algoma Steel Corporation until he retired about 20 years ago.

After a few years in Sudbury, he became construction engineer for the Polymer plant at Sarnia. He later moved to Toronto and returned to the Sault a few years ago.

Mr. Gemmell was an enthusiastic supporter of sports, especially hockey, all his life. He was vice-president of the Sault Greyhounds Hockey Association when the club won the Allan Cup in 1924. A few years later he moved to the Junior Greyhounds and helped that club win the Northern Ontario championship five years in a row.

He was born at Ripley, Ont., and spent his early years at Southampton.

Criticizes BBC As Too Gloomy

LONDON, Feb. 15—(Reuters)—Dr. J. C. Heenan, Roman Catholic Bishop of Leeds, Thursday criticized the B.B.C. for "wrapping the nation in organized gloom" because of the death of the King.

Speaking at a memorial service for the King at St. Anne Cathedral in Leeds, Bishop Heenan said:

"I cannot think that the memory of our gracious King was well served either by the melodrama or prolonged silences on the day of his death or by the sombre and mirthless programs which our fellow countrymen were offered without alternative for more than a week."

German Soldier To Be New Type Prussianism Out

By BRACK CURRY.

BONN, Germany, Feb. 15 (AP) —What will the new German soldier be like?

Most of Europe, which was under German domination only seven years ago, is anxiously asking this question. The villagers and farmers of Belgium or Holland or France, will recall the tramp of jack-booted Nazi occupation soldiers.

The German soldier of tomorrow will be "a new type with a new soldier spirit," if the men now planning the new German army have their way.

The West German government plans to draft 300,000 to 400,000 youths for the German contingent in the proposed six-country European army. They will be young Germans born before Hitler soared to power—19 to 23 year olds.

Germany's civilian - minded leaders, headed by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, intend to make "citizens' soldiers" of these young recruits.

"We will make a radical break with the militarism of the past," says Defence Commissioner Theodor Blank, planner-in-chief of the new German army. "Precautions will be taken against a rebirth of the militaristic spirit."

The new German soldier will wear the same uniform as the men of five other countries in the European army—Frenchmen, Italians, Belgians, Dutch and Luxembourgers.

No Privileges

Blank says that wearing this uniform will not give a German any extra privileges over his fellow-countrymen nor will it bring him any disadvantages.

"We shall regard this uniform as mostly a working suit to be taken off when the soldier is not at work," says Blank.

German leaders plan to sweep out all the old Prussian training methods and spirit which dominated German armies from Frederick the Great through Hitler.

The new German soldier will salute only the officers of his own unit. In contrast to the Wehrmacht where class distinctions were rigid, he will be encouraged to fraternize with his officers.

"We want to see a private and a colonel having coffee together," a German official said.

The new German military code will contain more "don'ts" for officers than for the ordinary soldier.

"Political generals," and "undemocratic officers" will find no place and "there is not the slightest prospect that we shall let a new officers corps develop which does not regard itself as an organ of democracy," one high official says.

The Detroit Tigers and the St. Louis Browns announced a Valentine's Day deal involving seven players, which both clubs say will strengthen prospects for the 1952 season.

The deal, a strai[illegible] was announced by Tiger general manager Charlie Gehringer. It moves Tiger pitchers Bob Cain and Gene Bearden and first baseman Dick Kryhoski to the Browns.

St. Louis' catcher Matt Batts, outfielder cliff Mapes, pitcher Dick Littlefield, and infielder Benjamin Taylor will join the Detroit club.

Olympic Games Officially Open Pageantry Broken By Tribute

By JACK SULLIVAN.

OSLO, Feb. 15 (CP).—The gay parade long associated with the pageantry opening the Olympic winter games became a march of solemnity today.

At the precise time the nattily-dressed athletes of 30 countries formed lines in Oslo's huge Bislett Stadium, the funeral procession of King George VI moved through the hushed streets of London.

While 60 seconds ticked away, the sixth winter Olympic games came to a stop in respect and memory of a keen sportsman.

On the roof-top of the stadium the flags of Canada, Britain, Australia, New Zealand and Norway flew at half-staff.

Thousands of persons from all parts of Norway and Europe and even remote sections of the world stood in silence.

Then the big sports show once more picked up momentum.

File Past Royal Box

The marchers filed slowly past the Royal box, the flag of each country preceding its marchers. Canada's flag was carried by Gordon Audley, 23-year-old railway worker from Winnipeg and a member of the Canadian speed-skating team.

The flags were dipped in salute and Princess Ragnhild of Norway, the tall, dark, 21-year-old daughter of Crown Prince Olaf, officially declared the games open.

The Crown Prince and the venerable King Haakon are in London attending the funeral.

The customary honor of leading the parade went to Greece, the country where the Olympic [illegible] Olympic games [illegible] and on behalf of the 1,187 ath- letics took the Olympic oath:

"We swear that we will take part in Olympic games in loyal competition, respecting the regulations which govern them and desirous of participating in them in the true spirit of sportsmanship for the honor of our country and the glory of sport."

The 30-country representation is the largest in the history of the winter games. In 1948, at St. Moritz, Switzerland, 29 countries were represented.

Holding of the opening ceremonies today—a full day after competition started—marked an unusual departure from Olympic custom.

One championship was decided Thursday when Mrs. Andrea Mead Lawrence of Rutland, Vt., won the women's giant slalom race and the first gold medal of these games.

The two-man bobsled competition was started, with the final two runs today and a commanding lead held by the German sled piloted by world champion Andreas Ostler.

Victory Expected

Mrs. Lawrence's victory was expected by the experts. The tall 19-year-old New England girl flashed down the 1,640-yard course at Norefjell in two minutes, 6.8 seconds.

Dagmar Rom, Austrian movie actress, was second in 2:09 and Mrs. Anne Marie Buchner of Germany third in 2:10.

Rhoda Wurtele Eaves, 25-year-old Montreal housewife who drew the unenviable No. 1 position as trail-breaker, could do no better than ninth but even so outclassed many of the world's best skiers in [illegible] field of 45. Her time was 2:14. [illegible]utz of Montreal of Hewson of Montreal, 30th.

MURDER WEAPON — In Milwaukee, Wis., Deputy District Attorney John Tierney holds the murder weapon in front of John Schultz, 16, and asks the boy if it is the one which killed his mother, sister and brother. Police say Schultz admitted killing them in a rage after he was denied use of the family car.

Monarchy Fills a Need Of Britons U.K. Viewpoint

LONDON, Feb. 15 — (CP) — The profound reaction caused by the King's death—it was as though a sigh went round the world — has provoked some searching thoughts on the role of constitutional monarchy in 20th century Britain.

The consensus seems to be that Royalty is here to stay because it satisfies some subtle emotional need deep in the hearts of the British people.

There seems little doubt that in the King's passing and in the events that followed, Britons found an occasion for feelings far deeper than those they normally express. They mourned a man they loved, but they also paid tribute to institutions rooted in 1,000 years of British history.

"When the death of the King was announced to us", said Prime Minister Churchill, "there struck a deep and solemn note in our lives".

"It was", one British commentator said, "as if the collective soul had been touched at a depth to which politics, economics and diplomacy never reach".

Hidden Strength

Why has the prestige of the Crown increased as its effective powers diminished? The Weekly Observer detects a hidden strength in that very fact—in the separation of the monarchy from the pracical business government.

"This divorce, far from weakening the monarchy", says the Observer, "has given it an unsuspected, immeasurable strength . . . has cleared its channels to the subconscious and emotive strata of the collective soul where, we may suspect, lie the deep secret springs of national purpose, character and living unity".

Thus Britain may have stumbled back upon the original function of monarchy—to represent and express the aspirations of the collective subconscious.

"It may well be that without an organ to fulfil this function, a community and its state are like a body starved of some vitamin, and that this helps to explain the instability of so many recent republics and their unpredictable propensity to sudden mass mania, hero-worship and relapse into crude dictatorship".

Ex-Mayor McCallum Given C.N.E. Position

TORONTO, Feb. 15 (CP)—Former Mayor Hiram McCallum on Thursday was appointed assistant general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition at a meeting of the C.N.E. board of directors.

Part of the former mayor's new job will be to assist in the C.N.E.'s production of its annual grandstand show, a stage extravaganza.

QUEBEC, Feb. 15 — (CP) — Most of Quebec's stores decided to stay open for business today, after the Canadian Retail Merchants' Association, Quebec branch, ruled that closing on their busiest shopping day would mean "too heavy a business loss".

Chamber Opposes Summer Closing

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 15 (ENS)—Opposition to closing stores on Wednesday afternoons in summer is going to result in a request to Lakefield council that the Wednesday closing bylaw be rescinded.

Decision came Tuesday evening out of a general meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.

A bylaw passed in 1924 sanctions Wednesday afternoon closing of all stores in the village. Feeling of the meeting was that tourists going through the village would not be adequately served if stores closed Wednesday afternoon in the summer.

Still watching out for the tourists, retail committee chairman W. Graham suggested in a report that merchants park their cars elsewhere than on the main street in front of their stores. Mr. Graham, whose report was read by Mrs. W. O'Brien in his absence, felt that parking space should be conserved on the main street for tourists.

The council would be willing to help any worthy recreational venture, provided it was under the sponsorship of a reliable organization, reported J. L. Fraser, recreation chairman. The council has given substantial help to the Red Cross swimming project which has been a most satisfactory venture, and one which has been of great benefit to the village at large and especially to the children.

The amount of money necessary for the maintenance of the tourist information booth was discussed and each member will be asked for a donation of $5 and a membership fee of $5.

A discussion on the algae problem in the Kawartha's was discussed under the chairmanship of S. Slater who said that the cause and the cure must be found as it was a case of "life or death" to the Kawartha tourist trade. Acting on his suggestion, the secretary, Mrs. O'Brien, was asked to write the Deputy Minister of Transport, Ottawa, and draw the matter to his attention, asking that all action possible be taken at once.

Walter Kelloran was elected industrial chairman of the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kemp were present and asked that a playground, suitably fenced, and situated back of Memorial Hall, should be made for the use of children residing on Queen Street, especially the business section, who have no suitable place in which to play. Mr. Fraser was appointed to bring the matter to the Recreational meeting when next they meet, and Mr. and Mrs. Kemp were asked to attend.

Stole Saddles Young Woman Jailed Year

OAKVILLE, Feb. 15—A young woman who stole four saddles and food for her horse was sentenced to 12 months in jail Thursday.

On a charge of theft of six bales of hay from a Trafalgar township farmer, Arline Brown, 24, of Palmer Ave. was sentenced to one month. On the theft of the saddles she was sentenced to 12 months.

Arline will serve 13 months because she was sentenced in Dundas court, Feb. 12, to 12 months for receiving stolen goods and today's 1-month sentence will be consecutive to that one. Today's 12-month sentence is concurrent with the Dundas sentence. She also faces five charges of theft and forgery at Brantford.

The curly headed, 5-foot tall brunette has a criminal record dating back to when she was 18 years old, Crown Attorney Dingle said.

Farmer Lloyd Pickering said on Jan. 27 he went out to put down some bedding for his stock and found the hay missing from the barn. With Police Chief Fred Oliver he searched the area and found toboggan tracks in the snow.

The tracks led to a neighboring barn. Chief Oliver said he walked into the barn and found the girl with her horse, a chestnut mare. The saddles were found in the attic of her home.

Stable boy Percy Bobair of the Allen McKay Riding School on the Queen Elizabeth Highway identified the saddles. He said they had been stolen from the school in April, 1950.

Spring Starts In February As Chicks Begin Hatching

By DON GRANT

City folks have already reported signs of spring such as the first robin and the early spring flowers but farmers have seen and heard many spring signs which they take for granted at this time of the year and never mention them.

One of the signs that winter is passing is tucked away in the warmest part of the barn or in the barnyard's warmest building, the chicken house.

Already on many farms throughout the district the peeping and cheeping of the fluffy balls of yellow feathers is heard. Their new home is the centre of action at this time as the farmers concentrate on keeping the chicks warm and healthy.

Greatest In February

Although the demand for chicks is year round now, the greatest number of orders are in February, March and April, generally in the last two months. Orders are placed in lots of anywhere from 100 to 6,000 by farmers across Ontario from the Peterborough hatcheries.

One large hatchery reported that it puts about 10,000 eggs a week in its incubators for a three-week period. This means that all the time in this season it has 30,000 eggs in production. About 65 per cent of these eggs hatch.

Usually when the chick cracks its shell and begins its life outside, it weighs from one ounce to an ounce and a half. In a period of eight weeks, when two or two and a half pounds, they become fryers, then at 11 weeks, three to four pounds, become broilers.

But it's not until the chicks are four months old that they start laying eggs and the life circle begins again.

Mass Production

The system of mass production of chicks vastly out-modes the mother hen sitting patiently over her eggs for the three-week period. Men now plan mother hen's program well in advance, in some cases two years, to assure a good supply of hatchery eggs throughout the year.

After the hen lays her eggs, the farmer hurries the lot to the hatchery where the eggs are sorted according to color, size and texture. From the sorting table, they're placed in incubators thermostatically-controlled at 99 degrees.

For 18 days the eggs lie there in the heat and the chicks develop. On the eighteenth day the eggs are candled to determine what eggs will hatch. The good eggs are then placed in the hatching trays for the final three days.

When dried and treated for diseases the chicks are packed into groups of 100 in boxes and are shipped throughout the district to provide food for the summer, fall and winter months.

330,414 Pounds Of Cheese Processed At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 15—(ENS)—The Trent Valley Cheese and Butter Company held its annual meeting in the factory last week with a good attendance. The secretary's report showed a total of 4,008,211 pounds of milk received, of which 190,623 pounds were sold to Toronto dairies.

A total of 330,414 pounds of cheese was made from the balance. The factory paid patrons 87.5 cents per pound of fat or $2.80 per cwt. for average milk delivered to the factory.

Henry Forrestell, who has been the factory president for the past four years was again elected president, supported by a partly new board of directors. These are: Messrs. Douglas Rutherford, Joe Kelleher, Alfred Bennett, Murray Meiklejohn, Reginald McCann and Percy Bland.

M. H. West was appointed secretary, and Thomas Campbell auditor.

W. P. Moore, local cheese factory instructor and inspector, paid tribute to Don Pollock, cheese maker at the Kimberley Cheese factory, for the cleanest cheese produced in the province.

Hector Arnold, vice-president of the Cheese producers marketing board, told the patrons that at a recent meeing with the Minister of Agriculture in Ottawa, the board stressed the necessity of some kind of control being put on cheese coming in from New Zealand. Mr. Arnold also said "if this practice is not controlled, it will affect the whole milk industry, as this cheese is being laid down in Canada at 25 cents a pound. This is in direct competition with our cheese at 36 cents to the domestic trade and could very probably mean that we would have to take less for Canadian cheddar cheese. This being the case, cheese factory shippers now getting about $2.80 for delivered milk would be looking to the whole milk trade for support, as they are in a very healthy position, getting $4.60 per cwt. under a control system."

Grant Anderson moved a vote of thanks to the speakers.

The price set for making cheese and whey butter and for hauling milk for 1952 is as follows:

making cheese, 3½ cents per lb., and supplying everything needed; 14 cents per lb. to make and handle whey butter; 17 cents per cwt. will be the charge for hauling milk and the cheesemaker is to get 105 of the premium received on high scoring cheese.

Fail To Grasp Play's Meaning

QUEBEC, Feb. 15 (CP)—"Playboy of the Western World" was a well-chosen presentation, but the Quebec Art Theatre cast failed to grasp its full meaning, adjudicator Pierre Lefevre said Thursday.

Mr. Lefevre was reviewing the three-act play, first in the three-day Eastern Quebec Drama Festival, preliminary to the Dominion Festival at Saint John, N.B., April 28-May 3.

The New York-born Frenchman said Mary Austin showed character in the title role of Pegeen Mike, innkeeper at a "shebeen," a country public house on the Wild West coast of Mayo, Ireland, in the 19th century.

"Playboy," by J. M. Synge, is a selection from the Irish repertory and its staging is difficult because it requires the depicting of peasants confronted with a love triangle that becomes the talk of the small village.

On today's program is a world premiere of a two-part play written by two French-speaking Quebecers, "La Plus Forte" (She Is Strongest).

German Officers In Egypt's Army

BONN, Feb. 15 (Reuters)—The West German Government Thursday confirmed reports that a former senior German officer is now serving in the Egyptian Army.

A government spokesman identified the officer as Gen. Farmbacher, a corps commander during the Second World War.

The spokesman added that Farmbacher is one of six ex-German officers now serving the Egyptians and there was no means of preventing their leaving Germany to do so.

Farmbacher, an artillery officer from Bavaria, was a French prisoner until 1950. "We believe he is full of anti-western feeling because he was released so late," the spokesman said.

He admitted that former German officers are now serving the Syrian and Jordan armies, but this "does not meet British or United States disapproval because they are helping to form a defence screen against the Soviets there".

A British spokesman said the Allied Control Commission here has been in private contact with the West German Government about German military experts leaving for Egypt. "We are confident the government will do all it can to prevent them from going," he said.

PROCLAMATION

I desire to proclaim the week of February 17th to February 24th as "Brotherhood Week" in the City of Peterborough.

Brotherhood Week is being sponsored throughout Canada by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews and has as its purpose the cementing of the foundations of justice, amity, understanding and co-operation among all races and creeds in our city and throughout Canada.

The teachers in the schools might stress goodwill among their pupils, particularly during Brotherhood Week.

I trust that during Brotherhood Week special attention will be paid by citizens both as individuals and as groups to the necessity of greater goodwill among our people.

HUGH F. WADDELL,
Mayor, City of Peterborough.

Painful Cramps of "Monthly Periods" halted or strikingly relieved in 3 out of 4 cases in test by doctors!

• Women and girls who suffer from those functionally-caused cramps, backaches and headaches of menstruation — who feel upset and irritable on certain "particular days" — may often be suffering quite unnecessarily!

Such is the conclusion from tests by doctors in which Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound gave complete or striking relief from such distress in 3 out of 4 of the cases tested!

Modern in action!

Yes! Medical evidence shows Lydia Pinkham's Compound is thoroughly modern in action. It strikes directly at the cause of menstrual pain!

The effectiveness of Lydia Pinkham's needs no proof to the millions of women and girls whom it has benefited. But how about you? Do you know what it may do for you?

Take Lydia Pinkham's through the month. See if you don't get the same relief from the pains and weakness of "those days"! See if you don't feel better before and during your period!

Get either Lydia Pinkham's Compound, or new, improved Tablets (with added iron). Both are grand, too, for those "hot flashes" and nervous feelings of "change of life"!

Don't suffer needlessly . . . when relief may be so near!

Lydia Pinkham's has a quieting effect on the uterine contractions (see chart) which often cause menstrual pain!

Jerkwater Railways Holding Up Seaway

MONTREAL, Feb. 15 —(CP)— Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton said Thursday night that the most "vicious" opposition in the United States to the proposed St. Lawrence seaway came from the owners of "jerkwater railways" who had "no conception of public good in the matter."

General McNaughton, chairman of the Canadian section of the international joint commission, made the remark during a question period following an address here to the Engineering Institute of Canada.

He said that for economic and strategic reasons an immediate start on the seaway project was "most urgent."

A joint effort by Canada and the U.S. would be desirable, but Canada is quite capable of carrying out her announced intention of doing the job alone, he added.

BREAK THE LAXATIVE HABIT THIS PROVEN WAY

If you take laxatives regularly, here is how you can stop! This proven plan helps you establish your natural powers of regularity, controlled tests prove.

Stop taking whatever you now take. Instead, every night for one week take two Carter's Little Liver Pills. Second week—one each night. Third week—one every other night. Then nothing! Every day drink eight glasses of water; set a definite time for regularity. This plan was proven in scientifically controlled tests.

How can a laxative break the laxative habit? Because Carter's unblock the lower digestive tract and from then on let it make use of its own natural powers. Further, Carter's contain no habit forming drugs. Break the laxative habit with Carter's . . . be regular naturally.

When worry, overwork, overeating make you irregular temporarily—take Carter's temporarily. Never get the laxative habit.

Get mild, gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills at any drug store. Only 25c. You'll be grateful the rest of your life.

Patriotic Obligation To Postpone Ball

It has come as a surprise to members of the I.O.D.E. in Peterborough that some people are cancelling plans to attend the Major Bennett Chapter's annual Valentine Ball because of it being postponed from this evening until Monday evening out of respect and in tribute to the late King George VI. Ticket holders are asked to consider the fact the I.O.D.E. is internationally known as a patriotic organization and the local Chapter members felt honor bound to postpone the ball from the day of the King's funeral. It is being held Monday evening because it was the best arrangement that could be made for the Brock Ballroom at this time.

Presbytery Y.P.U. Party At Norwood Arena

About 200 members of Young People's Unions in the Peterborough Presbytery on Wednesday evening made up the largest skating party held in the Norwood Arena this year. The evening was sponsored by the Presbytery executive and nearly all unions were well represented. In the special events on the ice, country unions proved too much for the city. Lakefield came in first in a hotly contested relay race and Havelock was second. In a rough and tumble broom-ball game the country unions edged the city 1 to 0. The boys fought to a scoreless draw in the first period and ended in a friendly sham battle. Then the girls took over and after many persistent rushes the country lasses pushed one across to win the game. A delicious lunch was served in the Norwood United church basement and much praise was given the newly formed Y.P.U. at Norwood for the handling of this part of the program.

Balmain Gives Concession To Commonsense, Economy

In his sprping dress collection in Paris, Pierre Balmain makes concessions to commonsense and an attempt at economy rare in high - ranking fashion circles. Coats and jackets are given linings which button in and out, so that they may be made interchangeable. Fleece wool coats, chiefly shown in white, in yellow and in grey, which have a sober lining for daytime, are shown brilliantly-lined in material to match short evening dresses even when these are in richly-jewelled satins.

A navy coat has a white pique lining, buttoned in for daytime wear; a white pique coat is shown color-lined to top a gleaming short evening dress. A yellow fleece coat can be worn in the evening over a matching sulphur-colored sequinned lace dress of short length, although lined in black during the day.

The majority of these Balmain coats are cut on quiet pyramid shapes, wide from elbow to elbow, but some are fitted to the figure, and of these a model in grey and beige blended Paisley design in cotton was as elegant as any of the silk coats. Over a white jersey day dress he puts a waist-narrowing navy coat lined in vivid green which can be taken out and another color buttoned in. In wools, satins or piques, Balmain shows sleeved wide capes with deep flounces. Many of his clothes build up into an interchangeable wardrobe. He makes informal black jersey cardigans for wear over two-piece dresses which are often made in silks striped like bedticking. It is a silk that is used also for his grand evening dresses.

For day his line is softly quiet, skirts modest in dimensions, even when pleated all round. Only one girl indicated in modelling, by twirling round, that she was wearing a colored petticoat to prop out her black skirt. Jackets have modestly small peplums and are often colorless. But what evening splendor he shows. Strict simplicity and usefulness there give way to dresses of unbelievable richness of handwork. Strapless corset bodices, such as he introduced last year, are made in richly colored satins, whalebone curved, and either laced up the back or hooked. As one American buyer said: "A ladies' maid should be hired out with each model." From hip-top level, where the corset ends, the skirt, kept reasonably flat in front, billows and bustles out in tulle, satin or silk at the back. Indeed, bustle backs, supported on half-cages, are shown even on short but very grand evening gowns.

Schiaparelli refers to her "line of belligerent bustles and wandering waists". Her bustles, worn with slim, figure-moulding dresses, often takes the form of tremendous bows of silk which can be shifted to fall from the side of a hip instead of at the back, or which can be completely removed.

She uses the same English silks as Dior in apple leaf and fruit designs and in a delicate pattern of spring blossom for lovely and slimmer evening dresses. By contrast, many of her sheath forms are in two strikingly-contrasted satins, sulphur- yellow being used with purple, a deep turquoise dress being given flame coloured gloves and details, prune being blended to sapphire. Wrist-length satin gloves are shown as part of the vivid colour schemes for which Mme. Schiaparelli is famed. —OFNS COPYRIGHT.

JEANETTE SCOTT CHAPTER

Meeting of the Jeanette Scott Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held in the Green Room at the Y.W.C.A. with the regent, Mrs. R. Matthews presiding. In memory of our late Sovereign, King George VI, two minutes' silence was observed. An affirmation of loyalty to Queen Elizabeth II was made by the members.

A "Student Aid" fund has been established to assist worthy Grade XIII student or students in his (her) first or ensuing years of study. The money will be apportioned by the educational committee with the advice of the regent and one additional member.

Members were asked to bring to the next meeting used books for the adopted school at Rose Island, Ontario.

Chapter members agreed to pay their share towards the purchase of a permanent screen for the showing of films. Mrs. R. Smyth, co-convenor, reported on the annual fashion revue. The Chapter's Clothing Exchange will take place at the Y.W.C.A. on Wednesday, April 2nd.

For Empire study, Mrs. M. McGuire reviewed the Founding of the Order.

Most of the members will be occupied by the Fashion Show on March 12th and 13th, and for that reason it was recommended that no monthly meeting take place on March 11th.

At this point the annual meeting was opened by the regent, and reports were given on the year's activities.

Mrs. G. Harrison, nominating convenor, took over the meeting for election purposes, and the following is the 1952-53 executive:

When she resumed the chair after election Mrs. Matthews expressed the thought "In the troubled world of today we are beginning to think of what lies ahead for our children and are taking things a little more seriously than we did ten years ago. The I.O.D.E. upholds principles and ideals in which all want to share; all are aware of the tremendous responsibility of the young Queen, and for this reason are more desirous than ever of doing their duty."

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Mourning Period Gives Sober Note To U.K. Styles

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON — (CP) — With a period of court mourning following the death of the King, fashionable British women will wear subdued colors this spring and summer.

Within hours of the death announcement, in deference to the young Queen Elizabeth, department stores throughout London's West End stripped their windows of brighter colors and displayed only black, sombre grey, purple and white.

Store managers said that by the afternoon of the King's death, well-dressed women were buying all-black outfits. Enterprising buyers phoned immediately for increased stocks in the four shades suitable for court mourning.

Long before the young Queen returned to Britain from Kenya, stores from Piccadilly to the marble arch showed suits, coats, dresses and party wear in black, relieved only by touches of shadowy grey and white.

Patriotic Feeling

In hat shops, clever fingers replaced colored trimmings on black models with touches of black velvelt or white. White hats were made sombre with black. Shops say that women who have no need of court mourning are buying black hats, gloves, bags and shoes to give patriotic expression to the sadness felt throughout Britain.

In this way, even in mourning for the father she loved, the new Queen is still a fashion setter. Since her wedding, the increased elegance and sophistication of Elizabeth's styles have drawn fashion comment throughout the world.

So much so, that the subtle greens, soft blues and deep golds worn on Elizabeth's fall trip to Canada, obviously provided the inspiratoin for many spring and summer styles shown recently by London's big ten of fashion.

Throughout the evening after the King's death, girls in the workroom of Norman Hartnell sewed black outfits for Queen Elizabeth, the new Queen Mother and the Duchess of Kent.

Fortunately, most designers including Hartnell, featured pewter and gunmetal greys, black and white in coats, suits and sophisticated summer dresses.

DOROTHY DIX

Once A Week With Boys Said Fair Arrangement for Hubby

DEAR MISS DIX: Do you think husbands should go out at night without their wives? If so, how often, and what would you consider a proper hour for them to be home? Shouldn't the wife at least know where he is going, and what time to expect him home?

F. D. F.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Assuming that a husband and wife spend all their other evenings together, and that the lady is not being deprived of too much of her husband's company, one night a week seems a fair arrangement for his outings. Of course it is taken for granted that his night out will be devoted to bowling, a lodge meeting or some other strictly masculine pursuit. The hour for home-coming will depend upon the activity engaged in, but the wife should certainly be told where her husband is going and at approximately what hour he will return.

✧ ✧ ✧

Too Young to Go Steady

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 17 and have been going with an 18-year-old boy for four months. I would like to change boy friends without hurting his feelings.

E. M.

ANSWER: After a dating period of only four months your boy friend should not feel that he has sole right to you. You have a perfect right to change beaux—in fact, I think it's a good thing. Your friend's vanity may be hurt when you inform him of your decision, but he'll soon recover. Tell him tactfully that you have accepted a date from so-and-so and since you feel, too, that you are too young to go steady anyway, you're sure he'll understand.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am in love with a married man 22 years old; I am 16. When I first met him I was engaged, but he asked me to break the engagement and wait for him. He has as yet made no attempt to get a divorce.

JUDIE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Waiting for this divorce to become an accomplished fact will be the longest wait you ever had, Judie. You'll become a grey-haired old lady before you ever get a chance to marry this perfidious cad. You were foolish to listen to him in the first place, and if you continue to see him, heartbreak is the only thing you'll get. Pity his poor wife, and be thankful you're not in her shoes.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married for seven years—five of them happily. Two years ago I discovered that my mother-in-law was keeping a picture of my husband and a former girl friend. It has ruined my feeling for her, and is beginning to break up our marriage. My husband upholds her in what she is doing, consequently all I do is nag at him about it. My mother-in-law takes great delight in showing this picture to anyone who comes in. I'm getting so I don't trust my husband any more.

S. L.

ANSWER: Of all the ridiculous, absurd causes for marital disagreement I have ever heard (and believe me, I've heard plenty of them), this takes the prize. You are a very, very foolish woman! There is nothing wrong in your mother-in-law keeping a picture of her son even if he is posed with another girl. After all, it was taken long before you knew him and, mothers being what they are, it's very difficult for them to dispose of a son's photograph no matter who else is in the picture. Naturally, when she saw what an uproar you were raising over an innocent snapshot, she took great delight in adding fuel to the fire. A feminine trait; nothing worse! If you want the picture and all mention of it to retire to the background, change your tactics. Ignore the whole matter; never refer to the wretched photo again and consider the affair closed. Once mother-in-law realizes that her time for taunting is passed, she, too, will put the offending likeness back among the souvenirs.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: For a while I went with a boy, for whom I now have an active dislike. If I tell him I don't want to go out with him any more, he slaps my face or hits me with something. He won't let me go out with any of my friends or speak to them. I'm scared to death of him and don't know how to get rid of him.

DOT P.

ANSWER: My dear child, this is no problem for you to try to handle alone. Go immediately to your father, or nearest male relative, and let someone in authority tell this young man to leave you alone. You should have done this the first time he slapped you.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

What Causes Food To Stick To Grill?

QUESTION: Once more I am coming for help. I received a combination grill for Christmas and there were no directions regarding cleaning or use except instructions for making waffles. The first time I used both waffle and sandwich grill I had perfect results. Since then everything sticks. So I am wondering if I should not put the parts in water, as it seems to stick more each time I use it.

In making grilled cheese sandwiches I have cheese running over even though I slice it very thin. As yet I have not used the toast pattie section. I am afraid either oil from greasing waffle iron or some cheese or a little of each has run under the bottom element. How can I clean under that? Mrs. L. McI.

ANSWER: I talked to a gentleman in the household appliance department of a large Canadian electrical goods manufacturer and I read him your letter. He said you could burn the cheese or grease from under the element by turning on the appliance and letting it burn until it stopped smoking OR take it to the service department of the dealer from which you purchased it and let them take it apart and clean it.

Crease the appliance with "solid, unsalted fat" which means don't use butter and don't use oil, and after you grease it burn the grease off by having it too hot. Grease again if sticking recurs.

This should solve your problems. I would like to suggest that in making toasted cheese sandwiches you not only slice the cheese thinly but make the slices too small for the bread, so that there is a one-half inch border of bread around the cheese. Thus it has space to run when it melts.

QUESTION: I follow your column with much interest and have found some new and most delicious recipes to add to my collection—one of those recipes being the One-Egg Macaroons. However, I have a terrible time removing these from wrapping paper, usually having most of the bottom of the cookie covered with paper after it has been removed and which isn't very appetizing. Why must these be put on wrapping paper. Cocoanut macaroons are put on a greased baking sheet. Is there a difference? . . . May I take this opportunity of wishing you the best of everything in life in 1952. M.A.

ANSWER: Thank you, M. A., for a very pretty little speech. Same to you.

There are two simple solutions to your trouble. If you use the wrapping paper to bake the macaroons on, when you take it from the oven place it over a wet towel stretched on the table. This dampens the paper and keeps the sugar in the macaroons from sticking to it. It will stay damp even if you work slowly. OR grease your pan as you do for cocoanut macaroons made with condensed milk—if that works best for you, and do not use wrapping paper at all.

QUESTION: Would you kindly send me the Christmas cake recipe you are talking about being so good . . . I enjoy your column very much—Mrs. E. J. H.

ANSWER: It is the readers who are going on about the cake—I thing it is good too but make an attempt to be modest. Here it is—you can judge for yourself.

Emem's Medium Dark Fruit Cake (for Christmas 1951-52)

On the night before baking cake mix fruits: 1 20-oz. can crushed pineapple, 8 ounces whole red glace cherries, 7 oz. citron peel, 7 oz. cut mixed peel, 1 lb. golden sultana raisins, 1 lb. seeded raisins (Lexias or Muscats), ¼ lb. cleaned and dried currants, 4 oz. blanched almonds cut in halves, 4 oz. coarsely broken walnuts. Mix well, cover and let stand at room temperature overnight. Sift flour and measure 2 cups into sifter, and place sifter over large mixing bowl and add: ½ of a freshly grated whole nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon each salt, cinnamon and soda. Sift into mixing bowl. Add 1 cup each white and brown sugar, and ¼ lb. soft butter and 5 eggs. Beat until batter is smooth. If desired this may be beaten under electric beater at "slow" position. Stir this batter into the mixture of fruits. Have ready 2 average-sized loaf pans, buttered and paper-lined and buttered again. Have a shallow large water pan in bottom of oven. Bake cakes at 275 deg. Fahr. for 3¼ hours. If baked in pans smaller than loaf pans and in 3 separate sizes they may bake in 3 hours. Replenish water in pan as it boils away. Cool cakes in pans, then on racks until room temperature then wrap in several thicknesses of waxed paper, and in heavy towels. Store in cool place in airtight containers if possible. These should ripen at least 3 weeks. Cut with very sharp knife.

VARIATIONS: (1) Add 1 teaspoon almond flavoring. (2) Omit spices and add 2 or 3 teaspoons grated lemon rind. (3) Use margarine instead of butter. (4) Use ½ lb. almonds and no walnuts OR ½ lb. walnuts and no almonds.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Housecleaning Made Easy Spots Removed From Rugs

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Spring is barely a month around the corner and the first bright day is due any time.

Pure sunshine will come pouring through the windows, showing up panes fogged with grime, horrifying the tidy homemaker.

At sight of grey-yellow grease atop the curtains and dust in the corners, she will seize a bucket and broom. House-cleaning time again.

New products guaranteed to help keep the house clean are constantly coming on the market. One of the latest is a rug-cleaner, a compound with a cellulose fibre base and resembling peanut-butter.

Salesmen will demonstrate this new cleaner by first—perish the thought—smearing a rich carpet with black shoe polish or crayon. The cleaner is immediately sprinkled over the spot which then is given a stiff brushing. Presto—no spot.

The manufacturers claim this new cleaner also will remove lipstick, gum, tar, grease, food and drink spills from rugs—and without leaving a tell-tale ring.

Housecleaning Made Easy

White window-blinds can be cleaned with magnesia. Spread a sheet on the floor, unroll the shade and with a soft cloth scrub the shade with magnesia and water. After treating one side turn the blind over and do the other side.

To remove a grease mark from wall paper: Mix French chalk with enough dry-cleaning fluid to make a stiff paste. Apply paste to the spot and allow to remain over night. In the morning brush off very carefully and lightly.

If any grease remains, repeat the process.

House-cleaning doesn't give the homemaker much time to prepare meals. Here is a supper quickie which is inexpensive, easy to make, and nourishing.

Salmon Souffle

Ingredients: 1½ pounds canned salmon; three tablespoons margarine; 4 tablespoons flour; ½ teaspoon salt; ½ teaspoon celery salt; ½ teaspoon paprika; 1 cup milk; 1 tablespoon fine grated onion; 1 tablespoon lemon juice; 4 eggs (separated); ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar.

Drain and flake salmon to measure one cup. Melt fat and stir in flour, salt, celery salt and paprika. Add milk and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture is medium thick. Remove from heat and add onion and lemon juice. Beat egg yolks and add to mixture. Fold in salmon. Beat egg whites, add cream of tartar and continue beating until stiff but not dry. Fold into salmon mixture.

Pour into 1½-quart casserole and place in pan of hot water. Bake at 350 degrees Fahrenheit from 50 to 55 minutes. Serve immediately. Serves four.

Home and School Association News

LAKEFIELD

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 15 (ENS)—Founder's Day was observed Monday evening when the Home and School Association met for their February meeting. The president, Mrs. Stanley Burger, presided. In memory of the late King, a one-minute silence was observed.

Mrs. William Grant read the secretary's report, and the treasurer's report, given by Mrs. T. Payton, showed a balance of $44.80.

Mrs. Clarence Coons, who has recently been appointed to the newly organized health unit committee for Peterborough county, explained the organization of a health unit and reported on a meeting held last week in Norwood at which definite action had been taken regarding the matter.

Miss Irene Madill's room and Miss Galway's room tied for the attendance prize which was awarded to Miss Madill as it was the first time her room had received the honor.

The work of the Courtice Memorial Library was explained by Mrs. J. L. Fraser who suggested members should make more use of this service. Anyone wishing to obtain books could get the list of those available from Mrs. Brattain.

In memory of Mrs. Courtice, founder of Home and School Association, a candlelighting service was held. Those taking part were Mrs. T. Corkery, Agnes Fraser, Mrs. A. W. Newson, Miss Irene Madill and Mrs. Burger Mrs. Don. Hendren sang a solo.

Mrs. L. Raper of Peterborough, a representative from H & S Council, was present and gave an address on the history of Home and School. She stressed the importance of an educational meeting rather than one merely for entertainment, as this was not the purpose of the meetings.

The following committees were appointed for the Fair which will be held early in the spring—tea table, Mrs. Harold Deeth and Mrs. Charles Hunter; candy, Mrs. L. Delaney and Mrs. H. E. Gastle; home baking, Mrs. E. Rogers; fish pond, Mrs. William Webb and Mrs. William O'Brien; ice cream, Mrs. Gerald Northey; children's hobbies, Mrs. T. Corkery and Mrs. J. A. Arnott; movies, Ken Jakins and Lloyd Shepherd.

Mrs. T. Payton moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Raper and those who assisted with the meeting. The president invited those present to tea which was served by the grade mothers of Miss Madill's room, and included a birthday cake.

The March meeting will be convened by Mrs. J. A. Arnott and will be on music and art.

What's Right?

You hear an uncomplimentary remark about a good friend.

WRONG: Repeat it to her, telling her you think she ought to know what this person is saying about her.

RIGHT: Keep it to yourself since by repeating it you can do nothing but cause unhappiness or stir up trouble.

✧ ✧ ✧

You are teaching a child to play a card game.

WRONG: Let him win every time, so that he will be happy.

RIGHT: Give him an advantage at the start of the game—if you have to, in order to give him a chance to win—but play to win. (This will encourage him to play better, and also teach him how to be a good loser.)

AUCKLAND, N.Z., Feb. 15—(Reuters)—The West Indies scored 288 for two wickets on the opening day of the second test match with New Zealand, here today.

The opening pair, Jeff Stollmeyer and Alan Rae, put on 197, Stollmeyer getting 135 not out and Rae falling one short of his century.

The Tourists made a slow start but twoards the end, with Stollmeyer and Everton Weekes (36 not out) together, the scoring rate quickened to one run a minute.

Obituary

MRS. GEORGE NEWTON

HAVELOCK, Feb. 15 (ENS).—Residents of Havelock and district were shocked on Wednesday to hear of the death of Mrs. George Newton, 56, of Belmont Township, who died at the Finlay Nursing Home here following a week's illness from coronary thrombosis.

Mrs. Newton was formerly Georgina Marian MacEachern and was born at Buckingham, Que., a daughter of the late Alex. MacEachern and Annie McDermott. She came to Belmont Township 33 years ago as teacher at the McGill School. Two years later she married Mr. Newton. Owing to the shortage of teachers, she went back for six years to McGill School from 1940 to 1946. She received her education at Buckingham, Que., and Hucksbury, Ont. She was a member of Havelock United Church, and was also interested in the work of the White Church at Rush Point. She was a past mistress of Lady McGill Lodge, No. 471, L.O.B.A., and was a past preceptress of Crystal Chapter, No. 36, L.O.A., completing her term as its first preceptress in December last. She was also active in the work of the Belmont Women's Institute.

Surviving, besides her husband, are one son Donald of Belmont Township; two sisters, Mrs. Marshall Walsh of Navan and Mrs. E. Wolfe of Washington, D.C., four brothers Fletcher MacEachern of Buckingham, Que., Peter MacEachern of Hamilton, John MacEachern of Regina, Sask., and Wesley MacEachern of Hurst.

The funeral will be held from the family residence in McGill Settlement, Belmont Township, on Saturday at 1:15 p.m., with service in the Havelock United Church at 2 p.m., conducted by the Rev. R. G. Newman. The funeral will be under the auspices of the L.O.B.A. and Crystal Chapter. Burial will be in Maple Grove Cemetery.

Boos And Catcalls Greet Belgian King

BRUSSELS, Feb. 15 (Reuters).—Boos and catcalls mingled with shouts of "Vive la Roi" when King Baudouin arrived at Christ's Church here today to attend a special memorial service to King George VI.

About 200 persons gathered out side the church to watch the arrival of the 21-year-old king, who, looking pale and shy, arrived 15 minutes late for the service, attended by high dignitaries, including foreign diplomats.

King Baudouin's decision not to attend the funeral of King George caused a political crisis in Belgium last Wednesday when the government was defeated on a Socialist censure motion.

English War Bride Seeking Relatives

An English war bride now living in Winnipeg, Manitoba, is trying to locate relatives whom she thinks may now be living in the Peterborough area.

Mrs. Maksymchuk wrote a letter to the Examiner asking for help in locating three sisters, Harriet, Elizabeth and Margaret Lambert who came to Canada about 45 years ago. The last time Miss Harriet Lambert wrote to England she was employed at the home of a Mr. Hickson in Reaboro.

The three sisters lived in Treeton, near Rotherham, England, until the death of their parents. Then they went to Dr. Barnardo's home in London until they were old enough for domestic service, at which time they came to Canada.

Funeral Means Little To Prince Charles

LONDON, Feb. 15 (Reuters)—A sturdy little boy with serious blue eyes watched the King's funeral procession from a window in St. James's Palace today.

He was Prince Charles, three, heir to the throne and grandson of the late King.

The Prince looked down on the procession from beginning to end, yet hardly knowing what it was all about, seeing only the splendor and majesty of the pageant.

He was with his nurse, Miss Helen Lightbody.

WALKED AWAY—Preparing to leave Elizabeth, N.J., General Hospital, five-year-old Patricia Clausen has her new bonnet tied on by student nurse Margaret Kaylor. The girl was travelling to Florida with her parents on the ill-fated DC-6 which crashed in Elizabeth. Her mother was killed, and her father is still listed in critical condition.

Citizens Pause In Routine As 11 o'Clock Sounds

At the first stroke of 11 this morning from the bell of the town clock overhead, two Hobbs Glass workmen stopped in the few strides between their truck at the curb and the boarded entrance to the Levinson store.

Erect and with arms straight at their sides, they stood motionless until they heard the whistle at the Canadian General Electric Company, sounding across the city, signalling the end of Peterborough's two minutes of silence in grateful and loyal memory to King George VI.

Pausing a moment, the two Hobbs men turned and passed through the temporary boarding in front of the store.

They were dressed in the light blue denim overalls and jacket of their occupation, two working men, one young enough to be an apprentice at the trade, whose thoughts were far away in Windsor Castle where the body of their late Monarch had brought a fresh lustre to that ancient tomb of British kings.

Youth Halts

Between the Barrie Building and the empty Customs House a youth of about eighteen years halted with the clock's tolling of an historic hour in British history. He was dressed in a grey station wagon coat, with fur collar, typical of his garb, and perhaps in his heart with the teenagers of his day.

When the C.G.E. whistle reached him he strode off on his way up town, obviously an informed and imaginative boy in active sympathy with the millions of mourning people throughout the world. Two women stood in their respect at the George St. curb of the Eaton store.

The policeman at the McDermid drug store corner stood at attention during the two minutes. Around the corner on Charlotte St. two elderly men continued some aimless conversation unaware of the significance of the old town clock's strokes.

The Eaton store was closed for the day, but here and there along the street merchandising continued without interruption. Tamblyn's store did not open for the day until 11:05 a.m.

Bus Motors Stopped

Peterborough's buses at 11:00 a.m. were due to be out at the ends of their runs where their motors were shut off for two minutes.

At the Churchill restaurant up the street, the staff stood inactive during the two minutes. Most of the customers appeared to be unaware of the hour.

Motor traffic at Peterborough's main crossroads, Charlotte and George Streets, stopped only with the routine signal of the corner lights, and started off again with the green.

Few people were abroad at that time, in the chill February air, and evidently had scant business for the stores that invited them.

Board To Discuss

be equally untrue to say 'the Board has closed the gap'."

Differences Crop Up

The usual procedure is to compare the average salaries paid teachers in such centres as Kingston, Kitchener, Brantford etc., he said.

"But what do we find?"

"None has the same number of staff appointments or length of service. Therefore comparing average salaries is inaccurate.

Sarnia, for example, gave its teachers $400 at the beginning of the year; and this, along with the increment in September, will bring their increase up to $480. This compares with $550 in Peterborough.

(Dr. Honey's estimate: $200 annual increment, and $350 the estimated amount that will be paid as C.-O.-L. bonus.)

A double increment, or $400 was paid in January 1951.

On the criticism over the new maximum, Dr. Honey said it was not so long ago that the secondary school teachers "were not so interested in maximums as in present salaries."

"It is our policy to deal fairly, honestly and justly with our teachers," said Dr. Honey. "And, of course, that is the only right thing to do."

Has Raised Maximum

He said the Board has, in the last few years, raised the maximum by $1,000. But this year the Board focused their attention on the present year so far as salaries were concerned.

One reason why trustees don't like to set out higher maximums is the uncertainty of future economic trends. If there were a severe drop in the cost of living the Board would have no alternative but to rescind their previous motion of maximums. This would be abhorrent to both trustees and ratepayers, said Dr. Honey.

Dr. Honey then produced a statement on present salaries which had been prepared by K. S. Wightman on instructions from Dr. Honey.

By the time the Board has adjusted all 1952 salaries (including teaching staff, maintenance men, janitors etc.) the increase will be approximately $140,510, or 3.85 mills on the tax rate.

These rates are figured on assessment for 1052 taxes, said Dr. Honey. Any increase in revenue due to increased assessment will be more than absorbed by increased expenses apart from salaries.

List Of Additions

The C.-O.-L. bonus, plus the annual increment, will make the following additions to the salary account for 1952, according to Dr. Honey's statement:

Public schools (135 teachers)—$80,650 or 2.28 mills on the tax rate.

Collegiate (52 teachers) — $34,400, or .85 mills.

Other employees—$25,460, or .7 mills.

The statement concluded:

"The Peterborough Board's increase of maximum salaries by $200 was regarded by no one as necessarily final. Indeed, judging from the circular sent out by the O.S.S.T.F. there is no final maximum as it put $6,500 in place of the $5,600 spoken of a month or so ago.

"Under present arrangements every teacher, including those at the former maximum, is guaranteed an additional increment in 1953. Any further change in the maximum would therefore have no effect until 1954. There have been no instances in recent years when the level of the maximum prevented any teacher from receiving an annual increment."

Objects To Publication.

Mrs. Anne Rowell then said: "I object to the brief appearing in the press."

G. Wilson Craw, who is also managing editor of the Examiner, replied: "Oh no, this matter has been discussed at an open meeting."

Chairman W. B. Gordon said the matter was out of his hands. Dr. Honey had made the report and it was in order.

But before the Board adjourned this point of disagreement came up again.

Mrs. Kathleen Bell said she thought all members of the Board should be aware of what was on the agenda. Neither she nor Mrs. Rowell knew of the prepared statement of Dr. Honey's.

"I think it would have been wiser to have discussed this matter with the teachers before making it public," she said.

Mrs. Bell re-iterated that trustees should be entitled to know everything that was on the agenda for the meeting.

Dr. Honey said that nothing on the report had been discussed with other members of the Board before he submitted it.

He said he resented any insinuation that he had "connived."

Chairman Gordon commented that discussion on the teacher's correspondence was listed on the agenda. Dr. Honey was quite in order to have a statement prepared for pertinent information.

"It seems to me that Dr. Honey went to a great deal of trouble preparing this report," said Arthur Pitchford. "I found it most enlightening."

Chairman Gordon ruled that further discussion was out of order as the whole matter had already been disposed of. The appointments committee will talk it over with the teachers' groups.

Ontario Pays Tribute To Beloved King

By The Canadian Press

Ontarians paid tribute today to a King they loved and respected.

They joined with the rest of Canada to mourn King George VI on this day of national mourning proclaimed for the monarch's funeral.

From the largest city to the smallest community, citizens paid their respects in one form or another. Everywhere, in the still of the winter day, church bells tolled.

The quick pace of everyday life was slowed, whether the day was observed as a full statutory holiday or simply marked with special memorial services.

Services were held in churches or community halls where leading figures of the communities led their fellow-citizens in prayer. Armed forces members, Boy Scouts and veteran organizations paraded to cenotaphs and placed wreaths.

Joint Service

In Toronto 5,000 persons gathered at Maple Gardens for an interdenominational service which began at 8:15 a.m. It was attended by Mayor Allan Lamport, L. O. Breithaupt, lieutenant-governor-designate, Premier Frost and citizens from all walks of life. A broadcast of the funeral procession in London was heard.

Toronto street-cars and buses stopped running for two minutes at 9 a.m. in the general observance of the two minutes of silence in the city. Public transportation also halted in other centres.

In London, a cannon shot at noon signalled the two minutes of quiet there.

Throughout the province all schools, banks, government offices and most municipal buildings were closed.

No community service was held in Paris. The town's ministerial association cancelled arrangements for a memorial service because of what it said was the lack of co-operation from industry and labor in providing employees with an opportunity to attend.

Roth Fractures His Left Hand

STRATFORD, Feb. 15 (CP)—Stratford Indians' hopes for the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A championship suffered a serious setback today.

Mickey Roth, O.H.A. scoring leader, will be out of action for at least four weeks. Roth suffered a fracture in the left hand during a game with Hamilton Thursday night. Stratford won 6-4.

In official figures released Monday, Roth compiled 50 goals and 60 assists for 110 points. The figures were tops in all offensive departments.

He is the second member of the high-scoring Roth-Billy Flick-Dinny Flanagan line to be injured in recent weeks. Flick suffered a shoulder separation a few weeks ago and is not expected to see action for the rest of the season.

The leading Indians, however, assured themselves of a playoff berth several days ago. They currently lead second place Kitchener by 15 points.

Fisher Gives Final Blessing

WINDSOR, England, Feb. 15—(AP)—Dr. Geoffrey Fisher gives the Church of England's final blessing today to the King who made him the youngest Archbishop of Canterbury of modern times.

Dr. Fisher, now 63, was 57 when the King appointed him Archbishop and Primate of all England. In that same year he visited Canada. He has a rich baritone voice that can echo round vast St. Paul's Cathedral.

Dr. Fisher never was a parish priest. His administrative ability as Headmaster for 15 years of the exclusive Repton Public School for Boys led him straight to the Bishopric of Chester for six years, then in 1939 to London, whose people he comforted throughout the blitz.

The Archbishop recovered from influenza just in time to officiate at today's mournful occasion.

Later at the Coronation will come a supreme moment for him —when he places the Crown on the head of Queen Elizabeth.

Silver Shortage More Peanuts In Africa Colony

KANO, Nigeria—(Reuters)—A shortage of silver shillings means one thing in this African colony: a good peanut crop.

It's necessary to fly the silver coins in by the sackful to keep up with the demands of Nigerian farmers, a suspicious lot, who demand their money in hard cash.

The farmers have several good reasons for preferring silver to paper. They like to hide their money in the bottom of wells and that can't be done with paper.

For those who hide their money above ground, coin is good insurance against a small fortune being wiped out by paper-eating white ants.

And so after a series of crop failures, merchants, shopkeepers and everyone who feels it in the pocketbook when poor crops cut farmers' purchasing are looking to the increased demand for silver shillings as a sign of bumper crops and prosperous times.

Every year, at harvest time the banks in Lagos, 500 miles to the south, turn out their shillings and two-shilling pieces and dispatch them to Kano by special train, with guards mounted atop the sacks of coins to make sure that the harvest money arrives at its destination. But an SOS for extra silver by plane means that the railways from Kano to the coast will have to cope with even more traffic this year in an attempt to get the bumper crop of peanuts to the ports. Prices have risen too and the farmer are getting $100 a ton this year compared with $58 a ton a year ago.

If the peanuts can be moved to Lagos, Britain will have more for processing into margarine. Average exports of peanuts from Nigeria are over 300,000 tons a year, almost all of which go to Britain.

Impose Censorship

GUATEMALA, Guatemala, Feb. 15—(CP)—The government of Guatemala has announced that all outgoing and incoming press messages are subject to censorship. The government has always retained the right of censorship in case of a threat to its security but in the latest move no reasons were given.

Reach Agreement

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Feb. 15—(CP)—An agreement reached Thursday for wage increases for 6,000 Puerto Rican dock workers ended a 26-day strike which was threatening the island with food shortages. Dock operations are expected to resume Saturday.

Ratify Agreement

BAGHDAD, Feb. 15—(CP)—The Iraqui House of Representatives Thursday ratified the government's new agreement with the Iraq Petroleum Company. Under the Pact, the oil company, owned by British, French, Dutch and American interests, agrees to give Iraq 50 per cent of the profits, or more than $42,000,000 a year.

Give Up Search

PANAMA, Panama, Feb. 15—(CP) — Private investigators have ended their search for a man-eating shark which might have yielded clues to the Jan. 15 disappearance of Gosta Videgaard, wealthy Swedish engineer. The investigators hunted unsuccessfully for a shark whose stomach might contain a trace of the missing man. They are almost satisfied he drowned but do not completely rule out the possibility of foul play.

Gov't Funds Squandered On Arctic Defence Posts

Government funds are being spent "with prodigal waste," in the Arctic, Dr. R. S. Robertson told Peterborough Kinsmen Thursday night.

Regarded as "a bulwark of safety ten years ago," the Canadian Arctic is today an unprotected frontier wide open to attack from Russia he said.

Dr. Robertson, a retired Cobourg dentist turned farmer, served as dental surgeon aboard the Arctic supply ship C. D. Howe on its 1950 and 1951 trips to outposts of civilization in the Arctic.

"Millions are being spent on radar stations to spot incoming planes from Russia and unless we stop antagonizing them, they will come," he warned.

No Protection

At Frobisher Bay, hundreds of thousands of gallons of high test aviation gas are stored. "Enough to run a fleet of aircraft, and not a gun to protect it," Dr. Robertson declared.

He said officials in charge were relying on radar to give them sufficient protection. However once bombers break through, and blow up these vital storage depots—"they will fight on their terms, not ours."

Other phases of government Arctic policy were criticized by Dr. Robertson. He said that Canada's vast Arctic regions will never add to our economy but will continue to be a mounting bill of expense.

Dr. Robertson who did everything from pulling molars from stoic Eskimos to acting as juryman at murder trials said his first trip was an "expedition," his second an "adventure."

The federal government is doing good work in the Arctic and can improve the lot of the Eskimo. All Eskimo children over ten years of age are being X-rayed and to a certain degree, tuberculosis, "the menace of the north," is being stamped out.

More Harm Than Good

However, Dr. Robertson believes that contact with white men has done the Eskimo more harm than good.

Modern clothing is not as suitable for the Arctic as clothes which Eskimos have been making from skins for centuries.

Dr. Robertson declared that "education is a myth in the Arctic." At Cape Dorset, he said a teacher and his wife who was a nurse, were receiving between $8,000 and $9,000 a year plus living accommodation and the husband was only teaching three children.

"Eskimos must hunt to live. They cannot leave their children behind when they go on hunting trips." As a result, the man was teaching two children of an RCMP constable and one child of the Hudson's Bay factor in a modern $40,000 school.

"Men in the Department of Transport are phenomenally lazy. The less they have to do, the less they want to do and there is nothing for them to do anyway, Dr. Robertson continued.

In the far north of Canada's eastern Arctic, an area covering one fifth of Canada, the only broadcasts that can be picked up near the magnetic pole, are English language broadcasts from Moscow. They are 10 per cent truth and 90 per cent lies in the news of the Korean war. "Their lies always have some grounding in fact but nothing is being done to combat thi distorted Soviet propaganda.

Dr. Robertson illustrated his talk with colored slides which he took during half day visits to each port of call.

The Eskimo is an excellent subject for a photographer, because he does not look at the camera. He appears to understand that it's what he is doing that's important and just goes on about his business.

"There is a wealth of iron in the north," commented Dr. Robertson wryly, "empty oil barrels. Thousands of them lie stacked in piles where they have been emptied — like tin cans in a city dump."

Of the 8,000 Eskimos in the Arctic, 6,000 are in the eastern Arctic. Those in the eastern Arctic are practically all Anglicans, while the Roman Catholic Oblate Fathers minister to the natives of the western Arctic.

Practically all of Dr. Robertson's pictures showed an Eskimo baby, bobbing in a parka behind its mother's head. "There are few empty parkas in the north," although he added that new-born baby girls often die "natural deaths" in snowbanks or on the ice floors of igloos.

Tried On Spot

According to law, anyone accused of major crimes such as murder has to be tried on the spot. Dr. Robertson served as juror on four murder trials and was impressed with the inate honesty of the Eskimo. "It's refreshing to find there are still honest people in the world. However, the government is going to make them dishonest.

An Eskimo tells only the truth; he doesn't know how to lie," Dr. Robertson told his listeners. A young Eskimo who had killed his mother-in-law could not understand why he should deny he had shot her when he was put on trial. He wanted to confess but the prosecuting lawyer tried to get him to plead not guilty.

Very few Eskimos speak English and all conversation has to be carried on through an interpreter.

T.B. incidence in the Arctic is extremely high, 63 per cent of the population are victims. The government is taking the curables out to sanitoriums but the "tragedy" is said Dr. Robertson, that once they have been "outside" they don't want to go back to their primitive ways.

300 Neighbors Attend Golden Wedding

WARKWORTH, Feb. 15 (ENS)—Nearly three hundred friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Davis, R.R. 1, Warkworth, gathered in Burnley Hall Tuesday evening to honor them on their golden wedding anniversary.

Mr. Davis danced at his golden wedding, doing a step dance during the impromptu program. He is 80, and his wife 65.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Davis were born in the Burnley district and have spent their lives within the community. Until he retired several years ago, Mr. Davis was a mason.

The couple had five sons: Harmon of Fenella, Norman, Frank and Clark of Cobourg, and George of Windsor; three daughters, Mrs. Olive Boyle, Mrs. Willis Douglas (Ella) and Mrs. H. C. Halligan (Mary), all of Cobourg. There are 37 grandchildren. All the family, except the son in Windsor, were present for the occasion.

Cyril Roddy was master of ceremonies, and introduced a program of piano and vocal solos and recitations.

The Rev. A. B. Moffattt of the Free Methodist Church in Warkworth spoke briefly. A letter was read from the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, M.P.P. for Northumberland, congratulating the couple, and Dr. Fred Robertson, Liberal M.P., brought personal greetings.

Congratulations from Haldimand council were brought by Nelson Usher and Harry Hutchinson.

Highlight of the evening was the presentation of a pair of rocking chairs to Mr. and Mrs. Davis. Their son Frank read the address. Their grandchildren gave Mrs. Davis a gold wrist watch and Mr. Davis a gold tie pin.

A studio couch to match the chairs was presented on behalf of the community by Ed Noonan.

Mossadegh Breaks Off Talks In U.K.- Iranian Oil Dispute

Queen Hides Grief In Brief Rest Before Duties Start

LONDON, Feb. 16. (AP)—Queen Elizabeth hid lingering grief for her father behind her home's secluding walls today before grappling with a host of duties and taking the long rest her advisers are urging upon her. Within Clarence House she rested amid the comforting presence of the Duke of Edinburgh, and their two children, three-year-old Crown Prince Charles and year-old Princess Anne. Before she takes a holiday to recover from the strains imposed upon her by the death of the King and her sudden ascension of the throne, she must make the decisions that only a sovereign can make.

One of these decisions come only to a queen, and never to a King—the choice of rank and title for her husband.

Palace sources believe he will receive the title of Prince Consort and be raised in precedence to rank ahead of all in the kingdom except the Sovereign. Queen Victoria, the great-great-grandmother of both Elizabeth and the Duke, set the precedent by conferring this title and rank to her husband, Albert.

The Duke now is outranked by his son, who, as eldest son of the Sovereign, became Duke of Cornwall the moment the King died.

See Promotions

Edinburgh also will probably be promoted to senior rank in all the services—the navy, in which he has been an active lieutenant-commander, the army and the R.A.F.

Elizabeth must also consider plans for her coronation. A likely time for it is early summer, inasmuch as she decreed mourning only until June 1, in place of the customary nine months to a year.

She now has to select more than 20 senior members of the staff to run the royal household, and arrange to move into Buckingham Palace, London seat of the monarch, from her present residence nearby in Clarence House.

Duty will keep her in London for several weeks. Then she is expected to go to one of the royal estates—perhaps to the Sandringham estate where her father was born and died—to rest from the heavy demands thrust upon her by the death of the King from a blod clot 10 days ago.

Returned Together

Elizabeth and her husband drove back together in Friday's dusk from Windsor immediately after the burial of the King in St. George's chapel.

Her grieving mother and her younger sister, Princess Margaret, returned to Buckingham Palace and there, today, they rested.

France May Trim Defence Effort To Save Economy

PARIS, Feb. 16 (AP)—France is in such a critical financial state that drastic trimming of her defence effort seems inevitable.

Already the country has gone back heavily into the "quota" system of trade. After the war, France removed an estimated 75 per cent of her quota trade restrictions. Now she is scaling back so that only about 40 per cent of these gains are being preserved.

Her new restrictions are designed to cut imports from other European countries by between $14,000,000 and $20,000,000 a month.

A defence effort that once was expected to reach about $5,000,000,000 seems likely to be cut back to about $3,500,000,000—and part of this will have to come from the United States.

A government which last month sought higher taxes for defence already has fallen. So unsteady is the franc in the eyes of investors that it is quoted on the black market at above 460 to the dollar. The official rate is 350.

Devaluation Rumor

The government has repeatedly denied the franc will be devalued, but merchants and investors have for some time been expecting devaulation to cut the franc's value to about its black market worth. A devaluation is not likely to come before next month.

The franc has been quoted at the reduced value so long that prices have tended to catch up with it, making a doubly difficult job of forcing back both inflated money and inflated prices.

All this had been gathering momentum over a period of months. The explanation has been the same for at least three years.

The coalition government is so wobbly that no fundamental tax and fiscal reforms have been possible. Reform attempts have collapsed one cabinet after another.

The government has officially announced that its gold reserves of $550,000,000 are barely enough for day to day trading. And at present spending rates will last only until April.

Swedish Defence Plan Said Sold To Russia

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 16 (AP).—The newspaper Morgen-Tidningen said today a Swedish spy, working for Russia for 10 years, had sold out the "most important part of northern Sweden's defence" plans.

The newspaper, which supports the governing social democratic party, said the case is of even greater importance than the recently-revealed espionage activities of a Swedish naval engineer who was sentenced to life imprisonment.

The newspaper said the alleged spy was detained Monday by Swedish security police. It identified him as a former member of the Swedish Communist party.

Zeno Colo Wins OlympicDownhill

NOREFJELL, Norway, Feb. 16—(CP)—Zeno Colo, Italy's world champion downhill skier, won the Olympic downhill event today, equallying the course record of two minutes, 30.8 seconds for the hazadrous, twisting run of 2,435 metres—1½ miles.

Austria, which has placed well up in the ski events so far in the winter games took second and third places. Othmar Schneider was clocked in 2:32 and Christian Pravda, who was second in yesterday's giant slalom, finished in 2:32.4.

The placing of the four Canadians who also competed in the giant slalom was undetermined but all were again far down the list.

Bob Richardson of Montreal was clocked in 2:43.2, Gordie Morrison of Banff, Alta., in 2:51.1, Jack Griffin of Vancouver in 2:52.2 and Andre Bertrand of Quebec in 2:56.

'Richest Teen-Ager' Marries Former Telephone Operator

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 16 (CP)—A former telephone operator marries the heir to $3,000,000 today. They said they hope for a quiet ceremony.

The bride is Mary Kathleen Connell Steers of a well-known London family. The groom is 18-year-old John Leonard Smallman, often described as Canada's richest teen-ager. The ceremony will be held in St. Martin's Roman Catholic Church.

The bride, who received her engagement ring last Dec. 18 on her 20th birthday, will be given in marriage by a brother, Barry Steers. Another brother, Kevin, will attend the groom.

A honeymoon trip to Mexico follows a small reception at the home of the bride.

Johnny Smallman, 14 when he received a $2,600,000 bequest under the will of a great-aunt, is a Protestant, his bride a Roman Catholic. Holding the ceremony in the church is permitted as London diocese is one of the four in Canada where mixed marriages in a Roman Catholic church are permitted by the bishop.

The young couple plan to live in Toronto and raise "a medium-sized family." Johnny, who receives the $150,000-a-year interest on his fortune when he is 21 and gets half the principal at 25, doesn't plan to loaf. He says he has been looking for a job in a construction company with an idea of becoming a partner in some firm.

Only daughter of Mrs. Connell Speers, the bride until recently worked for the Bell Telephone Company. The groom's mother is Mrs. W. E. Bahen of Hamilton. His father died in a boat explosion at Muskoka when he was a baby.

While young Smallman plans to settle down and get a job, he also wants a few luxuries. He owns an expensive convertible but said recently that he also wants an English sports car that can speed at more than 100 miles an hour. He thinks he would like a yacht. He certainly wants a snooker table.

Elder Senator Dies Aged 87

RICHIBUCTO, N.B., Feb. 16—(CP)—Senator Thomas J. Borque, 87, dean of the Senate both in age and length of service, died at his home here early today.

Until the death this week of Sir Alen Aylesworth in Toronto, Senator Bourque was senior in length of service only. Sir Allen, 97, was appointed to the Senate in 1923. Senator Bourque was appointed in 1917.

Death of Senator Bourque leaves the Progresive Conservatives with only eight seats in the 102-seat Upper House. There are 77 Liberal senators and 17 vacancies. It brings to four the number of New Brunswick vacancies in the Senate.

Two U.N. Destroyers Unload Birthday Shells For Wonsan

ABOARD THE DESTROYER TWINING IN WONSAN HARBOR, Feb. 16. (AP)—Allied warships unloaded a "birthday bombardment" through a snowstorm on battered Wonsan today. The shelling, repeated daily for 365 consecutive days, today entered its second year. Before dawn two U.S. destroyers—the Twining and Gregory—hurled shells on the east coast seaport, also a vital Communist industrial and transportation hub.

A snowstorm blocked observation of shell hits from radar-directed guns of the Twining and Gregory.

After a solid year of bombardment from sea and air without letup, Wonsan, once a city of 100,000 is largely in ruins.

LONDON, Feb. 16. (AP)—For the second time in two days Prime Minister Churchill's household insisted today the 77-year-old statesman is in good health. The statements were in response to persistent rumors in London that Churchill is seriously ill. Some of these reports which swept through the streets of the capital, even said he had died during the night.

British Girl Leads In Skating

OSLO, Feb. 16 (CP).—Jeannette Altwegg, the English girl who holds the world figure-skating championship, took the early lead today in an effort to succeed Canada's Barbara Ann Scott for the Olympic title.

After two figures were completed by the large field of 25 in the opening phases of compulsory, or school figures, Miss Altwegg led with an unofficial score of 290.4.

Suzanne Morrow of Toronto, hard at work in Europe training for several months, was scored fifth with 267. Canada's two other entrants were outside the first 10.

Iran Senate Committee Urges Delegates Stay For Further Talks

International Bank Mission Offered Plan To Start Industry Operating; Country Said Hard-Up For Revenue From Oil

TEHRAN, Iran, Feb. 16. (AP)—The president of the Iranian senate said today Premier Mohammed Mossadegh and a five-man mission from the International Bank have broken off negotiations to settle Iran's costly oil dispute with Britain. A committee of senators urged Robert L. Garner, the bank's vice-president, to keep his delegates in Iran and try to resume the talks. The mission this week offered Mossadegh a face-saving plan to start the $1,500,000,000 industry pouring forth its oil products again — a plan to let the bank run it until Iran and Britain agreed on settlement.

It had been believed that Mossadegh, whose hard-up government could well use revenue from the oil, was ready to talk business although he had refused a month previously to negotiate unless the bank would guarantee Iranian domination of the industry formerly run by the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

No Way Left

Senate President Hassan Taghizadeh told newspapermen Mossadegh had informed the Senate committee this morning that "No way is left for agreement—the bank delegation will leave."

However, the committee asked Mossadegh to try again so "the chain will not be broken" and the Premier sent the Senators to persuade the delegation to stay past their scheduled time for departure tomorrow.

Hector Prudhomme, a bank delegate, said the bank representatives agreed to put off their departure until Tuesday and would meet Mossadegh again today.

"From our point of view we are still trying to reach a settlement, despite a number of disagreements," Prudhomme said.

Hopes Said High For Averting Strike At Ford

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 16—(CP)—Hopes ran high that a Ford strike set for 10 p.m. Sunday can be averted. Contract talks between the Ford Motor Company of Canada and the United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL) go on again today. If necessary, they will continue Sunday.

Labor Minister Daley said at the end of Friday's conference that the negotiators had made progress.

Mr. Daley brought the principals in the dispute together here Wednesday after another set of talks broke down in Toronto Monday. They launched a clause-by-clause discussion of a contract to replace one that expired last June.

The proposed contract has 85 clauses. By last night's adjournment, company and union representatives had taken up 62 of them.

Three Points Settled

It was learned that three of the main topics in dispute had been settled in Friday's speeded-up talks. They are voluntary overtime, union security and seniority.

Negotiators on both sides were said to have shown a spirit of give-and-take.

Still unsettled up to the start of today's deliberations were union requests concerning contract length, leave of absence arrangements, statutory holidays, night-shift premiums and vacation schedules. The union seeks $1,000 company-paid life insurance policies for Ford pensioners.

Adenauer Joins Big Three Talks

LONDON, Feb. 16 — (AP) — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden formally invited German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today to join the Big Three western foreign ministers Monday to discuss future relations between Germany and the Allies.

The meeting will allow State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States, Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France and Eden to talk over the big price tag Germany has put on her participation in western defence forces.

The German Bundestag (lower house) last week made six conditions for Adenauer's further talks on joining the six-nation European army and signing a peace contract with the Big Three. They included full equality with the Allies, freedom for many criminals, and a voice in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

U.K. May Recognize Farouk As Sudan King

LONDON, Feb. 16 (AP)—Diplomatic officials disclosed privately yesterday that Britain is considering recognizing Egypt's King Farouk I as regent or king of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. Such status would last only until the Sudanese people get a chance to settle their own future, they said.

The 1,000,000-square mile Sudan, adjoining Egypt on the south, and the Suez canal zone in the north, are the great issues in the now-quiet dispute between Egypt and Britain.

THE KING'S FUNERAL

By REBECCA WEST

WINDSOR, England, Feb. 16.—The morning of the King's funeral was gently grey. There was a light fog on the lowlands around Windsor and the sky was veiled. The weather has been so bad lately that there are grey seagulls in every field. The great wall and the round tower of Windsor Castle were dark shapes through the mist and indeed they are built of a stone that's coldly grey. But once within the castle winter semed to have gone, for there were flowers everywhere. Flowers sent to King George lined the great steps up to St. George's Chapel. They lay on the grass under the walls of the chapel. They're piled up in the cloister. They filled the archways and arcades. Many of them were very elaborate. A mayor and corporation would send the coat of arms of the town they represented worked in flowers, the whole thing as high as a man. Or a factory staff would send a crown two or three feet across but many of them consisted of only three or four tulips or a bunch of snowdrops, falling into a category that will make some of us always think of King George's death as the time of little flowers. They gradually made their appearance; the little flowers; during the lying-in-state which oddly enough became a bigger thing as it went on. Many men and women, not given to moving much off their routine, read in the papers about the lying-in-state and said to themselves: "It seems a good thing to go and pay our respects to the King. We will do it too. If other people can wait three, four or five hours, well, so can we."

So more and more joined the line outside Westminster Hall, until it became something prodigious, vaster, than ordinary phenomena of everyday life. It seemed as if two rivers were flowing side by side, one the Thames on its way to the sea; one a line of men and women on the way to see their King lying in the seat of government and as this river grew larger they began to be a queer business about flowers, it was not explicitly said that there might be no flowers left inside the catafalque, that there should be no wreaths in Westminster Hall, except those sent by the Royal Family. But obviously it would have to be forbidden if lots of people had started bringing big bunches and sprays and wreaths of their own. So there was a queer kind of bootlegging of flowers. The people bought in little bunches of flowers, snow-drops and violets and straight slim stuff like tulips and narcissi hidden under their coats and dropped them on the floor as they were passing.

Well, here they were lying in strength on the ground and in the cloisters of St. George's Chapel sent, so I aver, because people loved him. Large and small offerings made a blaze of golden daffodils, scarlet tulips, blue irises, white carnations, red and white anemones and some astound roses, very startling under the grey sky at the base of the grey walls. And the people were going about looking at them. The people who were admitted to the castle enclosure, people who have ties with the castle and held posts within it, or were soldiers or sailors or officials or their kin. They were grave controlled people of the type that takes service under the Crown, and the King liked that sort of person. He knew their value to England and to him.

There's something appropriate about seeing them there, where the King who bore control so well was helped by them to live his life of official care. They were mindful not to let their feet strike too sharply on the stone paths. They bent down over flowers and read labels but never in too loud a tone. But outside people were standing in the streets. We had seen them as we drove to Windsor, queuing for buses, making a holiday of it. Do not when you think of the British mourning their King think of looking like a lot of spaniels full of lugubriousness. One might even say they were making a sort of picnic of this. They march along the street with shopping bags bursting with sandwiches and showing the tops of thermos flasks. They speak at the usual pitch of their voices and they talk of other things than the death of the King.

Outside the Castle gates was standing the most famous racing tipster, Prince Monolulu, a colored gentleman who frequents our race meetings and speaks in Hyde Park in a costume, as authenically royal as his title, of trailing white robes and feathers curling up from his head for a couple of feet. A first rate character he is and we all knew him and the crowds all saluted him, even today, not loudly but with a smile.

"I knew the King," he is telling his neighbours, "personally, but personally I'm telling you," whatever the extent of that knowledge might be it is certain that the King must have known him for he had an eye for all the odd characters that frequented the English scene. So the crowds do the dead King no wrong by smiling at Prince Monolulu as he would have smiled. And indeed they constantly give proof that for all their making holiday of this, they're grieving deeply. A window is opened, the voice of a radio speaks out into the street. A man in the crowd with his mouth full of sandwich says, "He's coming round by the Marble Arch now." And from the tone of his voice you know that he's gone every step of the way with his dead King.

On the way to the chapel for the funeral service, I asked the way from a woman who was walking alone. So that she could tell me something important that at that moment she felt she had to tell someone, she walked towards the chapel with men though that was not her way. She had a husband, it appeared, who suddenly went blind at the age of 35 when he was a well-paid executive in an insurance business. He had been filled with despair. He had found the first lessons that were given to him in Braille profoundly discouraging. He had wanted to die and when his wife had discovered that there was a school for the adult blind in the west country, where he could be trained to earn a living in some new way, he had refused to go. But then one Christmas Day he had heard the King make a broadcast in which the fact that he was wrestling with a stammer was particularly obvious and the obvious embarrassment and effort of the King had made him decide that he could make such an effort himself too. And he had gone to school in the west country and it had been the beginning of a better time for both of them. She left me as soon as she had told the story and I think it possible she was going round town to tell it where she could.

In St. George's chapel there's always beauty. It was built by Henry the Sixth, who was considered an ineffective king, but who made here a strong box into which ages have shut some of their beauty, which time has never been able to devour because it is sealed there for ever. It has its own late Gothic beauty. It lacks simplicity. It is not purely as beautiful as the thousand-year-old Westminster Hall; it is too ornamented and is too pretty. But on each side of the building pillars rise flush with the walls and break into elaborate vaulting that covers the roof with the effect of a fountain stilled forever and under this roof at the end of the church, between the place where the congregation sits and the altar, is the choir where Knights of the Garter have each their seat.

U.S. Leaders Veto Russia As Police Power In Korea

MUNSAN, Korea, Feb. 16 (AP)—The United States comand today vetoed Communist nomination of Russia as a neutral power to help police a Korean armistice.

The U.N. accepted two Soviet satellites—Poland and Czechoslovakia—as the other Red representatives on neutral behind-the-lines inspection teams.

An Allied staff officer said the reason for rejection of Russia should be obvious.

He did not elaborate. But the Russians have supplied Communist armies in Korea with fighter planes, tanks and other war materials, and Russian officers trained the North Korean army before the outbreak of war.

The action came in a staff officer meeting after a full-dress session by top negotiators in which the Reds offered a revised proposal for a top-level Korean peace conference.

The new Red proposal said only that a "higher level" political conference should be held within three months after a truce is signed to discuss withdrawal of foreign troops and "the peaceful settlement of the Korean problem," etc.

Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, senior Allied negotiator, said "etc. could mean a lot of things.... I will not interpret anything until I have had a chance to study it."

North Korean Gen. Nam Il, in submitting the new draft, said it did not commit the later conference to anything not mutually agreeable. But he said it was "a matter of certainty" that other questions "which are directly related to peace in Korea would be touched upon."

Nam said the new draft was submitted to prevent "continued haggling."

Joy asked for an adjournment until 10 a.m. Sunday (8 p.m. EST, Saturday) to study the new proposal.

The new Red proposal on recommendations to the belligerent countries in effect covered all the points on which the two sides already were agreed.

Cobourg Mourns King's Death Attend Services

COBOURG, Feb. 16 (ENS) — Churches where memorial services were held Friday for the late King, were filled with worshippers. The mayor, council and public utilities commission, attended Requiem High Mass at St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church at nine and later in the morning attended the community service at St. Peter's Anglican Church. Last night a memorial service was held at the Glad Tidings Tabernacle.

"The King of Kings has summoned to His presence the late King George VI," said the Rev. E. C. Kelloway, pastor of Trinity United Church, who delivered the address at the community service.

"In common with the British people and the people throughout the world we pay our respects to one who was king in character as well as king in rank, and who won the respect and affection of those both within and outside the Commonwealth. He was the King among the other kings of the world. All the pomp and ceremony of his Royal position did not prevent the humblest of his subjects from feeling that he was their King, and this feeling intensifies the sorrow that is felt," said the speaker.

Never Sought Throne

His nobility of character and his devotion to duty were all the more apparent because of the circumstances under which he became monarch. He had never sought to be king but preferred to serve his country as best he could in some quiet way. But when the responsibilities of king were thrust upon him he accepted them and carried them out to the fullest.

He overcame a physical impediment with marked success and set an example of devotion to his people that was most apparent in the dark days of the war when he insisted on staying with his people and experiencing the same things as they did during those war years.

While thrones toppled elsewhere, the throne of England took on greater strength under this King.

His devotion to his people during the war was one of the examples of his greatness. Another characteristic was his love for his family. The soundness of his judgment and the tenderness he exhibited as a husband and father, stood out as a shining example in a world which was forgetting the responsibilities of the home. In his home life he showed those characteristics which endeared him and inspired others. He magnified and glorified the meaning of family life, Rev. Kelloway said.

The third area of his example to the world was his religious make-up. In truth he was a defender of the faith and always would be remembered for his now famous Christmas message quotation.

He had gone to his rest at a time when his influence for good was strongest. He was a great Christian gentleman—"thou servant of God, well done," said the speaker.

FOUR DUKES followed the gun carriage bearing the coffin of King George in the procession at the funeral on Friday. With the Duke of Windsor are the Duke of Kent, left, and General Sir J. T. Crocker, right, followed by the Duke of Gloucester and Edinburgh.

marched behind his brother's coffin in yesterday's historic pageantry of death, will return to New York early next week.

Some of the royal visitors who attended the King's funeral were leaving today.

Among them are Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands, Crown Prince Olav of Norway, Prince Axel of Denmark, Prince Albert of Belgium, and Grand Duchess Charlotte and Prince Felix of Luxembourg.

Greek King Paul and Sweden's King Gustav Adolf and Queen Louise will be the weekend guests of the Earl and Countess Mountbatten at their country home in Hampshire. King Frederik and Queen Ingrid of Denmark sail for home Sunday. King Haakon of Norway departs Tuesday.

Pictures of the dead King, draped in black, were removed from store windows. All signs of mourning were removed from Paddington Station, from where his body started its train trip to burial, and from other public buildings.

Strain Eases

The Times summed up editorially:

"The long strain—it has been a strain—begins to ease this morning and the people, looking back over 10 testing days, are sorting out their thoughts and emotions.

"After the military funeral, the ceremonial drill was put abruptly in reverse. The band, which a few minutes earlier had been playing solemn music, breaks into a marching tune. The escort departs briskly from the grave which it had approached with reversed arms and at slow march.

"The inherent dramatic justice of this procedure cannot be questioned.

"The living must carry on, and if they languished in too-prolonged mourning they would provoke the impatience of the dead."

King George VI Courageous Man —Capt. D. Sharp

"It may well be that the late king will go down in history as George the Courageous," said Captain Douglas Sharp of the Salvation Army speaking on Friday night in Knox United Church at one of the five memorial services sponsored by the Peterborough Mnisterial Association to pay tribute to King George VI.

Following a pattern laid down in an "Order of Service" drawn up by the Ministerial Association, the minister of the church, the Rev. H. G. Douglas, conducted the service and the Rev. Ralph Hobson, Park St. Alliance Church, read the scriptures.

Peterborough citizens turned out in their hundreds to take part in services that were held throughout the day in many of the city's churches.

"People of all classes, walks of life and nationality," said Capt. Sharp, "have been moved to pay tributes of respect to this great man."

Whole Life Courageous

Capt. Sharp said that King George's whole life showed courage, before he became and while he was king.

"The king won this unique place in the hearts of his subjects, by his devotion to duty, his loving and genuine interest in his fellow men by his magnificent example of family life, and his abiding faith in God."

The head of the Salvation Army in the city said: "His life was a triumph and an inspiration because through and through he was a man of character.

He concluded: "In a world weakened and poisoned by unbelief . . . King George VI has stood as a shining light of Christian fatih."

The Salvation Army Band under the direction of Gerald Routley, with muted drums played hymns for the service.

Some of these items are regarded by the union as part of a monetary "package" it seeks to have included in the new contract. The union has expressed willingness to accept a 15-cent increase over the basic hourly rate of $1.35 instead of the 30-cent boost it sought originally, but union leaders are reported firm in their demands for the extra items.

Overtime Problem

The present overtime clause gives the company authority to require Ford production workers to put in overtime, even if an employee is unwilling to work beyond his regular hours. An Ontario Labor Department Conciliation Board recommended an agreement by which an employee can be asked—but not forced—to work overtime.

Ford requests for overtime work were blamed for eight short work stoppages last fall. The dismissal of a group of workers accused of inspiring the stoppages led to a 12-day strike that made 12,000 Ford employees idle last December.

The company has repeatedly indicated that it is opposed to changes in the Rand Formula, put into effect at the plant after a strike in 1945. It provides for payment of union dues by all employees regardless of whether they hold union cards.

Lays Threefold Blame For Housing Shortage

TORONTO, Feb. 16 — (CP) — Earle L. Sheppard, president of the Ontario Association of Architects, said Friday that the "there's-no-place-to-live" problem may be blamed on Central Mortgage and Housing Coporation, lending institutions and the municipalities.

He told a meeting of the council of the association that the Crown-owned C.M.H.C. has imposed price controls on new dwellings built under the National Housing Act at a time when costs were uncontrolled and rising.

Waited Too Long To Honor King —Rev. H. J. Scuse

"King George was in the truest sense of the word—a gentleman," said the Rev. Harvey J. Scuse, rector of St. George's Anglican Church.

"Gentleness and kindness must be listed as among the outstanding virtues of his life," said Mr. Scuse.

The rector paid this tribute to the late King George VI at an evening service at the church. About 70 people were present for the memorial service.

He chose as his text I. Peter 2:17—"Honor all men. Love the Brotherhood. Honor the King."

"We have come here tonight for the last of these purposes," said Mr. Scuse. "We are here to honor the King. But once again we have delayed giving honor until it was too late . . Too often we wait until our honor is of little value . . . when the person has no need of our praise.

"Yet we thank God for giving us such a wonderful King."

The death of loved ones should not make Christians "long faced" and sad, said Mr. Scuse. For they are going to a kingdom of light and joy.

"The trouble is we are looking at it from our own selfish point of view. Death brings separation."

The only value of the King's death has for us is the lessons we can learn from it.

A Gentleman

"King George was in the truest sense of the word a gentleman," said Mr. Scuse. "The word is much bandied around these days. But he was in every respect a 'gentle man'. Truly, he honored all men and loved the brotherhood."

"His first thought was always of the people under his care. Witness the thousands who attended Westminster Hall to see him as he lay in state."

Mr. Scuse paid tribute to the King's devotion—both to the state and to his church. This devotion was given freely despite the King's oral impediment, his frail health, and at the sacrifice of his home life.

"His own wills and desires had to take second place."

"He showed that not force but gentleness conquers the heart."

Mr. Scuse asked his parishioners to pray for their new 25-year-old Queen Elizabeth II.

"She has assumed a great responsibility and needs our prayers.

"God has taken a hand in our Commonwealth. He has lifted the responsibility from one pair of shoulders and put it on another. The King has been called to a higher service . . . Of him it can be said 'Well done thou good and faithful servant.' "

King Identified Himself With Citizens

The call to remembrance is also a call to rededicate and reconsecrate ourselves spiritually, the Rev. A. R. Larke told a George Street United Church congregation.

Mr. Larke, pastor of Springville United Church, was guest speaker at the special memorial service Friday night in George Street United Church.

His text was Isiah 6:1—"In the year that King Ussiah died I saw also the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and his train filled the temples."

King George VI grew up at the end of the Victorian era, said Mr. Larke. A change was taking place in social philosophy and social conditions.

Won Back Respect

During her long reign Victoria raised the Crown out of the sphere of controversy and made it a symbol of national unity and the people's love of freedom," said Mr. Larke. "In her own way Queen Victoria won back public respect for the Crown."

Yet all was not well, Mr. Larke said. The worldly success of the period bred a spirit of self-complacency and smugness. And this general attitude settled on many of her subjects during the latter part of her reign.

"At the time of her death there were pioneers who, aware of their country's shortcomings, dedicated themselves to the betterment of the common people. Not the least of these was William Booth of the Salvation Army whose book "In Darkest England" helped destroy this spirit of complacency and smugness."

"The late King George VI belonged with us in this century," said Mr. Larke. "The record discloses the extent to which these changing conditions constituted, for him, a challenge to identify himself with the needs of the common people.

"Through the years of the economic depression and the war, along with the Queen Mother, he never ceased to identify himself with the life of his people."

The death of the King should lead us to rededicate and reconsecrate our lives to Christian service, said Mr. Larke. He chose some apposite lines from Rudyard Kipling: "The captains and the kings depart (but) still stands thine ancient sacrifice: an humble and a contrite heart."

Wreaths Ranked By King's Grave

WINDSOR, England, Feb. 16—(Reuters)—Wreaths and flowers, ranging from great formal clusters to simple hand-picked bouquets, lay rank on rank on the lawns around the grave of George VI today.

Crowds poured into Windsor to see the carpet of perfumed color surrounding the grey walls of St George's Chapel, where the King was buried Friday

From early in the frosty morning a long line had waited patiently outside the massive iron gate to the grounds. Police expected that during the weekend thousands would pass through the lawns where the Royal shrine now rises like an ancient rock in a sea of flowers.

First in line was an R.A.F. corporal who had travelled all night from his airfield. He held in his hand a small bunch of snowdrops to leave as his tribute to his late Sovereign.

Inside the chapel there was only one wreath—that of the King's widow.

It was a key port for Allied forces until November, 1950, when the Chinese Communists swept south.

Throughout the year-long siege, naval guns have poured 8,000 tons of hot steel into Wonsan, an average of about 88 high-explosive shells an hour. Despite this, the Reds have managed to repair bridges and rail lines to some extent.

Marmora Public Service To Mourn Death Of King

MARMORA, Feb. 16 (ENS). — The public memorial service in connection with the obsequies of his late Majesty King George VI was held in the Plaza Theatre, Marmora, at 1:15 p.m. on Friday.

Prior to the service members of Marmora Branch No. 237, Canadian Legion, under Sgt. Robert Gray marched from the Canadian Legion Hall to the Memorial Hall where a wreath of poppies was laid beneath the roll of honor by Major Percy Gray and brief prayer offered by the chaplain, W. J. Cottrell. T. McCann and L. Williams formed the color party.

Two Choirs

For the service in the theatre the robed choirs of St. Paul's and St. Andrew's united with Mrs. A. F. Fraser at the piano. Reeve V. M. Lynch opened the service. The hymn "The Strife is O'er" was then sung.

Last Post and Reveille were sounded by Comrade G. Brooks and the two minutes' silence observed.

The Rev. G. H. Bache took the invocation prayer and Rev. L. C. Ball read scripture passages. Reeve Irwin McCoy of Marmora and Lake townships in a short address said, "We have come here this afternoon to mourn with those who mourn. Because of the suddenness and uncertain time of our death it well behooves us to have our house in order." Next came the King's favorite hymn, "The King of Love My Shepherd Is."

Canon J. M. Brownlie in his address referred to our consciousness of the sense of challenge the King's death had brought and the personal loss which was being felt.

Quoting the lines now famous as being used by George VI at the close of a Christmas message to his people the speaker intimated that the King had never taken his hand out of the hand of God. Now it remained for us to pledge loyalty and devotion to our Queen.

The Rev. G. D. Young offered a prayer for the Queen. The Rev. W. C. Stevenson offered a prayer for the Royal Family. The closing hymn "Abide With Me," was followed by the National Anthem and benediction pronounced by Canon J. M. Brownlie.

Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary which were present, joined the parade of Legionnaires back to the Legion Hall for dismissal.

Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E. attended the service in a body.

The King's Funeral

Here again is Elizabethan pomp and glory and colour. Each knight sat in his own stall which has on the back of it a gold plate enamelled with his coat of arms. As knight succeeded knight these gold plates became many. Each of the stalls is covered by a canopy of carved wood which rises high into the air of this high church and on top is a knight's helmet draped with his coloured scarf and surmounted by his armorial bearings which may be a tree growing out of a golden pot or a naked boy holding a shield or two arms holding plumes. Above these again hang knight's banners of scarlet and gold and all the brave colours that there are.

Trappings Of Chivalry

These are the trappings of chivalry as they were worn. One sees that the film of Henry Fifth was a pallid reflection of the glowing fact. Into these stalls there came now, in dark plain clothing, those who had a right to be close mourners of the King either by reason of ties or blood or because they had held high office in his state or in Allied state. These that were kin of the dead King were some of the exiled. In four adjoining staffs sat King Michael of Rumania and his Queen, Anne, Peter of Yugoslavia and his Queen, Alexandra. The two exiled Queens kissed as they passed.

Of the high officers of our state the greatest was of course Winston Churchill. Mr. Attlee was there too and for all his excellence, he did not make a striking effect, though he was a man who served King George the Sixth well, because he didn't fit in with the surroundings. He was good for this day, but he had nothing in common with Knights of the Garter and their bearings and banner. He lacks scarlet and gold in his composition. But when General Eisenhower came in he was of their company alright. A plain man, he nevertheless has richness of banners. And so of course had Winston Churchill when he came. He wore the slightly guilty look that we all as we grow old, are apt to wear at funerals of those who die younger than ourselves.

He's growing old as strong men do. Not sure how much he should restrain the energy which still wells out of him. He nearly tripped and fell on the steps that led down to the choir. It could be seen that he was embarrassed. It could be guessed that he was asking himself if he had not done this because he was infirm. But indeed it happened because he was striding too youthfully.

Body Reached Windsor

We sat waiting and after an hour or so we heard the sounds that told us that the King's body had reached Windsor. Those who were outside in the streets say that there was at the moment of its coming a hush on the town which did not lift until the coffin was taken into the chapel.

People stopped eating sandwiches. They did not smile any more at Prince Monolulu or at anything else. They were contemplating death of their King which when his coffin appeared became more than the death of a king. It became the death of a salesman, the death of a soldier, a sailor, a tinker, a tailor. It became the death of every man.

A gun was fired every minute to represent every year of his life, and this startled the sea gulls who soared from the grassland around the castle and circled over the procession.

But we, in the chapel knew none of these things. We received our initiation of the King's coming by the sounds of marching, of hoofs, beats or a dirge played on bagpipes that were faint, that grew loud, that faded away, that were loud again.

Arrives At Castle

The procession was taking the coffin on its gun carriage around the town of Windsor by a circuitous route that brought it sometimes near, sometimes far from the castle. It was as if a cocoon of sound were being wound around the chapel. At last the sounds came near and stopped. There entered the choir some of the people who had taken part in the procession. Queen Juliana of Holland took her seat in the choir. She is not a beautiful woman but she could stand up to the scarlet and gold, to the richness of chivalry. Now Archbishops and Bishops and high dignitaries of the Church and the choristers went slowly down to the door of the chapel to meet the coffin and slowly returned to range themselves on the steps below the altar where some sudden sunshine was now shining on golden vessels. The Crown, the Sceptre and Orb suddenly appeared being borne to a stand covered with purple velvet.

It must be noted that the death of this King is a very strange event. It is constantly turning into a symbol, an allegory. It was like an allegory of English history, that people not being hysterical, not wearing too long faces and not being snobs, but in a sane and self-shapen respecting state of mind, should file by the hundreds of thousands through the Hall, where the proper relations of the King of England and his people have been threshed out through centuries, to pay homage to a King who had taken particular care to acquaint himself with what those proper relations were and how to maintain them. What went on in St. George's Chapel was also an allegory of what happens to a King and his people. The press tells the people the truth about the King and his family. This is no invasion of privacy, for in these days it is hardly possible for the mass of people to know what the King is like except through the medium of the press. Very soon after King George the Sixth came to the throne, the press realized that Great Britain was lucky in the ruler they had got and they have taken pleasure in telling the story of a royalty that was always agreeable. When the press got to St. George's Chapel they were coming in double capacity. They were coming to report a funeral and they were coming to the funeral of someone they had seen much of and had honored. A number of them have received decorations from the King, some for war service. But when they got to St. George's Chapel they were shown into a singular enclosure. There's a passage alongside of the choir which at one point affords a view of half a dozen of the choir stalls and the entrance to the choir and a sideways glimpse of the altar. There is apparently some slovenly housekeeping at St. George's Chapel. This passage was in a state that no part of a consecrated building ought ever to be found. It was lumbered with bits of cushions, door mats, pots of paste, pieces of carpentry that were cast hither and thither on the floor or leaning against the walls. There was even, as heaven be my witness, a table with sewing machine on it. As a British woman I blushed to see correspondents from other countries passing through such a grievously displaced lumber room, and it was poor comfort to be able to assure them that in no other famous church or chapel that I know could such a sight be seen. Here the press ranged itself, disappointed at its quarters, but with its mind fixed on the funeral.

But as soon as the procession arrived there passed through the choir a large number of representatives of military and diplomatic forces who stood on the altar steps at the end of the choir, between the coffin and the press. No newspaper correspondent at the funeral of George VI saw any part of the service. They saw simply a number of official backs. There followed an awkward struggle. It is a newspaperman's duty to turn in copy to his paper, but he also has a sense of fitness of things. He may even have a notion that maybe he has a soul and that maybe there is a God. He may even be quite sure of it. This works out to be a profound disinclination to scramble about during a funeral service and to climb on chairs and on any projecting portions of sacred edifice. I was not pleased to find myself standing on the coping of several pew cushions that had been lying on the floor nearby. And even then all I could see was the Lord Chamberlain, Lord Clarendon.

This too was a symbol. The royal family would have been appalled by the thought that a number of people who wished them well had been forced into such an unseemly predicament. So too would Lord Clarendon who is an intensely dignified person who would wish all things to serve dignity.

But there were so many people in between them and the press that there had been an opportunity for things to go thus grievously wrong.

It was precisely to keep things going right in spite of the complexity of the machinery of modern state that the dead King had labored so hard. The day was, of course, not lost for us. We stood on our perches and listened to the words of the burial service which spoke of resurrection and life, of new heaven and new earth, and proclaimed that the Lord is our shepherd therefore can we lack nothing; and we were soothed by perfection of words.

There was no allusion to the dead man's kinghood interpolated in the funeral service till the Garter King of Arms read his titles and prayed for blessing on Queen Elizabeth II. No newspaper correspondent saw any member of the royal family during the service but it was not difficult to guess how the Queen was looking. At her wedding there came on her a look of marble strength as if she were resolving to do the hard thing, if it were right. We wouldn't have been able to see her face through her dark veil but it would have shown in the lines of her exquisite expressive figure. And to that the look that is on the face of any daughter whose father has just died of long and painful illness and you have the sum of what would have been under the veil.

After the service was over those of the press who did not have to catch early editions walked through the choir with the rest of the congregation and looked down on the King's coffin as it lay in the opening in the floor that leads down to the vault. His stammer and broadcasts became touching and infinitely significant. He must have known well when he gave the last one that he'd soon be just there under the royal standard with a wreath of white flowers upon him about to be lowered into darkness. But certainly from what he said, he had believed fully in resurrection and life in a new heaven and a new earth. As we left the choir some men were bending over the purple velvet stand and taking the crown and orb and scepture and putting them into cases. They wouldn't be used again till the coronation—the signing and sealing of a Queen's consecration to this life of overwork and constant effort to make a complex machine run as smoothly as if it were simple.

C.C.F. Delegate Claims Deception In Milk Price

TORONTO, Feb. 16 (CP).—The opening session of the Toronto and District C.C.F. convention on Friday night passed resolutions urging public ownership of Toronto's milk distribution facilities, extension of the franchise in municipal elections and a program of subsidized low-rental housing.

The sessions, attended by 50 delegates from Toronto and district, will continue today.

Delegates claimed that cheaper milk could be supplied without affecting the employment situation among drivers if the city took over facilities for sale and distribution.

Local Office "Cover Girl" Of Magazine

The American Lumberman and Building Producers Merchandiser, published in Chicago, displays on the front cover of its Jan. 28 issue, a photograph of the "selector sample board" in the new offices of Peterborough Lumber Company.

The accompanying story is given first place in the news articles, and is illustrated by nine other pictures of the office interior on Monaghan Road, including one of Gordon Munro, vice-president, and J. P. Sharp.

The selector sample board is a spacious and attractively designed mural display for the convenience of customers. It presents samples of Peterborough Lumber Co. stock, such as dressed lumber and framing, flooring siding, V-joint moldings and interior trim specialties.

The purpose is to bring yard and warehouse items into the store. By looking over the board, the customer can tell at once what items are available, what they look like, and what they cost.

Proves Worth

The magazine quotes Mr. Munro as follows :"The interest displayed by the public has proved beyond a doubt the advantage of such a board, particularly in the pricing of each article. Since we have logging operations, a planing mill, dry kiln, wholesale and retail trade, our stock of lumber and moldings is one of our major items.

"We have attempted to place samples on our board of each dimension one and two-inch framing stock and finish D4's, sidings, floorings and V-joint and every molding we carry, also specialties."

"Each sample is eight inches long and includes an end section. We have prices applicable to framing in merchantable spruce, hemlock and cull hemlock; in finish No. 1 and 2 common white pine and No. 3 common white pine; framing is priced on MBM basis and the finish and moldings on a lineal foot basis."

Overall length of the Sample Board is 21 feet. Its molding is two feet from the floor. Height of the board itself is 66 inches. The lettering above the board is cork on black hardboard. The prices of the items is in white lettering, and the plastic figures which adhere to strips of red vinylite, are changeable.

The prominence and spread of photographs, particularly the front cover, given to the Peterborough Lumber Co. display board by a magazine of the importance in the U.S. industry of the American Lumberman is highly pleasing to its management and staff.

Pocket Edition Montreal Sea Trip Makes Enjoyable Two-Week Vacation

A pocket edition sea trip of 1,800 miles to fit both the purse and the time limit of the average holidayer is the solution of an enterprising Montreal firm for those who think enviously of an ocean trip to Europe but who feel they cannot afford that much money or so many months.

Their answer for those who want to experience something of a sea voyage and visit something different from an ordinary holiday is an 11-day trip down the St. Lawrence. Not only is there the delightful boat trip, but stopovers have been arranged at many interesting points.

These stopovers, visited by taxi, include: Quebec City, Ste. Anne de Beaupre, Montmorency Falls, Anticosti Island, Gaspe, Perce, Bonaventure Island, Prince Edward Island, Cabot Trail in Cape Breton and the mighty Saguenay River.

One of the things which proves attractive to a number of people is the fact that the passenger list is limited to 50 people and all cabins are outside. There is a greater scope for social activity and friendship aboard a smaller boat that many people prefer.

Carefully Planned

This St. Lawrence River cruise has been carefully planned to feature Eastern Canada's most interesting points. The boat leaves Montreal at 6 pm and heads for Quebec City where a brief stopover is made on the outgoing voyage.

At Anticosti Island, the first stop is at Jupiter River where all the fishing enthusiasts are dropped for a few days to try their luck at salmon. The rest go on to Port Menier where they have a chance to experience the bustle of a major pulpwood operation. An interesting shore trip and picnic is arranged here.

An 85-mile round trip can be had at Gaspe with a motor drive to Perce, and weather permitting, a visit to Bonaventure Island to see the thousands of birds who make their home on its grim-looking cliff. Lunch is served at one of the Gaspe hotels.

Passengers go ashore again at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island and some of the highlights include: a city drive, a visit to the lieutenant - governor's residence and gardens, a drive to Cavendish Beach for dinner and time allowed for surf and sun bathing.

Rugged Grandeur

Cape Breton offers the opportunity of travelling over part of the beautiful Cabot Trail, starting out from Cheticamp. A picnic lunch is served while travellers enjoy the rugged scenery in this beautiful section of Nova Scotia.

On the return trip, after picking up the fishermen from Anticosti, the boat proceeds leisurely up the lovely Saguenay River. On reaching the famous Capes—Eternite and Trinite—the boat turns back and proceeds to Quebec. After an early dinner there, there is an opportunity to go by taxi to Ste. Anne de Beaupre and Montmorency. Passengers arrive back in Montreal at 3 pm on their eleventh day, thus giving them time for a stopover or making connections home.

Sailings in July are always heavily booked and prospective passengers should make their reservations several months in advance. Information may be obtained from Harvey Strub or Eldon Purvis at TEM Travel Agency, George St.

The rooms on the ship are not large, but quite comfortable. A number of the larger rooms are equipped with bath and toilet.

This is a delightful way to see one of the most beautiful and interesting sections of Canada.

MUCH ADO ABOUT GARBAGE—Mrs. Hildegarde Walgraeve, who was jailed overnight in Detroit for failure to have a garbage can, charged the police with using "Gestapo style" methods. The police later apologized to her. Young Donald Walgraeve, 10, was held in Juvenile Detention Home for three hours when his mother was whisked off.

Plumbing Jobs Nearly All Complete In 1951

Fewer plumbing jobs than in recent years remained unfinished at Dec. 31, 1951, but apparently there is not much idle time in the local trade.

In his annual report as plumbing inspector, A. G. Metheral recalls that at the end of 1950 the number of unfinished jobs was 525; permits issued during 1951 were 583; total 1,108; completed during the year 736, leaving 372 unfinished at the turn into 1952.

Connections to the city sewer 360. New buildings, additions, etc. included 228 dwellings; three duplexes, two churches, three garages and service stations, etc.

Dwellings where formerly there were no conveniences 72; dwellings where cesspools were removed 11; dwellings where septic tanks were done away with 29.

Remodelling

Remodelling for apartments and duplexes 68. Of that number 49 were dwellings converted into 98 apartments; two were dwellings which became eight apartments.

Here's another significent item for housing investigators: housekeeping flat by addition of sinks, 15.

So the long list continues. There is one item showing that 37 tile drains were replaced by iron.

Permits issued by the city for authority to install septic tanks . . . 12. They were 6 new houses, three old houses, two service station and one factory. (Seventeen septic tanks were cancelled as a sewer was laid.)

"Atomic Energy of Canada, Ltd."

Never since the reign of the first Elizabeth has mankind unfolded so many marvels as in the last fifty years, and it may be that these are only the beginning of an era, to culminate during the reign of Elizabeth the Second. Crowding close upon astonishing inductions and deductions of mathematicians and scientists, experiments have yielded their practical results for the use of millions of men: telephones, movies, sound reproduction, aeroplanes, automobiles, new materials (nylon, plastics), new foods and methods of preserving and conserving them, oil for heat and energy, electricity as a ubiquitous servant, radium, X-ray, miraculous unguents and antibodies for the treatment and cure of disease, radio, radar, jet-propulsion, and lastly, atomic weapons. If this is the atomic age, its revelation has just begun, and its greatest marvels are yet to come.

* * *

This week a new Canadian company was incorporated: Atomic Energy of Canada, Limited. It is a Crown company with responsibility for directing the Chalk River atomic energy plants and experimentation, and to develop whatever may be produced by them. So vast and important will the work of the company be that Dr. C. J. Mackenzie has been relieved of his position as President of the National Research Council to become head of the new Crown corporation. Dr. Mackenzie said, when his new position was announced, that industrial uses of atomic power are much closer than he had previously thought possible, and may be as near as ten or twenty years. A new $30,000,000 heavy-water reactor ("atom splitter") is being designed and built. It and other developments in other atomic energy centres throughout the world, are opening a "fluid" field for amazing industrial and economic applications.

* * *

The internal combustion engine was first developed as a means of producing steam, then a principal motive source. Automobiles and highways were unthought of. Undreamt of results may also come from the new practical source of power, the atom. The face and nature of the world, and the habits of people on it, may change more quickly and violently in the atomic age (since atomic energy is so powerful) than the world changed in the gasoline age or in any other era since Elizabeth I.

Two Ages Of Intolerance

Immediately following the Great War the United States indulged in an orgy of Red-scare similar to the witch-hunt, loyalty oaths and Red-baiting of the last four years. In 1920 college graduates were calling for the dismissal of professors suspected of radicalism; school-teachers were being made to sign oaths of allegiance; businessmen with unorthodox political or economic notions were learning to keep quiet if they wanted to hold their jobs. Hysteria had reached its height. Intolerance became an American virtue. And what of today?

"America is no longer a free country, in the old sense; and liberty is, increasingly, a mere rhetorical figure . . . No thinking citizen, I venture to say, can express in freedom more than a part of his honest convictions." This statement, trenchantly true today, was made by a writer in Harper's Magazine thirty years ago, in 1922. The writer "ventured to say". The Harper office and her own house were inundated with letters denouncing her violently as subversive and a Bolshevist.

As after the last war, so after the Great War of 1914-1918, the American business man on the home front came out of the conflict with his fighting blood up, ready to lick the next thing that stood in his way. There was a strength and solidarity among them born of their successful industrial war effort and the menace of the Russian Revolution, which some thought, their ears cocked for bombs, was imminent in the United States. Millions of otherwise reasonable citizens thought that a Red revolution might begin next month or next week, and they were less concerned with making the world safe for democracy than with making America safe for themselves.

There was some excuse for panic. The Russian Revolution had been bloody and inflammatory. Bombs were exploding in Boston, Washington and New York offices of officials of business and state. So taut were people that the Vice-President of the United States, who had a politically-sensitive ear, said that it was a dangerous sign of radicalism in women's colleges that girls at Radcliffe College (a wealthy, conservative and respectable women's college of high standing) had supported the affirmative in a debate on the subject: "Resolved, that the recognition of labour unions by employers is essential to successful collective bargaining."

Canada managed to resist the panic of 1919-1922 in the way it has side-stepped the witch-hunt of 1949-1952, but even so, super-patriotism was in the air, as it is now. Yesterday we heard a person in this city—a university graduate—describe the Canadian political scene as a three-party affair: Conservative, Liberal and Communist. It was useless to point out that the C.C.F. was less to the Left than the British Labour Government.

Thirty years ago in the United States, a Mr. Whitney of the American Defence Society said that Norma Talmadge, Charlie Chaplin and Will Rogers were in "Communist files." Mr. Whitney was blood-brother to the notorious Senator McCarthy of our day. As now, so in the early twenties, there was hardly a liberal organization in the United States, at municipal, state or national level, which did not fall under suspicion. And radicals who wanted to live and not be deported (by A. Mitchell Palmer, Attorney-General) kept quiet. Too many of their kind were being rounded up on the cry S.O.S.—ship or shoot.

An American historian of the period, F. L. Allen, has written of the use to which special interests turned and exaggerated the Red menace.

> "For the professional super-patriots (and assorted special propagandists disguised as super-patriots) had only begun to fight. Innumerable patriotic societies had sprung up, each with its executive secretary, and executive secretaries must live, and therefore must conjure up new and even greater menaces. Innumerable other gentlemen now discovered that they could defeat whatever they wanted to defeat by tarring it conspicuously with the Bolshevist brush. Big-navy men, believers in compulsory military service, drys, anti-cigarette campaigners, anti-evolution, Fundamentalists, defenders of the moral order, book censors, Jew-haters, Negro-haters, landlords, manufacturers, utility executives, upholders of every sort of cause, good, bad and indifferent, all wrapped themselves in Old Glory and the mantle of the Founding Fathers and allied their apponents with Lenin."

Today the alignment has changed slightly: Stalin is now the bogey-man. International communism has been substituted for the International Workers of the World; and Stalinism for Bolshevism.

We point to the parallel of thirty years ago to put the Big Red Scare of the last four years in perspective. Such ages of intolerance wane when reason returns to dominate fear and super-patriotism, and when the Courts act to preserve personal freedom for which, in the United States, the constitution was framed.

An Unkingly Discourtesy

Royalty is expected to be larger in its magnanimity and courtesy than the commonalty. King Badouin's stature is therefore reduced, in the eyes of other peoples if not among the Belgians, because he refused to attend the funeral service of the King. He is a young man, but nevertheless King of the Belgians. Even though his own inclination was against the personal tribute of his presence at yesterday's obsequies (the British have not looked with favour on his father, former King Leopold since his 1940 surrender to the Germans), Badouin might regally have bowed to his Ministers' advice and attended the funeral. As King of a people whom Britain and the British throne have cherished and protected for a hundred years, Badouin's absence was conspicuously ungracious.

The British people, both in the United Kingdom and in the Commonwealth, will not soon forget this discourtesy on their day of national mourning.

The Korean Cap

A recent photograph of Canadian troops on parade in Korea showed men in one platoon only wearing four different kinds of caps. How many other varieties were exhibited in the following platoons we can only guess. On view in the one rank were: 1. a tank corps beret, 2. a balmoral, 3. the standard infantry beret of the last war, 4. the new American-Chinese military cap which looks like a railway engineer's work cap at best; at worst, the cap of a penitentiary inmate on an outdoor stone-breaking job.

The Korean cap may be comfortable and serviceable, but in our eyes (which have viewed the thing only in photographs) it has neither style nor military bearing. The only thing military about it is that it resembles the head-gear worn by Chinese, Russian and assorted other soldiers. The Korean cap does not top our notion of a smart, brisk and well-dressed Canadian soldier. The Canadian Korean Brigade is serving in a United Nations army and cause. Perhaps the Korean cap is an international gesture—Chinese coolie soldier cum French gendarme. It is now the sign of an American soldier in the Orient, but it in no way looks Canadian.

A scientist says that two ounces of whiskey, taken 20 minutes before an atom bomb drops, greatly increases the chance of survival after irradiation. This is going to lead to a lot of precautionary medication.

BIBLIOMANIA

The Knight From Nowhere

HENRY IRVING, by Laurence Irving (Faber & Faber).

WHY ANOTHER LIFE OF IRVING? Why a book of more than 700 pages about a man who worked in an art which is confessedly the most fleeting of all? Frequenters of second-hand bookshops are accustomed to seeing the two-volume works on Irving by Bram Stoker (his man of business) and Austin Brereton (his secretary) offered at very low prices; perhaps they have peeped inside and have been put off by the pomposity of the former and the dreariness of the latter. Does not Gordon Craig's admirably vivid book say enough about Irving? The autnor of the new work, Laurence Irving, provides answers to all questions and still all doubts. He has written what is perhaps the best biography of an actor ever to appear in English, and a biography of a great man which people only mildly interested in the theatre will be able to read with keen enjoyment.

* * *

THIS IS A notable achievement, for the standard of theatrical reminiscence and biography is low, and books about actors are in too many cases readable only by enthusiasts in the realm of theatre history, who are prepared to plough through a mass of ill-written nonsense in the hope of finding an illuminating passage here and there. Mr. Laurence Irving begins with the advantage of being his subject's grandson, with a fund of family reminiscence and inside information to call upon. He is himself a man of the theatre, capable of making professional judgements upon his grandfather's achievement; yet, as an artist and designer, he is not troubled by that woolliness of thought which afflicts so many actors when they take up the pen. He has a large store of new documentary evidence about Irving. He is objective, but he is not cold. As a writer, he is compact and clear, but he knows the value of anecdote and significant detail in illuminating character.

And—of great importance to a man writing a biography of a member of his family—he appears to have no scores to settle and no axes to grind. Finally, he writes of Irving 47 years after Irving's death, when the principals in his story are dead and the truth can be told about them.

* * *

OF THOSE WHO receive even-handed justice in this book the most important is, of course, Irving's wife; it was likely enough that a man as innocent and socially unskilled as Irving was, even at the age of 31, should make a bad marriage; perhaps it was lucky that it was bad enough to go on the rocks, for Irving married and domestically happy would not have been the man he at last became. It may somewhat cruelly be said that a measure of loneliness was necessary to the making of his character. Canadian readers familiar with the reminiscences of the late Hector Charlesworth may recall his account of a meeting, long after Irving's death, with his widow, who was as rancorous then as ever she was in her haughty youth. It was this woman who, on the night when Irving knew his foot was at last on the ladder to success of the highest kind in his profession, said to him, "Are you going on making a fool of yourself like this all your life?" Irving stopped the carriage in which they were riding, got out, and never looked upon his wife's face again. From that time she was an item in his growing list of expenses—nothing more.

* * *

INEVITABLY Laurence Irving has to deal with the wrangle between his grandfather and Bernard Shaw. The Shaw side of the story has been told by that voluble man in many places, and rehearsed in full in the Shaw-Terry Correspondence. Irving was no match for Shaw, and made the considerable mistake of thinking Shaw inconsiderable. But as we read the details once again we cannot escape a feeling that Shaw's behaviour was somehow shabby; he did not understand the sort of thing that Irving stood for, but he understood that Irving was, in his way, a very great man. Shaw's sneers and denigration of Irving in his theatre criticisms are remarkable examples of criticism at its most brilliant, and also at its most wanton, destructive, self-important, disingenuous and unfair. Shaw's cry was that he wanted to clear the stage for Ibsen, and for himself; he has made Ibsen a standby of the Repertory Theatres, and himself the greatest and most popular playwright of the past three hundred years. Perhaps, in the eye of history, that will excuse the knifing and bludgeoning he did on his way to the top.

* * *

IRVING CREATED a great legend, and legends may be works of art. He made immense improvements in the status of actors and the management of theatres; he brought genius to the task of putting a play on the stage; he gave more complete texts of Shakespeare than any actor until his time, and he may be said to have restored "The Merchant of Venice" and "Richard III" to the stage. He did his utmost for the drama of his own day by presenting two plays by Tennyson. He acted in some plays which read like trash, but we know that as he presented them they were simply raw material for a magical transformation of his own. But it is not upon these achievements that his reputation rests alone; it was in what he made of himself, and the effect which he was able to create in the minds and spirits of those who saw him, that his undisputed greatness lay.

* * *

IRVING WAS BORN of humble parents, received little education, and to his dying day bore some traces, discernible to the knowing, of a simple and trusting countryman. From this material he created a personality which was capable in the highest degree of suggesting poetic melancholy, the abysses of terror and remorse, the subtlest villainy, the highest religious dedication, wild humour and the most tender and exalted chivalry. It used sometimes to be said that the stage was a great school for manners: Irving made it a great school for emotional experience.

Playgoers who saw him often were conscious that never again would they live in quite the same world; they had received a genuine extension of emotional experience. To be able to do this is to be capable of creation on a great and little understood plane. There are still old playgoers who, when they speak of Irving, show in their faces a dignity which is a reflection of his dignity, and a largeness of spirit toward which he led the way. If that is not being a real actor, let us hear some better clue by which greatness in that exacting art may be known.

* * *

THIS COLUMN MAKES a custom of closing with a quotation—something for the reader to chew on if he does not like what he has found above. What better, this week, than this comment upon Irving by the subtle and by no means easily impressed observer, Sir Max Beerbohm: "As an actor, and as a manager, he had his faults; and these faults were obvious. But as a personality he was flawless—armed at all points in an impenetrable and darkly gleaming armour of his own design. 'The Knight from Nowhere' was the title of a little book of Pre-Raphaelite poems that I once read. I always thought of Irving as the Knight from Nowhere."

Letters To The Editor

APPRECIATES VIEW ON TREES

Sir: It was gratifying to read your editorial, which appeared Monday, January 21, 1952, regarding the proposal of a clear cutting by-law in Peterborough county.

The care and space you gave to such an important matter was more than appreciated, especially to the members of Zone 5 of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters Inc., who under the chairmanship of Mr. Hugh Plowman, have just prior to this, endorsed Mr. Plowman's plan to plant 10 million trees in our part of Southern Ontario in the next ten years.

We also went on record by writing a letter to Warden R. Stewart, stressing the importance of such a by-law to our future welfare, at the time this matter came up in council.

Yours sincerely,
CAMPBELL ROWATT
Secretary-Treasurer

QUESTIONS ON THE HOSPITAL

Sir: I see by our hospital report the deficit for 1951 is $40,033.00 and indigent patients is the cause. The report for indigent patients for period Jan. to June 30th, as reported by Ald. H. Rehill was only $6,877.50. Why is it for period July to Dec: $40,033.00 less $6,877.50 = $33,161.50 nearly 5 times as much?

I also notice that student nurses cost hospital nearly $300.00 each and in order to reduce some of this cost, Mr. E. H. Northey, the reeve of Lakefield suggests that student nurses be paid nothing while training. What student nurses get while training they earn every cent of it. They earn it a lot harder than a whole lot others up there earn theirs at the hospital. The increase in rates put into effect last March alone on a 65 per cent capacity should show an increase of revenue of around $75,000.00 last year over regular revenue.

Some months it was stated that amount to be paid by home owners was $1,050,000.00 over a period of 20 years.

In report a few days ago I notice it has gone up now to $1,120,000.00, an increase of $70,000.00, what caused it?

The city received $70,000.00 for old hospital. This was to be applied to new hospital. So far the tax payers have had no report what was done with it.

The actual deficit was $101,416.00 plus $6,781.50 plus $40,033.00, total $143,320.50 or $400.00 a day. That is the amount we pay on our taxes.

I see our city council may be asked for $197,000.00 to cover a expected deficit for 1952 or an increase of another $140.00 a day. The plea for big staff is efficiency. From what I have been told by some patients and what I have seen myself there is room for a lot more efficiency.

RUSSIA'S DEFEAT FORETOLD IN REVELATIONS

Sir: We do not hear much today about that great General MacArthur — but without a doubt he was right. Bomb Manchuria and any other vital parts of Communist China—use the atom and let them know we mean business. How long are these so-called peace talks to fool us? Armistice nothing — the Communists don't want an armistice. Only on their own terms. They are even now dictating to the U.N. which they want and what they do not want. The Korean war would now be over if MacArthur strategy had been carried out. Why not give him credit for it? After MacArthur was fired some of the products of his brain were tried out with good results.

It's the same in our every day life. Someone with a brain suggests something to the betterment of all concerned—but he or she is told in a cold way "to mind their own business". Someone must know it all—and don't appreciate suggestions they have not thought of themselves. That's MacArthur's treatment—but while ignored—mothers are losing their sons every day in Korea. Yes, I say, bomb Manchuria and other hot spots with the atom and stop the ridiculous war. While Russia is saving her skin—using her satellites to do the fighting. Part of this war in Korea is the yellow peril we have heard so much about. It's the beginning of World War III—don't fool yourself about that.

Russia has won all points so far for the last several years through the veto—but in Revelations it says she "The Devil" will be defeated in 1952 or 1953. Japan was a formidable foe until the atom was used. Then, and only then, was she defeated and ready to sign an unconditional surrender—and so will Russia and Communist China. It may save a war in Europe later on, for such is in the offing. Just imagine those little tikes looking up to the U.S.A. tall fellows and telling them what to do or else. Yes, MacArthur was right and the Whitehouse knows now for sure.

Yours,
H. GILBERT.

THE CAPTIVE AUDIENCE

Sir: In the interest of freedom I would like to publicly protest a deplorable medium of advertising being forced upon the public for some time now.

I would like to inform anyone who has not found out already that one of our newer motion picture theatres, not content with the traditional "box-office" revenues, is endeavouring to start a new precedent that infringes on the rights of movie-goers by running one (and more often two) "short" films advertising services and merchandise which have nothing to do with the theatre.

Unlike radio or television which must derive revenue from paid commercials, the theatre is supported by the general public seeking entertainment and relaxation. This general public does not pay to see advertising! Loud murmurs in the audience show the resentment felt by all.

Should the theatre in question discontinue its forced advertising program, I would be very glad to recommend it to anyone.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Thou art the Lord the God, who didst choose Abram, and broughtest him forth out of Ur of the Chaldees, and gavest him the name of Abraham. And didst see the affliction of our fathers in Egypt, and heardest their cry by the Red Sea.... And thou didst divide the sea before them, so that they went through the midst of the sea on the dry land; and their persecutors thou threwest into the deeps, as a stone into the mighty waters. Moreover thou leddest them in the day by a cloudy pillar; and in the night by a pillar of fire, to give them light in the way wherein they should go. (Neh. 9: 7, 9, 11, 12.)

* * *

I will extol thee, O Lord; for thou hast lifted me up, and hast not made my foes to rejoice over me... O Lord, thou hast brought up my soul from the grave: thou hast kept me alive, that I should not go down to the pit. (Ps. 30: 1, 3.)

* * *

All thy works shall praise thee, O Lord; and thy saints shall bless thee....

Thy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and thy dominion endureth throughout all generations. (Ps. 145: 10, 13.)

Bird Birth Control

(Windsor Star)

Evidence suggests modern penguins tend to raise only one young one, regardless of the number of eggs laid. Some lady penguins lay only two eggs and discard one. Others hatch two eggs but concentrate on rearing only one chick. And many of the eggs are infertile in any case.

It apparently isn't due to any lack of love between penguin mates. They have an interesting and romantic mutual courtship. Perhaps it's intended to keep the penguin population from overflowing the ice caps and eating itself out of house and home.

Nature, of course, has its own system of regulating the number of births among birds and beasts, so that offsprings will only be hatched or born at established intervals. Usually these are reasonably long intervals, except in the case of rabbits, guinea pigs, etc.

A·F·I·E·L·D with NICK NICKELS

Mom may devour her new seed catalogues these cold winter evenings. I can dream, too. It's the season for advance copies of bright brochures of fishing equipment manufacturers.

Heddon's of Dowagiac, Mich., is the best in the mails, so far, and not something to be thrown away on street corners; it costs a quarter and worth it. A fine insert picture of a rainbow trout for framing, all kinds of dope on fresh and salt water fish and fishing, facts and pictures galore.

I lent my copy to self-styled champion fisherman Babe Fontaine who has shown it to all and sundry—his customers say it is the only piece of courtesy they have received from him all winter. And everyone wants to buy a copy.

Not many resort operators mail me new folders but a new one from Mr. and Mrs. Frank Seymour of Pine Cliff Lodge in the Combermere country, is tops. According to Frank and his high-class tourist lure book his district is a real fish factory and his lodge has diversified fun for all.

There's a devilish device on my desk called a spike file on which I hang memos for future reference. Everyone in the editorial room adds squibs to it for my digestion until it now looks like a small Christmas tree. And a frown deepens each day on the editor's face as he passes the mess.

I can take a hint. Time to houseclean.

My Blue Tick hound that I found on the trail last fall after the deer hunt, is useless. He's so busy scratching that he can't even run rabbits for more than three minutes at a time. He's got ticks, but bad. Also pinworms.

Thought perhaps you could save me a few bucks if you could worm (ha! ha!) the information for a cure, or some free samples, from some of your veterinary friends and pass it along to me. If you have ever been in a position like my hound you will know how urgent it is. And with meat so high, I just gotta get this pooch hunting.

Fishing contest editor:

Just heard that your newspaper runs a fishing contest each year. Sorry I didn't enter last summer for I caught two dandy muskies ten and 12 inches respectively, at Rice Lake. Took them home and had them mounted and they are now on the east and west walls of my garage. Have had to park my car outside all winter because there isn't room for everything inside. Oh, I forgot to tell you; these fish measured ten and 12 inches BETWEEN THE EYES. Enclosed snapshot of my garage will prove it. Those black things sticking out of the open doors are the tails.

IT is easy to talk of sitting at home contented, when others are seeing or making shows. Camera Club, Aged 9, Stages Big Exhibit

The nine-year-old Peterborough Camera Club opens its annual showing of photographic art today at the Public Library. The show runs until March 8 and contains some 150 high-class prints from members, guests and from Hamilton and Oshawa clubs. Three member photos shown on this page were chosen as a cross section of the large collection being displayed and throughout the year this newspaper plans to use prints from time to time, photos of special district interest.

The camera club has had to struggle to exist during its short span. It was started originally by employees of the Genelco-C.G.E. in 1944 by Sidney Bond. The eight to ten members met in the company staff house until it closed that year and it was decided to open the membership to outsiders. They met at the Y.M.C.A., but, since lights were put out at 10 p.m., it was unsatisfactory for their darkroom work. The club moved again, this time to a room in the rear of Welch's barber shop on Hunter St.; they found the accommodation better there but still unsatisfactory for their requirements.

Own Club Rooms

In 1946 they found two large rooms upstairs at 416½ George St., and have been there ever since. Members have put a lot of time in fixing the rooms to accommodate a darkroom, display lobby and photo studio-meeting room. The club is now affiliated with the Photographic Society of America and exchanges print exhibits with various centres; Port Colborne and Madison, Wisc., are among some of the exchange clubs on their list. The intricacies of colour photography are of greatest interest to some members and appealing to all of them.

In looking over their work since the club's inception, they are now able to make comparisons and evaluate its quality; "Our work, both black and white and in colour, is just as good as that of any other club," members say staunchly.

Range of Subjects

The range of the photographic subjects in the exhibition is varied as the three on this page today indicate—Quebec scenes done by outdoor camera men; frost on the window pane; pieces of fantasy like the frightened animal in the woods of pencils. Peterborough Camera Club members naturally concentrate on local subjects, things near at hand, like the Trent Valley Canal, the pagoda at Jackson Jark and other scenically attractive subjects.

In the exhibition are several remarkable night photographs: George Street with a fantasy of lights; and the glimmer across Little Lake from Crescent street.

The changing moods of the year are represented — the fall of leaves, winter snow piled high on a bird cage; the ice breaking up at the lake shore; and summer heat vistas.

Camera Club members like the veteran enthusiast and expert E. W. Glover make a special hobby of developing and printing, getting unusual and extraordinarily effective interpretations through the use they make of developing techniques and the variety of papers on which they print their photographs. But the art of photography is a unified process, from the technique of camera use through to the final retouching of the print.

To be able to take a good picture is only half the story; a photographer must be able to translate what his camera lense saw into light and shade on photographic paper. So he must be both an artist and a craftsman.

The exhibition at the Public Library shows that many of the entrants have both the eye of an artist and the skill of a craftsman.

All-American Roses Suit Tastes, Purposes

By HENRY PREE (NEA)

Rose lovers may roughly be divided into two groups; those who are satisfied with any varieties which provide a profusion of bloom for cutting, and those who must have nothing but the best. One thinks in terms of lavish satisfaction, while the other must have perfection of bloom as their reward.

Today, thanks to Ray Hastings and his All-America Rose Selections committee both these groups can safely choose from the list of roses which have earned places in the All-America honor roll. These roses are designated on labels and in the catalogues with the letters AARS.

It is estimated that there are some 5,000 varieties available to the rose buying public. But the problem of selecting outstanding roses that will grow anywhere has been simplified through the efforts of an organization comprising the major rose growers.

The difficulties facing the amateur gardener—and professionals, too—have been recognized for many years. In 1938 the men who develop and raise new rose varieties formed an organization known as All-America Rose Selections.

They established a series of trial gardens, appointed judges and evolved a uniform point system of scoring. Requirements for judges are as rigid as those for the competing varieties which are entered in the trials under code numbers.

The apricot-pink Helen Traubel rose is a popular All-America selection for 1952.

At the outset the founders of All-America Rose Selections realized that if their recommendations were to mean anything, testing would have to be impartial and winning roses would have to be truly superlative plants.

Because the initial requirement was that winners should prove themselves capable of thriving anywhere in the United States, the 20 trial gardens are located in all section of the country.

Winners of All-American Rose awards proved to be predominant favorites among members of the American Rose Society according to their last annual rose poll.

First and second of the "best three roses for exhibition purposes" were All-American winners. Peace was the number one choice and Charlotte Armstrong second.

Only four floribunda roses have won the coveted award of All-America Rose Selections yet the three of them placed first, second and third in the floribunda class. They were in order of preference, Fashion, Florodora and World's Fair.

The remaining All-American floribunda is Vogue which is being introduced this season and has not yet been seen in bloom by the general public.

Six of the 10 hybrid teas voted "best for garden use" were All-American roses, Peace, Charlotte Armstrong, Rubaiyat, Tallyho, Nocturne and Sutter's Gold.

Gardening Questions

Q—When is the best time to transplant forsythia shrubs? D. Y.

A—Late spring, just after they have finished blooming or in late autumn before the soil freezes. However, Forsythia may be transplanted before bloom if care is taken not to distrub the root system.

✧ ✧ ✧

Q—We have dwarf apples and pears and wonder why nurseries do not offer dwarf peach trees?

A—Because the dwarfing of fruit trees is still in the experimental stage, nurserymen stock up only on those fruits which have proven satisfactory. Peaches are being worked on the dwarf flowering cherry, prunus besseyi, but so far only fair results have been obtained.

✧ ✧ ✧

Q—Our geraniums have made excellent growth indoors this winter. When shall we root cuttings for next summer's bloom?—D. S.

A—Geranium cuttings of thrifty plants may be taken now and rooted in sand kept constantly moist. Pot in loamy garden soil when root growth is an inch or so long. Be sure to keep in a sunny window and water only enough to keep the soil from drying out. Pinch off any flower buds which might appear.

Information appears to stew out of me naturally, like the precious ottar of roses out of the otter.

GIFTS TO MAN

Before the beginning of years,
There came to the making of man
Time, with a gift of tears;
Grief, with a glass that ran;
Pleasure, with pain for leaven;
Summer, with flowers that fell;
Remembrance fallen from Heaven,
And madness risen from Hell;
Strength without hands to smite;
Love that endures for a breath;
Night, the shadow of light.
And life, the shadow of death.

DOMINION CHAMPIONSHIP-BOUND—Fo the first time in 30 years Peterborough will be represented in the Dominion curing championship play this year. On Thursday Dr. Ralph Clark's rink skipped into the Ontario final and won 12-7 from J. G. W. Sand's Kingston quartet. The Peterborough rink won all their games by large scores. The rink, (Above), Burritt Harrison, Dr. Clark, Vic Brown and Ken Bissett, hold the Ontario trophy.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

New Foursome A Winner In MacDonald?

Three members of the curling rink from Peterborough which won the British Consols competition for Ontario this week to go into the Macdonald Brier playoffs for Canadian honors next month in Winnipeg were provincial semi-finalists three years ago.

But they had a different skip then, Ray Best. Burt Harrison was lead at that time, Ken Bissett second and Vic Brown vice-skip.

This trio triumphed on Thursday in Toronto with Dr. Ralph Clark skipping the rink. Dr. Clark also had taken a crack at the British Consols before.

The Tankard has proven the elusive bauble down through the years for the Peterborough Curling Club. Not since the early 1920s has a Peterborough rink got as far as the finals, and then it lost out. No local rink has ever won the Tankard, emblematic of the Ontario Curling Association championship, though a Peterborough quartet has been a runner-up. This rink skipped by the veteran Ray Best, had Maurice Cruthers, Alec Archibald and William Campbell on it.

COACHING THE COACH—Emile Allais, coach of Canada's 1948 skiing team and now training American women skiers for the Olympics takes a lesson in knitting from Mrs. Rhoda Wurtele Eaves of Montreal, Canada's big hope in the skiing. Mrs. Gretchen Fraser of Tacoma, Wash., left, manager of the U.S. women's team, and Andrea Mead Lawrence of Rutland Vt., just kibitz. This picture was taken at Norefjell, 130 miles northwest of Oslo, where the women's giant slalom and downhill events are being held. Thursday Mrs. Lawrence won the giant slalom event to give the United States the first gold medal of the 1952 Winter Games. Mrs. Eaves made the best showing of four Canadian girls entered, placing ninth in a field of 45.

Plans for a new 1,200 seat grandstand with dressing rooms at Victoria Park baseball field in Kitchener were approved last night by the Kitchener Parks Board. The board will send a recommendation to city council that work be started at once on the wooden structure.

The stand, which will not be roofed for the present, will cost in the neighborhood of $30,000. It is expected that the structure will be completed in time for the opening of the Intercounty Senior Baseball League season in mid-May.

The stand, to be built in three sections, will be portable. New bleachers to be built in right field will increase the park's seating capacity to well above 5,000.

McMaster University Marauders last night defeated Rochester Institute of Technology 75-63 in an exhibition basketball game in Hamilton. Max Wooley of St. Catharines led the scoring for McMaster with 15 points and the long distance shooting of Wes Westphalen of Rochester brought in 11 points.

As long as the athletes are around to provide an interesting element of uncertainty, there can't be a completely mechanized track meet. But they'll come as close as possible tonight at the 64th National A.A.U. indoor championships at Madison Square Garden in New York.

Along with such devices as the photo timer and the electric "elevator," to replace the pole vault cross bar, the controversial Ogden starting gate will be used for the sprint and hurdle races.

Gene Bearden lost no time signing a contract with the St. Louis Browns following his trade to them by the Detroit Tigers. The lefthanded tosser, who was the rookie of the year with the 1948 world champion Cleveland Indians, visited the Brownie office in St. Louis Thursday.

Larry Macphail, an old hand at whipping up a storm, started another big blow yesterday in Baltimore by proposing the merger of Bowie and Pimlico race tracks. As a prospective buyer of Bowie he told newspapermen that "racing in Maryland has been deteriorating under the strain of competition."

Marc Hodler, Swiss president of the International Ski Federation, said yesterday in Norefjell that the combined Alpine event was dropped from the Olympic ski program to provide a fairer test to skiers of all countries. In previous Olympics the combined championship was awarded to the skier with the best combined showing in two races—the downhill and the slalom.

Hodler said: "We decided to make three independent races — slalom, giant slalom and downhill —so each racer could choose the event for which he was best prepared."

The visitors enjoyed a 5-4 lead early in the second period but faded as the homesters tallied three times before the second period closed and once in the final session.

Moe Jones with two goals and an assist and playing coach Lou Schmidt with a pair of goals paced the winning Jeyellers while Bill Huard topped Hastings with two goals.

Semi-final matches in all divisions will be run off today and finals will be played Sunday.

Czech Skier, 32, Now B.C. Mechanic

PRINCE RUPERT, B. C., (CP) —John Skaladney, 32-year-old former Olympic ski-jumping champion who piloted a plane with 20 fellow Czech refugees from behind the iron curtain, now is living in Prince Rupert and plans to become a Canadian citizen.

A wartime pilot in Czechoslovakia, Skaladney is also a two-mile winner in the Olympics and holds numerous certificates of skiing prowess.

Two months ago his wife and two children joined him in Prince Rupert where he is employed as a mechanic.

He hit the headlines in May, 1948, when he flew a plane with 20 refugees aboard to the German western zone.

Skaladney was born and raised in a mountain resort and began skiing at the age of five. At 15 he entered the 1935 Olympics at St. Moritz and took second place in junior jumping, cross-country and downhill races.

He captured first prize in the 1948 St. Moritz Olympics with an 84-metre jump.

He will train Prince Rupert skiers and plans to enter the northern B. C. ski championships.

"I am still interested in flying," he said, "and as soon as I learn the English language well enough I'll apply for a commercial pilot's licence."

Triple Score Of 834 Leads Bowling League

Bert McCarroll of the Madill and Post quartet led the City Bowling League this week with a triple of 834. At the same time the team rolled to the high game of 1,299 and seemed headed for the 1951-52 championship with only a few weeks left in the schedule.

The McGillis Hotel swept the high pinnage honors with 3,498 while George Phillips won the single game total with 351.

Madill-Post took six points from the DeLaval team while wins were scored by Clapper's Sports, Bonds, Bassel's, and Simcoes. Other good scores were rolled by Bill Stanbury, 315, Claude Cornwall 307, Rod Suddards 307, Hank Gordon 305.

Lord Athol Layton and Whipper Bill Watson, two feudin' mat enemies for the past year, tangle in the main pro grapple bout next Tuesday night in the Brock Arena. The British Empire champ has had plenty of trouble in previous meetings with the judo-slashing Layton, and they'll stage a hot scrap here. Semi-final has huge Hans Hermann, the hated German heavyweight, in against speedy Warren Bockwinkle. "Hermann the Vermin," Toronto scribes have been calling him, as he really arouses the fans' ire in a hurry. Chief Suni War Cloud opens the show in the prelim against Stan Mayslack. Sounds like a right lively wrestling card.

Kingston comes here Monday night to do senior "B" puck battle with the Eagles. Petes presently hold top spot in the group with 28 points, Eagles are next with 25, Belleville having 24 and Kingston 21. A win for the K's would climb 'em up fast in the standing and stymie the rolling Eagles for the time being, whereas a win for Eagles would jump them right up to within half a game of first place. So, don't think they won't be giving it all they have. Ditto with Kingston. All of which adds up to a tasty hockey morsel for fans to start off the week. Schedule winds up in another two weeks, so don't pass up any of these remaining ice battles.

Those N.H.L. Oldtimers

A record hockey crowd is expected to bulge the sides of Civic Arena tonight for the N.H.L. Oldtimers' charity exhibition. Proceeds for crippled children. Starts at eight with a short bantam exhibition, the veteran pros taking the ice for their game at 8.30. Also some football forward passing on ice by Joe Krol and Doug Smylie, as well as figure skating betwixt periods. Nels Stewart captains the Whites in the Oldtimes' tilt, and Chuck Conacher is captain of the Reds, with Irvin (Ace) Bailey acting as coach. Hal Cotton coaches Whites. These former pro puck aces rate a lot of credit for donning the blades again and sweating it out for charity. You couldn't pay 'em to play otherwise. Let's give them a big welcome, folks.

Did you ever hear of snowsnakes? Neither did we until recently when John Fisher spoke on the subject o'er the CBC in "Westinghouse Presents." Seems it's a sport of strictly Canadian origin, a favorite with many Indians. Each year Indian teams from the United States cross the border with hickory sticks to play snowsnakes with Mohawks on the Six Nations Reserve at Brantford. The immigration officials don't stop them, for Indians are allowed to wander across the old border anytime they like. So, it's something of an international sport, even though not widely known.

* * * * * *

Playing At Snow Snakes

A snowsnake is a long hickory stick or pole, pointed, polished with beeswax and properly shaped and balanced. Six to 10 feet long. When the snow is deep enough and crusty, the Indians build a trough by dragging an eight-inch tree-trunk through the field, the trough being some eight inches in depth. Cut in the snow it stretches through fields and bush for as much as a thousand yards. Sides of the trough are patted down and iced till the track is really fast. The trick is to make the stick travel farthest and it is shot as a bowler tosses his ball down the alley or a curler his stone. Must be shot just right or it'll jump the trough. Experts can skid 'em a quarter of a mile at top speed. Referees watch the course. Points are compiled by teams.

* * * * * *

Sounds like quite an unique winter game. As the polished stick ripple rapidly through the snow, they seem to wriggle like snakes — hence the name snowsnakes. It's easier on a guy than skiing and certainly a healthy outdoor winter game. An old sport with the Mohawks when Canada was very young indeed. At school we learned that the early Indians gambled by tossing up colored plum stones — colored differently on each side. Evidently, they had their games out of doors, too, or out of teepees. In summer, of course, they played what we now know as lacrosse. Snowsnakes, it seems, took care of winter athletics, at least for the Mohawks.

Reach Finals

Frank Sedgman of Australia and Tony Mottram of England yesterday gained the finals of the Asian tennis championships in Colombo, Ceylon. Sedgman easily defeated Poland's Wladislaw Schonecki, 6-2, 6-0, 6-3; Mottram eliminated Fumiteru Nakano of Japan in the semi-finals 6-2, 6-3, 6-4.

Lakeshore Loop Faces Scramble

PORT HOPE, Feb. 16 — Only two games remain in the O.H.A. Lakeshore League Intermediate "A" schedule, but only one of the four playoff positions is assured, Cobourg Comets being anchored in fourth place.

Only two points separate the other three teams. Bowmanville, in first place, has 28 points. Port Hope in second, has 27 and Lindsay in third has 25.

While only Bowmanville and Port Hope have a chance at first spot, Lindsay is hoping to take second, thus gaining the advantage of the odd home game.

Saturday night the Port Hope Redmen play in Lindsay and Cobourg plays in Bowmanville. Should Bowmanville win they take the league championship. However, should they lose and Port Hope win then the latter squeezes in by a narrow margin of one point.

A win for Lindsay over Port Hope would place the two teams in a tie for second with goals for and against being the deciding factor.

VisitorsSweep ToWins At Kingston Bonspiel

KINGSTON, Feb. 16 (CP). — Visiting rinks made a clean sweep of all trophy events at yesterday's seventh annual Kingston Curling Club ladies' bonspiel.

The Ethel McCullagh Memorial Trophy, top prize at the bonspiel, was won by Mrs. Bert Shannette's Brockville rink. They defeated Mrs. J. Rutherford of Kingston 11-10.

Mrs. Rutherford's quartet led 10-7 going into the last end and appeared to have the game well away. But Mrs. Shannette's Brockville ladies came through with a four end to win the championship.

Mrs. H. Grant's Toronto Royal Canadians took the Bigwood Trophy with a 13-3 final over Mrs. A. Putnam of Prescott.

The George Hanson Trophy went to Morrisburg when Mrs. C. Crober's rink downed Mrs. L. Langdon of Kingston 9-5 in the final round.

Pravda Says Red China Has Team For Olympics

MOSCOW, Feb. 16 (AP). — Pravda reported today from Peking that a Chinese team will be sent to the summer Olympic games at Helsinki this year.

The Soviet paper reported that the Chinese Olympic group simultaneously told the International Olympic Committee that no other organization represents China and no other should be accepted at the Olympics or at any meetings regarding the summer games.

Pravda's report seems to foreshadow a battle within the International Olympic Committee over who will represent China.

Yesterday, in Oslo, Avery Brundage, international vice-president of the Olympic committee revealed that Red China had applied for recognition, but said that no action was taken on the application.

Galt Rookies Join Chihawks On Sunday

CHICAGO, Feb. 16 (AP). — Three rookies from Canada will be playing for Chicago Black Hawks against Boston Bruins in a National Hockey League matinee Sunday.

Hawk president Bill Tobin, who has been scouting talent in Canada, has informed his Chicago office that he will bring home defencemen Jack Price and Mike Buchanan and forward Tony Poeta.

All three are members of the Galt, Ont., club in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League.

Meanwhile, the Hawks have lost the services of Pete Babando. X-rays have disclosed a fractured right hand. He was injured in the Detroit-Hawks game on Thursday.

Fourth Liners Wallop Millbrook 13-4

MILLBROOK, Feb. 16—(ENS) —Fourth Line breezed to an easy 13-4 win over the luckless Millbrook sextet Wednesday night in bush league play. In the other half of the doubleheader, Bethany extended Mount Pleasant to the limit before bowing out 8-6.

The Fourth Line rattled in six goals in a row in the first period with a reply, matched Millbrook's two in the second and belted in another five in the final against two for the villagers.

Fourth Line scorers were McDowell with five, Brackenridge and Greenly each three, Olan and and Dick Hutchison each one. D. Guthrie and A. Wright split the Millbrook goals.

Reg Edmonds, Bethany defenceman, provided the Bethany hockeyists with a spurt throughout the game which helped them match Mount Pleasant goal for goal until the final minutes. Then the Mountaineers took the win.

Ross Magill carried more than his share of the Bethany attack, rapping in three goals and assisted Brown on two. Edmonds notched the other with R. Palmer. Dracup scored three for Mount Pleasant ,Mitchell and Jamieson two each and Armstrong the single.

The teams are battling for the Gray Cup.

Lemon Signs

Bob Lemon came to contract terms yesterday with Cleveland Indians in a telephone call from Long Beach, Calif. He agreed to a "slight" salary cut. The Indians, announcing the deal, said they believed he still has the second highest pitcher in baseball, topped only by his teammate, Bob Feller. There were guesses he made $50,000 last season, when he won 17 and lost 14.

Wings Face Idle Weekend Holding 14 Points Over Runner-Up Toronto

By The Canadian Press

Detroit Red Wings, seven full games in front in the National Hockey League race, will be the only team not seeing action this weekend. Holding a 14-point advantage on the runner-up Toronto Maple Leafs, Detroit will enjoy their first rest over a Saturday and Sunday since the start of the season. Toronto, at home tonight against the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks, is not scheduled to appear tomorrow. However, the Hawks scoot back to Chicago for a Sunday afternon tussle with the fourth-place Boston Bruins.

Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers are engaged in a weekend doubleheader. The games mean much to both teams.

The third-place Habitants are at home against the Blueshirts tonight, moving into New York for a return engagement with the Rangers Sunday night.

Important Series

Deadlocked with Boston for the fourth and last playoff spot in the circuit, Rangers count the series as one of the most important of the season. A single victory could mean a playoff berth.

Canadiens trail second place Toronto by a single point. With the Leafs facing only one clash on the weekend, the ambitious Montrealers could put four points to good use in pulling into the runner-up position.

The Bruins at Chicago Sunday afternoon are well aware that a loss could drop them from their fourth place deadlock with the Rangers. The Black Hawks have shown amazing tenacity in their afternoon games.

Rangers head into their two-game series with Montreal at full strength for the first time in 3½ months. Gaye Stewart will be back at left wing on Don Raleigh's line with Ed Slowinski on the starboard berth. Defenceman Jack Evans and forward Jack Stoddard will be left at home.

Irvin Worried

Coach Dick Irvin is worried over Floyd Curry's chances of appearing in weekend play, the big right winger suffered a leg injury in Thursday's clash with Toronto. If he is unable to go, Bob Fryday of the Quebec Senior Hockey League Montreal Royals will fill in.

Toronto is the only other club reporting injuries. The Leafs have four players on the ailing list.

Club captain Ted Kennedy has a trick nerve in his shoulder. Winger Harry Watson is suffering a charley horse, forward Joe Klukay's knee is still locking on him and defenceman Fern Flaman is suffering from a bruised foot.

Despite the Friday moans, coach Joe Primeau said both Flaman and Kennedy are expected to dress for tonight's clash with Chicago.

Hawks' Centre Wins Junior Scoring Title

LINDSAY, Feb. 16 — Hector Lalonde, smooth playmaking centreman of Belleville Hawks, won the scoring championship of the O.H.A. Central Ontario Junior "B" League with 60 points.

Lalonde, who led the point parade through the season, put together 24 goals and 36 assists in 24 games to win decisively. Lindsay's Ken Schinkel took second place. The rugged right winger led the loop in goal scoring with 26 and had as many assists for 52 points. Linemate Doug Powell was third with 50 points, just one up on Peterborough's Red Robinson.

Top scoring trio of the four-team group was the Lindsay Kinsmen combination of Schinkel, Powell and Norm Dysart, who amassed 143 points. High scoring honors for defenceman also went to Lindsay with Dave Lucas' nine goals and 14 assists being tops. Leading scorer for the last-place Kingston Vics was Wilson Reid, who finished strong with six points in the final games for 35 points.

Jesus' Ministry Associated With The Home And Family

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

It is interesting to see how much, both in the ministry of Jesus and in the early days of the Christian Church, is associated with homes and families.

Jesus, who in contrast with John the Baptist described Himself as having come eating and drinking (Matthew 11:19), would seem to have accepted freely invitations to various homes.

He was at the marriage in Cana of Galilee (John 2) and evidently had close contact with Peter's family (Luke 4:38).

After the famous incident of the little man climbing a tree to see Him He went home with Zacchaeus.

He was the guest of the Pharisee, who invited Him to the home where the "woman who was in the city, a sinner," with apparently an evil reputation, washed His feet with her tears and dried them with her hair.

This occasioned His striking rebuke to the Pharisee, who for some reason had invited Him in, but had failed in the usual courtesies to a guest.

But the home and family most intimately associated with Jesus was in Bethany, where Lazarus lived with his sisters Mary and Martha.

These and similar incidents suggest that there were probably many unrecorded occasions of the contacts of Jesus with homes and families. And when we come to the early history of the Church the rise of the Christian religion in homes and families is recorded on many pages.

The Book of the Acts, and Paul's Epistles, reveal to what an extent the great missionary, who brought Christianity to Europe, carried on his work in and through homes and families, often in the homes of fellow craftsmen with whom he worked at his trade of tent-making.

In the story of the conversion of the Philippian jailer (Acts 16), when Paul promised that through believing in Jesus, "Thou shalt be saved and thy house."

Even more notable was the fact that the Church itself, lacking edifices and temples, was established in homes (See I Corinthians 16:19).

Parental authority and discipline were probably greater determining factors for all the family than they are today. Possibly the faith and zeal of the head of the family were not so evident in its members, but of that we have no means of knowing. What we do know is that there is a great lack of family religion today.

Only the other day I heard of a father and mother very active in the life and work of the Church, not one of whose three sons, all college graduates, has anything to do with the church. One might speculate upon that failure.

Were the parents, the colleges, or the sons themselves, responsible? Perhaps some readers can tell me why there is a lack of family religion where one might most expect to find it.

Power Of Knights Of Malta May Be Curbed By Vatican

ROME (Reuters)—The Knights of Malta, the world's oldest order of chivalry and one of its most exclusive charitable organizations, are in trouble.

The Vatican wants to clip the wings of the sovereign, sacred and military order of St John of Jerusalem, less ceremoniously known as the Knights of Malta.

A special tribunal of five Cardinals has been set up by the Pope to consider "the nature of the qualities of the sovereign military and religious order."

And the Knights have mobilized a group of eminent advocates to show cause why the order should not be subjected to greater control by the Congregation of Religious, the Vatican body in charge of religious orders.

The Pope has told the Knights that pending the verdict of the tribunal they are not to choose a successor to their 76th grand master, Don Ludovico Chigildella Roverer-Albani, who died last November at the age of 85 after heading the order for 20 years.

As grand master his title was "Most Eminent Highness" and he ranked equal with the Cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church.

The grand master, who keeps his office for life, must be one of the "Knights of Justice"—the 30-member nucleus of the order—at least 40 years old and have at least 10 years' service.

Fourteen of the present Knights of Justice are reported to have these qualifications, including Cardinal Nicola Canali, grand prior of the order and one of the five members of the Cardinal's tribunal, Antonion Hercolani Fava Simonetti, acting head of the order, and Karl Van Ludwigsdorf, the order's prior for Austria.

Founded 1092

The present order is the descendant of the Knights Hospitallers founded in Jerusalem in 1092, when they built a hospital for pilgrims. They took a prominent part in the Crusades and continued fighting the Mohammedans for centuries afterwards.

Today, the Knights are occupied with charitable work. They run a number of hospitals, orphanages, refugee camps and tuberculosis homes. During both world wars, they helped thousands of wounded soldiers.

The order has groups in Italy, Austria, Germany, Britain, France, Spain, Portugal, Eire, the Netherlands, Belgium, Hungary, Poland and the United States.

Altogether the order is believed to have more than 4,000 members, all from noble families. In addition to the Knights of Justice, the highest class, the order has Knights of Honor and Devotion and Knights of Magistral Grace, who are not required to take monastic vows.

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

VOL. CIV. No. 40 — SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1952

MAIN STREET TOPICS

PREMIER SPEAKS

Premier Frost delivered the address of eulogy and tribute to the King at a special service in Lindsay Friday. Mr. Frost said the King was a man of peace yet he fought at the battle of Jutland and served as a leader in wartime.

RETIRES END OF MONTH

Herbert Stenton, Crescent St., is retiring from his job as caretaker of King Edward School at the end of February. Calculated on his years of service, his pension will be $677 yearly.

COUNCIL MEETING

Mayor Waddell should have all his aldermen around him for regular meeting of the council Monday night. Aldermen Herbert Young and John Dewart got back from the south Thursday morning. Council is expected to get under way on the 1952 estimates soon.

FURNISH BOARD ROOM

Twelve leather chairs, along with three matching side chairs are to be purchased by the Board of Education to furnish their new committee room in the city hall. In addition, there will be oak tables bought to replace the present T-shaped board room table.

HOLD PENNY-A-DAY

Once again the penny-a-day campaign will be held in city schools as a means of publicizing the upcoming Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund campaign. It will be a week earlier than the former campaign being Feb. 29 to March 7.

TWO NEW TEACHERS

The Board of Education have confirmed the appointment of public school teachers. They are Mrs. Edward Loveday replacing Miss Marion Sloan at Prince of Wales School, and Mrs. Cecil Osborne who is taking over the new room at Grove School. The appointments are till next June.

LOWER STREET GRADE

To give better access to the new school in Ashburnham, the Board of Education is requesting the City Council to lower the grade on MacFarlane Ave. The new public school—only the second in Ashburnham — will have eight classrooms. Sketch plans for the school have been discussed with the architect and the Department of Education, and detailed drawings are now in progress.

HIT AND RUN DRIVER

A hit-and-run driver damaged the left front fender and bumper of a car belonging to Thomas W. Drummond, 1010 Ford St. Friday afternoon.. Mr. Drummond parked his car on Chamberlain St. and it was struck sometime between 12 o'clock noon and 5 p.m. The vehicle that struck his car left some red paint scrapings on the fender. Constable Harold Andrew is investigating.

TOOT TOOT—BOOM BOOM echoes through the Queen Mary school auditorium as the trumpets, drums, clarinets, horns and cymbals ring out their notes. All this is the public school concert band, the first venture into extra-curricular activities in the public schools apart from sports. Percussion department (upper left) is occupied in the senior band by Tim Thompson, Robert Hornel and Peter Chown while the horn boops from the corner with Paul Reader's efforts (upper right). The clarinet section of the junior band (lower left) includes Barry LeRoy, Russell Cole and Brian Malcolm who hear the mellow notes from the horns of Margaret and Joan Whitfield (lower right) who sit behind. Albert Croasdale (at bottom) teaches and conducts. —(Examiner Staff Photos)

IUE Starts Campaign To Represent CGE Workers

Local 524, International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO-CCL) have again started a campaign to become the certified bargaining agents for some 3,600 production workers at the C.G.E. plant. It is the third attempt of the IUE within the last 27 months to wrest control from the left-wing United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of America.

Last June 26, in a vote conducted by the Ontario Labor Relations Board, the UE defeated the rival IUE by 327 votes. That temporarily ended a bitter labor dispute that has been splitting the ranks of production workers in the plant since the autumn of 1949.

The UE now has a two-year contract with the CGE but the IUE has a two month "hunting season" (Jan. 27 to March 27, the anniversary date of the contract) in which to make an application for certification.

Only one year of the two-year contract has elapsed.

Sounding Out Workers

Joe Wirtz, international representative of the IUE, said that IUE supporters have been sounding out production workers at the plant for the past month. In the first week they signed up 180 members.

"The results were so encouraging that we decided on a campaign on behalf of the IUE," he said.

The IUE already has a foothold in the plant. The office workers are formed into Local 599, IUE.

"There is a two-year contract at CGE this year," said Mr. Wirtz, "which means there will be no negotiations. Nobody will therefore be able to accuse us of disruptive activities."

Mr. Wirtz said that all production workers can expect in the way of basic pay increase is three cents an hour. This, he explained, is dubbed as an "improvement factor" by the company and is paid automatically unless there is intervention by another union, such as the IUE.

"If the IUE does make application, the IUE can reopen on wages."

The right-wingers are expected to go ahead and sign up as many workers as they can. If they get 45 per cent of those eligible they will be able to make application and petition the OLRB for another vote.

No Initiation Fee

This time the IUE is waiving collection of the $1 initiation fee. Instead the card-signers take an "obligation" which is something like swearing allegiance to the union of their choice.

Taking an "obligation" is as valid in the sight of OLRB as collecting initiation fees, said Mr. Wirtz.

As expected, the UE replied with a critical blast:

"Charity should begin at home," said C. R. Sullivan, UE area representative. "It is rather strange that Mr. Wirtz and the IUE are concerned about the production workers getting only a flat three-cent-an-hour improvement factor. Local 599, IUE (office workers) were quite prepared to sign a two-year agreement for their workers giving them the identical improvement factor."

Moreover, said Mr. Sullivan, the cards signed on the basis of the signee taking an "obligation" are illegal; and the IUE officers know they are illegal.

"The IUE is fully aware that they can't successfully carry a campaign in the plant," continued Mr. Sullivan, "And this is clearly shown by their public announcement that they are waiving initiation fees to get workers to sign their cards.

"They know these cards are not valid in an application to the OLRB," he said.

R.C.A.F. To Start Observers Corps

A 90-member, civilian ground observers corps is to be set up in Peterborough by the R.C.A.F. in the near future.

F.O. J. L. McGuire has been posted here by the air force to find a building suitable for the purpose of establishing a filter centre, and later to recruit men and women for the corps.

F.O. McGuire said the building needed would have to have about 3,000 square feet, and modifications would have to be made before any recruiting could be done.

The filter centre, he explained, is the central command of the corps, where all messages are received and transferred to a large grid map of the district, showing locations of all aircraft in the vicinity.

Eventually, a permanent R.C.A.F. group of two officers and four other ranks will be posted here to be in charge of the corps.

No Evangelists Board Decides

Use of the PCVS auditorium for an evangelistic campaign has been denied two Peterborough church groups.

A. J. Davies, itinerant evangelist, applied to the Board of Education for permission to use the auditorium Oct. 26 to Nov. 16. The campaign speaker would be Harold Wilshish, English evangelist, who recently was on a tour of Jamaica.

The groups requesting the auditorium were members of McDonnel St. Gospel Hall and the Braidwood Gospel Chapel. Other accommodation in the city was too small for the expected crowds, said Mr. Davies.

Too Early To Know

K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools, said it was difficult at this early date for Principal C. S. Browne to know offhand whether the students would be using the auditorium.

"Doesn't the Brock St. arena hold more people than the auditorium when chairs are brought in?" queried W. B. Gordon, chairman.

"I don't think it's up to us to find a place for them," said Mrs. Anne Rowell.

Mrs. Rowell moved that the request be turned down and she was seconded by Charles Huffman. The motion passed without dissent.

Westclox Addition To Begin In Spring

An addition to the Westclox will be started sometime this spring, a spokesman for the clock company said Friday. The building is to be used in connection with a defence contract recently awarded the company.

Beyond that, officials would not comment. The building will be ready for use late this year or early in 1953. It is to be built at the company's expense.

FLAGS UP

Flags are flying at full-staff in Peterborough as they are across Canada today. Since February 6 they have been at half-mast in mourning for the King.

School Children Blaze Away On Horns, Clarinets In Band For Youngsters

The booming of the bass drum, the clashing of cymbals, the blare of trumpets, the mellow slides of the trombones and the clarinets create musical bedlam twice a week at Queen Mary School. Boys and girls, ranging in age from eight to 14 years old, dash through the auditorium opening musical instrument cases, at the same time trying to take their jackets and overcoats off. The instruments out and put together, they practise the scale up and down, then dash again for the auditorium stage.

A middle-aged man dressed in a dark blue suit walks to the podium, raps the baton on the music stand and the bedlam ceases.

Conductor Albert Croasdale calls out a number; there's a rustle of papers. Again he taps the music stand, the baton swings up and the public schools' concert band begins its practice.

The band, now in its second year, is the first venture in extra-curricular activities, apart from sports, in the public schools, and so far has met with great success.

The pupils have flocked to band practices, requesting a chance to join and the members have hard work mixed with an equal amount of pleasure.

The band serves actually more than the one purpose of teaching children how to play the instruments. It also gives them some fun, helps reduce juvenile delinquency by keeping the children off the street, and, most important, teaches them to think.

Mr. Croasdale reports that the examination results at PCVS show that the concert band members have better grades than those in other extra-curricular activities. The same applies to the public school band.

Senior Canadian Army bandmaster, Mr. Croasdale retired to Peterborough in 1947 and almost immediately noticed the lack of musical aggregations in the city. All his life he has taken part in some orchestra or band and was determined to start a musical program for the youth of the city.

Mr. Croasdale first became attached to the P.C.V.S. cadet corps as trumpet bandmaster and within a month had a concert band organized in the collegiate.

But during the next three years Mr. Croasdale had some difficulty keeping the collegiate band operating. It suffered from lack of musicians for all types of instruments. He then devised a plan which would be similar to baseball, hockey and lacrosse youth programs, to provide talent for the senior organizations.

The plan was all to the advantage of the public school pupils and the board of education; the pupils didn't have instruments and the board didn't have a band. Mr. Croasdale rented the instruments from a Toronto firm and in turn formed a band, renting the instruments out for a small weekly fee.

If the board had undertaken to form a band, the cost of the instruments alone would have exceeded more than $6,000.

A Croasdale tour through the school for band applicants resulted in more than 140 boys and girls asking to join. All these had to be interviewed.

At first Mr. Croasdale separated the selected students into the various groups. They also answered a simple aptitude test to determine their interest in music,

Welfare Pays $22,318 To Children's Aid

Peterborough welfare department's payments to Children's Aid Societies last year amounted to $22,318.33. Province of Ontario contributes to the city one-quarter of that sum or $5,579.58, leaving the actual cost to Peterborough at $16,738.75.

Disbursements by the welfare department to the Children's Aid Society of the city and county of Peterborough totalled $13,737.76.

Ten other Children's Aid Societies in the province received a total of $8,580.57 from the local welfare board.

Some of them: City of Toronto, $2,337.08; York county, $2,157.30; Northumberland and Durham, $703.48; Victoria and Haliburton, $839.50; Prince Edward county, $722.56; Sarnia and Lambton county, $444.22; London and Middlesex county, $474.83.

Mother, 4 Young Children Flee Blazing Home, Lose All Possessions

Bancroft Frame Home Becomes Black Shell Before Firemen Able To Put Out Fire, Hampered By Poor Water Supply

BANCROFT, Feb. 16. (ENS)—Mrs. Reg. Crawford and her four children, Mary, 10; Cecil, five; Shirley, four, and Sammy, three, escaped with only their lives when fire destroyed their storey-and-a-half frame cottage, on Spring Street early on Friday morning. When a blazing ember dropped by Mary's bed at about three-thirty a.m., she awakened the family and all rushed outside covering their night clothes with blankets. They woke a neighbor, Wallace Brethour, who summoned the fire department. Meanwhile Mrs. Crawford hustled her children to the home of her mother, Mrs. W. Yateman, a few doors away.

Firemen quickly emptied the emergency tank of the truck, but had difficulty in obtaining additional water from the York River and a small tributary creek, as the house was situated on a hill about three hundred yards from the spot where the suction valve of the pump was placed. About an hour later when the flames were extinguished completely the building was a burned out shell with the roof and the walls canted askew.

Everything burned including furniture, clothing and personal possessions. There was a 48-lb. bag of flour just inside the front door, but fire spread too rapidly for it to be rescued.

Mr. Crawford, an employee of a lumber company, was working in a camp 15 miles back of Harcourt, 12 hours later it was not known whether or not word of the disaster had reached him.

Cause of the fire was unknown but it was believed to have started in or near the chimney. The loss was only fractionally covered by insurance, $1,000 on the house, and $500 on the contents.

CONDITION FAIR

The condition of 36-year-old E. Clayton Smith of Brantford, seriously injured Monday afternoon in a two-car accident near Springville, is "fair". Mr. Smith received a fractured skull and concussion. His wife received minor injuries. Both were taken to Civic hospital.

Crime Takes Holiday

Has the city gone goody-goody? Are there no more lawbreakers at large—not even an over-exuberant drunk? City police are crossing their fingers and hoping so. The fact is that nobody in Peterborough has been tossed behind bars since Wednesday night. This is believed to be a record for recent years.

$430,000 Bonds Sold At 97.45 For St. Peter's

Debentures for $430,000 of the cost of building and equipping the new St. Peter's School have been sold by the Separate School Board.

The 20-year debentures are for 4½ per cent. The price paid was 97.45, representing a cost to the school board of 4.79 per cent. They were bought by a syndicate headed by Wood, Gundy and Co. and including Gairdner and Co. and the Royal Bank of Canada.

Proceeds will go toward the cost of purchasing the site of the new school, erection of the building, and furnishing it.

The total cost is estimated at $580,000. The balance of $150,000 will be financed by monies controlled by the Most Rev. Gerald Berry, Bishop of Peterborough.

Elementary School

St. Peter's, now being built at Reid and Brock Sts., will be an 11-classroom, elementary school for boys. John G. McCarney, chairman of the Separate School Board, predicts it will be ready for classes by the fall term if the contractors meet with no unexpected delays.

At first the school will accommodate about 300 boys; capacity is estimated at 385.

Besides the classrooms there will be a gymnasium, 115 feet by 55 feet, and an auditorium seating 710 people.

The Department of Education will not subsidize the gymnasium and auditorium in an elementary school, so the $150,000 of the total cost required for these is to be raised by other means.

St. Peter's school and its facilities (such as its gymnasium and auditorium) will also be available to secondary school students —both boys and girls.

Canadians Pay Silent Homage To King

By The Candian Press

Canada paid silent, solemn homage Friday to the memory of its late, beloved King George VI.

The gentle hush of a two-minute silence fell across the land as capital, city and hamlet held quiet memorial services for the sovereign. He was buried a few hours earlier in hallowed, history-steeped St. George's Chapel at Windsor, England, burial place of British kings for centuries.

The day was one of general mourning throughout Canada.

Schools generally were closed. Banks were shut. Other business places were closed either for all or part of the day. Theatres remained closed in most places until evening.

The airways, too, quietened. The CBC, except for broadcasts of the funeral services in Britain and the memorial service in Canada, was silent. Private stations were not required to leave the air, but generally programmed only solemn music.

Churches throughout the land held memorial services.

Ottawa led the nation to its last tribute to the King with a solemn ceremony in the grey-stone Hall of Fame in the Parliament Buildings.

In Montreal, the two-minute silence was observed at 9 a.m., with a civic ceremony taking place at 4.30 p.m. at the Dominion Square cenotaph. An estimated 2,500 members of the services took part. Schools and most business establishments were closed.

Solemn masses of supplication for the Royal family were held in the cathedrals in Montreal, Quebec City and other Quebec centres. They were atended by civic, military and government officials.

Quebec City proclaimed a day of mourning and observed a two-minute silence. However, most business places remained open. Government and municipal offices were closed. A 56-gun salute was fired and special military services were held at the Cross of Sacrifice

At Sherbrooke, Que., a mass was chanted in the cathedral and most business places were closed. Schools remained shut.

Most Ontario centres paid their respects in one form or another. Church bells tolled to break the quiet of the winter day. Schools were closed, and memorial services held in churches.

In Toronto, 5,000 persons gathered in Maple Leaf Gardens for an interdenominational service which began at 8.15 a.m. and attended by [illegible] and civil officials. Street-cars and buses stopped running for two minutes at 9 a.m.

In London, Ont., a cannon shot at noon signalled the start of the two minutes of quiet there.

On the west coast, a solemn service of remembrance was held at the Hindu Temple in Victoria.

More than 800 members of the Sikh colony attended the service led by Sikh Minister Hira Singh. Scattered throughout the congregation of men, women and children were white bearded veterans who had served as soldiers of Queen Victoria.

It was a public holiday throughout British Columbia, with schools, stores and other business places closed. Lieutenan-Governor Clarence Wallace and other official representatives attended services in Vancouver's Christ Church Cathedral. In the afternoon, the armed forces participated in Cenotaph services in downtown Vancouver.

The silence spread across the prairies.

Manitoba proclaimed a day of mourning. Schools and the larger business establishments were closed. A non-religious, all-musical program took place in Winnipeg's Civic Auritorium in the afternoon.

In Saskatchewan, businesses remained shut and churches held memorial services.

At Regina the provincial memorial service was conducted at 11 a.m. in the armory with a two-minute silence. Lieutenant-Governor W. J. Patterson, Premier T. C. Douglas, Mayor Gordon Grant of Regina and other officials attended.

An artillery salute of 56 guns, sounded at 30-second intervals, was fired from the banks of the Wascana River.

In Alberta memorial services took place in churches throughout the province.

In Edmonton, Premier Manning and Mayor William Hawrelak attended an interdenominational memorial service in the Edmonton Gardens. Approximately 1,400 service men attended the memorial service and paraded to the Legislature grounds.

In Calgary, members of the reserve army swore allegiance to Queen Elizabeth at the Mewata Armory. Later, there was a parade to the Cenotaph for memorial services. A civic service was held in the stampede corral.

Lethbridge saw 3,000 persons pack its Collegiate Institute for a special civic service. Hundreds were turned away. Business came to a standstill. In that city and other Southern Alberta communities, church bells tolled 56 times.

In Russia, officials of the Soviet Foreign Ministry joined diplomats in a memorial service at the British Embassy in Moscow.

On the battle front in Korea, Commonwealth guns were silenced and men climbed out of frozen foxholes to stand, with heads bared, for two minutes' silence.

In the jungles of Malaya, wherever possible anti-bandit fighters halted in their tracks, guns at the ready, to remember their King.

British officials in strife-ridden Egypt charged that Egyptian terrorists took advantage of British troops' attendance of a memorial service to blow up a military train.

New Zealand: Sirens and guns summoned people to observe a two-minute silence. Thousands listened to relayed broadcasts of the funeral commentaries. On Oakura Beach, on the west coast, surf-riders at the national life-saving championships dipped their banners and stood in silence.

Australia: Everything came to a halt at noon throughout the vast, sun-baked continent. In the main cities, all traffic lights simultaneously switched to red. In Melbourne's vast exhibition building thousands gathered to hear Premier Robert Menzies and other leaders in a special memorial service. They sang Queen Elizabeth's favorite arrangement of the 23rd Psalm and one of the late King's favorite hymns, Abide With Me.

Hong Kong: Humble Chinese fishing folk rubbed shoulders with dignitaries at memorial services in all cathedrals and churches, including a Russian Orthodox church and a mosque.

Singapore: Two weeks of court mourning has been ordered by all nine rulers in the Malayan Federation. All Malay Government officials and other mourners will wear white hat bands during this period.

South Africa: Churches were crowded from early morning. In Pretoria, a large congregation attended a service at the Dutch Reformed Church—but one black-draped pew was empty. It had been occupied by the Royal Family when they were in South Africa. Premier Daniel Malan attended the service in Capetown.

Suez Canal: More than 70,000 Britons in the zone stood in silent memory for two minutes. Other troops paid their tributes in the desert, where memorial service at the Church of England Cathedral of the Redemption in New Delhi. Offices, schools and banks were closed. The Last Post was sounded on bugles at midday and a 21-gun salute was fired.

France: Madame Vincent Auriol wife of the French President, who attended the funeral, headed the French delegation at a memorial service in the British Embassy Church in Paris.

Pakistan: A day of national mourning was observed throughout the country.

Crowds of Europeans and natives attended services throughout Northern and Southern Rhodesia, the Gold Coast, and Kenya. From Kenya, where the Queen first heard of her father's death, an official wreath was sent to Windsor.

Windsor To Stay Fortnight In U.K.

LONDON, Feb. 16 (Reuters)—The Duke of Windsor, who Friday followed the coffin of his brother the King to its last resting place, intends to spend the next two weeks here.

"He has made no definite plans for his return but it is possible that he will sail for America in the Queen Elizabeth February 28," his secretary said last night.

The Duke is staying with his mother, Queen Mary, at Marlborough House.

Memory had been sharply stirred in the capital by the first public reappearance of the Duke, 16 years after his abdication, as a principal Royal mourner for the brother who succeeded him on the throne.

In his admiral's uniform, he seemed little changed from the Sovereign Edward VIII, who in similar uniform followed the cortege of his father, George V, in 1936.

The Duke Thursday night had talk with his old friend, Prime Minister Churchill. Their meeting was believed to have been purely social.

The mass-circulation Daily Express said yesterday that although the Duke and Prime Minister were unlikely to have discussed the Duke's income Thursday night, some state allowance might be under consideration.

"King George is understood to have made an allowance to his brother from his own resources," the newspaper added.

Scientists Study Role In Defence

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 15—(CP)—The Australian Government has set up a committee of leading scientists to see how science can best serve defence needs.

Its members are Dr. Ian Clunies Ross, chairman of the Commonwealth scientific and industrial research organizations; John P. Baxter, professor of chemical engineering, Sydney; Leslie M. Martin, chairman of a government defence research committee and Melbourne physics professor, and William H. Tucker, a senior public servant.

Prime Minister Menzies says the committee will study how many scientists Australia is going to need and how she can supply them, and how the country can make the best use of her scientific resources without upsetting too much other scientific work.

This committee is, in part, an answer to conclusions reached by 50 of Austalia's top scientists at a seminar at Canberra last year. They agreed after long discussion that Australia had no effective liaison in science—industry, universities and various government establishments all went their separate ways—and scientific teaching here was, to say the best of it, patchy.

UK Unemployed Total 303,000

LONDON—(CP)—Latest government statistics show that 23,480,000 men and women are gainfully employed in the United Kingdom. The figure represents a drop of 12,500 since the previous official report was issued in October, bringing the nation's unemployed total to 303,000. Of these, 99,175 had been jobless for more than eight weeks.

Industries concerned with Britain's hugs arms production program the engineering, metals and vehicles trades, had the largest influx of labor, with 21,000 added to the October total of 4,171,000. This, however, was offset by manpower decreases in clothing, textile and other manufacturing industries, indicating that the voluntary movement towards essential employment has been maintained.

Scotland had the biggest regional unemployment rate at 2.8 per cent, with fishing, building, woollen, and worsted industries chiefly affected. Wales came next with 2.7 per cent and northern England 2.3 per cent. North Midland hosiery and knitted goods manufacturers experienced a slight increase in unemployment and a season decline was reported in agricultural areas.

Expect Federal Budget To Announce Record Surplus, Big Tax Reductions

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Feb. 16—(CP)—A record peacetime budget, containing tax reductions and announcing a surplus of possibly $500,000,000 for 1951-52, will be presented to the forthcoming session of parliament.

The session opens Thursday Feb. 28 and Finance Minister Abbott may bring down the 1952-53 budget Tuesday, April 8, a short time before the Commons adjourns for the Easter recess. The 1951-52 budget was presented April 10 last.

The contents of the budget will remain a secret until read in the Commons, but hints dropped by Mr. Abbott in the last few months have launched a flood of speculation.

Some political observers have predicted tax reductions amounting to between $100,000,000 and $50,000,000, despite forecasts that record, peacetime defence expenditures of $2,200,000,000 are planned for 1952-53.

Mr. Abbott has said that in preparing the budget he and his officials will look closely at the heavy cigeratte taxes, blamed for large-scale smuggling of American cigarettes into Canada, a drop in consumption of Canadian cigarettes and unemployment in Canadian tobacco factories.

The federal tax now amounts to 25 cents on a package of 20 cigarettes retailing for 42 cents in Ottawa. There has been speculation in unofficial circles that Mr. Abbott will cut the tax by from two-to-five cents a package.

Some also have predicted reductions in the 15-per-cent excise tax on electric stoves, washing machines and refrigerators.

Defence Surcharge

Mr. Abbott has said he plans to incorporate into the regular tax structure the 20-per-cent defence surcharge placed on personal income taxes and corporation profits in the last budget. In doing that, he may effect some reduction in the general taxes on corporations and personal incomes.

Two per cent of the yield from personal income taxes, from corporation taxes and from the 10-per-cent sales tax will be earmarked to pay the cost of $40-a-month pensions to all 70 and over, regardless of means.

The healthy surplus compiled during the current year gives Mr. Abbott a fair amount of leeway for making tax adjustments. He also has forecasts from experts that the outlook for 1952 is good. The value of Canada's gross national production in 1952 is expected to be $22,500,000,000, an increase of $1,300,000,000 over 1951.

Last spring, Mr. Abbott estimated his revenues for 1951-52 would amount to $3,730,000,000 and expenditures to $3,700,000,000, leaving a surplus of $30,000,000. Last fall, he revised his estimates and indicated he expected to end the fiscal year March 31 with a surplus of between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000.

His second estimate apperaed conservative as the year neared an end. Figures for the first nine months of the fiscal year showed that the surplus had reached a total of $721,000,000. It was expected the surplus would be slimmed down in the final months of the year, but there were some guesses it would total at least $500,000,000.

Parliament voted $1,700,000,000 for defence expenditures in 1951-52 and later it was estimated that not more than $1,400,000,000 would be spent before the end of the year. The amount not spent was reflected in the surplus.

Defends Policy

Mr. Abbott has frequently defended his policy of high taxation in periods of prosperity. He has said that to carry on deficit financing in times such as these would be a "fraud on the public." The surplus is used to reduce the country's debt.

The surplus will be his sixth in a row since the end of the Second World War. He had surpluses of $373,648,901 in 1947; $676,119,656 in 1948; $595,502,741 in 1949; $131,524,953 in 1950 and $203,456,000 in 1951. The 1947 surplus broke a string of 17 consecutive deficits compiled during the years of the depression and of the Second World War.

Canada's net debt, amounting to a mere $268,480,004 at the turn of the century, climbed to $335,996,850 by 1914—the year of the outbreak of the First World War. By 1918, the debt had reached $1,191,884,063.

In 1939—the first year of the Second World War—the debt totalled $3,152,559,314. It climbed to a peak of $13,421,405,449 in 1946. The surpluses in the last five years have reduced it to $11,441,100,000.

The trend of the debt reflected the movement of federal government expenditures. In 1901 expenditures totalled $46,866,368—an amount that now barely covers the expenditures of one department of government.

By 1914, the government was spending $127,384,473 and by 1918 the amount had grown to $178,284,313. At the outbreak of the Second World War in 1939 expenditures were $553,063,097. they sky-rocketed to a peak of $5,332,253,505 in 1944.

They tapered off from 1944 until the war broke out in Korea. Since then they have again swung upward.

GOING TO PARIS—Group Capt. Keith Hodson, 36, has been posted to Paris to take charge of R.C.A.F. arrangements for the air division to be located on the continent. To be stationed at the Canadian Embassy, Group Capt. Hodson will assist the Canadian Ambassador to France in negotiations for the required air bases. He is a native of Jersey in the Channel Islands.

She rushed to the shack when she saw smoke but the flames prevented her from reaching the children.

Church Fresco Six Centuries Old

WELLOW, England—(CP)—A fresco of Christ and the Apostles, believed to have been painted in the 14th century, has been uncovered in the Church of this Somerset village, following replacement of an old organ.

The figures, drawn in flowing lines upon a golden background, typical fo the period, are believed to have been plastered over more than 300 years ago.

Rev. L. W. Fussell, Vicar of the Church, expressed the view that the paintings had been deliberately defaced. In the puritan age, he said, Church treasures were often mutilated as offensive to the Puritan faith.

Urging Children Perform Can Have Bad Effect

By NANCY CLEAVER

"Junior say 'Peter, Peter, pumpkin eater' for Aunt Mary . . . Now, you know you said it all through for Daddy last night. Come on, Junior, what is the matter with you? Your Aunt is waiting. Mother will start you—'Peter, Peter . . .'" Four year old Junior looks uncomfortable. He squirms but not one word will he say. Aunt Mary is embarrassed. Mother is disappointed and annoyed.

Do you ever urge your child to perform? It is the most natural thing in the world for parents to be proud of their offspring and want to display his ability to fond relatives or friends. There is a place for the tiny "performer," but there is also the possibility of a bad effect on "Junior."

Mothers Often To Blame

Mother is more likely to show off her child too often than father, although sometimes he, too, can't help urging his daughter to play the piano, or recite a poem or bring out her last report card (if it has been a particularly good one). Other people's praise of one's child is honey-sweet in a parent's ears. It strengthens the mother's or father's belief that in their child they have "something pretty special."

But what happens to Junior if being shown off is a fairly regular routine when company calls? Mother often cannot understand why he is so stubborn in his refusal to "do his stuff." It never seems to occur to her that repeating a Nursery Rhyme to his father in the relaxed, happy atmosphere of his after supper time with dad, is rather different from being interupted in his play to recite to his Aunt. It is even more trying for Mother to expect him to recite to a whole roomful of strange ladies whom she has invited to afternoon tea! All those unfamiliar eyes fixed on Junior may throw him into a panic.

Destroys Self-Confidence

The child who is asked by a parent to perform for an outsider either makes a failure or a success of it. If he is so unsure of himself that he refuses, or if, under pressure he makes a feeble attempt but cannot get through with his task, it destroys some of his self-confidence.

It is very important that a child should learn to be at ease with other people, both his own age and grown-ups too. With some children the chance to show some skill is a help to them if they do it willingly and well. But if there is a feeling of strain for the sensitive child who is forced to be the centre of attention, this is not a good thing. Mothers should question carefully whether their own feeling of pride at their child being admired balances the child's own emotions during this performing time.

There's the possibility that the child may enjoy showing off, and look eagerly forward to other opportunities to show how clever he is. He may want to recite every Nursery Rhyme he knows. Mother may relish this but the visitor is apt to be a bit bored before the recital is completed. Adult exchange of ideas is out of the question while a child is bidding for the centre of the stage.

A child "actor," because he is a child, can be very sweet and charming. But what happens when the "show-off" child grows up? He is likely to continue to want to be "the whole show."

Adults Also

Many adolescents come to grief doing foolhardy athletic stunts in an effort to outshine their companions. Every year tragic accidents are reported in the press telling of some young person who took too great a risk in doing some intricate stunt.

Our grandparents had no doubt about the wisdom of the old saying, "Children should be seen and not heard." Perhaps there has been too great swing in the other direction. Nevertheless, if a parent is not too insistent, a child can give real pleasure to others if he occasionally recites or plays a musical instrument or does something else to provide entertainment. If he is making a serious effort he should not be laughed at, or told that he is "cute". What self-respecting child wants to be "cute"?

But anyone enjoys well earned applause—and praise which is deserved never hurts anyone. The music festivals sponsored by service clubs in many centres have demonstrated this. If brothers and sisters take turns performing, or if the "neighborhood gang" put on a little concert, this is the type of "showing off" which has real character values. See that your child has an occasional opportunity to show off in the company of other youngsters.

55 Coal Miners Die

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (AP). —Fifty-five coal miners were killed during January, compared with 80 in January, 1951, Secretary of the Interior Chapman reports. He said fatalities last month were 48 in bituminous mines and seven in Pennsylvania anthracite mines. In January, 1951, these were, respectively, 69 and 11.

F.B.I. Seizes Heroin

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 (AP). — Federal agents seized $700,000 worth of heroin and arrested four persons Friday in what was described as the biggest single narcotics haul in five years. Narcotics agents picked up two men and two women in an early-morning raid on a Harlem apartment after three weeks of patient sleuthing.

Big Three Work To Settle W. German Role

LONDON, Feb. 16 (AP)—Western leaders worked feverishly behind the scenes of a British monarch's funeral Friday to stave off a major diplomatic failure—a failure to settle West Germany's role in the defence of Europe.

Official sources reported these developments:

1. United States, British and French foreign ministers arranged definitely to meet here Sunday—whether the present French Government is in office or not after Saturday's confidence vote.

2. They arranged also a face-to-face talk with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer for Monday on future Allied-German military and political relations.

Two special meetings were set up for today as a prelude to the full-dress conferences.

First, Foreign Secretary Eden will talk with Adenauer at the foreign office.

Then State Secretary Acheson and four close advisers will go into conference with Eden and his aides. The Anglo-American discussion will range far beyond Germany — and likely will deal with Atlantic pact business, the situation in the Far East, Middle East matters and Russian foreign policy.

But the German issue seemed certain to dominate all the discussions.

The Western Allies have agreed the Germans must get into uniform again if any Russian attack is to be stopped and countered.

However, several western countries—notably France and her Low Country neighbors—want to cut and measure that German uniform themselves. They insist that Germans must serve within a unified European Army, an army they dream of building out of their own forces.

In the last few weeks that plan —which the Germans themselves helped to draft—has taken a beating in the parliaments of Paris and Bonn.

New York Police Nab Detective For Burglary

NEW YORK, Feb. 16—(AP)—Four men accused of being ace burglars were seized Friday, and an angry police commissioner learned one of them was a detective from his own department.

Commissioner George Monaghan joined in quizzing the foursome he called the "best band of burglars in town."

He bitterly denounced the detective, identified as James J. Fox, 33, a member of the force since 1946.

"Look at this bum, six years in the department, three years in the detective bureau, and he's lousing up the entire department," Monaghan said. "He's worse than these other thugs."

The four were arrested after they allegedly tried to force open locks of apartments. The detective had on his badge and was carrying his service revolver, it was said.

PAYS TRIBUTE—General and Mrs. Eisenhower arrived in London to attend the funeral of King George VI on Friday.

Strong In Spirit, King George Servant Of God

"The loyalty and tribute which were the radiant marks of his home life were shared by the household of the Commonwealth."

These were the words of tribute paid to the late King George VI by the Rev. R. D. Duncanson, of Norwood Presbyterian Church at an evening memorial service in Trinity United Church Friday night.

"Surely we give thanks for this one who while he was king, recognized his subject-hood under God and his brotherhood among men," said Mr. Duncanson.

"His majesty, our late king, acknowledged the Eternal as the Sovereign above all. He was of the household of faith and for that we are thankful. He was strong in spirit, though the frame was weak. He was always given to embracing the cares and needs of those he loved — his family, his people of the Commonwealth and all humanity. In the darkest days of his reign, he was cheerful in spirit, confident in outlook and always thinking and concerned about others."

Mr. Duncanson said he was confident King George welcomed each day as a new day of opportunity to serve his subjects, "even as a servant." When he lay down to sleep for the last time, he awakened not to a new day of duty and care in this life, but to the "great Eternal Day."

"It is for our Commonwealth also a new day. We have the gift of a new day — a new era May God grant that we may be a thankful people and that His blessing may be upon us as upon our new queen. Give His people a new hopeful and glorious period in which His will may be done."

The Rev. R. E. Dargan, pastor of the Peterborough Free Methodist Church, read the scripture lesson and led in prayer.

North Hastings High School To Cost Taxpayers 27 Mills

BANCROFT, Feb. 16 (ENS). — In 1952 the high school tax rate for the area served by North Hastings High School will be 27 mills, a raise of approximately 7 mills from the rate of 1950 and 1951. This was determined when the board struck its rate at the February meeting.

After examining the December hydro bill for the school, the board decided to meet the local Hydro-Electric Power Commission to seek a lower rate. The monthly statement showed that they had been charged 5 cents per kwh for 3,380 hours and the lower rate of 2 cents per hour applied only to 210 kwh. Including service charge this accounted for a gross charge of $195.60 and a net of $176.04.

Offer Flag Pole

Two representatives of the Students' Council, Beth Brown and Joe Vance, interviewed the board on behalf of their organization. Their offer to provide a flag pole for the school was accepted. Although completed in 1948 North Hastings High School has not the facilities to fly a flag.

The second matter introduced by the representatives of the student body was a hardy annual that has been the subject of many discussions, accident insurance for school pupils. Informing the board that the majority of the high schools in Eastern Ontario are covered the pupils with policies of this type, the two young ambassadors announced that the students were willing to assume part of the cost if ways and means could not be found to finance this service.

Chairman Guy Bentley thanked the two-men delegation for their active interest in the betterment of the school, and promised that the insurance question would be discussed carefully at an immediate meeting.

Cattle Markets Pick Up $1 Of Recent Drop

OTTAWA, (CP).—Recovery of 50 cents to $1 of the recent declines was made on most cattle markets this week, the Agricultural Department reported in its weekly livestock review.

Movement of beef out of coolers showed little evidence of pick-up, but a short supply of cattle took strength from renewed export buying at principal stockyards.

Toronto had 3,000 cattle. There were good to choice weighty steers for $27-$29.50, a few reached 30, medium to good light steers at 25-28.50, and common to medium qualities 22-26.50. A narrow spread of 27-27.50 took most good heifers; medium to good cows were 16-20; good bulls 23-25.

Montreal cattle had a light run of 937 cattle. Good steers were 28-29, common 20-24, medium heifers 21-25, good cows 20-21, and good bulls 23-25.

Winnipeg cleared 1,750 cattle. Slaughter steers recovered 50 cents to $1, choice selling for 27.50-28, and good 26-27. Good heifers took 24.50 to 26.50, good cows 18-20, good bulls 21-22.50.

Toronto shipped a few good western stockers for 27-27.50 and common downward to 22. Winnipeg cleared a modest supply of stockers fully steady, with good steers at 25-26.50.

Toronto calf prices were down $1, choice veals cashing for 33-35, and common downward to 25, Montreal held steady on vealers, with good to choice 37-39, but was down $1 on grassers, mostly at 20-21.

Toronto sold grade A hogs at 26 and sows 19, dressed carcass basis. Montreal also stayed at the same level, 26 for grade A hogs, but sows were lower at 19-20 dressed.

Another 50 cents to $1 was taken off the lamb price level at Toronto. Good western lambs were bracketed within 31 and 31.50, but with closing sales Wednesday at 31. Good heavy western lambs went for 28.50.

Beef cattle exports to the United States in the last week included 526 head for immediate slaughter and 456 for further feeding, a total of 982 head.

Joint Memorial Service Held In Havelock Church

HAVELOCK, Feb. 16 (ENS) — The Rev. R. D. Duncanson, of Knox Presbyterian Church and padre of the Havelock-Belmont Branch No. 389 of the Canadian Legion, addressed a largely-attended memorial service for His Late Majesty King George VI held in the Havelock United Church Friday afternoon under the auspices of the local Ministerial Association.

Mr. Duncanson said that the burdens of the day are often upon us and often they occupy our minds for the most part. But people forget to thank God for the days given by Him as a gift.

We thank God, Mr. Duncanson said, for the gift of the days that were given in King George VI, whose days were filled with unselfish devotion to his people and whose whole life was one of service to his country.

The King, he continued, acknowledged his God above all. He belonged to the household of faith and through all his sufferings, he was thinking of his family circle, his people—those of his country and the Commonwealth—and also of those in the dark parts of the world.

"I feel confident," Mr. Duncanson said, "that he was one who would like to thank God for the morning of a new day."

In closing he said we are starting a new day or a new ero for the British Commonwealth of Nations. "May God grant that we may have His blessing upon us and our new Queen."

The Rev. H. A. Peasgood of St. John's Anglican Church conducted the service and offered the opening prayer; the responsive reading, Psalm 90, was led by the Rev. M. Esler of the Pentecostal Tabernacle; the Scripture lesson from the latter portion of Revelation, Chapter 7, was read by the Rev. E. W. Rivers of the Apostolic church; prayers were offered by the Rev. R. G. Newman of the United Church and Pastor L. Bigelow of the Baptist Mission.

A joint choir led the service of song with Donald Pollock at the organ. The front centre pews were occupied by members of the Havelock-Belmont Branch No. 389 of the Canadian Legion and the Ladies' Auiliary. The army cadets of the Norwood High School area were also represented.

The winner's name and the year of her achievement is inscribed on the shield which is to hang in the High School, and she received $5 and a "Statue Emblematic of the Victor."

What You Are

Mr. Copp, in his inspirational address, held up to the students the highest purposes in life. Education, he said, when school days are over, is what you are, rather than what you know. He quoted Dr. Richard Livingstone's definition of an educated person, "One who can appreciate the most in the best walks of life."

Our purpose in education, he said, should aspire to that of the Master's when He said: "I am come that they may have life and that they might have it more abundantly."

He thinks present-day teaching will produce better all-round people, though they may not be so good in Latin and science. Service to humanity should be the chief aim, and a better understanding of our fellow men. The world today, he said, is demanding people with wisdom. He is optimisitc about the outcome of the present unrest, saying it is the evidence of the world's growing pains.

Pineapple Juice Cheers Spirits In Hot Drink

For a party drink that warms the heart and cheers the spirit, try hot mulled pineapple juice. Stir it with a stick of cinnamon and enjoy the hint of spince in this "sweet 'n hot" flavorful beverage treat. It's a good warm-up for the children, too, when they come trooping in after a basketball game or skating session. Using canned Hawaiian pineapple juice is such an easy to "serve up" vitamins and with a deviled ham sandwich "on the side," you have a fine-tasting snack.

Hot Mulled Pineapple Juice

1 can Hawaiian pineapple juice
½ cup sugar
4 sticks cinnamon
1 teaspoon whole cloves
¼ cup lemon juice

Simmer first 4 ingredients together for about 10 minutes. Add lemon juice. Strain and serve in mugs with a stick of cinnamon for a stirrer. 4 servings.

Deviled Ham Spread

1 3-oz. can genuine deviled ham
2 tablespoons chopped peanuts
2 tablespoons chopped olives
2 tablespoons mayonnaise

Combine all ingredients. Spread on buttered bread triangles and serve "open face". For a heartier snack, make whole sandwiches with the deviled ham spread and crispy lettuce.

Fitted Wrists New In Fabric Gloves

NEW YORK—One spring line in fabric gloves introduces the fitted wrist. This type of design involves a straighter cut which does away with the bulk found in most fabric gloves. Tapered fingers follow the slender lines of the feminine hand, tapering at the finger tips. While the palms of these gloves are made of double-woven perforated nylon which is cool as well as quick drying, the backs go in for a wide variety of fabrics which include chambray, broadcloth, linen taffeta, satin, and other woven materials. And as always there are the old friends made of cotton, string and woven materials.

More People Will Enjoy Eggs Cooked Exactly Right

Most homemakers and cooks in general consider cooking eggs about as simple as boiling water. That is probably why so many fried eggs have a sole that would do credit to a shoe repairer. Eggs respond to gentle treatment by being tender, and low or moderate temperatures should be the rule in cooking them.

It may seem "elementary my dear Watson" to discuss how to fry or soft-cook the breakfast eggs, but more people will enjoy them once they have eaten them properly prepared. Too often tough, rubbery whites are accepted as the way eggs should be.

Following are some hints to help you when cooking.

Tender Fried Eggs

Don't drop the eggs into sizzling hot fat. If the egg sputters and the white bubbles, the pan and fat are too hot and the result will be that leathery sole we mentioned before. The fat should be just hot enough to coagulate the egg white slowly. Keep the heat low or moderate under the pan. A heavy skillet will heat more evenly. Fat may be spooned over the egg yolk to film it with white or not as desired. This method may be used when bacon has been cooked first and there is sufficient fat in the pan to spoon over the yolks. If there is more than a thin layer of fat though, pour off the excess.

A second method of frying eggs sometimes called "fat-poaching" eliminates the necessity of standing over them while they cook. Melt only enough fat in the pan to lightly grease it. Break eggs into a saucer one at a time and slip gently from saucer into the pan. Add 1 to 3 teaspoons of hot water to the pan and cover tightly. Cook over low heat 4 to 5 minutes, or until eggs are cooked to the desired degree. The water turns to steam and the yolk will be covered with a white film similar to that produced by spooning with hot fat. If you peek too often the steam escapes, so be sure to add a bit more water.

Tender Soft-Cooked Eggs

Don't boil eggs, cook them in water below the boiling point. One good method is to place the eggs in cold water to cover. Put a lid on the pan and bring the water slowly to the boiling point. Set off the heat and let stand 3 to 5 minutes depending upon whether the yolk is to be soft or partially set. For hard-cooked eggs let them stand 15 to 20 minutes then plunge into cold water. This helps prevent a dark ring forming around the yolks.

Sailor or Toque For Easter, Fashion Declares

By PEGGY MASSIN.

PARIS (Reuters).—The Easter bonnet for 1952 is going to be a small sailor or toque, and will be tipped well forward on the head with upturned or scooped effects worked in the back.

This spring, the neat small profile is the prime requisite, no matter how it is achieved. Many sailors recall the prim but pretty Gibson girl styles but the tiny cloche, berets, caps and toques are all in the limelight.

Maud and Nano divide their collections between sailor and cloche styles. Narrow brims either rolled or flat, contract with the high mushroom or manipulated crowns.

Jean Barthet introduces the close-fitting calot or cap, which concentrates width above the temples in brims or trimmings. A typical example is a neat pillbox, which achieves breadth with an enormous fabric bow, extending from the crown, far out on either side.

Gilbert Orcel comes up with a new shape, called the "haymaker" a large, arched brim bonnet patterned after the folded paper hats worn by peasants for protection against the sun.

Other style setting milliners continue the upward back treatments, often reminiscent of rocker or watteau bonnets. These perky raised effects achieve a new, young approach to the straight-on-the-head pose.

The newest note is the introduction of glamorous metalized straws for dresswear. Dull finish mat straws, braids and panamas all are interwoven with glittering metal threads in gold and silver patinas.

Many women will choose a grosgrain or alpaca hat as a forerunner before buying other models in straw. The return of felt is also heralded, in both small shapes and large brim cartwheels or picture hats.

Fluffing Feathers

Your bed pillows are in need of attention when they begin sagging at the ends, when they fail to rebound when pressure is lifted, when stiff feather quills begin sticking through the ticking. To fluff feathers crushed and matted by washing, try this method: Make a muslin bag of an old sheet or other materials, three or four times as large as the pillow ticking.

Topcoat And Dress

LONDON, England. — Taffeta cloque appears in a green topcoat and matching dress by Michael Sherard with dramatic contrasting pale gold satin lining.

Imaginative use of material is apparent also in a town suit from Lachasse. Here scarlet rayon ilk, and wool produced a tweed effect. The suit coat had a highwayman's collar and pockets offset with black velvet.

Ferguson-McInroy Nuptials

A lovely twilight wedding took place in Mark St. United Church Friday evening at seven o'clock as Marilyn Dawn McInroy and Wayne Wellington Ferguson pledged nuptial vows. The Rev. B. S. Morwood, minister of the church, officiated in the double ring ceremony.

Candles on either side of the altar were banked with red carnations and white 'mums. The traditional wedding music was played by organist Mrs. Cecil Searles and during the signing of the register Mr. Searles played violin selections.

The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford McInroy and was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was of white french embroidered lace bodice and sleeves with full ballerina length skirt of white tulle over silk taffeta; and a Juliet cap of the lace held her shoulder length veil. She carried an orchid set in hyacinth petals.

Miss Roselyn McInroy was her sister's maid of honor. Her frock was of powder blue taffeta under a full skirt of tulle and with attached net stole, and her headdress was of blue tulle with pink and white flower banding. She carried a bouquet of roses and violets bordered with white hyacinth peals.

Both gowns and headdresses were designed and made by the bride.

The groom is son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ferguson, also of Peterborough, and he was attended by his brother, Mr. Ernest Ferguson. The ushers were Kenneth Bailey, cousin of the bride, and Jack Martin, uncle of the groom.

At the reception afterward in the Empress Kawartha Room, the bride's mother received her guests in a gown of navy tricotine, wearing a pink straw hat and a pink camelia on her shoulder. The groom's mother was also receiving, gowned in royal blue silk crepe and wearing a hat of pink straw and a gardenia.

The bridal couple have left from Toronto today by plane to spend a week in New York City. Going away the bride wore a black velvet suit and white velvet hat and accessories. Her corsage was an orchid.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson will live on Euclid Ave. on their return.

For Bad Winter Cough, Mix This Syrup Yourself

If you want a splendid cough medicine, mix it at home. It costs very little, yet the way it takes hold of distressing coughs, giving quick relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with a 2½ ounce bottle of Pinex. Pour this into a 16 ounce bottle and fill up with granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. To make syrup, use 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) It's no trouble at all and gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money—a family supply. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps to clear the air passages.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a very reliable soothing agent for winter coughs. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

DOROTHY DIX

Occasional Outing Needed For All Young Mothers

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My husband has a small business which keeps him travelling all day, though he comes home every night. I understand that when he is away all day he doesn't feel much like going out at night, especially as his work continues right through Saturday and Sunday. However, I, too, work hard to keep things moving. I have three small children to keep me busy and I also run the office end of the business. Consequently, I don't get away from the house at all except for a few hours of shopping, which my husband thinks is a pleasure trip. He objects to my taking the car so the children and I can have a little outing, and absolutely refuses to take any time off to take the rest of the family out.

This steady, daily grind is getting on my nerves so much that I am getting irritable and almost physically ill.

CANDY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Every housewife is a little better off if she can manage an afternoon or an evening out occasionally. This is, however, a Utopian feat that often cannot be accomplished by any means. With your husband so completely involved in business, your only chance would be to pack the youngsters in the car and go off for an afternoon; your husband is unreasonable to deprive you of that small favor. Perhaps you should be a little more determined; don't expect to achieve these privileges from a domineering mate without strong effort.

Children Will Grow Up

If you must face the fact that entertainment or relaxation of any type is out of the question at present, be consoled with the thought that your youngsters are growing fast and will soon be entirely untied from your apron strings. Of course, the drawback to attaining that desirable day is that you'll miss the little dependents like the dickens. Responsibility may seem irksome at times, but it is the one thing above all else that makes life worth living. The day when you realize that no one is dependent upon you, that you have no family responsibilities, will be the lonesomest day of your life.

If you can't get away from the house with the children, set aside a special time each day for a relaxing period with them. An hour of game-playing or story telling will do you all a world of good and will take away many of the kinks of a hard monotonous day of domestic drudgery.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have an inferiority complex about my height. I'm 5 feet 5 inches tall and my husband is the same height. When I look around and see so many small and dainty girls, I'm sure my husband wishes he had married one.

M. C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: After all, if your husband had wanted a smaller girl he could easily have found one. It was you he wanted, and I'm sure he's satisfied. Your height is certainly not excessive and nothing for you to be self-conscious about. Many husbands are shorter than their wives and manage somehow to be happy in spite of it. Keep yourself well dressed and well groomed, wear high heels if they provide a better accent to your costume, and stop worrying over trivialities.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a registered nurse of 48, and very lonely. I have no social life at all and would love to know how to become acquainted with the right people.

CHRISTINE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your fine letter and qualifications, which I have had to shorten somewhat, leaves me wondering how any one of such broad education and travel advantages can be lonely. To meet people of your calibre is not easy, but also not impossible, I'm sure. Why not approach an adult education centre, and offer to take a class in one of your own fields? Since you have so many accomplishments, passing your knowledge on to others will be a satisfying experience, and is almost sure to lead to new friendships.

Readers' Saturday Column Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION: I read your column every night — tried some of your cookie recipes at Christmas. Since being a very poor cook of any kind, was surprised to have them turn out so nice. So now I'm beginning to find more interest in what goes into making food taste so good.

I do have a problem and am hoping you can help me. I want to give a shower for my cousin sometime during March . . . there will be around 20 to 25 young girls. I've only gone to about half dozen bridal showers myself. Each was nice but they all were the same. I was hoping you could give me something different to serve in the way of food. How would it be best to serve? She will be opening the gifts in the dining-room with everyone sitting round. Now how to set the table, as everyone will be standing around looking at the gifts. Or do you think it would be better to have her open them in the living room? I would like to set a pretty table.

. . . for food if possible something that can be made the night before, with finishing touches the night of the shower . . . I work till five so won't have much time . . . and Mary any ideas on something to drink during the evening besides cokes and ginger ale? I know I'm asking a lot but I do need help. This is my first shower and first time to have the wonderful thrill of being maid-of-honour! If you have any suggestions for games to be played during evening (beside bingo) I could use them too.—E. S.

ANSWER: I loved your letter and am thrilled too that you are going to be a maid of honour. I am so glad you want to do something different and am glad to be in on it.

Sequence of Events for a Bridal Shower

Play the type of charades which I think is a howling success: Divide your guests into two equal groups One group leaves the room and both make plans which are unknown to the other. Each group chooses separate things that the folks in the other group must identify by making motions but not one sound. For instance, the group I belonged to decided by sister Doris (in the other group) must represent or act out King Tut." Doris stretched out on the floor, made a motion as if she had a long beard, then folded her hands on her chest and closed her eyes. Someone on her side asked "Are you dead?" She nodded. "Are you a dead Canadian?" Shake of head. "Are you fictional?" — and so on until they guessed it — but all this within the 2-minute time limit. If you run over your time this is counted up in seconds and charged against your side. The side doing the guessing is the side which has the actor doing the motions. All players on one side act out their assignment (written on a small piece of folded paper) before the other side has its turn.

Suggested Things to Identify In Charades

(1) "South of the Border" (song title); (2) Chairman Hugh Brown at a Board of Directors' meeting; (3) Rio de Janeiro (this is very hard); (4) An icicle; (5) King of Siam; (6) Cor. 42nd St. and 5th Ave.; (7) Milton Berle on television; (8) Pogo or Churchy la Femme; (9) Christmas dinner; (10) A wedding.

Serve Punch during the evening. Arrange large pitcher with glasses on your finest trays.

Fruit Punch for 25 or 30

Grate rind of 5 lemons and add it to 1 cup water and 2½ cups sugar and simmer covered for 10 minutes. Chill. Add juice of 5 lemons and 3 oranges, 2 cups strong hot fresh tea, ¼ cup sliced maraschino cherries. Chill overnight if necessary. At time of serving add 1 quart of ginger ale and 1 tray of ice cubes. Let ice melt a little before serving.

Have the games and opening of gifts in the living room by all means. At a lingerie shower, one hostess hung an umbrella from the centre of the ceiling, covered with pretty pink and white crepe paper, and put the lingerie gifts in it. Hanging over the sides on ribbons were cards with names of donors attached to the gift in the umbrella. It was pretty good fun but gifts must be light in weight. The good old clothes basket (which is given as a gift too) covered with very pretty paper is always dependable and durable and will hold all weights and sizes of gifts.

Menu:

Hors d'Oeuvres Tray: (1) halves pitted Malaga grapes stuffed with cream cheese, on toothpick; (all five of these things are on toothpicks — colored ones bought for this purpose — and all stuck in huge red apple or large grapefruit.) (2) Hot cocktail sausages; (3) Hot ripe olives (buy stoned ones if possible). (4) Small whole pickled onions; (5) squares of fancy cheese.

Pass Hot toasted cheese fingers and potato chips. Use the bright orange sharp cream cheese which comes in cardboard cylinder pound boxes, softened slightly with mayonnaise and cream to spread between slices white bread and cut into 1-inch long sandwiches and delicately toast them.

Rainbow Cake (see below) and Tea or Coffee.

Rainbow Cake

Cut a large angel food or sunshine or sponge cake baked in tube pan into 4 equal slices. Spread bottom slice with mashed apricot or apricot puree (canned apricots put through sieve); put second slice on this and spread it with 1 cup well-drained crushed pineapple tinted green with liquid vegetable colouring; put third slice on that and spread it with 1 cup thick raspberry jam. Put on top slice. Cover outside of cake with sweetened whipped cream and sprinkle with chopped pistachio nuts or toasted almonds.

OR, if desired, for fussier dessert for each one of the 3 fillings, soften 2 teaspoons gelatin in 1 tablespoon fruit juice (leftover pineapple or apricot) and stir to dissolve over hot water. Stir into fruit filling. Chill. When partially set, fold into it 1 cup of sweet whipped cream (that is 1 cup whipped cream for each fruit filling.) This latter is beautiful. Cake should stand at least 3 hours before serving. If covered carefully without cover touching it could stand and be improved by it — overnight.

Use your dining-room table for buffet service. This food will look beautiful on it. Pass tea or coffee, then keep going round with the tray or hors d'ouvres and toast fingers and potato chips. Pass the slice of rainbow cake on bread-and-butter or tea plates with forks. Girls should have some place to stand their cups. You may buy very pretty little shower serviettes.

I hope readers who are thinking of giving showers will clip this — for it is long-winded and has taken up a lot of valuable newspaper space. Good luck, E.S. — if you do not understand some of this, you still have time to write again.

WHATMAN—In loving memory of Mrs. Roy Whatman, who passed away six years ago today, February 16th.
When days are dark and friends are few,
Dear mother, how we think of you,
Friends are friends if they are true;
We lost our best friend when we lost you.
—Ever remembered by daughter Millie and husband.

WHATMAN—In loving an fond memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Roy Whatman, who passed away Feb. 16, 1946.
A wonderful mother, woman and aid;
One who was better, God never made
A wonderful worker, loyal and true
One in a million that mother, was you.
—Always remembered by—Charlie and Margaret and family.

WHATMAN—In loving memory of Mrs. Roy Whatman, who passed away six years ago, February 16, 1946.

WHATMAN—In loving memory of Mrs. R. Whatman who passed away six years ago today.
We do not forget her, we love her too dearly,
For her memory to fade from our lives like a dream;
Our lips need not speak when our hearts mourn sincerely.
For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.
—Lovingly remembered by Edward and family.

WHATMAN—In loving memory of Mrs. R. Whatman, who passed away six years ago today.
Yes, she sleeps but not forever,
In a lone and silent grave,
Blessed promise she shall waken
Jesus died the lost to save.
In the dawning of the morning,
When the troubled night is o'er
All the buds in beauty blooming
Will rejoice to see her more,
—Lovingly remembered by Wilfred, Roy and Ronald.

WHATMAN—In loving memory of Mrs. Roy Whatman, who passed away six years ago today, February 16, 1946.

And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep
Her memory we shall always keep.

Stocks Tumble In Sharpest Drop Of 12 Weeks

By DICK BAIDEN,
Canadian Press Staff Writer. ....

Prices tumbled this week for the sharpest stock market loss in more than 12 weeks as investors and speculators withdrew support.

Only golds managed to buck the week's four-day decline—the market was closed in observance of the King's funeral—as sporadic support buoyed a scattered list of issues. Industrials, base metals and western oils declined steadily despite feeble rallying attempts.

The week's drop was regarded generally as an intensification of last week's irregular decline which, in turn, was precipitated by a sharp dip in New York the previous week.

Since the recession started, about Jan. 30, the Toronto Stock Exchange's industrial index has dropped more than nine points while the base metal and western oil indices slipped more than four points. Industrial activity was confined largely to leading issues but observers noted that, unlike last week, the volume of shares traded did not decrease as prices dipped.

Turnover Moderate

Western oils and base metals continued to draw speculative interest but individual turnovers were moderate. Golds confirmed earlier professional predictions, however, by remaining firm while other securities weakened.

Toronto opened the week Monday with mixed, steady trading. Prices closed sharply lower. Papers eased in Montreal while industrials traded firmly.

Tuesday's Toronto trading followed the same pattern. Papers continued to slip in Montreal while industrials showed little change.

In Toronto Wednesday, prices were steady until mid-session when a sudden wave of selling dropped a wide list of issues. In Montreal papers maintained a steady decline.

Final-hour support Thursday buoyed Toronto's golds and checked steadily weakening industrial, base metal and western oil prices. Montreal papers and industrials dipped.

N. Y. Prices Slip

New York prices slipped quietly Monday in a quiet pre-holiday market. The exchange closed on Tuesday in observance of Lincoln's birthday and turned lower again Wednesday. Rails and steels led the market downward Thursday but rallied yesterday, until hit by a final hour wave of selling.

From Friday to Friday, the Toronto Stock Exchange indices showed industrials down 4.80 at 332.35, golds up .27 at 81.29, base metals down 4.45 at 127.14 and western oils down 5.63 at 132.51.

In the Montreal averages, industrials down 4.2 at 222.5, combined down 3.0 at 177.4, papers down 9.52 at 781.33 and golds down .53 at 65.41.

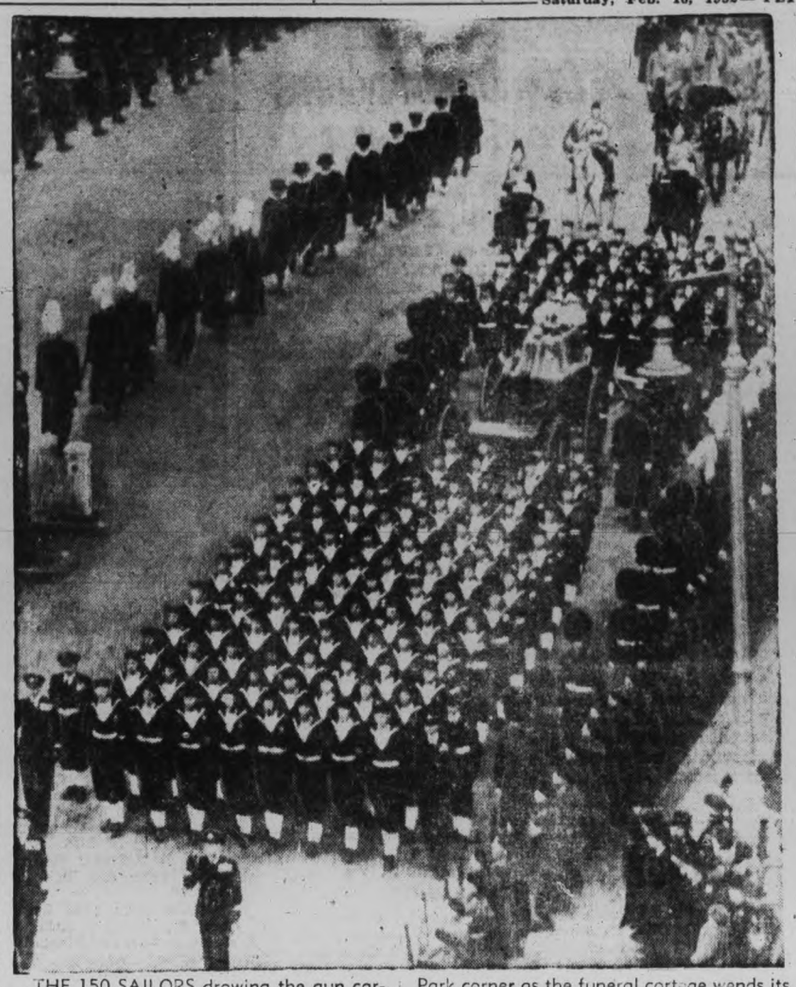
In New York, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped $1.10 to $99.80.

Communion Service On Day Of Mourning

MARMORA, Feb. 16 (ENS)—In connection with the national day of mourning for King George VI a celebration of Holy Communion was held at St. Paul's Anglican Church, rector, Canon J. M. Brownlie officiating.

Brief mention was made of the mourning of the Royal Family and the subjects of the Queen.

The Te Deum was sung at the close of the service followed by "God Save the Queen".



THE 150 SAILORS drawing the gun carriage on which the coffin of King George rested, move slowly toward London's Hyde Park corner as the funeral cortege wends its way to Paddington Station for the journey by train to Windsor.

King's Life Governed By Christianity

Millions of his subjects the world over have been standing in spirit at the Royal Tomb today, mourning our late Sovereign King George VI, Archdeacon C. W. Balfour said in delivering the tribute at the Friday evening memorial service in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

He was a monarch whose life and endeavour were governed by the Christian principles which make for universal brotherhood and peace among nations, declared the archdeacon.

"His interest, understanding and friendliness were but manifestations of his desire as a truly human person to be loved, here as elsewhere by his people. We also pay tribute to our recent Sovereign for his bright example of the humble virtues and for his innate goodness and outstanding kingliness."

Interest In Family

Referring to the late King's interest in his family and the "sanctity of family life," which he emphasized in his annual Christmas broadcasts, Archdeacon Balfour said, "to that home, to the care and love of its royal parents, we owe the promising character of that elder daughter, the young but able Queen Elizabeth."

"Already by her recent visit to our country we have fallen under her charm. Already greatly admired, we know she too, will draw forth our love."

The inner goodness of King George stemmed from a religion which was not based upon emotion but upon a reverent sense of God's presence in his daily life, the archdeacon said. "It was the secret of his humbleness of mind and of the true kingliness which added lustre to the throne and caused him while bending to the lowliest command the respect, the esteem, the affection of the highest."

"We can best honor the memory of our departed King by following the King's Highway, that highway which he so resolutely trod and which alone can lead to life's highest values which make for peace on earth and goodwill to men."

The Rev. E. J. Whan of Park St. Baptist Church, lead in prayer, and the Rev. H. D. McCormack of St. James' United Church read the scripture lesson.

Memorial Service Held In Norwood

NORWOOD, Feb. 16 (ENS)—A portrait of King George VI draped in purple on the altar table, formed a fitting worship centre for the memorial service held on Friday afternoon at 3:30 p.m. in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church where members of all the Protestant churches of the village assembled.

The centre pews were occupied by the town council, Legion, I.O.D.E., High School Cadets, C.G.I.T. girls, Masons and Scouts who attended in a body.

Scripture passages, including the 90th Psalm, were read and special prayers said for the royal family and the new Queen by the Rev. H. F. Peasgood, Rev. W. J. Bingham, Rev. R. D. Duncanson and Rev. J. J. Shannon.

The Rev. H. K. Wright gave the address. He recalled incidents in the life of the King which showed at all times his devotion to his people, to the British Commonwealth and to his faith in God. Mr. Wright closed his address with the lines from Alfred Tennyson, "Ode on the Death of the Duke of Wellington".

Robin J. Runnett

The funeral for Robin James Runnett, 18 Wallace St., who died in Toronto General hospital Tuesday, was held Friday in All Saints' Anglican church.

The Rev. M. P. Poole of that church conducted the service.

Pallbearers were Robert Hayes, Uzal Waterman, Frank Allen, Ken Kempt, Karl MacKay, Fraser Dunfield. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Many Attend Special Services In Omemee

OMEMEE, Feb. 16 (ENS) — Memorial services in Omemee were well attended both in the churches on Friday and in Coronation Hall Thursday afternoon where a special service for the public and high schools was held.

For the school service programs were arranged by the Rev. Chas. Richmond of Christ Anglican Church and the Rev. Verne E. Zufelt of Trinity United Church. The service, which was conducted by the two ministers assisted by Principals J. B. Hough and L. M. Curtis, included a part of the late King's first New Year's message to the Empire, his favourite hymns, responsive reading from "Song of the Fathers", scripture and prayers.

There were also two brief addresses by the ministers on "What the King meant to me"; Mr. Richmond from the viewpoint of an English born citizen and Mr. Zufelt as a Canadian.

After one minute of silence and responsive prayer for the new Queen, a pledge of loyalty was taken followed by the National Anthem and the Benediction. The pledge reads: "I do promise that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II to her heirs and successors, according to law; so help me God."

Red Radio Jam Silent For King's Funeral

LONDON, Feb. 16—(Reuters)—The Russians paid an oblique tribute to the King Friday by easing up on their jamming of western broadcasts during the funeral of the late monarch.

The BBC had announced in its Russian programs since Tuesday that transmissions in Polish and Russian would be cancelled today between 2 p.m. and 2.45 p.m., the time when the King was laid to rest.

The BBC explained that the wave-lengths used to pierce the Iron Curtain would be used to increase coverage of the funeral in English, French, German, Italian, Greek, Finnish, Danish and Norwegian transmissions.

"A check showed that on about half of these additional wavelegths the jammers, for once, remained silent," an official satement said last night.

The funeral for Walter Hamblin Kidd, 409 Driscoll Terrace, who died in Civic Hospital Tuesday was held Friday from the Comstock funeral home.

The Rev. Ivan C. Morgan of Murray St. Baptist chirch, conducted the service.

Pallbearers were James Ellis, Wilfred Shiner, E. Lewis Horning, Harry H. Graham, Walter Garbutt, Douglas A. Loomis. Burial was in Warsaw cemetery.

L.O.L. Officers Installed By R. Sanderson

WARKWORTH, Feb. 16 (ENS) —Members of the L.O.L. held their annual county meeting in the Town Hall here Tuesday with a large attendance from Northumberland County and East Peterborough.

Installation of officers was conducted by Richard Sanderson, the Deputy Grand Master of Ontario East. The following officers were installed:

Douglas McVety, Warkworth, County Master; John Prosses, Castleton, Deputy County Master; Mr. Farrell, Hilton, Chaplain; Harold Spencer, Campbellford, Recording Secretary; A. Barnum, Campbellford, Financial Secretary; Percy Moore, Codrington, Treasurer; Mr. Wilks, Dundonald, First Lecturer; Harry Hitchinson, Norham, Second Lecturer; Fred Skinkle, Warkworth, County Marshal.

Following the business meeting about 60 memebrs enjoyed the banquet served by the Women's Association.

The program consisted of addresses by the Rev. H. G. Lester, the Rev. J. M. Ritchie of Warkworth, and Mr. Sanderson and Mr. Gordon Stevenson of East Peterborough.

School Children

and the instruments were handed out.

Then the fun really began; the pupils had to be taught how to play.

"Why some students couldn't even name the instrument and in some cases couldn't tell one end from the other," said Mr. Croasdale, adding, "They all started from scratch."

Rhythm exercises were the first chore, followed by the easy numbers, then the more difficult, until all could play like veterans.

Last April the band undertook a concert, their first appearance, and it was met by a "tremendous approval" by the audience. Critics noted the remarkable achievement that had been made in the short while. They played selections such as Abide With Me, Feith of Our Fathers, and the Springtime waltz.

Then in September the first results of the public school band were seen. Ten graduated to the P.C.V.S. concert band and the elementary school band was divided into two bands, a junior and senior. Progress was according to plan.

But the future with two collegiates presents a difficulty. The yearly graduates from the public school will mean more instruments needed for the collegiate band or bands. This matter will have to be discussed or the purpose of the elementary school band will be nullified.

Despite the fact that he has to have more patience with youngsters, Mr. Croasdale still prefers to teach children rather than adults.

"The children are more anxious to learn and take the constant nagging for mistakes better than adults," he explained.

Then again, there's a greater satisfaction watching the boys and girls progress through the years.

Inspired People Through Duty To His Nation

"Today we pay tribute to one who was a great king and a good man. One who was a great king, because he was good."

This tribute was part of eulogy to his late majesty King George VI given by the Rev. B. S. Morwood of Mark St. United Church at the memorial service in Murray St. Baptist Church Friday night.

"During the reign of George VI royal honor has not only been re-established, but increased and enhanced," Mr. Morwood said. "He inspired his subjects to respect his office, to honor his qualities of character and to love him for the man he was."

Mr. Morwood emphasized the supremacy of duty which was in evidence all through the late king's life. A sense of duty which to one who did not know him intimately was the outstanding feature of his life.

The minister drew a parallel between the late king and the prophet Ezekiel. Both of these men had great difficulties to overcome. Both suffered limitations and loneliness, but recognized their duty and set themselves to fulfill it.

"This sense of duty is revealed in three phases courage, discipline and hope," Mr. Morwood said.

The king's great courage was shown both in countless public appearances and speeches he made despite his handicap of speech and his remaining in London during the Battle of Britain to share the trials of his people, and encourage them in danger.

This courage had to be complemented by a discipline which made it posible for him to move freely among his people.

The Battle of Britain also revealed his great buoyant hope that the forces of truth, honor and goodwill would eventually prevail. This hope was best shown to his people in his Christmas and other messages.

"In all this sense of duty the king had, there was a deep faith in Almighty God and the good purposes of God for mankind," Mr. Morwood concluded. "The late king would have us consider our duty today as expressed in the words of Ezekiel, "and at even my wife died; and I did in the morning as I was commanded'."

The Rev. Ivan C. Morgan of Murray St. Church was in charge of the service.

Special music for the service was presented by the combined choirs of Murray St. and Mark St. churches under the direction of Stanley Northrop, organist at Murray St. Church. The choirs sang the anthem, Souls Of The Righteous, by Noble.

Letters Relate Heroism In Egypt

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 16 (AP) Canadians here Friday said personal letters from Cairo, Egypt, told details of the heroic death during the Cairo riots of J. Macleod Boyer, Canadian trade commissioner.

The lettters said Boyd died trying to convince a woman to jump from the second-storey window of the Turf Club, set afire by the rioting mobs. Boyer, a native of Victoria, N.B., died January 26.

"Boyer was seen at the window trying to persuade Mrs. Crawford to jump," wrote one man, who saw the incident from another building. "Then, after some time, both were seen to fall back. They died of asphyxiation. He had turned his automobile over to one of the employees of the embassy so she could go home, and took refuge in the Turf Club.

Poured Kerosene

"The mob poured kerosene on the building. Those who had taken refuge upstairs began to jump out of windows, landing on the cement areaway below. Mrs. Reid jumped, and the mob tried to pour kerosene on her and burn her. But an Egyptian employee stood over her with a gun and refused to allow any of the mob to touch her. Then we saw Thomas, the club secretary, jump.

"Ivan Kilpatrick, manager of the Royal Insurance Company, and a club overseer were able to get them hidden, and later to a hospital where they are recovering."

Dana Andrews Free Man, Buys Contract

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 16 (AP)—For the first time since his movie career began, Dana Andrews is a free man.

The handsome leading man bought his way out of his contract with Samuel Goldwyn, who shared Andrews' talents with 20th-Fox. "I had to pay him $100,000," said the actor, "but it was worth it."

His current film, "Assignment—Paris," is his last under the old Goldwyn deal. Andrews wanted to break the contract so he would be able to enter an attractive deal with director Mark Robson. The latter plans to sail to the South Seas to film one of the stories from "Return To Paradise," the best-seller by James Michener. Robson wants Andrews for the leading role.

Parks Returns

Larry Parks is coming out in the public eye again, after remaining in hiding since he testified in Washington he had been a Communist. This week he made an anti-Communist speech before an American Legion meeting in Monrovia. He also showed up at the Photoplay dinner with his wife, Betty Garrett.

His only unreleased film, "Love Is Better Than Ever," will be shown soon . . .

Corn Pays Off

At 70, Cecil B. DeMille is finally reaping the awards. He was given a special Oscar last year, won a Photoplay award and will be honored by Hollywood foreign correspondents next week.

The oldtimer was long overlooked by the Academy and others who dealt out awards for "artistic merit." Now the award-givers realize that corn can't be ignored, particularly such a popular variety as DeMille's.

Mounties Show Pupils Films

BANCROFT, Feb. 16 (ENS). — Royal Canadian Mounted Police were hosts to the students of North Hastings High School and the senior pupils of Bancroft and L'Amable public schools when they showed them moving pictures illustrating the work of the force, in Bancroft theatre Tuesday afternoon.

Sgt. W. Gabeau, of R.C.M.P. headquarters, Ottawa, and Corporal H. Hancock, of the Belleville detachment were in charge of the program for the afternoon. Before the pictures, Sgt. Gabeau told briefly the history of the Mounties from their establishment in 1873 until the present day. He stressed the fact that the force was one of the agencies that cooperated with the home, school, church and municipal authorities in promoting good citizenship among the young people of Canada.

The sound film aptly illustrated some important events in the story of the R.C.M.P. Starting with the first post at Fort Welsh in Southwestern Saskatchewan in the period just after the first Riel rebellion the girls and boys saw how the small body that policed the former Hudson's Bay territories grew into the present efficient organization that operates on land, sea and air from Esquimalt and Lunenburg to Aklavik and King William's Land.

Also included were scenes from the R.C.M.P. training colleges at Regina and Rockcliffe, showing a number of courses that are covered by the new recruits, and stressing the comprehensive training program that includes such varied subjects as equitation, counterfeiting, swimming, and cattle brands.

Arrangements for the afternoon were made by Corporal A. F. Grayling of Bancroft detachment O.P.P., and Alexander W. Smith, Inspector of Public Schools, North Hastings inspectorate. Bancroft theatre was donated by manager Gordon Broughton.

HOUSE No. 1034.—See how the trees have given atmosphere for this gem of a cottage, which, although set in a community of fine homes, stands out as one of the finest in its class. For anyone enthusiastic about Colonial furniture, rugs and pewter, here is the ideal setting for all these treasures. While there is no slashing imitation of any particular Colonial feature in the house, its atmosphere is none-the-less 18th century — perhaps it is it honesty and simplicity. In convenience, however, the house is strictly modern. The dining room-living room arrangement is appealing. Both the master bedroom and the guest room are well proportioned. As the latter has no closet, this is just the spot for that quaint old wardrobe you were tempted to buy — but had no place to put! For working drawings, write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

Retaining Architect Said Most Valuable Protection

An architect is trained to make the most of a site—to advise on the type and size of house that should be erected. He works congenially with his clients, appreciating that they often have good ideas which should not be discouraged. At the same time, with tact and understanding, he is able to guide them in what is good and bad in architecture.

Nothing gives a person more pleasure than living in a beautifully designed building. You never tire of it; you admire it day in and day out. It is a continual source of enjoyment not only to yourself but to all who regard it.

What produces the greatest happiness is the knowledge that your house is architecturally good; that all who pass it look twice, and nobody goes by without a glance, happier and more contented for having seen it. This is one of the essential reasons why you should employ an architect. His training is such that you cannot fail to be satisfied.

Entrance Example

The entrance is a case in point. Even if it were the only feature of the design, it would be well worth the architect's fee. How happy to be able to say, "The entrance to my house is such that every time I enter I love it more, and when I leave it, I look back to impress it on my memory."

Of course, good architecture is more than skin deep. Attractive exterior appearance, although of major interest, is by no means the most important aspect of the architect's ability to serve you.

Within the building you live, entertain, bring up your family. Every room must be arranged so that it fulfils its function easily and efficiently. The hall, stair, living room, dining room, kitchen and playroom—to give full pleasure and satisfaction—must be carefully planned and designed. Colors for decoration must be individually chosen and applied.

What is more important to your comfort than the proper selection and installation of plumbing and heating equipment? Your architect's knowledge in this field is of inestimable value. He can advise you with authority on the latest developments, and help you choose the type of furnace, boiler, radiation, fixtures, piping and fittings best suited to your needs.

No one is better qualified than an architect to size up the value of a property. Lending institutions often consult him for this very purpose.

An architect has the ability to analyze and prepare a dependable report on an existing building. He can tell you whether its condition and locality are such that it is worth altering. He knows the life span of materials and the cost of their replacement. An architect can see, almost at a glance, what must be done to make an older house more habitable and up-to-date. It takes him only a moment to sketch suggested improvements for you.

Gets Best Prices

By calling for competitive tenders the architect finds a reliable builder who will sign a contract to erect or alter your house at the most favorable price to you. The architect then makes sure that you get the fine quality of materials and workmanship required by his drawings and specifications. He knows all the trades and their responsibilities. Through strict inspections you are assured that when the building is finished it will be well constructed. The architect also certifies as to the correctness of the contractor's accounts.

Home-ownership is the largest investment you are likely to make in your entire lifetime. The fact that retention of an architect is your most valuable protection in building or remodelling is well recognized by mortgage companies. Invariably they give you a more generous appraisal than would otherwise be the case. This means a smaller down payment for you.

Design of the Modern Homes Sparks New Heating Ideas

It's the great outdoors that rate a calculating glance from the weather eyes of home heating engineers these days. Well aware of the obvious — that temperature changes outside affect those inside a house — the experts nevertheless have come up with new ways to keep the interior climate several comfortable jumps ahead of a falling thermometer.

According to recent studies, zone control of heating which takes advantage of outdoor conditions to provide sensitive indoor climate control eliminates the guesswork from the daily thermostat setting. Two thermostats —one in each of the areas affected by the shifting winds or sun — are better than one and provide better-living insurance for any household, they maintain.

Today's well-designed house, particularly the popular ranch type, has stimulated the trend toward real indoor climate control. Because of the spread-out design of these new home, one section of the house may face the sun while another is sheltered. Obviously the heating needs will vary. Changes in weather and room occupancy, too, are factors that may cause some rooms to be colder than others. There also may be wide difference in glass areas.

The practical solution—and one specified by the architects who are designing the popular houses—is to fit the heating system to the home's natural heating areas and provide thermometer control for each zone.

The zone thermostat accurately senses changing conditions in its zone, including the influence of outdoor conditions, and monitors the heat entering the zone according to need.

The problem of determining the number of zones varies not only with the design of the house, but also with the living habits of the occupants. One home may require a separate zone for the recreation room, in addition to a zone for the balance of the house. Another may require a zone for the sleeping quarters in addition to the main living quarters.

Comfort, flexibility in temperature control and economies in fuel are the primary reasons for the growing popularity of zoning.

DRINK Coca-Cola TRADE MARK REG. PLAY REFRESHED

SIGHTLESS SINGERS—These pupils from the Ontario School for the Blind at Brantford, Ont., are enthusiastic about their production of Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta "The Mikado" to be presented to Brantford and Toronto audiences in late March. Eunice Helm of Lucknow, Ont., is seen showing respect for Greta Thederahn of Calgary, left, and Maurice Loshuk of Ottawa, portraying Katisha and the Mikado respectively.

Blind Pupils Present Light Opera

BRANTFORD, Ont., Feb. 16—(CP) — Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado", will be staged here March 22 by 70 girls and boys. Many of them learned their lines by hearing rather than reading, their dances by feel rather than sight.

The young actors and actresses come from across Canada. All are students at the Ontario School for the Blind and most of them are sightless. For weeks they have been rehearsing for the spirited production which will be taken to Toronto's Eaton Auditorium March 27. Another performance will be given April 21 at Woodstock.

Maurice Loshuk of Ottawa plays "The Mikado", in the production while Lorraine Jackson of Galt, Ont., is "Yum-Yum" and Albert Pepin, Winnipeg as "Nanki-Poo".

Others in the cast include: Eunice Helm of Lucknow, Ont., as "Pitti Sing", Dolores Magel of Winnipeg, as "Peep-Bo", Greta Thederahn of Calgary, as "Katisha"; Ronald Edwards, Toronto, as "Koko"; Donald Rawson of Ocher River, Man., as "Pooh-Bah"; Douglas McCallum of Ottawa as "Pish-Tush".

Ready For Emergencies

Miss Vera Kellett, a teacher at the Institute who has been training the students in the libretto, says the cast usually is chosen so that persons with limited vision appear in scenes with the totally blind. Thus should emergencies arise during a performance those who can see a little are able to help those who cannot.

However, the students are encouraged to find their own aids. Miss Kellett recalled that in a recent production of another opera, a dance was required in one of the scenes. A blind member of the cast asked to be placed behind a performer who carried a parasol that clicked.

Miss Kellett said that she could not notice any click in that particular property. However, the student insisted that he knew exactly what to do if he could hear the clicking noise.

In some important scenes in "The Mikado", there will not be any one on stage with any sight at all. Teachers will stand in the wings to help the blind members of the cast on and off stage.

Farmers Armed For War On Warbles-Weeds

Those spraying machines bought by six of the south Peterborough townships last year were double-barelled, one for warble flies and the other for noxious weeds along the roadsides.

Intimations of their second campaign are noted in Examiner reports of purchase of derris powder for warbles that escaped the 1951 treatment. As for the weeds, goat's beard, wild carrot, ragweed and their companions, and their background barberry and buckthorn bushes, they'll get another going over in early June and later.

So it was said at a meeting in the county council chamber of rural municipal officials, especially weed inspectors, Thursday afternoon.

Warden R. R. Stewart was appointed chairman, Ken Fallis of the Ontario Department of Agriculture was the botanical speaker on the herbaceous enemies of the farmer. About 25 men were present. The meeting took shape out of a preliminary discussion some weeks ago by Melville Johnston, county weed inspector, Frank C. Paterson and several others, including Mr. Fallis.

Sentiment of Thursday's meeting was that the struggle against the weeds on the noxious list has only begun. Promisingly significant was the fact that the spraying machinery is in hand. Reeve James Humphries of Asphodel township said their machine had travelled 40 miles of township road on spot spraying last season.

The most numerous and threatening stands of weeds were gunned in that action, and Reeve Humphries said: "We are doing our best to bring them under control".

Mr. Fallis said one clause in the nine pages of the Weed Control Act contained the import of all the rest. "Every occupant of land, or if the land is unoccupied, the owner, shall destroy all noxious weeds thereon as often in every year as is necessary to prevent the ripening of seeds".

There is another clause that says every county council shall appoint one or more persons as inspectors.

Mr. Johnston has succeeded Alex Huston, and Mr. Fallis commented that both of these men as inspectors were sensible and discreet in trying to bring about more active practice of weed control.

Threat of the spread of wild carrot was emphasized. Mr. Fallis said it should be taken in hand at once while it was just beginning to get established. Goat's-beard should be sprayed earlier this coming season than in 1951.

Spurge is comparatively scarce in this district. "If that weed settles down on a farm it will really put a man on the road", Mr. Fallis said.

Ragweed, chicory, golden rod, and other weeds were mentioned in passing.

Six-foot swath with a mower on the shoulder was good practice, Mr. Fallis recommended with spraying. In clover and hay fields yellow rocket that looks like mustard could be pulled early. It is in flower before May 24.

Common barberry as a source of leaf rust attacking wheat, oats and barley should not be confused with Japanese barberry used for hedges, Mr. Fallis said.

Those were only a few of the topics in a general discussion that stressed the importance of weed control. Co-operation with inspectors was urged.

This meeting should have practical effect in the 1952 season. It sharpened attention on the weed menace to agriculture and profitable farming. The present degree of tolerance of weed seeds in No. 1 to 3 grades of seed was mentioned, and to Reeve Gifford of Ennismore the proportion was "alarming".

Freda Gummer gave the scripture reading and Edna Cochrane led in prayer. After seeing the slides and participating in a sing-song while lunch was being prepared, the meeting adjourned.

DRINK Coca-Cola TRADE MARK REG. PLAY REFRESHED

SIGHTLESS SINGERS—These pupils from the Ontario School for the Blind at Brantford, Ont., are enthusiastic about their production of Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta "The Mikado" to be presented to Brantford and Toronto audiences in late March. Eunice Helm of Lucknow, Ont., is seen showing respect for Greta Thederahn of Calgary, left, and Maurice Loshuk of Ottawa, portraying Katisha and the Mikado respectively.

Blind Pupils Present Light Opera

BRANTFORD, Ont., Feb. 16—(CP) — Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado", will be staged here March 22 by 70 girls and boys. Many of them learned their lines by hearing rather than reading, their dances by feel rather than sight.

The young actors and actresses come from across Canada. All are students at the Ontario School for the Blind and most of them are sightless. For weeks they have been rehearsing for the spirited production which will be taken to Toronto's Eaton Auditorium March 27. Another performance will be given April 21 at Woodstock.

Maurice Loshuk of Ottawa plays "The Mikado", in the production while Lorraine Jackson of Galt, Ont., is "Yum-Yum" and Albert Pepin, Winnipeg as "Nanki-Poo".

Others in the cast include: Eunice Helm of Lucknow, Ont., as "Pitti Sing", Dolores Magel of Winnipeg, as "Peep-Bo", Greta Thederahn of Calgary, as "Katisha"; Ronald Edwards, Toronto, as "Koko"; Donald Rawson of Ocher River, Man., as "Pooh-Bah"; Douglas McCallum of Ottawa as "Pish-Tush".

Ready For Emergencies

Miss Vera Kellett, a teacher at the Institute who has been training the students in the libretto, says the cast usually is chosen so that persons with limited vision appear in scenes with the totally blind. Thus should emergencies arise during a performance those who can see a little are able to help those who cannot.

However, the students are encouraged to find their own aids. Miss Kellett recalled that in a recent production of another opera, a dance was required in one of the scenes. A blind member of the cast asked to be placed behind a performer who carried a parasol that clicked.

Miss Kellett said that she could not notice any click in that particular property. However, the student insisted that he knew exactly what to do if he could hear the clicking noise.

In some important scenes in "The Mikado", there will not be any one on stage with any sight at all. Teachers will stand in the wings to help the blind members of the cast on and off stage.

Massey Arrives To Take Over Vice-Regal Post

TRENTON, Feb. 18. (CP)—Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey said Sunday night that he believed the death of the King had more than a fleeting effect on many world problems. Canada's governor-general designate, who arrived here in a special R.C.A.F. plane from London Sunday—the day Viscount Alexander, his predecessor, left—said the sudden ending of so great and good a life had suspended controversies at many points throughout the world.

"I really think that many men of many conflicting views realized that an example of greatness and goodness had been given them by their sudden realization of the man who was gone," Mr. Massey told a press conference. "The world was impressed, and for the world's benefit, I think."

Mr. Massey's plane left London Saturday and it paused at Lisbon to drop off External Affairs Minister Pearson and Defence Minister Claxton for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization conference.

Plane Late

Buffeted by adverse winds all the way from the Azores to Gander, Nfld., the plane arrived two hours and 11 minutes late. Mr. Massey was greeted by Health Minister Martin on behalf of the federal government.

Accompanying him to Canada on the plane were General H. D. G. Crerar, who attended the King's funeral, and Air Vice Marshal Hugh Campbell, representative of the joint chiefs of staff for Canada at the N.A.T.O. offices in Washington.

Mr. Massey spoke by telephone Sunday night to Viscount Alexander, who was in Halifax on his way home to take office as Britain's defence minister. Mr. Massey said later that they extended best wishes to each other in their future undertakings.

Asked at the Trenton press conference whether it could be expected that a Chatelaine would assume the duties of hostess at Rideau Hall, the governor-general's residence in Ottawa, Mr. Massey grinned:

"Please don't ask me such a question. I really can't answer."

Mr. Massey, who will be Canada's first native-born governor-general, said he planned to stay at Batterwood, his home near Port Hope, until Feb. 27. He said he would go to Ottawa that night for the official installation ceremonies Feb. 28.

Rockingham Leaving Korea For Hdqts. Job

OTTAWA, Feb. 18 (CP)—Brig. John M. Rockingham, 41, C.B.E., D.S.O., the big, tough fighting man who commands Canada's 25th Brigade in Korea, is coming home to a job at defence headquarters.

The army announced today that the man whose brigade calls itself "Rocky's Army" will return to Canada in the spring to become director-general of military training for the army. The appointment means the army's training schools will soon be learning the lessons of Korea from a top authority.

BRIG. M. P. BOGERT

One of the most colorful soldiers Canada has produced, Brig. Rockingham will turn over his brigade to Brig. M. P. (Pat) Bogert, D.S.O., O.B.E., 43, a native of Toronto who will simply swap jobs with him.

Quiet, friendly and efficient, Brig. Bogert is a soldier with an excellent fighting record, too. He commanded the West Nova Scotia Regiment and later the 2nd Brigade with the 1st Division in Italy. He's not the dynamic type Rockingham is but among soldiers who fought under him there will be no doubt that the 25th Brigade is passing into good hands.

Brig. Rockingham is the man who was working in an important civilian job in Victoria — he had just had a promotion—when he got a phone call in August, 1950, from Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, then chief of the general staff.

"Want to go back to war?" asked Gen. Foulkes.

"Give me 20 minutes to make up my mind," said Brig. Rockingham.

The change in command is in line with the general policy of rotation which aplies to all officers and men serving with the Canadian Brigade in the Far East.

Brig. Bogert is to report to brigade headquarters about April 15 and the actual change of command will take place at a date dependent upon operational circumstances at the time. Brig. Rockingham will then return to Canada for leave prior to assuming his new duties.

Television Camera AidsAtomExperiments

MELBOURNE, Feb. 18 (Reuters)—A television camera near the proposed test site of a British atom weapon this year may give observers a closer look at an atomic explosion than they have ever had before.

It was reported today that the camera may be set up to allow ovservers to a close-up view from a safe distance.

The biggest team of scientists ever assembled in Australia will gather for the test. Observers from the United States and Canada may attend.

Prime Minister Robert Menzies said today his government will co-operate closely in the British test, first ever staged.

He did not say where it would be held, but reports from Canberra said it would be either on part of the Woomera rocket range in the central desert or elsewhere in the "dead heart" of Australia.

Queen Mother's Plea

"Give Loyalty and Devotion To Our Dear Daughter"

WINDSOR, Feb. 18 (CP) — Queen Mother Elizabeth Sunday thanked the peoples of the world for their sympathy at the death of the King and asked for "your protection and love" for Queen Elizabeth II.

In a moving message issued after she and Princess Margaret had attended a memorial service in the Windsor chapel for the King, the Queen Mother referred to the "great and lonely station" to which Elizabeth II had been called.

"I commend you to our dear daughter," she said. "Give her your loyalty and devotion.

"I want you to know how your concern for me has upheld me in my sorrow, and how proud you have made me by your wonderful tributes to my dear husband, a great and noble King.

"He loved you all, every one of you, most truly.

"Now, I am left alone . . ."

"Throughout our married life we have tried, the King and I, to fulfill with all our hearts and all our strength the great task of service that was laid upon us. My only wish now is that I may be allowed to continue the work we sought to do together," the elder Elizabeth said.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh also spent the weekend at Windsor Castle.

As the Royal Family prayed, memorial services were held in great cathedrals and tiny village churches throughout Britain.

A line of mourners filed past St. George's chapel, where the King was buried, to pay homage in the drizzling rain.

Queen Mary, whose 84 years kept her from joining in the funeral cortege, remained at Marlborough House in London.

Windsor Castle officials Sunday opened the grounds to the people after dark so that they might see the multi-colored flowers and wreaths on the ground outside the chapel by floodlight. The grounds will remain open to the public today. The pilgrimage is expected to last several days.

It was estimated that nearly 150,000 persons saw the floral tributes Saturday. Nearly 10,000 were turned away at dusk.

Saturday the young Queen spent most of the day at home with her children and her husband. She visited for half an hour with Queen Mary and the Duke of Windsor at Marlborough House, and later was visited by her mother and Princess Margaret.

Agency Says Minister Has Accepted

Have No Indication Pearson Leaving Report From Ottawa

LISBON, Feb. 18. (CP)—Reuters News Agency today quoted official sources as saying that External Affairs Minister Pearson of Canada has indicated willingness to accept the post of permanent secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

LESTER B. PEARSON

The report from official sources followed speculation in London newspapers last week that Pearson might be appointed to head N.A.T.O.'s international staff.

If the Canadian minister should take the job he would have to leave the Canadian cabinet which Ottawa sources said earlier he was unwilling to do.

Often Mentioned

Pearson has often been tipped for high appointments in both N.A.T.O. and the United Nations.

It was indicated earlier this month that Pearson was willing to run for presidency of the seventh U.N. General Assembly next fall.

The office of N.A.T.O. secretary-general is expected to be created at the current meeting here of the North Atlantic Council, of which Pearson is chairman.

Youth Admits Setting 46 Fires

MONTREAL, Feb. 18 —(CP)—Police said today Victor Lefevbre, 23, admitted setting 46 fires in Montreal during the last 18 months, including one in which two fire department officials died.

Police said the youth told them his ambition was to become a fireman but because he had only three years of schooling was unable to join the department.

They quoted him as saying: "I used to dream about fires."

Police said Lefevbre was arrested Sunday night when he rushed into an east end fire station asking where the fire was before an alarm had sounded. When the alarm sounded a few minutes later, he was picked up.

Police said a trap had been laid for weeks. Detention warrants were issued so police can hold Lefevbre in connection with the deaths last October of Capt. Leopold Cote and Lieut. Paul Emile Naud.

Communists Seize Four Ships In China

HONG KONG, Feb. 18 (CP) — Four Canadian-built ships, for which a Chinese company owes Canadian banks a multi-million dollar debt, were reported today to have been taken over by Chinese Communists.

The independent newspaper Wah Kiu Yat Po said the four ships have been commandeered by the Communists at Canton and partially dismantled.

The ships are part of a group of seven vessels built in Canada after the Second World War for the Ming Sung Company, a Chinese trading firm, with loans backed by the Chinese Nationalist government and the Canadian government.

Canada Making Jet Fighters For U.S.

Montreal Plant to Fill Latest Order From American Air Force

OTTAWA, Feb. 18 — (CP) — Canada is going to produce F-86 Sabre jet fighters for the United States Air Force and deliveries will begin almost immediately out of current production at the big Canadair Limited plant at Montreal.

This latest order for Sabres was announced Sunday night and will be in addition to contracts Canadair has to produce the fighter for the R.C.A.F. and for the R.A.F. under a tri-country agreement between Canada, the United States and Britain.

The number of planes to be produced for the U.S. has not been disclosed and no details were given on the value of the contract. But information said it would mean "many millions of dollars" to Canada and will help this country balance her military purchases in the United States.

Canadair produces the Sabre jet airframe and imports radar, control instruments and other equipment including the General Electric J-47 jet engine, from the United States. Because of a scarcity of engines, production at the Montreal plant has been maintained at about 20 planes a month for the R.C.A.F. though the plant is capable of turning out four or five times that number.

To make jets available to the U.S. Air Force quickly, some of the engines Canada has previously ordered from the U.S. will be used to fill the American Air Force contract. But the R.C.A.F., building up jet squadrons to develop an 11-squadron air division in Europe, is not expected to suffer because of the American contract.

Canada has been importing about 20 engines a month. This likely will be stepped up to 30 a month later this year. And it will be stepped up even more when production begins, probably this fall, on the Sabres to be produced under the North Atlantic Mutual Aid program for the R.A.F.

Lt.-Governor Takes Oath

TORONTO, Feb. 18. (CP)—Louis O. Breithaupt, 61-year-old Kitchener manufacturer, was sworn in today as lieutenant-governor of Ontario. He succeeds Hon. Ray Lawson. The oath of office was administered by Chief Justice R. S. Robertson in the Cabinet chamber, in the presence of relatives, guests and Cabinet members. The new lieutenant-governor was escorted from his suite in the parliament buildings to the Cabinet chamber by the clerk of the Cabinet. Mr. Breithaupt presented his royal commission of appointment and then took the oath. The lieutenant-governor then was handed the Great Seal of the province. He examined the seal and returned it to the provincial secretary, Arthur Welsh, for safe keeping.

In an additional ceremony, Chief Justice Robertson and Reform Institutions Minister Foote took the oath of allegiance to the new Queen.

To Open Session

Mr. Breithaupt will open the first session of Ontario's 24th Legislature Thursday and read the speech from the throne.

He was formerly Liberal Member of Parliament for Waterloo North. His first political office was as a Kitchener alderman in 1919. At the age of 32 he became the youngest mayor in Kitchener's history.

Alexanders Sail For U.K. Say Canada Second Home

HALIFAX, Feb. 18. (CP)—The Alexanders, a wonderful English family who loved Canada and were loved in return, sailed Sunday night into the cold Atlantic with a soft snow beating against their backs.

Viscount Alexander returned to Britain and the big job as defence minister as the most popular and understanding governor-general in Canada's history.

Canadians admired his reserved by open manner, the way he did things, and perhaps most of all, the wholesome, solid scene that surrounded his family life.

Here, they said, was a man who likes Canadians.

He skied on the Gatineau country's gentle slopes, painted Canadian scenes, sloshed about Winnipeg's flood waters, shinnied down a brass fire station pole and won his air force wings.

With him when he boarded the liner Franconia were his wife, Lady Alexander, their son Brian, 12, and Susan, 3½. Their eldest son, Shane, 17, is attending Harrow and Rose, 19, will complete her course at McGill University before returning home.

In his farewell address he said that he and his family had spent the happiest six years of their life among the Canadian people.

"For us, Canada has become our second home, and we shall always look upon it as such....

"The affection and friendship of the Canadian people is one of my most treasured possessions, and I can never express in adequate terms my gratitude to you for all you have given me and my family during the six years we have lived in Canada."

He praised the choice of Canadian-born Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey as his successor as governor-general. Although he did not refer to him directly he said "....I am glad that it is to someone who is not only a personal friend of mine but one who is a distinguished and well-known man who has all the attributes and qualifications which will make him a worthy representative of our Queen."

Gracie Fields Weds In Capri

CAPRI, Italy, Feb. 18 (Reuters) —Singing star Gracie Fields and Boris Alperovic were married quietly here today in St. Stephen's Cathedral.

For Gracie, 54, it was the third marriage. For Alperovic, 48, who was born in Romanian Bessarabia, it was his first marriage.

The wedding was celebrated at 12:07 p.m. (6:07 a.m. EST) shortly after the couple's return from Rome earlier today.

The church was thronged with people of Capri, who had met the couple at the dock 1½ hours earlier and accompanied them to the church.

They had gone to Rome Thursday night amidst rumors of a rift in their romance. Gracie was indignant that reporters and photographers were waiting for her at the station there.

"I won't say anything", she said angrily.

U.S. Plans A-Tests

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP). —The United States Defence Department announced today that preparations for new atomic tests are under way in the Pacific. The brief announcement gave no hint as to the nature of the tests. They will be conducted at Eniwetok, remote Pacific atoll, by a joint team of experts from the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Atomic Energy Commission.

Full Membership Not For Germans

LONDON, Feb. 18—(CP)—The Big Three Foreign Ministers met with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today to tell him the West Germany so far can share in Atlantic Pact planning and strategy only as a member of the European army, not as a full member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The British, French and American diplomats joined Adenhauer at Britain's Foreign Office to tell him their answer to the West German parliament's demand for an equal voice in N.A.T.O. in exchange for German troops for Western defence.

Meeting here Sunday, State Secretary Dean Acheson, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman approved a plan outlining relations between the six-country European Defence Community and N.A.T.O.

Want Russia Make Inspection

MUNSAN, Korea, Feb. 18. (AP) — The Communists today challenged Allied rejection of Russia's nomination to a neutral inspection commission which would help police a Korean truce. The Reds declared that by every standard the Soviet Union qualifies as a neutral.

Minutes earlier the Communists called off a full-dress meeting of truce negotiators—just as Allied delegates prepared to leave for Panmunjom to learn whether the Reds had accepted United Nations terms for a Korean peace conference.

There was no explanation. But the Communists asked for another plenary session at 10 a.m. Tuesday (8 p.m. EST Monday).

Red staff officers demanded that the U.N. command explain its objection to Russia's nomination. The neutral nation commission would make behind-the-lines inspections during an armistice.

Call Temporary Halt To Immigration

HAMILTON, Feb. 18 (CP) — Andrew H. Frame, welfare commissioner, today called for a "temporary halt" to immigration by the federal government until the present unemployment situation eases.

He was commenting on a news report from Halifax quoting C.N.R. officials as stating that four liners were bringing nearly 3,000 new Canadians to Canada in five days.

"We still have two bad months ahead," Mr. Frame said. "While it is a federal government responsibility, we can't let their children starve. The unfortunate thing is that many of them leave good jobs to come out here."

Queen Elizabeth To Hold Investiture Feb. 27 First Semi-Public Ceremony As Sovereign

LONDON, Feb. 18 (CP). — Queen Elizabeth will hold her first semi-public ceremony on February 27 at an investiture of honors in the New Year's list and awards announced since then, it was announced today.

About 100 persons will be summoned to attend the ceremony which will include the presentation of the Victoria Cross, the Commonwealth's highest award for valor, to Pte. William Speakman for heroism with British forces in Korea.

The Queen will also receive a number of relatives of servicemen to present to them posthumous awards.

The news of the Queen's first ceremony since the burial of her father last Friday was announced shortly after the Lord Chamberlain's office made it known that she wants public functions connected with Britain's government, trade, charity, or arts to take place as scheduled despite the period of mourning for the King.

The Lord Chamberlain's office said, however, that "holding of other functions must be left to the discretion of the organizers, who may wish to allow a week or two to elapse before recommending arrangements."

The period of court mourning ends May 31.

9,000 Ford Workers Strike To Back Demands, Burt Says Union Forced

Company Officials Charge Strike Called Over Fringe Monetary Demands; Picket Lines Set Up As Deadline Reached

WINDSOR, Feb. 18. (CP)—Nine thousand production workers are on strike at the big plant of the Ford Motor Company of Canada. The United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL) called the walkout Sunday night to enforce demands for items it wants included in a new contract. Its Canadian director, George Burt, said it was "forced" out on strike. The company, in a statement by its president, Rhys Sale, said the price the union asked in return for industrial peace was greater than the firm felt it could afford to pay. It accused the union of calling the strike over "fringe monetary demands" after agreement had been reached on all non-monetary provisions of a proposed cantract and on principal money matters.

Picket lines were set up as soon as the 10 p.m. deadline was reached. Few night-shift workers showed up, apparently, because most employees had little hope that a last-minute negotiating session by company union negotiators and Labor Minister Daley of Ontario would result in agreement.

The union agreed to keep the Ford power plant open. It was closed during a 12-day wildcat walkout last December and extensive damage was caused to the factory by severe weather.

A membership meeting has been called for Tuesday afternoon to hear a report of the executive board on the negotiations.

Mr. Burt said: "In my opinion the matters in dispute which have brought the present strike could be negotiated in time for the meeting but if they are not negotiated the strike is liable to last indefinitely."

Gave Up A Lot

Mr. Burt said in his statement that the issues remaining, by themselves, would not seem insurmountable.

"But it should be remembered that the union gave up almost every one of the major recommendations of the conciliation board in order to get at the items which remain—and then the company said we couldn't have them . . .

Norway Scores Double Win In Team Race

OSLO, Feb. 18 (AP)—Norway swept into first place in the winter Olympic Games team race today, scoring a brilliant double victory in the 18-kilometre cross-country race and the Nordic combined.

Halgeir Brenden travelled the 18 kilometres in the fastest time ever made for the distance.

Simon Slaatvik, winner of the ski-jumping half of the combined Sunday, travelled the 11¼-mile hill-and-dale course in 1:05.40 seconds to clinch victory in the two-event competition with an official point total of 450. Heikku Hasu, defending champion from Finland, had 444½ points.

Tops Austria

The 20 points for the first two place alone vaulted Norway from third place in the unofficial team race past Austria, the previous leaders, and the runner-up United States.

Hasu finished fourth in the 18-kilometre race, in 1:02.24. Tapio Makela, of Finland, was second in the 18-kilo event in 1:02.09. Paavo Linkila, of Finland, was third in 1:02.20. Nils Karlsson, of Sweden, was fifth in 1:02.56, while Martin Stokken, of Norway, gave his country another point by taking sixth in 1:03.00.

Scandinavian countries monopolized all of the first 10 places in the cross-country grind.

Canadians finished far back in the cross-country. Ottawa's Claude Richer was 49th in 1:13.15. Jacques Carbonneau, of St. Romuald, Que., was 67th in 1:17.37.

Bus Driver Being Charged

HAMILTON, Feb. 18 —(CP)— Thomas D. McKenzie, 58, of Toronto, driver of the Gray Coach bus that hurtled 150 feet down a ravine near the Rock Gardens Feb. 9, will appear in court here this week on charges of reckless and careless driving.

The accident happened as the bus, loaded with 13 passengers, was going from Hamilton to Toronto. The driver told police that it had skidded on icy roads as it was passing on to the bridge. Two persons were admitted to hospital and 10 treated for minor injuries as a result of the accident.

Can't Meet Targets

NATO Heads Disappointed Army, Air Force Quota Cut

LISBON, Portugal, Feb. 18 (AP) —The North Atlantic Council's temporary council committee of "wise men" is reported to be going to tell its bosses that Europe's economy can only support 75 per cent of the 50 to 60 divisions the Atlantic Allies had hoped to raise by 1953.

Informed sources said a supplemental report from the committee also would lower air-strength targets but would say that naval goals can be fully met.

The new report by W. Averell Harriman and representatives of the 11 other North Atlantic Organization members was prepared after each government had replied to the temporary committee's original blueprint for rearmament. The new plan goes before the N.A.T.O. council when it meets here Wednesday.

French inability to meet her original target of 15 divisions this year is largely blamed for the scaling down of land-force goals.

French economic problems, the large number of her forces tied down in Indo-China and a smaller amount of United States aid than French optimists expected are blamed for reducing the French potential.

Informed sources described as "too high" a report that the committee believed 90 per cent of the original air goal could be attained.

Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the United States Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Alphonse Juin, Inspector-General of the French Army, R.A.F. Marshal Sir John Slessor, who make up the military standing group, and Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, Canadian Chief of General Staff, met Sunday night with the Harriman committee's executive board.

They were reported to have reconciled in principle the one major military criticism of the supplemental report—but no one would hint what was that criticism.

Alexanders Go, Say 'So Long' Not Good-bye

OTTAWA, Feb. 18 (CP)—The Alexanders left Ottawa Saturday after six happy years—and after the train came back to get them.

Several thousand Canadians made it an exuberant, emotional and singing farewell.

The train for Halifax actually started away once without Lord and Lady Alexander and had to be stopped to come back and get them. The confusion arose when they climbed down from their car for a few final farewells.

That mistake only made the big, merry crowd roar louder than ever and sing For They Are Jolly Good fellows as the former Governor-General and his wife climbed back to their car and were borne away, waving and smiling.

Between them stood 12-year-old Brian and his blond hair hanging down in a cowlick and his eyes wet with tears.

The man who will become British defence minister March 1 spoke into a microphone. "I am not going to say good-bye because I hope to come back again from time to time, so I'll just say so long."

Touching Farewell

In the 25 minutes between the time he came in the greatcoat and uniform of a British field marshal to place a wreath on the National War Memorial until the train finally left, a touching farewell unfolded.

On wreath were the words: "In glorious memory of my fallen comrades."

Soldiers and airmen lined the street solidly to wall off the several thousand people who had come out into the cold.

Outside the station, as artillery guns boomed a 19-gun field marshal's salute, Lord Alexander reviewed a guard of honor from the Royal Canadian Dragoons. Then he went into the station, down a red carpet into a concourse where more hundreds were waiting.

Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret, Prime Minister St. Laurent, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, cabinet ministers, senior officials, the chiefs of staff, foreign diplomats, many of them with their wives, said personal farewells to Lord Alexander and Lady Alexander, a charming figure in a fur coat.

Earlier, Mayor Charlotte Whitton and the Ottawa Board of Control went to Rideau Hall to present the Alexanders the key to the city and a scroll expressing regret at their departure.

Government Stabilizes Pork Floor Price $26 Established

OTTAWA, Feb. 18. (CP)—The federal government Saturday took steps to prevent a possible sharp break in pork prices. It announced that a floor price of $26 a 100 pounds has been established for hogs coming on to the Canadian market between now and Sept. 30.

The Agriculture Department said it expects the action will stabilize the price of pork for both the consumer and the producer—the consumer will go on paying present-day prices and the producer will continue to be paid current prices.

A department official said the action was taken to prevent a possible sharp drop in pork prices. Hogs now are coming on to the market in large volume and it was possible that packers would force down prices sharply.

Such action would have driven some hog producers out of business. A shortage of pork would have developed and prices would have once again skyrocketed.

The price paid to producers, he said, has dropped from a high of $40 a 100 pounds to the current price of about $26 a 100.

Discontinue Policy

The Department announced that it has discontinued the policy of buying Wiltshire sides at $32.50 a 100 pounds. The Wiltshire sides were a processed pork product purchased to fill bacon contracts with the United Kingdom.

A Department official said the policy was discontinued because Canada no longer purchases Wiltshire sides for Britain.

Under the new program, the Department will pay not less than $26 a 100 pounds, warm dressed weight, for Grade-A carcasses at public stockyards at Toronto and Montreal. There will be price differentials for other principal stockyards throughout Canada. For instance, the price at Winnipeg will be $24.50.

Toronto Market Price

The official said the price of $26 was about what producers now are receiving in Montreal and Toronto.

He said it impossible to say at this stage whether the Agricultural Prices Support Board will be offered many hogs at the floor price. Hogs now are coming on to the market in increasing volume and it was possible that the price would break sharply.

If the government did not provide for price support, he said, the packers might push the price far below $26. Such action would drive some hog producers out of business and would result in a shortage of hogs later on. The shortage would mean that prices for pork would climb.

The government's action was aimed at preventing hog prices from falling so low that producers would be driven out of business.

Reviewed in September

The official said the situation likely will be reviewed in September and a decision made as to whether the price-support policy should be continued beyond September 30.

Under the new arrangement, the Agricultural Prices Support Board will offer to buy stocks of standard domestic pork cuts, held by Federally-inspected plants on September 30, at a price of 36½ cents a pound.

The announcement said the "policy was based on the expectation that it would not bring about the accumulation of any substantial surplus and that it would not establish prices at a level that would prevent exports."

It added:

"With the close relationship between the Canadian and United States economies it is undesirable that prices, particularly of commodities in which there is normally a two-way trade, should be forced out of line with one another.

"It is not in the interests of the producers to allow unsaleable surpluses to develop and, should it be found that the policy was having such an effect, it would be reviewed."

Find Wreckage Of Airliner, Report 34 Dead

BURGIO, Sicily, Feb. 18 (CP)—Police reached the wreckage of a British airliner on the side of nearby Mt. Rose today and reported all 34 aboard dead.

Although the airline operating the chartered craft said it was carrying 31—26 passengers and a crew of five, a police captain with the search party said he counted 34 bodies—17 men, 14 women and three children. A police communique from Sciacca, at the foot of the mountain where the crash occurred, said 25 of the 34 bodies were identified and attributed the disaster to icing of the wings.

The pilot was reported to be A. W. R. Perry.

Many of the victims were reported to be families of British soldiers stationed in Kenya, Britain's East African colony. The plane, a twin-motored Viking, was en route from London to Nairobi.

The Carabinieri captain commanding the search party said the plane crashed 3,600 feet up the mountain, which rises 4,500 feet near this little village 10 miles from the southeast coast of Sicily.

Bodies Scattered

He said the bodies were scattered over a wide area and many were stripped of their clothing. The plane did not burn and the dead were recognizable.

The plane was operated by a charter firm, Hunting Air Transport. It was last heard from late Saturday afternoon, an hour before it was due at Malta.

The wreckage was first sighted Sunday by another British passenger plane.

Airline officials withheld announcement of identities of the dead pending notification of next-of-kin.

Seaway Plan Will Increase Canada Strength

TORONTO, Feb. 18 (CP)—Expansion of power and navigation facilities through the St. Lawrence seaway will increase Canada's economic strength and versatility, Transport Minister Chevrier predicted today.

The minister spoke in an address prepared for delivery to the Canadian Club. It was one of a series he has been giving in Canada and the United States since parliament set up machinery in December for all-Canadian construction of the navigation phase of the project.

Mr. Chevrier called the seaway —which would deepen lake-river channels and develop 2,200,000 horsepower of hydro—"extremely urgent for both economic development and national defence."

Can't Do Without It

"We cannot afford to do without it," he said, and he added that the benefits to the United States would be just as great.

Of the seaway's role in defence, he said it would allow greater dispersal of production, important in war.

"The seaway," he said, "will permit any but the largest of naval and ocean vessels to be built in inland yards, adding flexibility and dispersal to a wartime shipbuilding program.

"You probably know that the Great Lakes yards made an outstanding contribution in small vessels during the Second World War. But did you know that 28 large submarines and 72 cargo vessels of 5,000 tons were built there (by the U.S.) and squeezed out with great difficulty through the Chicago drainage canal and the Mississippi river?

"A completed seaway would remove that limit on vessel size and permit expeditious movement into ocean service."

Market Prices Drop Sharply On Exchange

TORONTO, Feb. 18 — (CP) — Sharply weakening mid-session support today dropped early afternoon Stock Market prices abruptly.

Trading quickened as the session progressed. A few penny golds, Western oils and selected base metals attracted speculative interest while industrial dealings were mainly in leading issues. Volume for the first three hours was 1,545,000 shares.

Papers, constructions, steels and refining oils led industrials lower while utilities, agricultures, liquors and textiles weakened steadily. Banks bucked the trend with a scattered list of fractional gains.

Western oil losses ranged from pennies to about 75 cents. Calvan Consolidated, Canada Southern Oil, Canadian Williston, Gridoil, Pacific Petroleum and Superior were among the heaviest losers.

Base metal leaders weakened abruptly. Consolidated Smelters, Falconbridge, Golden Manitou, International Nickel, Labrador, Noranda and Waite Amulet traded lower.

Senior golds were firm but secondary issues turned lower.

Test U.K. Atomic Weapon In Australia During 1952

LONDON, Feb. 18 (Reuters) — The first test of an all-British atomic weapon will be made in Australia this year, the government anonunced Sunday.

The type of weapon was not disclosed in the brief announcement at Prime Minister Winston Churchill's official residence in London, 10 Downing Street.

The test, in the course of this year, will probably be at Woomera Range, a rocket testing ground dead in the centre of Australia and far from any settlements.

Britain, last November, raised the question of testing atomic weapons in the United States but decided on Australia after learning of U.S. security restrictions.

Churchill and his atomic chief, Lord Cherwell, are understood to have discussed the question with U.S. Atomic Energy Commission officials when they visited Washington last month.

George Strauss, supply minister in the former Labor Government, said almost a year ago that Britain was technically ready to produce atomic bombs.

A spokesman of the Supply Ministry refused to specify when asked if an atom bomb were to be tested or some other atomic weapon. He said the date had not yet been fixed.

British scientists helped develop the first atom bomb and took part in the Bikini Atoll tests in the Pacific after the war.

Since 1946, however, exchange of atomic information with the United States has stopped and Britain announced in 1948 that she was developing atomic weapons along her own lines.

Court Levies $71 Driving Fine

LINDSAY, Feb. 18 (ENS) — Two charges, now, are there? said defence counsel attorney R. I. Moore in court here Monday morning. "I guess it doesn't pay to wait. When we asked for a remand, there was only one charge."

Mr. Moore was speaking on behalf of John Hopkins, charged with drunk driving on February 9. Hopkins pleaded not guilty. Wesley Burke, driver of the other car involved, said he came over the Lindsay St. bridge on his own side of the road when he noticed a car coming toward him on the wrong side of the road. It kept coming and he tried to avoid it by swerving to the left but the oncoming vehicle struck the rear fender of his car and knocked it over to the left curb. Burke said that Hopkins might have had a couple of drinks. No evidence was called by the defence. Magistrate E. A. Gee reduced the charge to that of driving while ability was impaired by alcohol. "I think this is a case which shows clearly the wisdom of the government in amending the Criminal Code to include the lesser charge of impairment," said his worship. Hopkins was fined $50, and costs of $21.50 or 60 days. No evidence on another charge of driving on the wrong side of the road was heard.

"We gave in on the union shop. We dropped the voluntary overtime issue, despite the unanimous recommendation of the conciliators in favor of such overtime. We withdrew our request for a skilled trades apprenticeship committee. We compromised our seniority demands.

"When we finally arrived, almost empty-handed, at the clauses which involve both principle and money, the company offered us a show-piece vacation item, time and one-half for Saturdays as such and included the laid-off workers (2,700 workers who were given notice last June) in the retroactive pay."

Mr. Burt said that, since the June layoffs, few workers in the plant now have more than three years' service and less than five. Workers in that group would receive extra vacation time under terms of the company offer.

Mr. Sale said in his statement: "We feel we have done everything any reasonable person might expect us to do to avert a strike. . . .Right up to the last minutes we have had hope that reason would prevail and that a strike could be prevented. But the price the union asked in return for industrial peace was greater than we felt we could afford to pay. We deeply appreciate the efforts that have been made by the Ministry of Labor for Ontario (Mr. Daley)."

The Labor Minister, who averted a strike set for January 27 by persuading both sides to meet in his Toronto office, has been in Windsor since last Wednesday, when he initiated the final series of pre-strike conferences. He and his deputy, J. B. Metzler, planned to stay here today to be available to union or company officials.

Mr. Daley said in a statement at the start of the strike that he was satisfied both sides had tried —"up to the point where they felt they could go"—to reach agreement. He said they had negotiated in good faith.

Newspaper reports last week about the N.A.T.O. job said the choice was narrowed down to two men, including Pearson. The other mentioned was Sir Oliver Franks, British ambassador to Washington.

Said Nothing

External Affairs Minister Pearson has given the government no indication he wants to run or intends to run for the new job of secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, official quarters at Ottawa said today.

They were sceptical of new reports that Mr. Pearson has indicated a willingness to accept it.

Official quarters here doubted that he would take any such step without first consulting Prime Minister St. Laurent and he had not done so an hour after a news despatch from Lisbon said he indicated he would accept the post.

Experts Testify No Explosion At Hunt Cabin

HULL, Que., Feb. 18 (CP). — Rheal Leo Bertrand, on trial on a charge of murder today heard a chemical expert testify there was no evidence of an explosion at a lonely hunting cabin where Bertrand's wife died in a fire Nov. 10.

Bertrand, 27-year-old employee of a dry-cleaning establishment by day and a part-time "psychologist" at night, claims his 52-year-old wife died in an explosion while trying to light a gasoline lamp at Lac Ste. Marie, about 65 miles north of Hull.

Bernard Peclet, staff analyst in the Quebec Provincial Police laboratories in Montreal, said he visited the cabin Nov. 21 and could find no evidence of an explosion. Examination showed that a gasoline lamp found in the ruins was not in working order at the time of the fire.

No Explosion

The base of the lamp had not exploded and its glass globe had been found intact, indicating there was no explosion at the top of the lamp.

During the evidence, Bertrand sat impassively in the prisoner's box listening intently. The trial is being conducted entirely in French. The small courtroom was packed to overflowing for the sixth day of the trial.

Mr. Peclet told of examining two five-gallon cans found in the cabin's ruins. There was no indication that they had exploded during the fire.

There was evidence that one of the cans had contained varsol, an oil by-product used in dry-cleaning establishments.

The varsol was similar to that used in the establishment where Bertrand was employed.

King Prayed In Abbey On Eve Of Coronation

LONDON, Feb. 18 (Reuters) — On the eve of his coronation in 1937, King George VI knelt for a long time in prayer in ancient Westminster Abbey, a London minister disclosed Sunday.

The Rev. Michael Ridley told of the incident during a memorial service at his suburban church.

He said on the night of May 11, the King telephoned the Dean of Westminster saying he wanted to come to the Abbey where he was to be crowned the next day.

He arrived alone. A verger let him in.

"The Abbey was empty and he went alone and knelt for a long time in the vast church," Ridley said.

Hospital Nurses Free To Render First Aid

No nurses are placed "under bond" and forbidden to render first-aid when off duty, a hospital official said today.

The official said nurses could render any first-aid or help they wanted to in off-duty hours.

Says Thousands Fleeced By Visa Fixers

WINDSOR, Feb. 18 (CP).—Well established visa fixers operating in Windsor are fleecing hundreds of gullible people out of thousands of dollars a year with false and baseless promises to get them quick entry into the United States.

This lucrative influence racket, which plays on fears of Canadian and foreign-born people who want permission to go to the United States, has grown to such an extent that American consulate officials are fearful reflection will be cast upon them.

Robert J. Cavanaugh, U.S. consul here, and hi svice-consuls are fully aware of the racket and are doing all in their power to end it.

"Any applicant for a visa can do all the work himself despite what the visa commissioners say. The only money required for a visa is $10—$1 for the execution of an application for an immigration visa, and $9 for the visa," he said.

Suckers who are steered to the fixers are taken for anything from $50 to $300, depending upon what the traffic will bear.

gggggg bbbgbgbgbgbgbgbgbg bbA

The visa "commissioners" are known to the consulates, and applicants are mformed that their services aren't necessary.

The work of these agents has led to discouraging and widespread rumors that influence can be used to speed visas through the consulate office.

Some agents let it be known they have friends in the consulate, and for a fee, a visa can be obtained.

The agents operate just within the law, and in Windsor, where tnere are 15,000 active files being handled a year, the demand for their services is great.

TWO MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR, Mistress Ford (Maralin Munro) and, Right, John Falstaff (John Londerville) and at the Mistress Page (Brenda Davies), jolly Sir same time trick the fat old knight in as gay and gorgeous foolery as the Collegiate stage has ever seen. The Shakespeare comedy is the fifth annual production of the Peterborough Little Theatre.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Boisterous Fun With Merry Wives Of Windsor

By ARNOLD EDINBOROUGH

"The Merry Wives of Windsor" is Shakespeare's most boisterous comedy. There are more plots and sub-plots in it than go to make up a dozen modern plays, and every person in the list of characters is an eccentric. This mixture of eccentricity, hilarity, buoyancy and verve; this completely fantastic, impossible series of situations; this hodge-podge of Elizabethan bawdiness and wit, makes it a play that amateurs often avoid, and professionals more often spoil. It needs an imaginative production, a tremendous pace to keep the plots from being rationally considered, and an attention to detail of character even in the most minor role. All this the packed audience got on Saturday night when the Peterborough Little Theatre opened its fifth season in the Collegiate auditorium. From the moment when the Coventry singers sang God Save the Queen (which sounded so appropriate a prologue for the play which earlier Queen Elizabeth had commanded to be written) to the dance that concluded the festivities at Herne's Oak there was never a pause, never a let-down of the fun, never a single instance of first night nerves. For the audience, and, apparently, the actors, it was an evening of pure delight.

A Fine Falstaff

The "announcement" of the play which confronted people as they took their seats proclaimed that it was "Syr John Falstaff and the Merry Wives of Windsor; a most pleasant and excellent comedy." and it was Sir John and the two merry tricksters, who gave the play its solidity, speed and assurance. Looking the part magnificently, John Londerville did an excellent job of Falstaff. Sly in his production of laughs he was careful to judge them right when they came, and take the audience along with him. In control of his very varied voice all the time, adding to its inflections the solid backing of a most mobile face and an infectious snigger, he moved well, and was completely convincing, particularly in the scenes with Mrs. Quickly. His best scene was doubtless after the ducking, when he appeared as a monstrous mountain of red night gown, sneezing in an appropriately Gargantuan manner.

Really Merry Wives

Brenda Davies and Maralin Munro, the two merry wives were exactly that. Brenda Davies as Mistress Page has a peal of laughter which puts everyone in the right mood for the plot, and gives the audience a comfortable feeling of being 'in' on everything. Her interpretation tingles with vitality and energy, and she has a clarity of diction that is admirable, since so much of the play's exposition depends on her lines. Maralin Munro, though occasionally letting her laughter obscure her lines, was a very good partner for Mistress Page, and her handling of Falstaff when he came to woo was high comedy, as was her stony look of virtue when he husband rages madly around the stage seeking Falstaff.

The husbands of the merry wives were not quite so convincing. John Campbell as Ford had an exacting part, which requires a good deal of control. It is fantastic and yet he has to appear real when he rages jealously. His actions and getures were good but in his rage his lines were often hard to understand, though the way in which he handled his disguise (a very palpable stage beard) was very much in the spirit of the piece. Douglas Warner gave Master Page an encouraging openness of character, which suffered somewhat from his occasional inaudibility..

Polished Support

A very polished performance came from Roger Davis as Dr. Caius. His bearing and gestures were excellent and he managed to make the lines intelligible, which is no small feat, when they are written in such broken English. This was also accomplished by George Cobb in his interpretation of Sir Hugh Evans, the Welsh priest. One remembers particularly his scene when waiting for the duel to begin, and his questioning of William Page—a splendid mixture of Welsh intonation, Latin pronunciation, and unscholarly Cockney intrusion on the part of Mrs. Quickly. Lindy McIntosh, as Mrs. Quickly, played with great verve and energy and especially when going between for the Merry Wives with Falstaff. She was, perhaps, too youthful, and, in the last scene, too fast, so that the full richness of her lines was lost.

There were many memorable performances from minor characters. Robertson Davies, as Pistol gave a fine full blooded flavour to his part by the unmentionable things being mumbled in his beard when he was not actually speaking. Slender was made a convincing fop by James Gardner (O sweet Anne Page); mine host —of the Garter was full of fun and bounce in the person of Albert Hill and Donald Munro was quite the most broken down Bardolph one could wish to see. One remembers well also Jean Leach as a very beautiful Anne Page, round whose charms the secondary plot might very well turn.

Excellent Ensemble

In considering the whole play one is impressed by the tremendous attention to detail in the production. All the way through on sees the more than capable hands of the director, Mr. Robertson Davies, in the scenery, cleverly designed as a book, so that turning the pages changes the scene; in the costumes, all of which are handsome to a degree (but especially Mistress Anne's and Dr. Caius's); in the musical accompaniment which sets the mood at the right moment (and the singing of which the Coventry singers was a delight); and in innumerable bits of business which make the play enjoyable. Peterborough Little Theatre may be proud of such a performance as Saturday's and enter the Festival in the near future with high hopes.

Church Plans Redecoration

MILLBROOK, Feb. 18 (ENS)—At the annual vestry meeting of St. Thomas' Anglican church, held in the parish hall on Thursday night, it was decided to negotiate a contract with the same firm that decorated the church 22 years ago, to re-decorate it now. A special fund having as its objective $2,000, is to be raised for this purpose.

It is planned also to have the parish hall wired with heavy wiring and the Guild will help by the purchase of an electric stove. Trees in front of the church which are damaging the wiring leading into the church are to be cut down and replaced by new ones.

After having served as warden of St. Thomas' church for 15 years and for many years before that as warden of St. John's, Ida, Louis H. Winslow resigned. The newly elected people's warden is G. A. Spicer, and D. R. Fowler is continuing as rector's warden.

Those in the advisory council are Miss Muriel Smith and Tom Campbell appointed by the rector, and Dr. H. A. Turner and Louis H. Winslow, elected by the vestry.

Auditors elected were Messrs. G. Harrington, H. Collins and J. Allen.

The following sidesmen were appointed by the rector: Messrs. H. Abbott, Reginald Fallis, Fred Lowery, Frank Stinson, E. Penney, A. V. Thorn and Wood; those elected by the vestry were: L. M. Fallis, R. Dufty, I. L. H. Gray, Lyle Nattress, A. Jones, Russell Smith, G. Smith; spares, G. Lowery, H. Scott, H. Williams. Honorary sidesmen are: H. B. Allen, J. E. Allen, T. A. Campbell, J. Coulter, G. Ellsworth, G. Harrington, T. W. McCamus, A. A. Needler, D. Sheppard, H. M. Trick, Dr. H. A. Turner, and L. Winslow.

Lay delegates appointed to the Synod were: Dr. H. A. Turner (honorary), L. H. Winslow and Reg. Fallis, with T. A. Campbell and Ron Palmer as substitutes.

Secretary-treasurer is Gordon Trick and D. R. Fowler was elected envelope secretary. Miss M. Smith, acting as vestry clerk in the absence of P. E. Hamilton, read the minutes, and the following reports were given: financial statement by D. R. Fowler; St. Paul's cemetery, T. A. Campbell; Women's Guild, Mrs. Fred Lowery; Women's Auxiliary, Mrs. Reginald Fallis; Chancel Guild, Miss Anna Fair; Sunday school, the Rev. A. A. Chote for the superintendent P. E. Hamilton.

Total receipts for the year 1951 amounted to $4,441.77, which was approximately the same as 1950, which in turn were practically double those of 1949.

The vestry voted to make a recommendation to the Synod that certain resolutions of the Hope report be adopted. The resolutions were: (1) The parish of Cavan is in favor of the re-organization of the public school system in Ontario as recommended in the Hope report. (2) The parish of Cavan urges the provincial government to implement immediately the proposal that religious instruction be provided in secondary schools whether or not further re-organization of the school system is undertaken at this time. (3) Parish of Cavan does not regard this extension of religious instruction as completely solving the problem of making the educational system of the province a thoroughly Christian process.

Mr. Chote moved votes of thanks to Miss M. Collins for her services as organist; Mrs. G. A. Spicer for held directing the choir; Mr. P. Pitt, the wardens, and Mr. G. Trick as well as the committees, for fine work throughout the year.

Mr. Palmer expressed the appreciation of the congregation for their wonderful service to St. Thomas' to Rev. and Mrs. Chote.

Unexplained Fire Guts Auto In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 18 — (ENS). — Donald A. Sharp, department store proprietor of this town, won't have to buy a new 1952 licence for his 1929 model car this year. The car was destroyed by fire early on Sunday morning.

No explanation for the blaze has been established. The car was parked in a driveway beside Mr. Sharp's home, and had not been started in about two weeks. Mr. Sharp heard the sound of what he thought was breaking glass, about 3 a.m. Sunday, and looked out his bedroom window to see the whole interior of his auto in flames.

Firemen responded to the call promptly, and the pumper was on the scene within a matter of minutes of the sounding of the alarm. The interior of the car was gutted, but the tires were not harmed. The car was not insured.

Rebuild Curve

OSLO, Feb. 18. (AP)—The perilous third curve of the Olympic bobsled run was rebuilt extensively during the night, and the first practice runs today indicated its hazard has been corrected. The curve was built up so that the left-hand wall was gently curved instead of being almost concave. The rebuilding was undertaken after two bad crack-ups on Sunday in which two members of the Belgium and Swiss four-man sleds received broken bones.

A Great Man Leaves Us

Last night Viscount Alexander left Canada. The warmth of his parting words to the Canadian people leaves no doubt that he holds this people and country in great esteem and affection. And surely our retiring Governor-General, who has travelled this land more widely than most of his predecessors and come to know Canadians as few of them did, cannot doubt the warm respect and deep affection which Canadians have for him.

• • •

For six years Canada has been "the second home" of Viscount Alexander and his wife. His children have grown up as Canadians, the Field Marshal said in his farewell broadcast before be took ship at Halifax. When he said that he leaves us with regret, we can believe that it was more than a formal polite statement, so glowing were his words of praise and hope for this country. He felt that he had, as the King's personal representative, witnessed the rise of a new nation. Canada is fabulously endowed with natural resources, but upon no finer people than the fourteen millions in this Dominion could such a rich future be more fittingly bestowed. His tribute was from the heart and no Governor-General has left these shores with a more buoyant and appreciative message to the people to whom he has been Commander-in-Chief. Viscount Alexander linked our material prosperity with the requirement of national responsibility and spiritual development. No nation can become truly great—as he himself has become great—without resources of the spirit and their cultivation. It was a timely reminder

• • •

A friend has said good-bye. We remember his simple words to schoolboys in Lakefield a couple of years ago when this son of unpretentious Irish nobility spoke of his own boyhood; oil lamps, trudging to school, hard work, simple pleasures, few privileges. What Viscount Alexander has become, given a good natural endowment, is of his own making. Is there not a parallel with Canada's development? Perhaps that is why his affection for this country is so personal, his hope for us so earnest. And that may be why his last words urged an adequate sense of non-material values. At Lakefield he told the boys that boredom can be avoided, and how: the mind and spirit have their own resources, which must be exercised continually. Our fulsome material condition must not betray us into personal and national boredom. May Canadian mind and soul take wing to keep us within the vision Viscount Alexander has of Canada.

• • •

God-speed him in the new duties he now takes up. The heart-felt thanks and admiration of this people follow him. He has been a great servant of the Crown, and of Canada.

Post Office Inefficiency

So creaky has the general Post Office organization in Canada become that any unusual circumstances send it into a wheezy flap. Last Thursday, St. Valentine's day, the mail was heavier than usual. The Peterborough Post Office managed to deliver most of Cupid's missives in time, at least those posted locally. Some Valentines and letters from outside points arrived in time, too. But it seems that the strain told.

The next day, Friday, post offices were closed because of the Royal funeral. But it was not just like a Sunday. Business firms and factories continued their operations and the trains continued to run. So bags of mail piled up in various offices, particularly in central depots like Toronto and Montreal. Some sorting was done after the noon hour. However, the post office organization was unable to cope with the situation.

On Saturday, mail that would ordinarily have been delivered Friday was only gradually being distributed. Mail which should have been delivered Saturday morning from the local post office had not even arrived from the Montreal and Toronto depots. The fault is not with the Peterborough postal people, but with central depots and the Post Office Departments at Ottawa which does not seem to know how to run its business properly. Perhaps it knows, but does not care.

Situations similar to that of last weekend result any time there is an unusual weight or responsibility put on the postal service. Christmas mail is dealt out in time, not because of the huffing and puffing of the Post Office Department but because people heed its anguished cries to "mail early," and send off even local letters four days before they expect delivery. This newspaper, like private persons and other businesses, suffers from the the poor service. We were able to publish some photographs of the Royal funeral because we had taken the precaution to have a parcel of them despatched by express from Montreal. Others sent through the mail at the Toronto post office had not reached Peterborough at the time of going to press.

Postmaster-General Rinfret has been relieved of his Cabinet position and elevated to the Quebec Court of the Queen's Bench. Perhaps Ottawa has at last heard of the widespread discontent with the service. We question whether replacing the Postmaster-General is enough to give the Post Office the shaking up it needs. The whole system must be reformed. Men should be placed in senior positions who know how to make the postal service operate well, and moreover, who realize that it is important that this public service be good. The poor, ineffective service continues; resentment mounts. We hope it will induce Ottawa and the new Postmaster-General to give the whole system the needle and transfusion it needs.

A Protest From Scotland

We have come to the point where we yawn, and our eyelids droop, when the Scottish Nationalists are mentioned. Of all political parties within the British Commonwealth, they appear to have the firmest grasp on what is non-essential, and the greatest zeal in pursuing whatever is divisive and irritating. It was not so long ago that they distinguished themselves by stealing the Coronation Stone, and selling the story of how they did so for a good sum to the newspapers. It will be interesting to see whether they will give it back before the crowning of the new Queen; they had better arrange a bargain of some sort, for if ever she is crowned without it, the value of the piece of rock will drop sharply. But their latest exploit has been to protest against the styling of Elizabeth as the second Queen of that name. She is the first since the Act of Union, they say, and therefore the First Elizabeth to reign as Queen of Scotland.

Probably this will bring a protest from those other zealous barkers-up-the-wrong-tree, the Welsh Nationalists; for there is no doubt that Elizabeth is the Second of that name to rule over Wales. Would it not be a good idea to let the Welsh Nationalists and the Scottish Nationalists fight it out with knobby clubs before the Coronation.

U.S. Election Expense Limitations

A few days ago, in these columns, we referred to limitations on the amount of money a candidate, agent or party could spend in an election campaign in the United States. We said that this was not very effectively enforced, which was quite true. It may interest some of our readers to know how ineffective the limitation really is and how the intent of the law is frustrated.

Under the U.S. Corrupt Practices Act $5,000 is the top amount any one person may legally give in any one year to any one political group. A current investigation into the last election in Ohio, in which Senator Robert Taft was re-elected, shows that the Labour Nonpartisan League, which opposed Senator Taft, received $35,000 from Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier, and his associates. Presumably, Mr. Eaton and six associates each gave the statutory limit. Now, however, it is reported that four persons have made affidavits that Mr. Eaton has reimbursed them for the contributions they made to the League.

Other figures have been released showing similar methods of frustrating the intent of the legislation. In the 1950 election, one-tenth of all the contributions to the Republican Party of $100 or more was given by the Du Pont interests—a total of almost one hundred thousand dollars. The Mellons gave $42,000, the Bentleys $36,000, the Rockefellers $23,000, and the Frankel family of Houston, Texas, gave $12,000 to the Democratic Party. In order to evade the limitation completely, these gifts from multiple donors were accepted by multiple recipients—twelve for the Democrats, fourteen for the Republicans.

There was, of course, nothing illegal about the transaction. It was entirely within the law. It is hardly surprising, however, that a number of United States newspapers are calling for amendments to corrupt practices legislation which will come to grips with actual conditions.

NOTES AND COMMENT

This is just the time for a holiday in the States, now that their dollar is so cheap in comparison with ours.

Queen Elizabeth now has the right to choose her sister's husband. This is a right which all sisters attempt to exercise, but rarely with success.

Birds practise birth control, we learn. All the less excuse, then, for their intolerable lack of self control in another direction.

A crocodile can go ninety days without food, but it is never wise to count on this, as the crocodile may not wish to appear boastful.

Musical Notes

by PETER PIPER

LAST week I mentioned Benjamin Britten's opera "Peter Grimes", and in case my readers have not already heard of it his new opera "Billy Budd", which recently received its premiere at Covent Garden, has come in for considerable comment. In the first place Britten set himself an unusual problem: he has written an opera with no female characters, and consequently no "love interest". This sort of thing has been done often enough by playwrights: Journey's End, or, if you prefer an exclusively female play, The Women, spring to mind immediately. Many a talent blossoms more fully under restrictions and conventions. But an opera sung by male voices throughout would appear to spell monotony of a very high order indeed. Just think of it—no passionate love duets, no soaring soprano arias! From a purely musical standpoint the unrelieved starkness of male voices for a whole evening even when lit by shafts of light from the upper reaches of the orchestra would apparently pall on the ears of the average opera-goer. It is agreed that Britten has solved the purely musical problem of an all-male opera brilliantly, constantly weaving and interweaving interesting vocal patterns with unflagging resourcefulness. Britten has an amazing gift for thinking in terms of his medium: his vocal music, though unconventional at times, really is vocal music, while every detail of his orchestration, down to the smallest detail, fits the instrument to which it is assigned.

✧ ✧ ✧

YET the idea of a full-length opera for Men Only implies a certain lopsidedness, an incompleteness, even when the action is supposed to take place on board one of His Majesty's men o' war on active service in the year of grace 1797. To be sure the elements of drama are to be found in Melville's story. Moreover Britten secured the collaboration of E. M. Forster for the libretto. I can appreciate the fact that the absence of any love intrigue might throw into sharper relief the conflict between iron discipline and warm-hearted humanity caught in its toils. Just as the chemist rigorously isolates the materials for his experiments and excludes all irrelevant influences, so have Forster and Britten enclosed their dramatis personae in a floating test-tube. This may be very interesting for the first half-hour, but is it opera? Imagine, if you can, the action of Carmen taking place, in the cigarette factory with an all-female cast. This, you may say, is an unfair comparison; but if I have been unfair to Britten I submit that he has been unfair to himself in choosing such a subject. This opera has not yet been given on this side of the Atlantic. Doubtless it will in due course be broadcast by the CBC opera group. I need hardly warn my listeners that a broadcast opera is the merest shadow of the real thing: only the fortunate few who can afford the journey to New York are in a position to judge.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE past year has seen the production of three new operas by major living composers. Besides Britten's new work which I have discussed above Stravinsky and Vaughan Williams have each written a new opera. The Rake's Progress, first given in Venice last year, is not his first opera, but it is his first opera in English, written since he became an American. The libretto is written by the cleverly metaphysical poet Auden. Stravinsky, who was himself "discovered" by that arch-talent-spotter Diaghileff, is something of a genius at choosing collaborators. The work itself was given a mixed reception: nobody questioned its cleverness and competence, though some felt that it misfired. Finally Vaughan Williams' new opera on Pilgrim's Progress received its first performance at Covent Garden. This work by the leading living English composer, now 79 years young and "still going strong", was in some ways the most revolutionary of the lot. The composer himself has selected his libretto from Bunyan's classic in much the same way as he used Shakespeare and other sources for his earlier opera "Sir John in Love", fragments of which are being heard in the Peterborough Little Theatre's performance of the Merry Wives of Windsor. This is not opera in the usual sense of the word, and the composer has recognized this by calling it "a Morality with Music". The significant fact of all this is that of the three new operas that I have mentioned two were produced in England and the third was written in English on an English subject, solid proof of the increasing interest in opera in the English-speaking world. It is also noteworthy that the subjects of the two English operas are both dear to the hearts of Englishmen—the sea and the Nonconformist conscience, neither of which one might expect to figure largely in Italian, German, French, Russian or any other type of opera except as picturesque background.

✧ ✧ ✧

FOLKSONG collecting, even in this present age, is like housework, never finished. There are still many regions that are virtually untouched, and there is always something new cropping up even in those areas that have been frequented by collectors. Yet there is always the fear that some grand old ballad may die out in this age of radios and cars without having been collected. Dr. Marius Barbeau and his associates have combed French Canada pretty thoroughly, but there is still plenty coming in every year. In Nova Scotia Helen Creighton alone has collected over 900 folksongs and variants, while in Newfoundland a whole mass of material is being brought to light at the present time. Most of the songs collected are variants of songs found in France, England, Scotland, Ireland and elsewhere. In some cases new words have been put to an older tune, and occasionally both words and music are not to be found elsewhere. Folksongs are, by definition, anonymous, and discussions on their origin are apt to be as unfruitful as those on what came first, the chicken or the egg. Nevertheless it is clear to experienced authorities that in many cases the versions found in this continent are nearer to the original source than their European counterparts. Sometimes, however, a certain amount of "local colour" has been added. For instance, in the ballad "Barbara Allan", one of the most widespread folksongs, one of the Nova Scotian versions has the line "Sweet William came from the Western States", whereas it appears as "Sir John Graeme in the West Countrie" in a Scottish version and Goldsmith, alluding to this same ballad in 1765 gives the young man's name as Johnny Armstrong. The very diversity of folksong is a welcome antidote to the present mania for mass-produced melody and standardized harmonies. The best folksongs exhibit a sturdy independence and a total lack of false sentiment.

Letters To The Editor

THE MONAGHAN RD. BUS SERVICE

Sir: I feel that it is time for some comment in your columns about the Monaghan Road South bus service (or, rather, lack of service).

The Monaghan Road South bus runs every half hour during the week, and not at all on Sundays. This service is quite inadequate. During rush hours in the morning and evening there are enough standees to fill another bus. It is not at all unusual for ten or fifteen people to be left standing at the Charlotte Street stops because the bus is too crowded to take them. This would be an inconvenience in areas where buses run every ten minutes, but it goes far beyond that when one must stand in the cold for 30 minutes. On Sunday those of us who would like to attend church in another part of the city must find other transportation.

It would be expected that where the bus runs so infrequently, the drivers would make some effort to co-operate with the people. Some do, but many others do not. For instance, on Thursday, February 14th, the bus left a few minutes before five o'clock. Many of us, who had been there before the five o'clock factory whistles sounded, were then forced to wait for the next bus. It pulled in at 5:25, took on its passengers, and pulled out. The other buses were not in, and workers with transfers were just out of luck. One man ran up to the bus just as it was pulling away from the curb (three minutes early), but the driver refused to stop. This same driver, who had not had time to keep on schedule, or pick up a passenger, later stopped the bus and leisurely donned his coat and overshoes.

This incident is merely one of many. Private complaints or requests are completely ignored, but perhaps if enough people would send letters to this column the weight of public opinion would finally bring some results.

A DAILY STANDEE.

TIMBERLANDS AND RIGHTS OF PEOPLE

Sir: Peterborough county is blessed with ample amount and a good quality of timber on farms besides hundreds of acres of reservation timberland. The farm lands are in general so timbered that wolves, wildcats, bears and even jaguars along with many other kinds of smaller wild animals roam over the swamp and reservation lands and occasionally wander out onto the farm lands where they endanger the adults, children and the farm animals or poultry, making themselves a nuisance, as well as causing a dreadful fear as to what might happen if they are not occasionally reduced in numbers.

Don't say this does not happen, for not far distant, we had the scare of a life time and what happened made us feel that the wild timberlands in this county did not form a barrier to hold the dangerously wild animals within its borders. At noon one hot day, one of us was at the lake shore and the other at the home. Both heard a woman scream as though she had fallen into the lake and was calling for help. My husband at the lake thought the noise was far from shore and toward our timberland. I was at the house and thought it was at the lake. Both of us thought it sounded like a woman at times and other times like a child. We got together and investigated but could not learn the reason. That evening while we sat on our screened porch, we heard the same sound and thought the woman had gone into the lake again. The sound began to move swiftly along the shore line. It came closer and closer then began to move toward the house. That animal could be heard breathing when quite a distance away. It came across right in front of our porch where we sat so frightened that we could not speak. If you ever had a shiver go up your spine in fear, that would let you know how we felt. We could not move for fear. We listened to the sound going off in the darkness. Three days after that we saw the animal only a short distance from our home as it moved cautiously from bush to bush and making that weird noise as it went. That was the first and last time we ever saw a jaguar around our place, but how would you like to come upon such while on vacation with your children? Why should any farmer be forced to let his timberlands increase to make a harboring place for wild animals or let his taxes be boosted higher in order to pay a greater force of officials placed in office just to watch over the timber owner to see that he did not cut his own timber without the permission of those officials? That certainly would be depriving the timber owner of his rights and making dictators of the officials. I take notice that officials have expressed their assent to such a bylaw even when those same officials do not own land and live in a village.

Many a farmer now owns his own land and is satisfied to remain on his farm, all because he was able to cut timber as his needs demanded to pay his way, pay the doctor bills, taxes and educational expenses. Many a farmer has his timber to use as many use their bank accounts.

For years Canada has been cutting down her most valuable timber but the people have not realized that fact. The most valuable timber any country can have is her growing generations of youth. The youth of this country have been deserving advanced improvements for educational facilities to promote mental physical and spiritual health to keep the people of this country in pace with the progress of their needs to keep up with the rest of the world. If our taxes have to be raised let it go for high educational values and not to pay some watch dogs to destroy our inherited rights.

My advice to all concerned is if this county wants to conserve on it's most valuable timber, it had better do all in its power to keep the officials within their legal bounds and not deprive the citizens of their inherited rights for the human race is the most valuable timber and all else secondary.

(MRS.) JOSEPH HAMILTON.

OPPOSES BREAK IN BRITISH TIES

Sir: At the annual meeting of West Peterborough County Orange Lodge, the following resolution was unanimously passed:

THAT WHERAS, we note with a great deal of anxiety, the action of our present Federal Government at Ottawa in removing the word "Dominion" from all official documents and usage in connection with the "Dominion of Canada", the word "Royal" from all reference to the "Royal Mail of Canada", the "Royal Canadian Air Force" and "Royal Canadian Navy", the Crown from our late King's Head on Canadian Postage Stamps, the proposed changing of our flag from the Union Jack to something else (nobody knows what), the substitution of the song "Oh Canada" for our National Anthem "God Save the Queen", the more recent appointment of a Canadian as Governor General (no reflection on the person) and the apparent decision of the Government to cut all the Historic ties that bind us to the British Empire and Commonwealth of Nations.

THEREFORE, be it RESOLVED that:

"We the officers and members of West Peterborough County Loyal Orange Lodge, in annual session assembled in the City of Peterborough, Ontario, on Tuesday, February 5th, 1952, do most emphatically protest against any and all of these acts by our Government without first having these matters discussed in the House of Commons or a mandate from the people, as we feel it is an intentional slight to those British born and their descendants who pioneered this Dominion and in great measure brought it to its present important place in world affairs, and we do now call upon our representatives in Parliament, and the leaders of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition, to publicly make known the opposition of all loyal Britishers to these matters.

Yours very respectfully,
P. D. HOWDEN,
County Recording Secretary.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgements, and his ways past finding out! For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor? (Rom. 11: 33, 34.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For, lo, he that formeth the mountains, and createth the wind, and declareth unto man what is his thought, that maketh the morning darkness, and treadeth upon the high places of the earth, The Lord, The God of hosts, is his name. (Amos 4: 13.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For thus saith the Lord that created the heavens; God himself that formed the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited: I am the Lord; and there is none else. I have not spoken in secret, in a dark place of the earth: I said not unto the seed of Jacob, Seek ye me in vain: I the Lord speak righteousness, I declare things that are right. (Isa. 45: 18, 19.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Remember the former things of old: for I am God, and there is none else; I am God, and there is none like me, declaring the end from the beginning, and from ancient times the things that are not yet done, My counsel shall stand, and I will do all my pleasure. (Isa. 46: 9, 10.)

Bones Of A Ship

(Sydney Post-Record)

The Department of Transport again is calling tenders for the removal of the derelict Pelican from the Sydney waterfront.

One wonders if that wreck of a once-gallant ship ever is going to be persuaded to leave. After all that was done to her last year she is still exactly where she was only in a worse condition than ever before. The Pelican at least had a certain mournful dignity before they chopped off her mast and started pulling her apart.

She was still faintly recognizable for what she once had been—a mid-19th century craft of the Royal Navy which had come down in the world and actually used as a barge before being discarded altogether.

Minerals, More Precious Than Gold Beneath Troubled Morrocco's Soil

By CARTER DAVIDSON

OUDJA, French Morocco, Feb. 18 (AP)—Beneath the troubled soil of Morocco lies a wealth of the vital, little-known minerals the western world must have to arm itself.

Manganese, lead, zinc, antimony, cobalt, beryl—these are but a few of the minerals that are more precious than gold to a world which needs stockpiles of such alloys for its life.

Here, only a few miles from the French Moroccan border with Algeria, French and American money and techniques have been merged to west from the crust of Africa millions of dollars worth of lead and zinc, plus usable amounts of antimony, silver, sulphur and other residue minerals.

The Zellidja Mines, first probed by the ancient Carthaginians, are now producing profitably again thanks to modern mining methods.

This source of raw materials is fast becoming one of the vital fountains supplying the western world's industries.

The Marshal Plan put nearly $4,000,000 into the mines in the form of equipment. This already is being repaid in shipments of lead for the U.S. stockpile.

Ore comes out of the mountainside mine shafts at the rate of nearly 5,000 tons a day and is processed on the spot.

The black ore concentrate is hauled by truck a few miles where it is smelted into pure lead. The smelter already has begun fabrication of the metal into lead pipes, and is planning the manufacture of other consumer goods. Zinc ore is shipped to France for smelting

French officials have built an Arab city at the Zellidja mine location. It houses 10,000 or more Arabs, workers and their families.

Zellidja is but one of the mining installations that produced something like 100,000 tons of lead and 40,000 tons of zinc in Morocco last year.

The big mineral activity in Morocco is phosphates. Last year's estimated production was 4,000,000 tons of phosphate powder, most of it being extracted from mines at Khouribga and Louis Gentil, south of Casablanca. The phosphate production is in the hands of the Sultan's Office of Phosphates, and is, in effect, a nationalized industry.

Manganese production, too, is soaring up to an estimated 385,000 tons of ore annually. Iron ore production last year zoomed up to about 400,000 tons.

Graphite, asbestos, beryl, cobalt and fuller's earth are other minerals of value being produced in Morocco in ever-increasing quantities.

When Kingston and Eagles clash here tonight it could be a preview of O.H.A. senior "B" group semi-finals. Because a win for Eagles would pull them up pretty close to top spot, and that's their target. You see, convener Lorne Cook of Kingston has written us to say that the group playoff draw has the top team playing off against the fourth-place club, while the second and third squads meet in the other semi-final bracket. Which means that the team finishing first in the schedule has the softer touch in playoffs. Naturally, Petes and Eagles will both battle bitterly to finish atop, and it presently looks like Kingston or Belleville in last place. A real sizzler should result in the Kingston-Eagles' fray this p.m.

* * * * * *

Cook also sends long some league scoring figures, but they're only complete to last Tuesday. Goyer of Belleville was in front then with 57 points, of which 36 were goals scored. Murray of Kingston was next with 54 points, and Greenlaw of Eagles third with 45. Best of the Petes was Fryia with 38. Leading the penalty parade was Keith Montgomery of Eagles with 64 minutes, the scrappy Monty being no stranger to the sin bin. These scoring figures, of course, change from game to game, and just one one-sided joust can make a whale of a difference as a few hot hockeyists fatten their averages.

* * * * * *

Senior "B" Playoffs

As for the playoffs, the semi-finals will be best-of-five series and the group finals best-of-seven, according to Lorne. As far as we're concerned, if there must be four teams in the sawoffs, it's only fair to the team finishing first to get a crack at the club in the fourth slot. Stanley Cup system isn't so good, and that's why Leafs always like to finish second so they'll be pitted against the fourth-place team, leaving the other two to soften each other up in a semi-final scramble while Leafs have the more or less soft pickings, moving into finals. Anyway, that's how it'll be in the Central Ontario group, and playoffs will commence in two weeks or slightly more. The schedule hasn't much further to go now.

A big crowd at Civic on Saturday night thrilled at seeing many famous former N.H.L. stars stage a good puck exhibition for charity. Whites beat the Reds 8-5, but that was only incidental. The game with all its trimmings provided fine entertainment, and the local Shrine Club rates an orchid for the effort. A good sum was raised for crippled children, and folks enjoyed the whole affair. These oldtimers really dug in and gave fans a good game, plenty exciting in spots, and it certainly brought back memories of when these aces were in their prime. They still have the savvy and the class, and some of 'em still have almost enough hustle to go in the National League right now. A lot of the customers said so afterward.

* * * * * *

Some Still Have It

Flashes of former greatness were shown by goalies Jakie Forbes and Phil Stein, and by that roving second goalie, large Lionel Conacher on defence. There was the Bomber, Chuck Conacher, still firing a sizzler from right wing, and the artistic skating of Busher Jackson. Little Larry Aurie and Billy Taylor know some stickhandling tricks yet, and Dit Clapper again drew cheers with that burst from defence. Roy and Chuck Conacher did some serious feudin' in one period and Chuck was so peeved after at losing that he tossed Aurie out of the room for kidding him, and offered to take on Baldy Cotton! "Great competitive spirit yet," Baldy remarked later when the gang gathered for a "do" at the Empress.

* * * * * *

That after-game gathering was one of the most enjoyable we've ever attended. It was great to move about and chat with these fellows. Lionel Conacher and Chris Graham in one spot discussing cock fighting as indulged in by the late George Graham. Hustling Doug Brennan, admitting to 55—"Yeah, I'm three years older than Lionel"—saying he'd like to play a game a week for the oldtimers. Irwin Bailey saying he always liked Peterborough and wished he was in business here. Pick Hines (who coached here in 1937-38) telling how well Riverdale Terrace was coming along. He owns a piece of it. Also praising Bill Calladine, whom he took to Baltimore several years before the war. We circulated and talked to nearly all of them, and these old aces are swell guys. Frost in their hair, maybe, but spring sunshine in their hearts. They paid their own way here and played hard for charity. And loved it all.

N.H.L. Whites Defeat Reds In Puck Exhibition To Get $1,400 For Charity

A crowd of 2,000 here Saturday night cleared about $1,400 for the Kawartha Shrine Club's fund for crippled children when Whites beat Reds 8-5 in the N.H.L. oldtime hockeyists' exhibition at Civic Arena. It was the best puck crowd of the season here and the former pro aces served up a crowd-pleasing game, both sides hustling hard for a win in the second appearance they have made since organizing this season. They have many invitations to play in other centres.

The C.G.E. Pipe Band entertained beforehand, after a short bantam exhibition game, and Mayor Hugh Waddell officially faced off the puck for the veteran N.H.L. teams. Between periods, figure skating by Arlene Ferguson, Jacqueline Hopkins, Joan Begley and Jack Martin drew a big hand. Football passing on skates by Joe Krol and Doug Smylie of Toronto Argos was shown, too. Draw winners went to ticket numbers 905, 923, 1461 and 543. "Flowers of the Forest" was played by the band in memory of the late King.

Entertained After

The players, who were introduced under a spotlight before the game, later were entertained by the Shrine Club at the Empress. Eddie Convey was an absentee, having to go to hospital here with stomach trouble earlier. Nels Stewart was unable to make the trip because of a sudden attack of influenza. Hal Cotton coached the winning side, with Dave Kerr handling the Reds. Irvin (Ace) Bailey and Dick Ouimet handled the refereeing and linesman chores, but only Lionel Conacher and Glen Brydson drew minor penalties throughout. The game was run off in three 15-minute periods.

Reds rolled to a 4-2 lead in the first frame, Whites notched the only goal in the second heat, and then Whites finished strong in the third for a 5-1 scoring edge. Play was fairly fast and quite exciting at times. Chuck Conacher and Roy Conacher feuded for a time and got in some tripping, slashing and boarding. Big Chuck took the loss hard and was still hostile concerning it an hour after the tilt. The veterans gave it all they had and recalled fond memories with some heady work and pretty pattern plays going in on rival goalies. Nit O'Hearn took over after one period for Jakie Forbes in the Whites' net.

Led The Scorers

Roy Conacher stood out for the victors with three goals and two assists, Yank Boyd also being potent to score two and aid on two more. Earl Robinson got a goal and an assist, Dit Clapper and Windy O'Neill tallying the others. Two assists apiece were counted by Bert Conacher and Jack Draper, with Andy Bellemer and Lorne Duguid getting one each. For Reds, Chuck Conacher and Red Heron scored a brace each and Hank Goldup had a goal and an assist. Busher Jackson and Art Jackson had a pair of assists each, singles being notched by Jimmy Fowler, Rhys Thompson, Billy Taylor and big Lionel Conacher.

Reds: Goal, Stein; defence, L. Conacher and Wentworth; centre, Taylor; wings, C. Conacher and H. Jackson; alternates, Fowler, Thompson, Goldup, Heron, Smylie, A. Jackson and King.

Whites: Goal, Forbes; defence, Clapper and Robinson; centre, Brydson; wings, Duguid and Aurie; alternates, Draper, B. Conacher, R. Conacher, Boyd, Farrant, O'Neill, Brennan, Bellemer and O'Hearn.

Referee, Dick Oulmet; linesman, Ace Bailey.

Hastings Lads Lose

HASTINGS, Feb. 18 (ENS). — Hastings bantams dropped out of the O.M.H.A. playdowns Saturday as Keswick defeated them 7-2 in the second game of their series.

Keswick showed more experience than the locals, but in spite of that the losers did well and showed plenty of promise for the future.

George Prout with four, George Chadwick with two and Jim Cole were the goal-getters from Keswick.

For Hastings, the line of John Ibey, Paul Humphries and Roy McMillen were best, while Goron Fisher stood out on defense and Buddy Cardwell did a nice job in the net.

Hastings—G, Buddy Cardwell; ld, Gordon Fisher; rw, Douglas Farrman; centre, Paul Humphries; rw, Roy McMillan; lw John Ibey; alternates, Wayne Marsh, Bob Jones, Russell Tripp, Kerry English, Peter Crate, Bud Mace, Jim Sullivan, Paul Humphries, Bill Jones.

OLDTIMERS' RE-UNION—Many a tale was swapped of many a former ice battle as the N.H.L. oldtimers gathered here Saturday to play a charity game. At right is seen Billy (the Kid) Taylor looking on as young Lawrence Kinlin gets an autograph in the dressing room from Lionel (Big Train) Conacher. At right are shown three former N.H.L. stars chatting over old times, Dave Kerr at left, Irvin (Ace) Bailey in the centre, and Dit Clapper at right. Dave and Dit are in business here now, and Ace played senior hockey for Petes back in 1925-26. Eric Nesterenko tallied three times for the Marlies Saturday, Rod McElroy, Parker MacDonald and Danny Poland adding the others. Tony Poeta led the Galt attack with two goals. Ed Switzer, Bill McIntosh, Bud Horne and Mike Buchanan notched the others.

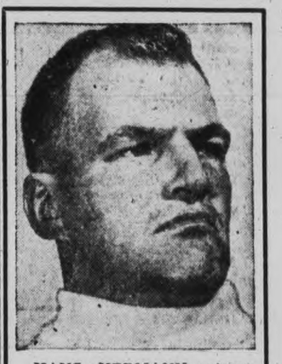
Ken Laufman lit the red light twice for Guelph. Chuck Henderson, Andy Bathgate and also Guidolin scored once. Herve Dejory scored a pair for the losers, single tallies going to Bob Holden and Ron Etchar.

Ron McDonald scored twice for Barrie. Ken Collins, Don McKenney, Ron Stewart, Doug Mohns and John Martan added singles. Jim Robertson scored twice for Spitfires. Bobby Brown got the other.



HANS HERMANN, above, who meets Warren Bockwinkle in a special match at the Brock Tuesday. Bockwinkle will have to be at his best to take the measure of Hermann as very few wrestlers have been able to stand up to the German's ruthless tactics. Chief Suni War Cloud takes on rugged Stan Mayslack in the opener.

WHILE JOE PRIMEAU was telling his Leafs "that takes the cake" after they dropped an important game to the riddled Habs, Canadiens were taking the cake literally—to Boom Boom Geoffrion on the occasion of the latter's 21st birthday. The Boomer is seen with his "trophy" at the height of victory celebrations. Front row squatting, left to right: Trainer Hec Dubois, Billy Reay, Dickie Moore, Paul Meger, Elmer Lach and Dick Gamble. Standing: Camil DesRoches, Gaston Bettez, trainer, Butch Bouchard, Bob Fryday, Bud MacPherson, Tom Johnson, Boom Boom, Doug Harvey, Dick Irvin, John McCormack and Kenny Mosdell. The four standing on the right up behind are Dollard St. Laurent, Bert Olmstead, Floyd Curry and Gerry McNeil.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

The general hockey public doubtless harbors the idea that referees are a drab, humorless lot of folk, whose principal aim in life is to annoy and harass toiling hockey players, spoil the contests by tooting their whistles, and visit upon the home players penalties which are of course outrageously unfair and uncalled-for.

But the referees are, in fact, a very pleasant lot of folk, doing a very difficult job, and in the main, doing it extremely well. And most of them have a sharp sense of humor. If they didn't, it's doubtful whether they could retain job and sanity.

Hockey lost a referee of vast color and keen sense of humor when Frank King Clancy decided to hang up his whistle and return to coaching duties.

Bt the fast-talking Clancy did not always get the best of it in verbal exchanges. One night he was being heckled by Babe Pratt, another lad who was very fast on the verbal trigger. Finally, in exasperation, Clancy snapped at Pratt: "I wish I was playing against you tonight."

"Well, ain't you?" innocently responded Pratt.

Clancy credited his mental balance in the refereeing field to the hard-boiled veteran Mickey Ion, who refereed for years in the major league. "In my first game as an NHL referee" said Clancy "I was working with Mickey. When we started for the ice, I was literally shaking, I was so nervous. Ion noticed this, stopped, took me by the arm, and said: 'Don't worry, kid. Remember this: the second after that puck is dropped, there will be only two sane people in the entire house, you and I'."

"I always kept that in mind" Clancy said later, "and I often thought afterwards that Mickey was right."

The late Lou Marsh, a rugged citizen and hard-hitting sports writer, refereed hockey games with the same virility that characterized his writing. In a small Ontario town one night, a lady fan, seated close to the ice, was giving Marsh a terrific verbal beating. Lou heard, paid no attention. But a play developed that forced a faceoff in front of the belligerent lady. So she screamed at close range. "If you were my husband, Marsh, I'd give you poison."

"If I was your husband" Marsh retorted politely, "I'd take it."

Bald, fast-skating George Gravel, is one of the wittier referees of the present era. When a player feigned injury one night, and lay on the ice as if knocked completely out, Gravel said to him, quite pleasantly. "Please get up. The hockey players need the ice."

President Clarence Campbell is a martinet in the matter of enforcing rigidly the rules of the game, and stands four-square back of his referees, has visited sharp punishment on players who tangled with the officials on or off the ice. But when he was a referee, he took a lenient view of player belligerence. In the heat of a Stanley Cup match, Dit Clapper, of Boston Bruins, a notably clean and sporting player, annoyed at a penalty, tossed a punch at referee Campbell and landed a light, glancing blow of no damaging qualities. Most of those who saw the incident expected dire punishment to be visited on the offender. But Campbell didn't even report it. "Clapper is a nice fellow, always a gentleman, and just lost his head for a few seconds" he said.

Francis Helps Rangers Gain 3-2 Win Over Canadiens; Chuck Rayner Injures Knee

By The Canadian Press

Emile Percy Francis, known in hockey circles as "The Cat," has been in and out of the National Hockey League for the last five years. Sunday night, the 26-year-old goalie from North Battleford, Sask., may have turned in an exhibition that will keep him around for a long time. Called in from Cincinnati of the American Hockey League to replace Chuck Rayner, the Rangers' regular goalkeeper who may be out for the rest of the season, Francis stood off a barrage of Canadiens' pucks and earned the blueshirts a 3-2 victory. Rayner suffered a torn left knee cartilage Saturday night at Montreal.

The win gave the Rangers a split with the Habs who won 5-1 in Montreal Saturday night.

The Canadiens' lone victory moved them into a second-place deadlock with Toronto Maple Leafs who tied their only game 2-2 with Chicago Saturday. The New York clash kept the Rangers in pace with Boston Bruins who came through with a 5-2 victory at Chicago Sunday afternoon.

The Leafs and Habs are tied for the runner-up position, 13 points back of the idle Detroit Red Wings. The Bruins and Rangers are deadlocked in fourth. Chicago remains in the cellar.

Operation Likely

Rayner was hurt near the end of the second period Saturday when he skated out to hook the puck away from Paul Meger. He fell to the ice and Meger sprawled over him. Rayner finished the game but doctors said they thought he will have to have an operation on the injured limb.

Ed Slowinski handed New York a 1-0 Sunday night lead. Hy Buller made it 2-0 in the second period. Then Dick Gamble but Canadiens back in the game, but Ed Kullman scored what proved to be the winner. Bernie Geoffrion notched the Habs' other tally.

Elmer Lach received an assist on Dick Gamble's goal—his 345th of N.H.L. career. It broke Bill Cowley's all-time assist mark.

Herb Dickenson gave New York their brief 1-0 lead at Montreal Saturday, all but erased by five following Canadien goals. Dickie Moore potted three of them while Bernie Geoffrion collected the other two.

Bruins Win

At Chicago, Sunday afternoon, rookie Real Chevrefils led the Bruins to their 5-2 win with two goals, his first of N.H.L. play.

Milt Schmidt, Ed Kryzanowski and George Sullivan collected the other Bruin tallies while George Gee and Bill Mosienko banged in the Black Hawk goals.

Chicago's Bep Guidolin drew fines totalling $125 for a misconduct and a match penalty. Both troubles resulted from arguments with referee Red Storey.

It was Tod Sloan who once again saved Toronto from a loss with a goal at 13:02 of the final period. Harry Watson tallied the Leafs' other goal while Pete Horeck and Steve Witiuk lit the light for the visitors.

Leafs took a first period lead and then Chicago tied it up and went on to hold a 2-1 third period edge. Sloan's goal ended that.

Georgas Wins 4-Way Event

MIDLAND, Feb. 18 (CP). — Jim Georgas of the Owen Sound Ski Club Sunday won the four-way combined event of the Ontario ski championships. His brother Bill placed second and Hal Godding of the University of Toronto was third.

The four competitions covered two days and two courses. The Alpine combined—downhill and slalom—were held Saturday at Collingwood. The Nordic combined—the jump and cross-country—were held Sunday at Midland.

Jim Georgas placed first in Saturday's Alpine combined. John Keith of Collingwood was second and Bill Georgas finished third.

Karl Martitisch of Sault Ste. Marie came first in the Nordic combined and Pare Burg-Johannessen of the University of Toronto was second. J. Myhre of the University of Toronto came third.

In Saturday's events, Jim Georgas won the slalom and his brother Bill captured the downhill race. Bill Beck of Toronto was second in the downhill and John Keith of Collingwood was second in the slalom.

Kurt Kessler of the Toronto Ski Club won Sunday's jumping event. A. Kangus of Kirkland Lake copped the cross-country. Ole Houe of Kitchener finished second in the jumping. Karl Martitische was second in the cross-country.

Borrowed Boots Credited For Raleigh's Goal Spree, May Land On All-Star Team

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 (AP)—Hockey's lovable screwball, Don (Bones) Raleigh of New York Rangers, credits a pair of borrowed boots with a scoring spree which could ultimately deposit him at centre ice and the National Hockey League's all-star team.

Raleigh's uniform hangs loosely on his meagre five foot 11-inch frame. But his big toes had puffed up from a board-jamming incident.

Feeling the need for roomier brogans, Raleigh tried his left winger's size 10 on his right foot and his right winger's size 9½ on his left. They fit.

So Gaye Stewart and Reggie Sinclair were minus one shoe apiece but uncomplaining. Anything to reach to pot of gold at the end of the Stanley Cup playoffs, and Bonesy, a hot-shot in any money series, is the lad who could lead 'em.

The Raleigh switch from tight shoes came as a surprise to his coach, Bill Cook.

"I've heard of players trying other sticks," said Bill. "Like ball players experimenting with different bats. But only a guy like Raleigh would fool around with somebody else's boots."

Raleigh likes to kid himself about his lack of weight ("I never get a charley horse because I don't have muscles,") but the discovery that he was the lightest player on the Rangers irked his ego.

Challenged by Jimmy Conacher to step on the scales and reveal his true weight, Raleigh said:

"After you, James."

Jimmy took the step and scaled 148¼. Raleigh was worried. He sneaked a long swig of spring water, put garters on his socks, puffed up his chest and stepped aboard. The beam stopped at 147½.

"What do you expect?" cried Raleigh, reaching for a sour grape. "You've been laid up for two months."

Raleigh recently addressed a New Jersey church group on the history of the Civil War, having made a first-hand study of the battlefields.

"I've slept on every field", said the Winnipeg-born Ranger, "from Gettysburg to Appomatax. One night, though, I thought I was putting up at Bull Run until I woke up. Turned out I was in a grave yard."

Young's Point Victors Over Buckhorn

YOUNG'S POINT, Feb. 18 — (ENS).— Thursday night Young's Point took a 6-2 win over Buckhorn at Buckhorn. Young's Point got off to a good start with a goal by J. Darling early. J. Russelle took a pass from Heard for the Points' second goal. J. Barcroft netted Buckhorn's first goal and G. Shearer tied it up later. Play was good for the remainder of the period, and D. Heard with Church put the Point ahead again in the closing moments.

At the start of the second period Young's Point came up with a goal by J. Church on a long shot. Shortly after, Church received a penalty for tripping. About a minute later B. Shearer and D. McIsaac went off together for roughing, but no damage was done while the teams were short-handed. Near the close of the period D. Heard got his second goal, to make the score 5-2 for the visitors.

In the third, Buckhorn was trying hard, but were unable to dent the twine behind goalie Kyle. The Point added one more on a picture goal by D. Heard, to make the final score 6-2 for Young's Point. The final meeting between these clubs is set for Tuesday night at Buckhorn. Teams:

Buckhorn — Goal, Pearson; defence, G. Hall and G. Shearer; forwards, R. Northey, J. Armstrong and J. Northey; alternates, B. Shearer, J. Barcroft, J. Barr, F. Barcroft, P. Jopling, J. Powell, J. Gordon, B. Clarkson, W. Williams.

Young's Point — Goal, B. Kyle; defence, S. McNaughton, E. Tedford; forwards, D. Heard, J. Church, C. Russelle; alternates, J. Darling, D. Jacobs, D. McIsaac, R. Freeburn, D. Hogarth, D. Nicholson, P. Heard.

Referee—B. Batten.

Millbrook Ousted

MILLBROOK, Feb. 18 (ENS).— The third and deciding game of Junior "D" O.H.A. semi-finals was played in Sunderland between Millbrook and Sunderland on Thursday night and the final score was 7-4 for Sunderland. Both teams put up a good game and the goalies were kept busy stopping what looked like sure-fire goals. At the end of the first period the score was two-all and at the end of the second 4-2 for Sunderland.

Sunderland goes on to meet Orono in the finals on Tuesday night.

Sunderland: Goal, Josephson; defence, Johnson and Beech; forwards, Till, McGuchin and Nicholson; alternates, Farrman, Midrleton, Cotton, Cameron, Wallace, Brethour, Woods and Miller.

Millbrook: Goal, Hubbeard; defence, Crawford and McGill; forwards, Wright, Handley and Walling; alternates, Ginn, Brackenridge, Smith, Northey, Hutchison, Smith, Fox and Cummings.

Elected Treasurer

TORONTO, Feb. 18 (CP). — Bill Simpson of Toronto Saturday was elected secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Football Association. He is also head of the Toronto and District Football Association and Ontario delegate to the Canadian Soccer Association.

CANADIANS AT OLYMPICS—Official ceremonies marking the opening of the 1952 winter Olympics were held Friday before 30,000 persons in Bislett Stadium, Oslo. Canada's delegation was led by Gordon Audley, speed skater from Winnipeg, who carried the Canadian flag. At extreme left is W. T. Pickering of Montreal, a senior official of the Canadian team. Athletes of 30 countries represented at the games marched about the stadium and dipped their countries' flags as they passed the reviewing stand. In competition Saturday Audley tied for third in the 500-metre speed-skating race.

Olympics Enter 5th Day Austria Leads With Points

OSLO, Feb. 18 (CP). — The colorful Olympic winter games moved into the fifth day of competition today after a weekend of expected form and unexpected upsets, both figurative and literal.

The four championships decided Saturday and Sunday went to as many different countries, but the big upheaval came when Austria topped the unofficial but highly-regarded point standings of the 30 competing countries.

Gathering in point-counting placings since the start of the games, the Austrians broke through to the top Sunday when Mrs. Trude Jochum Beiser showed almost perfect style on the unpredictable Norefjell course and won the women's downhill.

It was a sad Sunday for the United States. Their athletes not only failed to get within the first six point-counting places in the two events completed, but were well outside the first 10.

Leads Canadians

Joanne Hewson of Montreal made the highest placing of all Canadians Sunday—eighth in the women's downhill, the event in which Mrs. Jochum Beiser led a big field.

The U.S. showing in the 5,000-metre speed-skating race Sunday was woefully weak after Ken Henry of Chicago and Don McDermott of Englewood Cliffs, N.J., had placed one-two in the 500-metre sprint Saturday.

The shorter race was where Gordon Audley of Winnipeg finished in a third-place tie and gave Canada 3½ points—all so far — in the point standing.

Audley was not entered in the 5,000-metre race, in which not an American was as high as the 23rd placing of Craig MacKay of Saskatoon. Ralph Olin of Calgary was 26th.

The expected winner was 28-year-old Hjalmar Anderson — called Hjallis by his fellow-Norwegians. Anderson cut nine seconds off the Olympic record by winning in eight minutes, 10.6 seconds for the 400-metre course.

Canada fared poorly in the men's downhill ski race Saturday, won by Italy's Zeno Colo. Bob Richardson of Montreal was the highest-placed Canadian, in a tie for 18th.

Norwegian skiers took the lead Sunday in the Nordic combined—a dual event of jumping and cross-country performance.

Leads In Points

Simon Slaatvik of Norway led in points on the jumping, followed by two fellow-countrymen. Heikki Hasu of Finland was rated a chance to take the event as well as the second half, the 18-kilometre cross country.

The Nordic combined provided two winners—top man in the two phases and the first man in the cross-country. Claude Richer of Ottawa and Jacques Carbonneau of St. Romauld, Que., made their first appearance of the games today in the 18-kilometre.

In the women's figure-skating competition, the five school, or compulsory, figures were completed Sunday. Jeannette Altwegg of Britain was so far in front she is expected to win the championship, succeeding Canada's Barbara Ann Scott, when the free-skating phase is held Wednesday.

Toronto's Suzanne Morrow was scored sixth after the school figures, and Marlene Smith of Niagara Falls, Ont., 11th and Vevi Smith of Toronto 13th.

Canada's hockey team had a bye Saturday and then defeated Finland with ease, 13-3, Sunday. The game was pretty much of a farce, judged on Canadian standards. The Finns, evidently trying to hold the score down, kept three and even four men on the defence.

The Canadians, not worrying greatly about the odd Finn roaming about, surrendered three goals among the total of seven shots the Finns had on the Canadian net.

Marmora In Series

MARMORA, Feb. 18 (ENS).— Playoffs for the central section of the Trent Valley Hockey League were arranged at a meeting held in Havelock Legion Hall on Sunday afternoon.

This Monday evening Stirling visits Marmora, with Frankford journeying to Wellington. Wellington returns to Frankford on Wednesday evening and Marmora visits Stirling on Thursday. This is a two-out-of-three series. The winners of this semi-final play a three-out-of-five series to declare the champion of the central section.

P.C.V.S. Cagers Take One Against Orillia

A preview of Ontario and C.O.S.S.A. basketball playdowns was given Orillia and cage fans Saturday as Orillia O.A.B.A. midgets edged out a 44-38 victory over P.C.C.S., Orillia juniors trimmed P.C.V.S. juveniles 48-25, and the Garnet and Grey senior "B" eked out a 37-35 win over Orillia Collegiate's senior "A."

A zone defence on the small bandbox gym floor stymied the Garnet and Grey midgets, coached by Jack Cullis, in the opening game. Orillia's fast-breaking cagers worked a 16-6 score in the first quarter and from there in needed every one of the 10 points.

The Garnet and Grey became accustomed to the floor and began to rally, down 29-17 at the half. They continued to press in the third, succeeding in breaking the zone defence. But the first quarter 10-point lead was too much for P.C.V.S., as they fell short by six points.

Courneya came into his own in this game for the first time this year with 13 points for P.C.V.S. His long shots accounted for most of his points in the second half against Orillia's stiff zone. Keeting was close behind with 12 points as the six-foot three-inch lad grabbed rebounds for points.

Rougher Fray

But the fireworks started in the second game. The Orillia juniors in the under 20 years bracket, used their experience to advantage against Jack Cullis' juveniles, under 17 years. All that experience wasn't the clean variety and they specialized on rough tactics under the basket.

McLaughlin of Orillia started a shoving match with Ken Armstrong. At the third shove the referee handed out a foul shot to Peterborough. McLaughlin moaned, then swore at the referee, who ordered him out of the game.

McLaughlin jumped at the referee's neck, pinning him. Cullis jumped up to the referee's aid and tried to get McLaughlin off him. His teammates then came and carried him away.

But the barrage of knees, pushing and shoving mixed with other rough tactics under the basket had put the Garnet and Grey off their game. Their shooting performance was the worst this season as they carried their share of the play, but couldn't pay off.

The Garnet and Grey stayed close in the first 16-10, fell behind more in the second 27-12 and ended on the wrong side of the 48-25 final score.

Terry Roberts took over first place in scoring from Dan Griffin with a total of 11 points. Roberts worked from the hook of the key with a push shot, while Griffin notched eight, mostly on layup shots. In practice he looked good and Orillia concentrated on him.

Had The Height

Height combined with a steady zone defence helped Gord Johnson's P.C.V.S. senior "B" cagers overcome an Orillia first-half lead, build up a healthy lead, and win.

The height was all to P.C.V.S. advantage on the small floor as Orillia's players were generally shorter. Orillia used a man-to-man defence which these tall players easily broke, especially in the second half.

Paul Frise and Stan Facendi stood out defensively as they batted down the Orillia passing plays, while Sandy Dewar, Ted Sanders and Norm Hayward led the Garnet and Grey offensive with fast breaks.

Hayward on the fast breaks rolled up a total of 15 points, while Frise followed closely with 13 points from hook and push shots from the pivot. Peacock scored 12 for Orillia and Mercer 11.

Trenton Wins Over Hastings By 7-3 Margin

HASTINGS, Feb. 18—(ENS)—Hastings intermediates looked like big leaguers for two periods Saturday night in a regular T.V.L. fixture as they led Trenton Taxi 3-1 but the third period was a nightmare as Trenton rapped in six goals with an answer to skate off with a 7-3 verdict.

Colby scored the only goal in the first period, while in the second Morrow and White added another pair, and Leavey finally hit the twine to put Trenton on the score sheet.

At the five-minue marks, Isaac went off for tripping and when he came back on, the score was tied, as Felion and B. Johnston scored two quick goals.

At 11:40 Leavey scored his second goal to break the tie, and from there in Trenton dominated the play and the final outcome was never in doubt.

Hastings line of White, Stevenson and Oliver showed real promise, while Peterson and Isaac were tops in defence.

Schmidt was the standout of the Trenton defence and was still able to be the most dangerous player on the offensive, while the line of B. Johnston, Watson and Scott looked best up front.

Hastings—Goal, Hill; defence, Isaac, Taylor; centre, Blake; wings, Herrington, Morrow; alternates, Jeffs, Parsons, Colby, White, Stevenson, Oliver, Peterson.

Trenton—Goal, Hill; defence, Campney, Schmidt; centre, B. Johnston; wings, Watson, Scott; alternates, Beale, Jones, Felion, McDonald, Carswell, Leaney, C. Johnston.

Seek To Improve Recreation In Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 18. (ENS)—Lakefield's recreational activities should be greatly improved if plans made at the meeting of the recreation committee on Thursday evening are carried out. All plans are subject to Council's approval.

Chairman J. L. Fraser presided and the main item of business was the striking of a proposed budget for the year.

The building of a baseball diamond on the reclaimed land at the corner of Reid and Concession Sts. was discussed and a grant of $1000 will be asked for this project.

The bathing beach, supervised and partially financed by the Lakefield Red Cross Society, will need considerable repair work on the catwalks, reported Mrs. H. Wilford, beach convener. It was also felt that a life guard should be engaged as well as an instructor. His job would be, in part, to enforce some law and order which had been lacking. Estimated budget here was $500.

A proposed playground, to be supervised by the mothers, and located at the back of Memorial Hall will be again taken up with the Council before definite plans are laid.

It was hoped that Girl Guides and Brownies might be organized in the village. The leaders of the Cub Packs have done a splendid job and Lakefield now has two Cub Packs numbering about 70 boys. It will be proposed that $100 will be used for this work. Steps will also be taken to organize a village band. The former band does not function now and such an organization would be a definite asset to the village.

It is hoped to make some repairs on the tennis court in the park. Proposed budget for this item $50.

The suggestion was made that Principal R. E. Sutton of the Lakefield and District High School and Public School Principal E. G. Sloan be included on the Recreation Board.

Present were Chairman J. L. Fraser, Mrs. H. Wilford, Rev. Dr. V. J. Masterson and Scout Leader Ken Jakins.

C's Midget Victors

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 18 — (ENS) — Campbellford's midget OMHA hockey team chalked up another victory in their round with the Wellington team Saturday when they emerged from the battle with a 10-goal lead on the round. They tied the much improved and slightly heavier Wellington team, 6-6 on Saturday night in Wellington, after defeating them previously in Campbellford to the tune of 13-3.

The team will now tangle with Stirling and with the reputation both these teams have established during the season, fans are assured of lots of excitement in the battle to stay in the playoffs. The local youngsters play in Stirling on Monday night, with a return game here on Friday. It is a home-and-home series, goals-to-count.

The OMHA bantams looked as though they were going to come out on top of the heap on Saturday night in Wellington also, but were unable to overcome the three-goal lead the Wellington team gained over them when the two teams played in Campbellford last Tuesday. Wellington defeated the local bantams here by a scored of 3-0, giving the locals quite a handicap to overcome on a strange ice. They won their game 3-1 on Saturday, but lost the round by one goal. The litttle fellows can reluctantly hang up their skates for this season, but the loss seems to have more firmly established their determination to go to the top next year. The team lost a number of its more experienced players to the midgets this year, when these boys grew out of the bantam age group.

Reduce Air Traffic At LaGuardia Field

MONTREAL, Feb. 16 (CP). — A decision to reduce air traffic at New York's Laguardia Field will mean a change in routing of all New York-bound flights from Canada to Idlewild Airport instead of Laguardia, Trans-Canada Air Lines officials said today.

Affected will be three flights daily out of Montreal and four out of Toronto. Colonial Airlines' flights out of Montreal to New York also will be affected.

However, officials said the only difference, so far as passengers are concerned, will be in the trip from New York Idlewild Airport into town as compared to that from Laguardia.

Where do they get Nickel?

"Son, about 90 per cent of all the nickel used in the world comes from Canada. The Inco nickel mines and smelters are the biggest in the world. They are near Sudbury, Ontario. Some of the mines are nearly a mile deep. Altogether there are over 280 miles of underground tunnels."

Charlie Chaplin Does Everything In Latest Movie

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 18—(AP)—If being a genius entails as much hard work as Charlie Chaplin puts into it—who wants to be a genuis?

Chaplin has been called everything in the book but no one could label him lazy. He works so hard at picture-making that it's tiring to just sit and watch him.

It's no understatement to say that Chaplin does the work of seven men. He has just wound up "Limelight", his first movie since "Monsieur Verdoux". Chaplin, of course, is the star. He also is the director, producer, writer, composer, choreographer and conductor of the orchestra.

Between shots, he somehow finds time to give one of his rare interviews.

What does he think of present day comics?

"What can I say?", he shrugs. "If I say I like them, I'm called condescending. If I say they're horrid, I'm called jealous".

Chaplin lives an ivory tower sort of existence away from work. He said it took him three years to put the original idea of "Limelight" into its simple script form. He worked a year composing the score. He spent many months casting the girl and many months more staging the ballet sequences.

The movie, which Chaplin says contains all the basic emotions of life itself, concerns the fading music hall artist, a young ballerina and a young composer. Chaplin's son, Sydney, plays the composer. Claire Bloom, an English actress, plays the ballerina.

Straight Role

Although Chaplin wears comic get-ups for the music hall routines in the movie, his part is essentially a straight character—"a new character for me."

"I do not wear the traditional tramp costume, but that does not mean that I have abandoned it forever."

He says he has no plans following "Limelight," but adds that he is not contemplating retirement.

He shot this movie in six weeks which, for Chaplin, is breakneck speed.

Most students of comedy agree that Chaplin is the greatest of them all. What is the secret of Chaplin comedy? He says:

"During the First World War, a judge down south once told me: 'I admire you, Charlie, because your humor is so basic. When you go up behind a dignified society woman and kick her in the rear. Damn it! That's funny.'"

To Chaplin, that word picture of a forlorn tramp kicking dignity in the pants is the best definition of comedy he ever heard.

"Add a little rhythm and tempo and you have it. What else is there? Isn't it wonderful that we can do that? Else, man would be so insufferably proud."

New Zealanders Short Of Bread On Which To Put Their Butter

WELLINGTON, N.Z., Feb. 18—(Reuters)—New Zealand, one of the world's leading producers of butter and cheese, may be so shy of bread on which to put the butter by 1953 that she will have to resort to bread rationing.

That is the prospect the country faces unless its farmers start growing more wheat. About 12,000,000 bushels a year are needed instead of the 5,500,000 now produced.

This season's estimate of the area to be sown to wheat is 100,000 acres, or 46,000 acres less than last year and the lowest since 1875-76.

In the last year about 4,500,000 bushels were imported from Australia. But prospects are that New South Wales, Australia's biggest wheat-growing state, will have to get wheat from other states this year to meet its own requirements.

Importation of wheat from Canada, even if available, is out because Commonwealth countries such as New Zealand are trying to reduce imports from dollar countries like Canada as a step toward getting the sterling area on a sound financial footing.

New Zealand must rely on an increase in local production if the gap is to be filled.

Price of wheat for the 1952-53 crop was announced by the government as $1.58 a bushel, an increase of 14 cents a bushel over the previous season's price. Growers argue that the government will get more wheat only if it brings the price into line with world parity—$2.38 a bushel.

The government says to do so will mean raising an extra $4,200,000 in taxes at a time when the government is trying to reduce taxation.

The 14-cent increase, the government says, takes care of the established increases in production costs on a generous scale.

Wheat is not a popular crop with New Zealand farmers, and a steady decline in acreage sown in wheat has been shown in yearly crop production reports.

Recent high prices for wool have accentuated this trend as farmers have turned over more acres to pasturage for sheep.

One way in which the government hopes to talk the farmers into growing more wheat is by stressing the fact that wheat fits in well with crop-rotation plans aimed at providing better pastures for sheep.

Farm experts say the yield of wheat on plowed-under pasture land is high and the land, when it is returned to pasture, makes even better grazing land.

By such a plan of rotation they say the total amount of meat, dairy products and wool for export could be maintained at present levels while increasing wheat production.

Refused To Obey Reason For Shift Of Lineman

BETHANY, Feb. 18 (ENS)—Over 150 subscribers attended the annual meeting of the Manvers Municipal Telephone System, held in the township hall at Bethany Thursday afternoon, with Robert Morton as acting chairman.

Two minutes silence was observed in memory of the late King George VI.

The secretary-treasurer's report was presented by J. C. Cummiskey who stated a substantial balance, and also read the minutes of Commissioners meetings held throughout the year.

The chief item of discussion was the matter involving the dismissal of Clarke Pomeroy, who had served as line repair man and night operator for the past ten years.

The Commissioners reiterated their statement made earlier: "That Mr. Pomeroy was not dismissed; but that his failure to comply with their request that he accept no outside employment had made the situation unsatisfactory; that he had refused to work under the conditions imposed by the commissioners as to his working hours, which left the way open for them to advertise for a new employee."

Mr. Pomeroy's salary had been $157 per month for line repair work and night operating.

The discussion revealed that at no time since the system was begun, had there been any written contracts drawn up between the Commissioners and employees and that verbal contracts could be misinterpreted.

It was recommended that in future, written contracts be drawn up.

Another ratepayer queried why one operator was granted a gratuity of $10 upon resignation when others had not been given the same remuneration? The chairman stated there was no definite ruling on this. It was applied at the discretion of the commissioners depending upon the circumstances of the resignation.

"Why did a motion granting $25 gratuity money to Clarke Pomeroy, retired employee, appear in the minutes and had not been given to him?"

The reply was "That Mr. Pomeroy had not left the company-owned house immediately at the end of his term, thereby causing them considerable embarrassment which would cost the commission more than the sum involved."

New Repair Man

A new line repair man, Mr. D. Lucas has been hired as of January 1 at a salary of $180 a month which includes his pay as night operator.

It was reported that a new truck had been purchased last week for the lineman.

The election of commissioners followed. Harry Preston and Walter Neals were elected commissioners by acclamation. James Boggs and Percy Mantle were nominated but withdrew.

It was recommended that the commissioners and linemen patrol the lines at least once annually together to promote a better understanding between employers and employee as to what was needed .

Day operators hired for the new year are Mrs. R. Palmer, Mrs. M. Finney and Mrs. E. Lamb. There was no increase in rates.

WON'T BE RE-HIRED—Wr. Walter P. Schrieber, former German Medical Corps general, shown with his son, Paul Gebhardt, demanded an investigation of what he called "Communist-inspired" charges that he committed war crimes in a Nazi concentration scamp. Schrieber, now working for the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine in San Antonio ,Tex., will not be rehired when his contract expires. He is accused of conducting atrocities in medical experiments on the Nazi's human prisoners.

10 Klansmen Arrested, Tension Eases

WHITEVILLE, N. .. Feb. 18 — (AP — ...nsion ... flogg... in this section abated Sunday following arrest Saturday of 10 former Ku Klux Klansmen on charges of kidnapping and violating civil rights.

Columbus County Sherriff Hugh Nance said, "the atmosphere is greatly improved."

Nance said, "It seems far from likely there will be any more mob violence in the immediate future."

For the first time in months, many of the county's residents spent a restful night Saturday night, unafraid that a knock on the door would result in their being lured away and flogged.

At least 11 persons, white and Negro, were flogged during the last year. Most of the beatings occurred during the last few months.

Saturday the F.B.I., after working quietly on the case since last October, moved swiftly and arrested 10 men. They were accused of taking a white man and woman into Horry County, S.C., and flogging them the night of October 6. The victims were identified as Mrs. Dorothy Dillard Martin, 27, and Ben Grainger, 40, both of Fair Bluff.

Appear Before Commissioner

The 10 men, including two officers appeared Saturday at Fayetteville before U.S. Commissioner T. L. Hon and posted $5,000 bond each. They will be given a hearing February 26.

The men were identified as: Early L. Brooks, 44, a constable and described by the F.B.I. as head of the Fair Bluff Klavern; Horace Strickland, 38, deputy sheriff and former policeman at Fair Bluff; Bobby Brooks, 19; Ross Enzor, 43; L. C. Worley, 25; Bob Hayes, 38; Pittman Foy Strickland, 29; George Miller, 18; Sherwood Miller, 26; and Steve Edmund, 26.

In Louisburg, Charles P. Green, U.S. district attorney for Eastern North Carolina, said Sunday he will not ask for the death penalty against the 10 men. He added that he hopes to bring them to trial, probably at Fayetteville, on March 17.

British Forces Halt Suez Trains

ISMAILIA, Egypt, Feb. 18 (Reuters)—The British Army Saturday halted all rail traffic in the Suez Canal Zone after a guerrilla bomb blew up a British Army train near here last night.

The oil train was on the main Port Said-Suez line, about 25 miles north of here. A mine blew up under it, wrecking six oil tankers and a brake car.

British commander Gen. Sir George Erskine clamped on rigid controls on the road between Ismailia and Port Said and stopped "for the present" any further releases of Egyptian auxiliary police still detained by the British.

Saturday's decision to stop rail traffic means oil and food trains so far allowed to pass through the zone, in and out of the Nile delta, will now be halted and turned back at the zone border. Passenger trains have not been running for more than three months.

The blast shattered a lull in the canal zone since King Farouk set up a new government earlier this month.

A military spokesman at Erskine's headquarters said that in addition to oil and food trains, Egyptian army troops and supply trains which have been passing through the zone had also been stopped. It was the first time the British Army had interfered with Egyptian military traffic passing through the zone.

New Zealand 470 Behind In Test

AUCKLAND, N.Z., Feb. 18—(Reuters).—New Zealand was 470 runs behind the West Indies with six wickets standing at the close of the second day of the second cricket test match between the two countries Saturday.

Jeff Stollmeyer, Frank Worrell and Clyde Walcott all bettered 100 runs to enable the West Indies to declare their first innings at 546 for six wickets earlier today.

By the close of the day's play, New Zealand had made 76 runs for four wickets in reply. The six remaining batsmen are now faced with the stiff task of making 471 runs to win the innings.

New Zealand made a bad start, losing their first wicket for zero and their second with only 12 on the board.

Kremlin Praises Niemoeller As Pastor Blasts Bolshevism

By HANNS NEUERBOURG

WIESBADEN, Germany, Feb. 18 (AP).—The Kremlin praises him, Hitler jailed him — yet he brands Bolshevism as a 100 times more dangerous than Nazism.

He opposes West Germany's rearmament — but in the First World War, as a submarine officer, he helped sink 300,000 tons of Allied shipping.

He is a lean, furrowed thinker; a sharp-tongued debater. He never sits on the fence or minces words.

Dr. Martin Niemoeller is perhaps the world's most controversial pastor. Although some German politicians refer to him as a charlatan and his followers regard him as a prophet, a leading layman in the church, Dr. Christoph Von Imhoff rejects both labels and says

"He is a completely undogmatic individualist."

The Russian view has been summed up by Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky :"Niemoeller is a man who is important to Germany and can do much for peace."

Heading For U.S.

A few weeks ago the tireless pastor, 60 years old, returned from a visit to Moscow, which stirred public argument in Germany. Next Monday he will fly to the United States for a lecture tour.

Chiefly because of his stand against West Germany's defence contribution, Niemoeller is praised as an "upright patriot" in Communist newspapers in East Germany and other countries of the Soviet sphere. The Red press never prints, however, remarks by Niemoeller like the following:

"The threat of Bolshevism is a hundred times more dangerous than that of Nazism; I would a thousand times rather live on this side of the Iron Curtain than the other. There, people are being stripped piece by piece of all that makes human living worthwhile."

Invited to Moscow by the Russian Orthodox Church when the Kremlin was anxious to disrupt West German defence preparations, Niemoeller found his statements to Soviet reporters carefully winnowed by the government censor.

"The Church in Russia is a growing seed. It has arisen again in a silent but powerful kind of revolution. There will be no return to atheism."

Close Associate

Niemoeller's close associate since 1945 is a former general of infantry, Dr. Franz Beyer. As his private secretary, Beyer wrote a biography of Niemoeller. His book relates that Niemoeller, before Hitler seized power, was regarded as a pro-Nazi clergyman because he helped Nazis who lost their jobs for their political beliefs.

Niemoeller was turned into a bitter anti-Nazi by Hitler's creation in 1933 of a new "Aryan" church, the Deutsche Christen (German Christians). The pastor consequently founded the Confessing Church. As a spearhead of Protestantism's fight for independence, he travelled from parish to parish denouncing Nazi rule.

Arrested in 1937, he served seven months in prison, and was transferred to a concentration camp just when his release was due. Not until 1945 did he draw a free breath again.

He came home with his spirit unbroken.

Poodle Haircuts Fine For Some Westmore Says

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 18 (AP)—About this matter of poodle haircuts, beauty expert Buddy Westmore declares: "If you follow the mass, you may end up a mess."

Buddy is makeup chief at Universal-International studios and member of the famed family of beauticians. As co-owner of a leading beauty salon in Hollywood, he likes to see such fads as the poodle haircut come along. But as a man whose job is to make women beautiful, he warned against faddism.

"Except for the business it brings in, I hate to see fads like the poodle," he remarked. "The women go wild and adopt the fad, whether or not it is suited to their appearance and personality. There's nothing wrong with the poodle. But it is suitable for only 20 per cent of the women.

"The poodle is best for women with oval-shaped faces and well-formed heads. If a tall woman with a long face wore a poodle, she would look ridiculous.

Could Be Costly

"Also, it takes a certain kind of hair to adapt to a poodle. Women with heavy, silky hair shouldn't try it. Those without naturally curly hair would find the poodle expensive. To look well-groomed, they would have to get permanents whenever the hair grows out.

"But for women with naturally curly hair, it is a good, lazy way to keep their hair. It requires little care for them."

Westmore rapped the fashion magazines, which he said were leading American women astray.

"A woman is never going to be admired by men if she grabs onto every fad that comes along," he explained.

"The best example of this in Hollywood is Claudette Colbert. She realized many years ago that short haircut was best suited to her face. So she has stuck to it for 20 years."

FORT WILLIAM, Feb. 18 (CP) —Bail totalling $6,000 was set Saturday for three men charged with alleged irregularities at the government taxation office here.

Israel Jacob Grossman, 36, of Toronto, and Joseph Rosario Armand Seguin, 38, of Hul, Que., both former tax assessors at the Fort William office, were to be released on bail of $2,500 each.

Wallace Charles Du Guay, 40, of Campbelltown, N.B., and accountant, was to be released on $1,000 bail.

In court Saturday they were remanded for preliminary hearing next Saturday.

Grosman and Seguin were charged with conspiracy to defraud, uttering forged documents and breach of trust. Du Guay was charged with conspiracy to defraud.

Seguin and Grosman are accused of making use of a false document, purporting to be signed by W. A. Blennerhassett, Dominion income tax director here. The document would purport to relive two Fort William residents from paying income tax and filing returns.

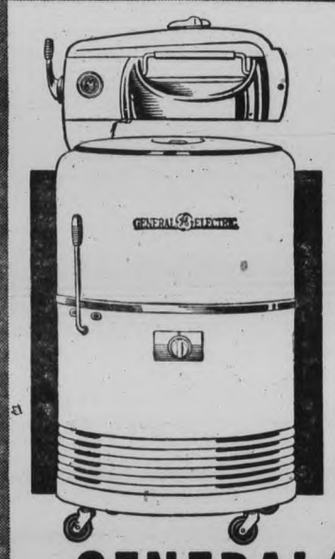
Why deny yourself the best to save a few cents a week

Here's a good rule to follow when you buy a washer today. Ask yourself "Will it be serving me faithfully, many years from now?" An apparent saving of ten dollars—or fifteen dollars—or even fifty dollars—spread over fifteen years is just a few cents a week. Can you afford to gamble when you look at it this way? Can you afford not to buy the best?

don't sell your future short

Don't allow yourself to be talked into buying a so-called "bargain". Remember a real bargain does not depend only on the price-tag. You have to consider quality—the years of trouble-free service the washer will give—the good name of the maker—before you can decide whether or not it's a real bargain.



How old is your washer?

If the washer you are using now can no longer give you "quick-clean" washing every time, you are wasting money and energy every time you use it. The G-E Washer has every known feature—every feature you've always wanted—to help you breeze through your wash. We say this to you: Compare all the makes, feature by feature, and we're confident you'll choose G-E. Whatever else you do—see the G-E Washer before you decide.

Queen Mary Still Model Of Courage and Dignity

By STANLEY JOHNSON

LONDON, Feb. 18 (AP) — A woman of 84 has given Britain a lesson in courage and dignity this week.

She is Queen Mary, widow of one king, mother of two sons who became kings, grandmother of the reigning Queen. To every Briton, she has been a symbol of matchless valor as she bore the strains and sorrows of the last fortnight.

Her only sign of weakness—and of her years—was her decision not to make the journey to Windsor Castle for the King's burial Friday.

England has known her as a Queen for more than 40 years. George V was her husband. Edward VIII and George VI were her sons. But in all the years England has known her, many Britons feel, she was never more majestic than she was last Monday when she stood, unweeping, at the entrance to Westminster Hall—to receive the body of George VI, back in London to lie in state before the homage of the nation.

Many Sorrows

Queen Mary waited there with her granddaughter, the new Queen, and her daughter-in-law, Queen Mother Elizabeth. The old lady's eyes seemed to reflect the long procession of her dead whom she had seen carried into that traditional place of Royal mourning.

Tragedy first struck when she was the laughing and lovely "Princess Mary," happily engaged to the Duke of Clarence, elder son of the Prince of Wales who was to become Edward VII. The duke died Jan. 14, 1892, when Mary, like the new Queen Elizabeth now, was only 25.

She turned to his younger brother, and they were married July 6, 1893. Queen Victoria said: "Thank God that George has got such an excellent, useful and good wife."

As Duchess of York, Queen Mary was one of the chief mourners when Victoria died Jan. 22, 1901. As Princess of Wales, she learned of the death of her father-in-law, King Edward VIII, on May 6, 1910, and as Queen of England attended the state funeral.

Next came the gloomy years of the First World War. Then came one of the most cruel blows the Queen has had to bear—the death Jan. 18, 1919, of her 14-year-old youngest son, Prince John.

During the 1930's, Queen Mary nursed her ailing husband, George V, until he died after a protracted illness Jan. 20, 1936.

New Tragedy

Then came tragedy of a different sort—the abdication from the throne of her eldest son, Edward VIII.

The Second World War, which broke so many hearts, did not spare the Queen. On Aug. 25, 1942, her youngest surviving son, the Duke of Kent, was killed in an airplane crash while on active military service.

Last week the aged Queen, relieved by the apparent recovery of King George VI from his lung operation, was seated at her desk in Marlborough House busy with the enormous correspondence he carries on all over the globe. It was there the news was broken to her that the King had died in his sleep.

Palace sources say she took it calmly, and, with her usual dignity, walked slowly upstairs to her private sitting room where she could be alone with her grief.

This is the sort of behavior with which, as Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons, Queen Mary has through the years "inspired not only her family but the British Empire."

New Worry

Even at this dark moment, a new worry clouded the old Queen's life. Her only daughter —Princess Mary, the Princess Royal—is ill. Her doctors have ordered her to go to Switzerland to recuperate from fibrositis, a painful inflammation of the nerves and muscles in the lower back.

The Queen Grandmother herself appears to enjoy the good health which has sustained her throughout her long life. She walks erect as ever, although with aid of a furled umbrella, and sits with Victorian erectness in straight chairs.

Occasionally Marlborough House announces she is laid up with a cold, but otherwise she gives Britons little to worry about. Twice during the past week she has driven out for a breath of air, and bowed to the populace with her usual composure. On Wednesday, she welcomed home the Duke of Windsor and went with him to the King's bier.

Breakin Nets $9 In Cigarettes

City police are investigating a breakin late Saturday night at Mather's Garage, 124 Simcoe St.

Thieves got into the garage by smashing a 14-inch by 12-inch window overlooking Simcoe St. After picking out the jagged pieces of glass they wiggled through the opening.

Their loot consisted of 24 packages of cigarettes, valued at $9.08.

The till was left open by Mr. Mather as there was no money in it. After riffling through some papers in the till, the thieves left by the same window.

Nothing else was touched.

The breakin was discovered on Sunday noon by Lloyd Mather, brother of Harry Mather, the proprietor. He went down to the garage to get his car, parked outside and he noticed the broken window.

There were no tracks in the snow, indicating that the breakin must have occurred before the snowstorm began Saturday night.

4 Peterborough Men Florida Rotary Guests

Four Peterborough Rotarians were conducted to the head table at a recent luncheon of St. Petersburg, Fla., club. They were C. S. Cummer, E. L. Sackville, Stan Warne and Charles Pilon.

That club meets twice a week, Tuesdays and Fridays, the first being visitors' day, with just enough of their own regulars to carry on. Writing a personal note on Feb. 14, Mr. Sackville emphasized the fact that there were 607 Rotarians at the previous week's Tuesday meeting.

Guest speaker was the Rev. Dr. John Short of St. George's United Church, Toronto, and the title of his talk was "As a Briton Sees it."

"Quite without intent, I happened to mention to a Rotarian who was welcoming visitors that we knew Dr. Short well, and the four of us were landed at the head table. They certainly take care of visiting Rotarians down here.

"Dr. Short is a Scotsman who held pastorates in leading Congregational churches in Scotland and England. As chairman of the Congregational Union of Great Britain, he has travelled in Europe, Australia and America.

"I happened to meet him at the 1950 council of the United Church of Canada in Toronto. He was the daily devotional speaker. Toronto people of St. George's were so impressed with Dr. Short and his messages that in the spring of 1951 they invited him to succeed Rt. Rev. Dr. Willard Brewing, who was retiring both as moderator and pastor."

Berry's Service Station Target 5th Time In 5 Years

A hit-and-run driver Saturday night started a chain of accidents at Berry's Service Station on Highway 28 that resulted in damage to four motor vehicles. Nobody was injured but property damage was more than $1,000. Kenneth Keetch, 23, of Port Credit was driving a large gasoline transport truck toward Port Hope. As he approached the sharp curve at Berry's Service Station, five miles southwest of the city, he saw a Peterborough-bound car coming toward him.

Trying to avoid a collision he pulled onto the service station driveway, just north of the highway. But the car scraped along the left side of the transport for about five feet. The driver of the car continued on.

Jarred by the impact, the transport went partially out of control on an icy stretch of the driveway. It bore down on the gasoline pumps, south of the garage. However Keetch kept his head and managed to steer the large transport in between the gasoline pumps and the building.

Had he struck the pumps there might have been a serious fire or explosion.

Hit Rear of Car

The rear of a car was jutting out from the west end of the garage and the runaway transport struck it and spun it a distance of 15 feet where it smashed into the side of an old converted gasoline truck, used for hauling a bulldozer.

The converted truck was knocked 17 feet. About $350 was caused to the left side side of the cab.

Both the car and the truck were owned by Mr. Berry. The gasoline transport, which received extensive damage to the front end, was owned by Trinidad Leaseholds Ltd. The car received $500 damage.

It is the fifth accident in five years at the service station. And Mr. Berry is beginning to feel that his location is jinxed.

OPP Constable Roy Feeley investigated.

Rumor Of Plane Crash Unfounded

A rumor that a United States' passenger plane had crashed near Kendal alerted airport officials at Malton and provincial police early today.

Kendal is 12 miles northeast of Bowmanville.

Air Traffic Control at Malton airport say they know nothing of any missing United States aircraft. And a careful search of the district by provincial police from Bowmanville failed to turn up any clue to the supposedly missing plane.

William Turansky, proprietor of the general store at Kendal, said he knew nothing about it until a light plane from Peterborough landed in a nearby field. The two occupants enquired if he had seen or heard about a lost United States aircraft.

He didn't then and he still doesn't.

It's just a rumor as far as Mr. Turansky is concerned.

Trenton airport officials have reported no missing aircraft.

A United States passenger plane crash-landed a few weeks ago just west of Cobourg. Nobody was injured as the pilot made a wheels-up landing in a snow-covered field.

Bargees Dwindle

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuters). — The older generation of bargees who man the barges on Britain's canals is dying off and no one is taking their place. British transport officials, faced with a shortage of recruits for work on barges, said: "Once it was the rule for sons to follow their fathers, but now the younger men prefer regular jobs ashore."

Lumbermen Ask Bigger Loans To Home Builders

An increase in the scale of loans for the assistance of home builders was recommended to the government by the Canadian Lumbermen's Association at their 44th annual convention in Montreal last week.

Recognition should be given to higher prices of commodities and property values as the basis and need of more substantial loans for those who wish to acquire houses for themselves and their families at the new economic levels and purchasing power of money, it was said.

Continuation of stability in the lumber business was the general expectation of the convention which was attended by 1,800 representatives of the business from all parts of Canada, with some from the United States.

British Want Lumber

Gordon Munro of Peterborough Lumber Company said there were indications that the British market desired to place more business in Canada this year, since controls were removed from timber by the British government.

The extent of the business that may materialize in that quarter depends on the price factor. Coal shipments to Britain from the U.S.A. tended to raise considerably the prices Canadian timber would have to pay for shipping space. On the other hand, Baltic sources of supply had an advantage in a shorter sea route.

Additional demand for timber in Canada was expected to continue not only for ordinary requirements but also as a substitute for steel in building, particularly in the development of fabricated trusses, connectors and other forms.

George Bailey Elected To Union Executive

George Bailey, 103 Princess St., was elected third vice-president of the Ontario Provincial Conference of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union (A.F.L.-T.L.C.) in Kingston during the weekend.

The conference urged an increase in old age pensions from $40 to $65 a month and pledged support to a move by the union to bring Canada's immigration policy under control of the federal labor department.

William Jenoves of Toronto was re-elected president of the conference. Other officers elected were: William Kadn, Kitchener, first vice-president; Thomas Drews, London, second vice-president, and Edward Baker, Hamilton, secretary-treasurer.

Burglars Drug Victims

SINGAPORE (Reuters).—Burglars here have delved into Malayan folk lore to find the secret of a mysterious drug to dope their victims before robbing them. Police said the burglars are using a white powder which produces "deep sleep" in many successful burglaries.

Film Festival Brings Pictures Of All World

Second annual film festival sponsored by the Peterborough Film Council will be presented Friday and Saturday nights in Queen Mary auditorium.

Ron Ward, district representative of the National Film Board, explained that the purpose of the festival is to bring to the city outstanding documentary films made in Canada and other countries.

From four to five films will be shown each night, ranging from a color film of seal hunting and whaling off Newfoundland to a film biography of Honore Balzac, the French author.

Each program will be different, and admission is free, but by ticket only. Tickets may be obtained from the library or the executive of the film council.

Some of the documentary films to be shown in the two-night festial are: Yours Is the Land, a color film on U.S. conservation; Top of The Ski World, color, on skiing in Norway at the scene of the Ompic winter games; The Longhouse People, color, the life and religious ceremonies of the Iroquois who cling to old religious beliefs.

Showings start at 8 p.m.

Quebec Group Wins Award

QUEBEC, Feb. 18 — (CP)— La Plus Forte (She Is Strongest) was declared the best production and Pierrette Fortin, playing a minor role in the two-part comedy, was chosen the best actress in the Eastern Quebec Regional Drama Festival.

Adjudicator Pierre Lefevre made the selections Saturday night after Les Compagnons Notre-Dame of Three Rivers staged Le Combat Des Elus (The Battle of the Appointed), last presentation in the three-day trials preliminary to the Dominion Festival at Saint John, N.B., April 28-May 3.

Mr. Lefevre selected Hal Walkley as the best actor and The Playboy of the Western World, in which Walkley held the title role, as the play with the best scenery.

The New York-born Frenchman said La Plus Forte, written by Aime Plamondon and Rene Arthur of Quebec, was chosen for the overall interpretation by the cast. In her role, Miss Fortin showed precision, strength and perfect tone. La Plus Forte was produced by the Conservatoire National de Musique, drama section, a Quebec group twice winner of the Dominion title at Ottawa in 1935-36.

Tender Tale

Angered at having its tail stepped on, a temperamental tabby gave vent to its annoyance by biting the lady who accidentally pinched pussy's tail betwen her foot and the floor. It happened in Toronto Sunday. Mrs. Tessie Montray, 65, 543 Armour Rd., incurred the wrath of her small nephew's pet cat. The irate feline promptly sank its fangs into Mrs. Montray's left leg. She was given out-patient treatment for the injury at Civic hospital Sunday night.

Addition Doubles Floor Space At Outboard

Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company's plans for enlargement of their plant on Monaghan Road have recently been revised upward to provide more than double the floor space originally contemplated.

Bruce L. Payne said today that this latest addition will be 150 ft. by 125 feet at the rear of the main section of their factory. Business has been crowding the facilites of the machine shop, and an extension of the main plant became necessary.

"We expect the work to begin by April 1," Mr. Payne said, "and the addition to be completed by August. The company has been considering expansion of the plant on a somewhat smaller scale, but within the last ten days or so, the plans for enlargement were more than doubled. Increasing domestic and export business warranted this larger view of our needs for the future."

Total floor space to be acquired by the enlargement is approximately 20,000 sq. ft. Work in the die-casting department is one of the factors advising the larger investment in the physical plant at this time, Mr. Payne said.

$1,500 Blaze Burns Kitchen

LINDSAY, Feb. 18 (ENS). — Fire early today did $1,500 damage to the rear of a Durham St. home here. Firemen, called out at 6 a.m., fought the blaze for three hours before controlling it.

Fred Cunnington, owner of the house, tried to light a fire in the lean-to shed at the back of the house. The fire got out of control, burned through into the kitchen and up the walls into the upstairs bedrooms.

Damage to the bedrooms was not extensive, but the shed and the kitchen were destroyed.

Chamber Of Commerce Puts On Radio Show

The Peterborough Chamber of Commerce announced that it is starting an educational campaign today with the co-operation of radio station CHEX, with a program entitled, The Way I See It.

Gordon McGavin, president of the chamber, described the campain as one to inspire Canadians with pride in Canada and Canadian achievements under a system of business managed enterprise.

He said that the campaign was in line with the Chamber of Commerce policy to do what it can to explain to the public through press and radio the manner in which free enterprise functions for all.

Icy Roads Help Cause 5 Accidents

Car Swung Around Turned On Side By Slippery Ruts

Five motor accidents were reported to city police over the weekend but there was only property damage, no injuries.

A westbound car skidded on Aberdeen St. late Saturday night and turned over, landing on the north curb, just west of Aylmer St.

The car was being driven west on Aberdeen by Edward Carlton, 316 Margaret Ave. Some 40 feet past the Aylmer St. intersection Carlton applied his brakes to slow down. The car hit a patch of ice, turned completely around and landed on the north curb on its left side.

Right Car

Damage was caused to the left front fender, left rear fender, running board and the whole left side of the body. A tow truck was called to pull the vehicle right side up.

Carlton was uninjured and continued on his way to work.

A slippery roadway caused another accident at 5 p.m. Sunday noon at Bethune and Charlotte Sts.

Don Moffatt, 319 Simcoe St., was driving east on Charlotte St. At Bethune St. he started to make a left turn but the car slid sideways, temporally out of control, and smashed into a cement post.

About $30 damage was caused to the left front fender and front bumper.

Hit-And-Run

Fred Spencley, 596 McCannan Ave., reported to police that his car had been clipped by a hit-and-run driver shortly after 9 p.m. Saturday.

Spencley said he was driving east on Charlotte St. and stopped for a red traffic light at Monaghan Rd. A car going north on Monaghan Rd. made a right turn and hit his left right fender.

The driver continued on without stopping, Spencley reported

Constable Harold Andrews is investigating.

An estimated $230 damage resulted when two cars collided at McDonnel and Stewart Sts., Sunday morning.

Francis E. Loyst, R.R. 1 Lakefield, told police he was driving south on Stewart St., and stopped for the stop sign at McDonnel St. He said he was about halfway across the intersection when he was in collision with a westbound McDonnel St. car driven by V. J. McElderry, 210 McDonnel St.

Gold Fluctuation For Safekeeping Security Guide

By The Canadian Press

The feeling in many countries that the chances of peace are better today than they have been for the last few years is reflected in many ways and one of them is in the movement of gold for safe keeping.

During the Second World War, Canada's underground bank vaults became the storing point for millions of dollars worth of gold, mostly property of European countries facing the threat of invasion by Nazi hordes.

When the war ended, the flow of gold for safe keeping in Canada tapered off and many countries shipped their property back to their own official vaults.

Korea brought another wave of international tension and the movement of gold for safe keeping in Canada increased. Now it again has tapered off and countries again are taking back their precious property.

Kept Secret

Details of these movements — what gold Canada is getting from what countries—is kept as secret as possible. Officials in Ottawa abide by the wishes of the various countries that transactions and shipments be kept confidential.

But from time to time the Bank of Canada gives a general picture of the movement in its statistical summary. The summary for January, for example, shows the general trend, but, again, gives no detail.

Under a column entitled "Net Increase In Gold Held in Safe Keeping for Non-Residents," the summary estimated that in 1950 the net increase in the first three months amounted to 396,0000 fine ounces. In the second quarter the net increase was 542,000.

Then came Korea, and the threat of third world war as its aftermath. The net increase for safe keeping by non-residents climbed to 4,107,000 in the third quarter of 1950. In the final quarter it jumped to 11,003,000.

The trend continued in the first half of 1951. In the first quarter the net increase was 9,339,000 fine ounces. But in the second quarter it tapered off to 3,258,000.

Then came a more confident feeling in this shaky world. Instead there were "net releases" for the first time since the beginning of 1950.

The net release from gold held in safe keeping for non-residents totalled 96,000 fine ounces in the third quarter of 1951. It jumped to 4,035,000 fine ounces in the final quarter.

Londoner Fined For Disturbing Silence

LONDON, Feb. 18 (Reuters)—The man who infuriated a London crowd Friday by stamping along Fleet St. during the two minutes' silence for the King was fined £1 in court Saturday.

Anthony George, 26, pleaded guilty to "using insulting behavior." He said he "objected to the commercialism" connected with the King's funeral.

"There was no political motive behind my movement, as the crowd thought," George told the magistrate. "I did not realize it would infuriate the people to the extent it did."

Vegetable Peddler To Big-Time Grocer

The Peterborough Sales and Advertising Club will observe retail night at its meeting on Tuesday evening when the guest speaker will be Patsy D'Agostino, a past president of the National Association of Retail Grocers. His subject will be, "You Must Use the Human Touch in Selling." Mr. D'Agostini's career in New York City can be summed up in the phrase, "From push cart to dream mart."

He began in New York as a vegetable peddler in 1921. Set out to learn the grocery business in all its phases and graduated from a push cart to the job of grocery clerk, chain store manager and fruiterer. In 1933 he bought out a small grocery business, and at the end of the first year had did a retail business of $48,000. He now employs 100 people in his stores and his total annual volume is $3,000,000 retail and 1 1-3 million wholesale. He operates three super-markets and a cash and carry wholesale.

Standing at the foot of the crypt is Queen Mother Elizabeth. Behind the widow are Princess Margaret (left) and the Princess Royal. Behind them, in the first row, are (left to right) the Dukes of Kent, Windsor, Gloucester and Edinburgh. Behind Windsor is Lord Mountbatten. The funeral procession was witnessed by 2,000,000 along the three-and-one-half mile route. Several fainted from the long wait in the cold.

Oldest Reserve Indian Marks 84th Birthday

ROSENEATH, Feb. 18 (ENS).—George Beaver, oldest resident of the Alderville Reserve, celebrated his 84th birthday on Sunday. His dinner dessert was his favorite dish, a black rice pudding made of rice gathered from Rice Lake.

The day was spent quietly receiving the good wishes of residents of the reserve and listening to his radio. The radio was a gift from the Indian people to the oldest resident on the reserve; as one Indian passes away it is passed on to the next oldest.

Mr. Beaver was born at Alderville in 1868, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Beaver, and his entire life has been spent here. He speaks Indian fluently.

Whn asked why his black hair never turned grey, he said: "Because I never married."

His home on the reserve is situated on the county road from Roseneath to Harwood. His wants are looked after by his sister, Mrs. Carolyn Fleming, who resides with him.

His hobby is wood carving, making curios for the tourist trade.

Mr. Beaver has two sisters, Mrs. Fleming and Mrs. Emma Hagaar of Shiwaniga, also one brother, Wellington Beaver, of Madoc.

Uncontested Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 18 (AP)—As a result of a series of "very friendly" talks with her actor husband in New York, Mrs. Clark Gable will get an uncontested divorce next April, Gable's studio said Sunday. The M-G-M announcement ended film colony speculation that a bitter court dispute between the pair was shaping up.

Unemployment Ottawa Job-CCF

TORONTO, Feb. 18 (CP)—The Toronto and District C.C.F. convention resolved Saturday that the Federal and provincial governments should assume full responsibility for the relief of employable unemployed persons and that the relief burden should not fall on the municipalities.

The meeting voted down a resolution that would have banned the publishing of "newspaper slates" in civic elections. Andrew Brewin, Toronto lawyer, said that to prevent newspapers from listing the candidates they favor would be a blow at the institution of a free press.

$30 Million Fund Left By The Late George R. White

BOSTON, Feb. 18 (AP)—Establishment of a $30,000,000 "humanitarian fund" by philanthropist George Robert White shortly before he died 30 years ago was disclosed Sunday night by Dr. Samuel M. Best, successor to White as president of Cuticura Corp., of Malden, Mass.

Dr. Best said he was committed to make the first public report of the work status of White's humanitarian fund at this time to fulfil a death-bed request by White in January, 1922, that the public be told of the multi-million-dollar philanthropic project after the 30th anniversary of his death.

The money was quietly provided by Cuticura Corp., to aid struggling artists, needy medical patients, institutions and hospitals. Dr. Best said the donations have totalled some $30,000,000.

Liberals Plan Meeting For May 30

TORONTO, Feb. 18 (CP)—The management committee of the Ontario Liberal Association Saturday set May 30 as the date for the party's annual meeting. Farquhar Oliver, veteran Liberal member of the Legislature for Grey South, was confirmed as Liberal House leader. He served in that capacity during the last Legislature.

Since the Nov. 22 provincial general election, in which the Liberals elected only eight members to the 90-member House, there have been several requests from within the party for an extra meeting. The Liberal members of the Legislature, in caucus, recently passed such a resolution.

There was no 1951 annual meeting. It had been called for the fall, but was cancelled because of the election.

The question of a leadership convention reportedly was not discussed at the five-hour closed meeting of the management committee. Whether Walter C. Thomson, who became leader in late 1950, will continue in that position, undoubtedly will be a major topic at the coming annual meeting. Mr. Thomson so far has not said whether he will seek to continue as leader or will step down.

The committee heard reports from six regional presidents. These mostly concerned the reasons for the Liberals' failure to do better in the last election. Management committee spokesmen declined to say what reasons were advanced.

Reds Report Training Bees To Serve State

MOSCOW, Feb. 18 —(AP)—A Russian scientific journal reports Soviet scientists are training honey bees to subordinate their own whims to the interests of the state.

The magazine Knowledge-Power said scientists are teaching the bees to fertilize only those plants the scientists want made fertile.

Thus, the magazine said, Russian apiarists are able to get the bees to work on red clover which the bees usually ignore because of its low nectar yield.

Whole hives are being put to work on collective clover farms, the journal said, and the crop has been greatly increased.

Further experiments have taught Soviet bees to boost their honey production up to 50 per cent when turned loose among such nectar-rich plants as buckwheat.

The experiments have only begun, the journal said. Soon the bees will be taught to boost the yield of cotton and other important crops.

Paper Features Two Canadians

LONDON, Feb. 18 (CP)—Two prominent Canadian personalities Sunday monopolized the featured "profile" section in the serious Sunday newspapers.

The Times published an appraisal of Governor-General-elect Vincent Massey, styling him "an unrepresentative Canadian who has represented Canada for most of his public career," and The Observer devoted its famous profile column to External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson.

The two biographies brought out a striking similarity in their careers—both sons of Methodists, both educated at Oxford, both history professors at University of Toronto and both veterans of diplomatic service in London and Washington.

The Observer ended by predicting that Pearson may well be chosen first secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization "thus giving Canada her rightful leadership in that Atlantic community which is her natural habitat."

Scientists Will Make Study Of Einstein Shift February 25

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18—(AP) —The question of the "Einstein shift"—which may prove to be as important to science as the Notre Dame shift to football—could be settled one way or another this month.

Scientists backed by the National Geographic Society expect to get their first real crack at checking up on the shift during the total eclipse of the sun in Africa Feb. 25.

They say they expect "lush" conditions for their observations —in contrast to what a Society representative described as "very lousy" ones during an eclipse in Brazil in 1947.

What they'll be looking for is an apparent shift of stars close to the sun during the eclipse.

Dr. Albert Einstein, whose famed theory of relativity is important in the study of the structure of the atom and of the universe, has predicted that one proof of his theory will lie in direct observation of the "bending" of starlight by the influence of the sun.

In other words, if Einstein is correct, stars near the sun would appear to shift.

Good Chance

Scientists through the world generally accept Einstein's theory of relativity, but they are constantly searching for proofs of it by direct observation.

An eclipse of the sun offers a possibility for checking on the star shift business because the sun is blacked out and nearby stars are visible.

So far eclipse expeditions haven't had much luck in spotting it, however.

National Geographic Scientists took a major crack at the problem during the 1947 total eclipse in Brazil, but a Society representative told a reporter:

"Observations were made all right, but there was a very lousy star field as seen around the sun —not very many stars and all of them very remote.

"The sun was in a bad position at the time. But this year things look just about right. There will be a lush star field."

The Society's expedition already has set up shop at Khartoum in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, close to the centre of the 9,000-mile path of eclipse totality.

The eclipse will be visible as "partial" through most of the rest of Africa, Europe and Western Asia.

MR. AND MRS. PETER THOMAS pictured after the wedding Saturday afternoon. The bride is the former Miss Hazel Billing from Cornwall, England—(Roy Studio Photo).

Hazel Billing, Peter Thomas Pledge Vows At All Saints'

Baskets of lovely spring flowers decorated All Saints' Anglican Church Saturday afternoon as setting for the wedding of Miss Hazel O. Billing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Billing of Cornwall, England, to Mr. Peter A. J. Thomas, the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Thomas of Peterborough.

The couple pledged their nuptial vows before the Rev. Maurice Poole, rector. Organist Miss Margaret Flowers played traditional wedding music and during the signing of the register played Handel's "Largo" which had been selected by the bride's father in England.

Mr. A. Thomas, father of the groom, gave the bride in marriage She was wearing a gown of chenille lace over white taffeta and layers of net. The bodice was designed with high collar and long lily point sleeves. Her veil of French lace fell to the floor from a coronet of seed pearls and rhinestones and she was carrying a bouquet of red roses.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Rodney Kilborn and Miss Evelyn Hocking, a cousin of the groom, was bridesmaid. They wore identically fashioned frocks of blue and pink taffeta and halo headdresses of matching net. Each carried a muff of the taffeta of her dress which was decorated with sweet peas and fern.

Mr. F. O'Brien attended the groom and the ushers were Wm. Norman and P. Spink.

The reception was held in the Empress Hotel Kawartha Room. Mrs. R. Hocking assisted the bride to receive her guests and the groom's mother also received. Mrs. Hocking wore a dress of wine faille with a wine velvet hat and had a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Thomas was wearing cinnamon lace and matching feather hat and she also wore pink carnations.

The bridal couple left later on a wedding trip to New York city. For travelling the bride wore a cherry red suit and a grey fur coat with grey accessories. Her going-away corsage was of red roses.

On return Mr. and Mrs. Thomas will live at 137 Lake St.

Weaving, Fascinating Craft

WINNIPEG (CP)—A mountain landslide started Mrs. G. A. Hoozer on the hobby of weaving, a craft in which she has become expert and which she describes as "fascinating."

Mrs. Hoozer, slim, white-haired mother from Cloverdale, B.C., visited Winnipeg recently before leaving for overseas and a year's study of weaving in other countries. Before returning to Canada she will visit Finland, Switzerland, Norway, Denmark and Sweden.

"Weaving seems to soothe disturbed people," she said. "Color seems to relax the tension."

However, the particular shade of color has a great deal to do with the value of weaving as a relaxing therapy. Mrs. Hoozer says she knew one woman who was placid while weaving with a blue yarn, but grew restless and difficult to manage when given a red yarn.

In 1934 Mrs. Hoozer's home was carried off by a mountain landslide. While adjusting herself to another way of life she took up weaving for a hobby.

She boasts no formal instruction whatever. She taught herself from books and now has a large reference library.

She has expert instruction to many others. During the Second World War she went from camp to camp teaching soldiers to weave. She has also taught the craft to the mentally ill.

All Family Weavers

Several girls she taught have opened their own shops in Canada, and another started up in Honolulu.

Mrs. Hoozer—called Honey by her friends—says all her family are weavers. She has a son in the navy who carries his own loom on board his ship. He works away on the loom as he travels around the world, making gifts as well as suitings for shore clothes.

"My other son married an English girl," says Mrs. Hoozer. "I taught her to weave, too. So you see, we are all at it."

All rugs, bedding and drapes in the Hoozer home at Cloverdale have been made by hand. She makes all the materials for her own suits.

"I can make a seven-yard suit length in a couple of days," she says. "I have sheared the sheep, spun the wool and vegetable-dyed it to the color I want."

Mrs. Hoozer says everything woven must be washed, especially linen, to remove oil. Many weavers forget this important part of the work.

She says there are great possibilities for craft work in Canada. "So much can be done if the creative instinct is put to work."

VITAL INDUSTRY

LEAP YEAR COMING ONCE IN FOUR—You know the rest and all its traditions. But the men of Mark St. Church choir thought they were safe when they got married. Not so—and here you see them presiding at a table of home baking which was the drawing card of an afternoon tea on Saturday. Don't let the expressions for the camera fool you—they really enjoyed themselves and did an excellent job, too. In spite of those suits Len Agnew and Art Harris are wearing, they didn't do the baking they seem so keen to sell. Customer Mrs. Wallace Parnell (extreme left) is getting a sales talk from Mr. Agnew on some tasty tidbit while Mr. Ed. DeNure listens closely—for pointers when his turn comes. Mark St. Bassos and Tenors Officiate At Leap Year Tea

Leap Year may have many surprises in store for the male of the species, but one of the big ones came to the bassos and tenors of Mark St. Church choir Saturday when they found themselves in full charge of an afternoon tea.

The surprise was short-lived however. Realizing they had been talked into a situation, they took hold of it and did a commendable job. In fact, the ladies had best get busy at polishing their tea-party manners or the men might be acclaimed a bigger success in their special forte by this year's end.

"I'm having the best time of my life," chuckled former minister of the church the Rev. E. W. Rowland as he deftly filled a small china tea cup from a gracefully curved silver tea pot, and added the required sugar and cream with experienced precision. His partner at the other end of the table, Mr. Ernest Lillico, seemed less at ease in his new role.

Servers were most solicitous of their guests with specially decorated Valentine sandwiches, hors-d'oeuvres, and dainty pastries. Each had charge of a table for four and they also showed themselves good hosts in that they invited guests from the waiting line-up to fill vacancies whenever they occurred. Strict instructions had been given out by the tea convener Mrs. Harry Green and they followed them to the letter—"sandwiches three times, cakes three times" and "ask them to have a second cup of tea."

Some of these stalwart gentlemen remarked wryly "We'll all be sopranos by Sunday," but just the same they had a good time, and the choir music was perhaps better than ever at Sunday services.

Bake tables were taken charge of by Mr. Len Agnew and Mr. Art Harris and they dressed for the parts in crisp white aprons and chef's hats. As usual, their wares were eagerly sought out by purchasers and business was very satisfying. It was clear to all from the type of goods displayed that the men had not done the baking, nor had they made the candy Mr. Art Houson was selling.

Mr. Ed DeNure and Mr. Max Pomeroy were receiving at the door and welcomed some 300 men and women. Their tickets were taken by Mr. Cy Cockerill.

Leap year decorations around the tea room were beautiful maidens in silhouette and each small table was centred with a charming model on a pink frilled stand.

The tea table was lovely with a hand-crocheted lace cloth and centre bouquet of tulips, daffodils and snapdragon in blending colors flanked with white tapers. During the second hour of the tea the Rev. B. S. Morwood and Mr. F. L. Edworthy presided over the silver tea services at either end of the table.

The servers were Mr. Lloyd Rowland, Mr. Wally Parnell, Mr. George Bennett, Mr. Stuart Laing, Mr. Hamilton Humphry, Mr. Fred Hunter, Mr. Ted Brook, Mr. Ken Kidd, Mr. Ed. Bentley, Mr. Jack Murray and Mr. Hugh Hunter.

Three Women Fly To Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 18 — (Reuters) — After a 3,500-mile flight from Ottawa to Mexico in a single-engine plane, three Canadian girls arrived here Saturday convinced it costs less to fly your own plane than it does to take a trip by auto.

In their trip, which took them down the east coast of the United States and across the southern U.S. over Louisiana and Texas, en route to Mexico City, their total expense for fuel, hangar space and landing fees was only $40, they said.

When the trio left Ottawa, subzero weather had grounded commercial air liners, but after passing Elmia, N.Y., they met no more difficult weather.

The three are Margaret Carso, who last summer won the U.S. international women's air race; Irene Orton and Mrs. Irene Knowlton, all of Ottawa.

Wealthiest Young Man Wed

LONDON, Ont. Feb. 18 (CP)—Canada's richest young man was married Saturday to his schoolday sweetheart.

In a ceremony in St. Martin's Roman Catholic Church so private that only the bridal party was there, John Leonard Smallman, 18, took as his bride Mary Kathleen Connell Steers, 20, daughter of a socially prominent London family who was a guest at Johnny's seventh birthday party. She recently had been a telephone operator.

The young couple at the last minute advanced the time for the ceremony 40 minutes. They were out of the church long before the scheduled 11 a.m. hour for the service and many persons were caught streaming to the church after everything was over.

The bride and groom also changed an earlier arrangement to go directly to the London home of her grandfather, Col. William G. Coles, for a reception. They took a three-mile trip about the city and left later by plane on a honeymoon trip to Mexico.

The groom, whose great-grandfather was one of the founders of the Imperial Oil Co., is a Protestant, his bride a Roman Catholic. The ceremony, at which Rev. W. T. Flannery officiated, was held in the church, rather than the rectory, as London is one of the four dioceses in Canada where mixed marriages in a Catholic church are permitted by the bishop.

The bride is the only daughter of Mrs. Connell Steers, London, and the late Connell Steers of Ottawa and London. The groom, who at the age of 14 became heir to the $2,600,000 fortune of a great-aunt, is the son of Mrs. W. E. Bahen, Hamilton, and the late Thomas Hamilton Smallman.

The bride chose for the wedding costume a spring suit of pale orchid gabardine. A head-hugging navy ribbon hat with brief nose veil and navy shoes. Her white sheer blouse was matched with white gloves and a corsage of white gardenias. The bridesmaid was Vicki Shannon of London, a girlhood chum.

She was given in marriage by a brother, Barrie Connell Steers of Ottawa. Her younger brother, Kevin Connell Steers, London, was groomsman.

Johnny, who at 21 receives the $150,000-a-year interest on his fortune and gets half the principal when he is 25, says he is looking for a job with a construction company. He hopes to become a partner. He's also planning to buy an English sports car which can make more than 100 miles an hour.

The young couple weeks ago announced their intention of moving to Toronto after their marriage. Meantime, it was reported, they have rented a flat on Pall Mall St. here.

It was said to be a side-entrance apartment of a duplex at the end of a row of 1½-story brick houses facing railway freight sheds and with an outlook on a string of boxcars. It was described by a friend of the groom as "well worth $50 heated in a tight market."

A paper slip on the door says: "Push hard to make the bell ring."

COMMON AILMENT

There were about 180,000 known diabetic sufferers in Canada in 1951, plus an estimated 70,000 unlisted persons.

MR. AND MRS. ROYDEN E. HOCKADAY of Lakefield, the bride formerly Miss Betty Briggs.—(Roy Studio Photo).

Betty Briggs Becomes Bride

A double ring wedding ceremony was solemnized Saturday afternoon in St. James' United Church, by the Rev. H. McCormack, of Betty Isabell Briggs and Royden Elmer Hoekaday. She is daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Briggs of Sussex, N.B. and the groom is son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hockaday of Lakefield.

The bride was wearing a suit of charmaine in cinnamon shade with hand-stitched trim and she had her accessories in chocolate brown, choosing a hat in turban style of straw and velvet with eyebrow veil. Her corsage was of yellow "golden sceptre" roses. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Aubrey Morrison, who wore a navy suit with rust accessories and her corsage was of red "better time" roses.

The groom's attendant was his brother, Fred Hockaday.

The reception was at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Thomas Cox, 357 Welsh St. Mrs. Cox wore for the occasion a wine suit and grey accessories. She was assisted by the groom's mother who was dressed in a navy ensemble.

After a motor trip to Toronto and northern Ontario, Mr. and Mrs. Hockaday will make their home in Lakefield.

Women's Thrift Campaign Big Success, Cut Out Frills

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Feb. 18—(CP)—Three months ago 600,000 determined Canadian women banded together to attempt to cut living costs.

Their leader, Mrs. Allan Turner Bone of Montreal, president of the National Council of Women, says now that so far the crusade has been "a great success". She hopes it may prove a barrier against further inflation.

Launched last October by the 59-year-old council, the Thrift Campaign has moved into towns and cities from coast to coast, wherever there are representatives of the organization.

Housewives have been urged to cut out the frills in their buying; to serve only one kind of cake at tea-parties; not to haunt bargain-counters for items they don't need.

They've been told they're likely to get more value—and more vitamins—for their money if they buy the cheaper meats instead of the high price cuts. For instance, liver, they have been told is an excellent source of vitamin A, also vitamin C. And pork liver—around 28 cents a pound in Toronto—contains "almost three times" as much iron as beef liver—around 70 cents a pound.

The 13,000-member Canadian Association of Consumers is one of a dozen other national women's organizations backing the drive.

In monthly bulletins it urges housewives to use twisted newspaper instead of wood for kindling; to save vegetable water for soups and gravies.

Consumer Resistance

Tangible results are difficult to determine in this kind of campaign. But Mrs. Bone says they are beginning to show. She cited as a possible example the fact that some retailers now talk of consumer resistance.

However, she prefers to regard the drive as a long-range educational program.

Begun on a plea to women to exercise purse control, the campaign's path hasn't been too smooth. The word "thrift" met with opposition in section of Canada not affluent as others and chiefly from housewives who figured they already were practising it to the limit. But once explained as an anti-inflation measure, it won support.

From its national headquarters in Ottawa the council distributes tips to Canadian housewives. These include inexpensive recipes.

"The more demand we make for goods the more producers and manufacturers will be pressed into supplying them," the council explains in a folder. "Shop windows are not always an accurate indication of background conditions. We can create shortages by over-buying and so pushing up prices.

"Women had to be convinced that they could curtail expense," says Mrs. Bone. "And to do this we had to show that, while the cost of living had increased 90 per cent, the net personal income had increased 190 per cent and despite high prices and high taxes, personal saving was 147 per cent higher in 1950 than in 1939."

Women were not asked to stop spending, but simply, to defer it, to give careful thought to their needs rather than their wants.

Why were women approached? Because statisticians claim they spend 80 per cent of the consumer money in Canada.

Keep Your Standards High You Will Win Respect

DEAR MISS DIX: Two years ago I met the man of my dreams. He took me out occasionally but never said I meant anything to him. A year ago he joined the Army and began to write to me. His letters were just friendly. When he came home on leave he saw me a few times, then the last night he was home he got fresh for the first time. I told him if he thought I was that type of girl he'd better just forget about me. About a week later I received a letter from him which was quite different from all the others, and ever since they have been more serious. My problem is this: Does he mean all the things he writes or are they just words without meaning? Do you think he could have fallen in love with me?

CAROLYN

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I hope your letter serves as a beacon to the girls who believe they must respond to a boy's overtures to keep his regard. They are so wrong, as your typical experience shows.

A boy who is out for an evening of fun will often make advances to a girl just to see what happens. The right kind of girl repulses the lovemaking and automatically wins the boy's respect. If he's serious, he'll call again with a more gentlemanly attitude.

Such is the progress of your case. You can be quite sure that this boy is falling in love with you, and that he does mean the serious tone of his letters. Even young boys can recognize the high calibre of a girl with self-respect. A girl of high ideals, who sets a standard for boy friends, may not have male companions falling over themselves to have dates with her, but she will be assured that those who do seek her friendship are worthy of it.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: A friend of mine has many chances to go out on dates but she always refuses because she has no place to bring her friends. Her home consists of two bedrooms and a kitchen—no parlor. Would it be okay for her to bring them into the kitchen, or would the young men object?

KITTY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: While it is unfortunate to be so restricted on entertainment quarters, many dwellers in small apartments are in the same predicament. There is nothing wrong in asking a young man into a kitchen and few of them will object. In fact, most young men are delighted to be so near the source of food.

Perhaps your friend could transform one of the bedrooms into a bed-sitting room? Such a change can be made with remarkably little money and effort. A studio couch to take the place of the bed, dressers that can easily double as living-room chests, and an attractive room is available for entertaining. Women's magazines will give many hints for such a room.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My daughter is married to a man eight years older than she. They have been married four years and have a 2-year-old son. They lived with me for three years and moved away two months ago. Her husband is a mamma's boy, and stops to see his mother every day. Yet he fights with my daughter if she wants to come here once in ten days.

MILDRED

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: A wife is entitled to see her mother as often as a husband sees his. She may, and probably will, have to do some arguing to win this point, but unless she takes a stand and fights for her rights, there will be constant squabbling over a very impotrant matter. Talk a little backbone into your daughter. You'll probably be accused of being an interfering mother-in-law for your pains, but certainly she is entitled to see her mother once to the ten times her husband goes home to mamma.

Zest For Life Undimmed With Mary Garden At 75

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Feb. 18 (AP)—Mary Garden approaches her 75th birthday with the same tangy zest for life that sparked her operatic career.

The Scottish-born "singing actress" whose voice thrilled North Americans and Europeans in the first three decades of this century keeps her horizons wide.

She'll be 75 Feb. 20. The day probably will be spent quietly behind the granite walls of her comfortable apartment on Aberdeen's Rosemount Hill. There'll be a few callers, most certainly no celebration, but this doesn't add up to the life of a recluse. Among her plans for this year are a trip to Paris to see about French publication rights for her autobiography; another speaking tour of the United States — her fourth in as many years—and a pilgrimage to southern France to help an old friend promote a new opera training mecca.

A few weeks ago she slipped on Aberdeen's ice-covered cobbles while shopping and wrenched her leg. She was ordered to bed.

"I've got the bandages off," she confided to a friend who called, but "of course, I will rest it."

But she interrupted the "rest" that same week to travel to London to make a requested broadcast for the BBC.

On the whole, however, the onetime favorite of the Paris Opera Comique, the New York Metropolitan and the Chicago Grand Opera Company leads a disciplined and orderly existence.

Warm Hearth

Outside her apartment are cold granite walls and colder northern skies, but inside there is warmth.

In her favorite salon deep carpets are overlaid with a magnificent leopard skin rug. The motif is red (she favors this color and her ensemble always has a touch of it)—red silk coverings over period furniture, antique pieces from France and a brooding bust of Napoleon.

Each piece has the aura of "belonging." Each has a direct link in the life of the prima donna. The room is an invitation to rest and talk of the opera and its people. It's as warm as the greeting of Mary Garden.

She will venture no opinions on world vices and virtues. Political talk is taboo.

She is looking forward to September and her trip to the U.S.—"This time for five months." She is delighted at the prospect of spending one whole month on the west coast.

"California," she sighs. "So warm, so lovely—I just adore warmth."

Then she'll come back to her beloved Aberdeen and the treasures of her salon, for as she once said proudly: "So I live, and will die—a Scot."

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Making Nice Tasty Gravy; Know-How For Scallops

As you know I try to reserve Monday's space for meat talks. But you have swamped me this week with mail so I have to use every available inch and minute to answer you.

I chose B.D.'s letter to answer because she wants gravy news and scallop know-how, so we are still on the fringes of the subject of meat.

Dear Mary Moore: Would appreciate your advice on the following questions: How do you make gravy for steak that has been broiled? Are you just supposed to pour hot water on the pan, and seasonings? I know it is supposed to be thin, but you don't like too much water on it, to make it flavorless.

(2) Also I would like to know how to cook scallops. My husband and I love them, and I would like to get them golden brown similar to the kind I eat in good restaurants.

(3) I am going to make mincemeat and wondered how long and what temperature you use for a mince meat pie . . . I can make nice tasty gravy for my husband and myself by just adding a little hot water. However, I am interested in knowing how to make it for six people, to put on the table in a gravy boat. I'm watching the paper for some appetizing soup recipes too . . . B. D.

Answer to B. D.

We were taught in school that thin pan gravy—made as you do it—is merely spooned over each serving of steak. But I know that when a man wants gravy it is his wife's business to provide it. Buy two things: best quality gravy browning or beef extract and monosodium glutamate (MSG or Accent). These assure good color and flavor—you can thicken it if you like. Then use water or potato or other vegetable water for your liquid. For 1 pint of gravy do not use more than 1 teaspoon MSG, but use the gravy browning or beef extract at your own discretion.

Deep Fried Scallops

One pound scallops, 1 tablespoon each salad oil and lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 slightly beaten egg, 1 tablespoon cold water, fine sifted bread or cracker crumbs. Wash and dry fresh scallops. If large cut into ¾ or 1-inch cubes. If frozen quick-thaw as directed on package. Mix salad oil, lemon juice and salt; add scallops, moving them about to coat each one with this "marinade", then cover and let stand in refrigerator for 1 hour. Drain. Dip scallops in the egg mixed with cold water, then roll in fine crumbs. (Repeat this egging and crumbling again for extra crisp crust.) Cover bottom of frying basket with scallops and fry until golden brown on all sides—fat or salad oil at 370 deg. Fahr. This temperature will brown a cube of day old bread in 60 seconds. Drain on unglazed paper. Serve with lemon wedges or Tartare Sauce.

Tartare Sauce

One cup chilled mayonnaise, ½ teaspoon each minced onion and parsley, 1 tablespoon each chopped capers, cucumber pickle, and stoned green olives, 1 teaspoon vinegar. Just before serving, combine chilled mayonnaise with all other ingredients which should be well-drained. Good with any fish.

Temperature and time for baking mince pie: Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 40 minutes. BUT if desired you may start the pie at 475 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes, then reduce temperature to 400 deg. Fahr. to finish. This gives the crust a better chance to puff and be flaky.

I have given you pea soup, French onion soup and mulligatawny lately. Watch for minestrone next week.

Keene W.I. Learns Sandwich Making From Food Expert

KEENE, Feb. 16—A meeting of the recently-organized Women's Institute at Keene took place in the town hall on Tuesday evening.

The main interest of the evening's program was a demonstration of sandwich making conducted by Miss Jean Noble, home economist for the counties of Peterborough, Durham and Northumberland and Hastings.

Many helpful ideas for making fancy and nutritious sandwiches were given.

Miss Noble congratulated the new institute branch on its formation.

All women of the vicinity are invited to join the institute and come to these meetings as their goodwill and support is needed in the organization of the institute.

Meetings are held the second Tuesday of each month.

Mrs. McNevan conducted a short social program which was much enjoyed. This included a piano duet by Misses Marlene McNevan and Margaret Robertson.

An old time dance for February 22 in the Keene hall is being planned in hopes of raising some working funds. Serving of refreshments brought the meeting to a close.

6—In Memoriam

BALL—In loving memory of our great-grandmother, Mrs. Wm. Ball, who passed away two years ago, February 18, 1950.

However long our lives may last,
Whatever lands we view,
Whatever joy or grief be ours,
We will always think of you.
—Sadly missed by Bill and Lorie.

McELROY—In loving memory of William C. McElroy, who passed away February 18, 1951.

One year has gone, no one can tell,
The loss of one, we loved so well,
Short and sudden was the call,
Of one, so dearly, loved by all.
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought his death so near,
And only those who have loved can tell
The pain of parting without farewell.
—Ever remembered by wife and family.

McELROY—In loving memory of William C. McElroy, who passed away February 18, 1951.

When last we saw your smiling face,
You looked so bright and well,
Little did we think dear Dad,
It was our last farewell.
If we could speak with you today,
Like with you in the same old way,
Hear your voice and see your smile,
Then life, indeed, would be worthwhile.
—Remembered by Lila and Doug McDonald.

Says Nazi Ideas Prevalent In West Germany

VANCOUVER (CP)—Carl D. H. von Einseidel, who is a descendant of Germany's iron chancellor Otto Von Bismarck, says the principle of Nazism is still widespread in Germany.

Von Einsiedel came to Canada from West Germany eight months ago, first working as a logger in the British Columbia woods. He now is trying to find a job as a salesman.

A cousin of Bismarck's grandson, he fled from the Soviet zone to West Germany in 1948 and was granted political asylum. Until his departure for Canada, he worked as a teletype operator at United States army headquarters in Germany.

Von Einsidel in an interview said the present West German government of Dr. Konrad Adenaer is "all right" but he fears the infiltration of the Communists and the rapidly growing Neo-Nazi Socialist Reich party, perhaps disguised as non-partisans or members of other political groups.

"The West German government is making a mistake in failing to ban the Socialist Reich party," he claims, "because the party's actions in the past have shown it is not democratic. If it should ever lead the country it would only mean the revival of another dictatorship.

Echoes of Hitler

Von Einsidel said the Socialist Reich party sympathizes with the old Nazi party program. Its "Fuehrer," former Maj.-Gen. Ernst Otto Rehmer, was said responsible for the executions of many German officers after the abortive plot against Hitler in 1944. Rehmer betrayed the plot, in which he was to have participated as Commander of the Berlin guard reginment.

Von Einsidel said he was convinced that a new German army would fight alongside the armies of the western democracies in any future war against Communism, but only as a national force under German command.

"It will be hard right now to find an officer who is suited and able to lead a German army," he said. "To get the wrong man for the job, either a Neo-Nazi or another Super-Nationalist, would only endanger the structure of such an army."

He is not worrying too much about it, however. Von Einsiedel said he wants to forget German politics and instead study Canadian politics more closely because "I want to become a good Canadian citizen."

Abbott Asked To Reduce Tobacco Taxes

OTTAWA, Feb. 18 —(CP)—A delegation of the Ontario Tobacco Industry called on finance minister Abbott today to reduce tobacco taxes to a point where a 20-cigarette package can be retailed for 30 cents instead of 42.

In a 12-page brief, the taxation committee of the flue-cured Tobacco Marketing Association of Ontario said:

1. Only a 30-cent package will wipe out smuggling of low-priced United States cigarettes into Canada. The committee claimed that R.C.M.P. seizures have increased to more than 15,000,000 cigarettes in recent months. The smuggling was a "national scandal, developing out of the consumers' 'revolt' against high prices."

2. A cigarette sales slump, allegedly caused by the government's taxes, resulted in factory lay-offs, numbering in the hundreds in one plant. Trade estimates were that more than 10 per cent of tobacco factory workers have lost wages.

Hits Budget

3. The all-round loss in revenue has extended even to the government. In his budget a year ago, Mr. Abbott had estimated that $35,000,000 additional revenue would be obtained from the increased taxes. It now seemed "certain" that if there is to be any increase at all, "it will be merely nominal."

4. Revenue Department figures showed that consumption of cigarettes in Canada in 1951 dropped to 15,667,265,000 from 17,167,729,000 in 1950—a decline of about 1,500,000,000. Consumption actually was higher in the first four months, but began dropping off rapidly in the last eight months of the year.

Heading the tobacco delegation was Francis R. Gregory, of Leamington, association chairman.

Two Convicted Of Robbing General Store

Two residents of Curve Lake Indian Reserve pleaded guilty to breaking and entering and committing theft when they appeared in police court today.

Magistrate W. R. Philp sentenced Leonard Taylor, 19, who had no previous record to six months definite and three months indefinite in Reformatory.

Nolan Jacobs, 25, who has been previously convicted for breaking and entering was remanded until Tuesday for sentence at request of Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw who said other charges may be laid against him.

Both Taylor and Jacobs were charged with breaking into the Gail Park general store, on Chemong Lake, across from the south west tip of the Indian Reserve on February 2.

OPP Constable Thomas Armstrong said the pair stole a quantity of sundry merchandise ranging from combs and bobby pins to lanterns, sun glasses and clothing. A statement was obtained from both Taylor and Jacobs, admitting they had stolen the articles which Constable Armstrong said were found under the floor of Taylor's home.

He said the value of the loot would be "well over $25."

Had Lock Pick

A lock picking tool, which Taylor said in the statement he had made from a nail was introduced as an exhibit. Constable Armstrong said that locks, made by a well known lock manufacturing firm can be opened easily with his device, "This homemade key will open all types of the lock," Constable Armstrong said.

It was while investigating a complaint that a cottage on Chemong Lake had been broken into February 16, that Constable Armstrong found tracks leading to the Indian Reserve. He carried out further investigations in the vicinity and after questioning neighboring farmers, Constable Armstrong arrested Jacobs. Jacobs confessed to breaking into the store, and Taylor also confessed, after Jacobs informed Constable Armstrong that Taylor had assisted him in looting the store.

Jacobs was convicted of breaking and entering and theft here, in November 1950 and sentenced to 10 months definite and three months indefinite on each of three similar charges. The sentences ran concurrently.

On March 9, 1950, Jacobs was given three months for attempted breaking and entering. When Magistrate Philp asked him today if he had been convicted of similar offences previous to these, he nodded his head that he had.

District Churches Hold Services For Late Sovereign

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 18 (ENS)—"I am the resurrection and the life, saith the Lord," these words of promised immortality, read by the Rev. W. H. Tonge, opened the community service held Friday evening in the United Church when citizens of Lakefield gathered to pay their final tribute to King George VI.

The scripture reading was taken by the Rev. W. B. Walker of the Lakefield Baptist church and prayers for Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth and bereaved members of the Royal family were said by the Rev. H. Kaye of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. The Rev. L. J. Delaney of the Church of St. John the Baptist paid the tribute to the late King.

"We meet to honor the memory of a good man and a good king," said Mr. Delaney. "He was a king who enshrined in himself the virtues we hold dear in our democratic way of life. His was the life that all of us must live if our democracy is to survive and God's kingdom is to be lived on this earth as He purposed."

"It is a lonely life," continued Mr. Delaney, "to be so amidst the crowd always in the public gaze, and yet he never shirked but carried on with his Queen beside him, and his happy children. He understood his people and their troubles were his troubles. In war time their danger was his danger —their austerity, his austerity."

The music was under the direction of Quirt McKinney, choirleader of the United church. A massed choir from the various Protestant churches of the village sang the anthem "The Lord is My Shepherd." John D. Grylls was at the organ and included in the organ prelude Handel's "Largo" and "Hark a Voice Says All Are Mortal" by Bach. The postlude was "Miserere Mei Deus."

Organizations attending the service included the Lakefield Branch, Canadian Legion, the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion; the Masonic Lodge; the Orange Lodge, the I.O.O.F., Sea Scouts and their leaders, the Rebecca Lodge, the Catherine Parr Trail Chapter, I.O.D.E., and the Lakefield Red Cross Society.

HASTINGS (ENS).—There was a good attendance at the memorial service at Trinity United Church. The Rev. N. Cole based his remarks on the words of the Book of Revelations, "These are they who came out of great tribulations." He referred to the late King George VI as having passed through immense difficulties. His very accession to the throne was difficult in that he was called upon to fill the high office with very little time for preparation.

His heroic and Christian demeanor was evident at all times. The minister closed his address with the familiar words of John Bunyan, "And so he passed over and all the trumpets sounded for him on the other side."

The hymns sung were, "For All Thy Saints Who From Their Labors Rest" and "The King of Love My Shepherd Is." Mrs. J. M. Baker presided at the organ.

During the week the Rev. Mr. Cole visited the Public schools of Hastings and Westwood and brought appropriate talks to the children upon the death of the King.

MILLBROOK (ENS).—A memorial service for King Geore VI was conducted in St. Thomas' Anglican Church on Friday morning by the Rev. A. A. Chote. There was a good attendance and the members of the J. B. Hall Lodge of the Masonic order attended in a body.

In paying tribute to the King Mr. Chote recalled how he carried on bravely in spite of the handicap of poor health and the speech difficulties which made every word a struggle in his early broadcasts. He quoted the King, "With God's help we shall not fail." Of him it could be said, "God was with him wheresoever he went." He knew where to find the power and strength he needed for himself and for his country. At the time of Dunkirk he proclaimed a national day of prayer.

George Smith and Donald Kent sounded the last post.

The Rev. W. H. Hewstin conducted a memorial service in the High School, and Rev. A. M. Butler in the Public School on Thursday.

APSLEY, (ENS).—A memorial service for King George VI was held in St. George's Church on Friday evening conducted by the Rev. C. A. G. Spence. The service was opened by one minute silence followed by the funeral march played by organist Donna Lean. The King's favorite hymn, "The King of Love My Shepherd Is" was sung, followed by reading Psalm 39.

The service was identical with the service held in St. George's Chapel at Windsor aside from a brief eulogy. The service closed with singing "Abide With Me." Members of Canadian Legion Branch 381 attended in a body as did members of Ladies' Auxiliary to Canadian Legion.

BANCROFT (ENS). — The Church of St. John the Evangelist was filled with young and old from every denomination in the memorial service for the late King George VI Friday morning. A sad and silent group listened to the official Church of England service that had been prepared for use in the diocese of Ontario by Bishop Lyons. The Rev. Walter Smith officiated, with Mrs. Mary Schram as organist.

THE BENELUX union gets its name from the front letters of its three member countries—Belgium, Luxembourg and The Netherlands. The Benelux is a customs union, regulating trade and tariffs among the three nations. Its eventual aim is to drop all barriers and form a strong economic union of 19,000,000 people. The Benelux pattern was first worked out in 1944 by governments of the three nations exiled in London by Nazi conquest. The initial agreement went into effect Jan. 1, 1948. It was the first post-war experiment in Western European integration, and as such it doesnt inspire too much confidence for an eventual United States of Europe. Economic experts of the Benelux countries have now drafted a 50-year treaty that would put the customs union on a firmer footing, but the Dutch government reportedly is balking at signing. Dutch objection is that the treaty doesn't go far enough toward economic unity, but rather freezes progress toward that goal at a point where Belgium gains the wider market she seeks, with Dutch hopes remaining unfulfilled.
